From P. S. Miller.—The Brethren of the Cook Creek congregation held their L. v. e. a. s. t. Saturday, Aug. 27th. A large concourse of persons were in attendance, and quite a number from the adjoining districts, with a number of speakers. The meeting was a good one, and was very enjoyable. It makes one really think of a heaven on earth to see the number (about 400) that were present seated around the table.... The church house here is a very large one, and several hundred persons were unable to get in.... On Sunday at 10 o'clock, had services again. Sermon by brother John Harshbarger from a portion of E. b. 2: 8: 'For by grace are ye saved through faith.' Giving was very telling illustrations, and showing very clearly the difference between a dead and living faith.... Brother Harshbarger will move to Illinois about thirty days. We are sorry to lose one so earnest and at all times so ready to defend the doctrine. My prayer is that he may continue so, as we sorely are living in an age that we need many such brethren. May the good Lord bless his labors for God, and that he may find many good warm-hearted brethren and sisters in Illinois.... The satisfaction your valued paper is giving, is entire, as far as known here, and its prospects brightening for the future.—Bridgewater, Va.

[This was unavoidably delayed.—ED.]

From John Metzger.—I came to St. Louis the 23rd ult. Rented a hall for five months, and had five meetings up to this time. We expect to continue the meeting this month. Congregations were not so very large, but very attentive and have good order. People are just beginning to learn the meeting is going on. Yesterday we went to the Mississippi river to baptize four; three more applicants and prospects good for more to come out on the Lord's side. A great deal of wickedness is going on in St. Louis; but there are some people that are willing to do the Lord's will by obeying his commandments.... Our sisters in St. Louis are laying off their style and jewelry, and are not ashamed in time of worship to wear a cap instead of a hat; even our little sister only eight years old is not ashamed to wear her cap. Her name is Lizzie Crawford.... I hope and pray the time is not far distant that the Brethren can organize a church here. Hope all the brethren and sisters that will read this, will pray that God's will may be done in St. Louis.—St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 8.

From Wm. Borough—The Brethren of South Bend congregation have in process of construction a house of worship; size, 40x60, and will be conveniently arranged for Communion purposes. Roof will be of iron. Light and ventilation are also considered. At this writing, the building is about enclosed. When finished, it will have the appearance of neatness, plainness, and symmetry. It is to be completed Oct. 15th, '81.—North Liberty, Ind., Sept. 6th, '81.

Health and Temperance.

S. T. BOSSEMAN, EDITOR.

All communications for this department should be addressed to S. T. Bosseman, Dunkirk, Hardin Co., Ohio.

SICKNESS A DISGRACE.

ALL bodily ailments are more or less urgent appeals for help; nor can we doubt in what that help should consist. The more fully we understand the nature of any disease, the more clearly we see that the discovery of the cause means the discovery of the curative. Many sicknesses are caused by poisons, foisted upon the system under the name of tonic beverages or remedial drugs; the only cure is to eschew the poison; others, by habits, more or less at variance with the health laws of nature; to cure such we have to reform our habits. There is nothing accidental, and rarely inevitable, about a disease; we can safely assume that nine out of ten complaints have been caused and can be cured by the sufferers (or their nurses) themselves. "God made man upright"; every prostrating malady is a deviation from the state of nature. The infant, "mawling and puking in its nurse's arms," is an abnormal phenomenon. Infancy should be a period of exceptional health; the young of other creatures are healthier, as well as prettier, purer, and more virile, than the adults, yet the childhood years of the human animal are the years of sorest sicknesses; statistics show that among the Caucasian races men of thirty have more hours to reach a good old age than a new-born child has to reach the end of its second year. The reason is this: the health theories of the average Christian man and woman are so egregiously wrong, that only the opposition of their better instincts helps them—against their conscience, as it were—to mitigate the struggle for a tolerable existence with anything like success, while the helpless infant has to conform to these theories—with the above results.

"I have long ceased to doubt," says Dr Schrodt, "that, apart from the effects of wounds, the causes of health or disease are in our own hands; and, if people knew only half the facts picturing that war, they would feel ashamed to be sick, or to have sick children.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald, in Popular Science Monthly for September.

A BAR ROOM FOR LADIES.

SPeaking of the fashionable women of New York who are financially able to gratify their longings," the Cincinnati Enquirer says:—

"Shopping is their diversion and delight. They spend their livelong day going from store to store, whether they intend to buy anything or not. They do not stop to go home for a midday meal, but they buy a lunch wherever they chance to be when eating time comes. In one of the largest fancy goods establishments in the city a restaurant fifty feet square does a rushing business, and a soda water fountain fixes continuously. But the latest project for the refreshment of fashionable women is a bar, New bar-rooms in which disreputable women drink are no novelty, but this is no such concern. It is as respectable as it is unique. It is in Broadway, close to Stewart's great mart and Wallack's theatre, in the midst of handsome retail establishments. The front is resplendent with plate glass, and the store itself is wide, deep, and elegantly fitted up. The walls are oil-coping and frescoed, and the floor is marble. One side is devoted to the sale of confectionery. That shows the proprietor's shrewdness, for women probably would not go in if there was nothing but a bar in the place. The bar runs along the opposite side, and is about the same in style as those of the best cafes, though the marble counter is a little lower. An immense mirror faces the drinkers, and the back-bar is adorned with cut glasses and decanters. Instead of a beer pump, however, there is a soda fountain. Piles of lemons, an ornamental lemon squeezer, groups of ginger-ale bottles, and pyramids of silver Tom-and-Jerry cups, make a display as gorgeous as can be found on any bar in the city. Two bartenders, of the regulation pattern with their hair and mustaches carefully brushed, diamonds glinting on their polished shirt fronts, and the sleeves of their white coats turned up at the elbows, are constantly on duty. The women walk up just like little mees, and order their drinks with the careless air of veterans. The enterprise has been under way only a few weeks, and is already an established success.

The beverages are about what might be expected. "Hard liquors" are not sold, except in mixed drinks, as in Tom-and-Jerries, on which the run during the cold weather is brisk. They are made hot and sweet, and the women dot on them. The next most popular drink just now is hot punch, composed of rum, lemon juice, water, and a dash of brandy. Sometimes seltzer is ordered in place of the water. Hot coffee, chocolate, and lemonade are also sold in large quantities. On days of moderate temperature the call for cold lemonade, claret punch, ginger ale and soda water. While I was there yesterday the pop of the ale-bottle was momentary, and this lever of the lemon-squeezer was in almost constant motion. Women stand three feet deep in front of the bar. Two companions drank together, and each paid for her own dissipation; but, as a rule the genteel tipsicles gracefully imitated polite bar-room manners, though they were given to sipping their beverages slowly, instead of tating them into their mouths like so much medicine.

"What are you going to drink?" said a mild-faced serving of a girl in a cloak of satin matede and a blue capote.

"It's my treat this time," replied a cherry-lipped dumpling of a belle in maroon velvet.

"No, no; you bought yesterday. Come, what'll you take?"

"A seltzer lemonade."

"Make me a Tom-and-Jerry sweet."

S. the confusion of orders and the eager drinking went on. I asked one of the bartenders why he didn't keep lager beer on tap, since New Yorkers drink it at home and in the concert gardens so generally. He said, "Oh, we want to go slow at first—don't want to startle our customers too much; but we'll give 'em beer as soon as warm weather comes." Selected by Laura Bacon.

LAZINESS.

IN the school, as in the world, far more rust out than wear out. Study is most tedious and wearisome to those who study least. Drones always have the hardest time. Grumbler make poor scholars, and their lessons are uniformly "hard" and "too long." The time and thought expended in shirking would be ample to master their tasks. Sloth, gormandizing, and shirking, worry and kill thousands; where over-study harms one. The curse of Heaven rests on laziness and gluttony. By the very constitution of our being they are fitted to beget that torpor and despondency which chill the blood, deaden the nerves, enfeeble the muscles, and derange the whole vital machinery. Fretting, fidgeting, and anxiety are among the most common causes of disease. On the other hand, high aspiration and enthusiasm help digestion and respiration, and send an increased supply of vital energy to all parts of the body. Courage and work invigorate the whole system, and lift one into a purer atmosphere, above the reach of contagion. The lazy groan most over their "arduous duties," while earnest workers talk little about the exhausting labors of their profession. Of all creatures, the sloth would seem to be the most worried and worn. "Go to the ant, thou slug-gard; consider her ways, and be wise."

(B)

VENTILATION AND LIGHT IN CHURCHES.

WE went more common sense in the building of churches. The idea of adaptiveness is always paramount in any other kind of structure. If bankers meet together and they resolve to build a building, it is especially adapted to banking purposes; if a manufacturing company put up a building, it is adapted to manufacturing purposes. But adaptiveness is not always the question in the rearing of churches. In many of our churches we want more light, more room, more ventilation, more comfort. Vast sums of money are expended on ecclesiastical structures, and men sit down in them, and you ask a man how he likes the church. He says, "I like it very well, but I can't hear." As though a shawl factory were good for everything but making shawls! The voice of the preacher dashes against the pillars. Men sit down under the shadows of the Gothic arches, and shiver, and they feel they must be getting religion, or something else; they feel so uncomfortable. O my friends, we want more common sense in the rearing of churches. There is no cause for lack of light when the heavens are full of it; no excuse for lack of fresh air when the world swims in it. It ought to be an expression not only of our spiritual happiness, but of our physical comfort when we say, "How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord God of Hosts. A day in thy house is better than a thousand."—Tulmage.

You cannot cultivate a man's acquaintances by continually harrowing his feelings.

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR THE Brethren at Work, AND TRACT SOCIETY.

T. Roseman, Dunkirk, Ohio. J. S. P. Leas, Ill. J. S. Harshbarger, Graham, Mo. W. A. Lester, St. Louis, Ill. J. B. Wilson, Circleville, O. John King, Military Grove, Ill. John Forney, Athens, Ga. Daniel Vassham, Virgil, Ill. J. S. Perry, Longmont, Colo. John Matson, Cairo, Ind. W. J. Woodhouse, Des. Ind. H. Brown, Salem, Oregon.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan., '81," shows that the paper has been paid for up to that time. "1 Jan., '82" shows that the time will then expire. If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Job Work—If you have a book or pamphlet, circulars, letter-heads, bill-heads, envelopes or any kind of Job Work, you want done, we will do it neatly and cheaply.

Do You intend to bequeath something to the Gospel Tract Society? Millions of pages of good Gospel reading matter ought to be profitably used if there were funds with which to print them.

Brethren's Envelopes.—These are neat, white envelopes with the general principles of the Brethren church printed on the back. By using them, the doctrine of the church may be spread far and wide. Price, 15 cents for 25; or 40 cents per hundred. For sale at this office.

A New Proposition.

Ever awake to the interests of our patrons, and desiring to extend the sphere of usefulness of the BROTHERN AT WORK, we hereby present a new proposition to our readers.

THE NEW VERSION TESTAMENT.

It is a book about 6½ inches long, 5 inches wide and 1½ inches thick, in nice, clear type, upon good white paper, and plainly but nicely bound in cloth boards, with gilt title, and has both the Old Version and New Version on opposite Pages.

While you read the OLD you have the NEW as a COMMENTARY on the opposite page. Or if you read the NEW, you see at a glance what changes have been made from the OLD. This is a permanent book, not a little 25 cent copy.

We offer the book and B. AT W., one year at the following rates:

Cloth, plain edge and B. AT W., one year, $2.50. Roman, gilt " " " " " " " " " $3.25. French Morocco, " " " " " " " " $4.25.

The prices of the books alone are $1.50, $2.50, and $4.00.

Fifteen Books to Be Given Away!

WHO WANTS THEM!

We will present, express paid, a complete set of "Library of Universal Knowledge," to the one sending us the largest list of NEW subscribers for one year previous to Oct. 1st.—There are fifteen volumes in the set, and each volume contains over 800 pages. A few days' work will enable you to procure a fine lot of books. Young man, young woman, here is your opportunity. Sample copies of B. AT W. sent upon application.

Entirely Fascinated!

HARLAN, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1881.

Dear Brethren:—

The first and second number of Literary Microcosm received. It is brimfull of news, and full of sharp criticisms. My friend Miller is entirely fascinated. Says, the like of it be never read. Hope it may have a large circulation. God bless you ALL in your noble work. E.

Read It All!

Fifty cents plays for the BROTHERN AT WORK to Jan. 1st, 1882. Will the friends of good literature make another effort to increase the circulation of the B. AT W. What have you done towards the 10,000? Unless each one will do something that number will not be reached. Do not wait for others to canvass your neighborhood, or to send the paper to a friend, but lay hold yourself. We look to you for this labor.

Gospel Facts.

Non-resistance and Non-essentials.—An eight-page tract now ready. Great missionaries! Who will scatter the seed? Buy them and make them work for the Lord. Price—10 copies for 20 cents; 25, for 40 cents; 100 for $1.00. Buy some and give them to your minister to distribute after meeting.

Address: BROTHERN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Something New!

Yes, really something new. The Minutes of Annual Meetings since 1876 have been published in pamphlet form, so that it can be put in back part of book of Minutes for convenient reference. In this way all the Minutes up to this time may be found within the same lids.— That is, if you send 25 cents and get them. Five copies for one dollar. Only 1000 printed. First orders filled first. If you want one, order soon. BROTHERN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Books, Etc., for Sale at this Office.

Indicates of Membership in Book Form.—They are neatly printed on good paper, ready to fill out, with duplicate attached and all well bound together in a neat book. No. 1, 2. Copies 75 cents

HYMN BOOKS AND HYMNALS.

- Brethren's Hymn Books—Morocco, single copy, post paid, .50; per dozen, $5.00; by express, $5.40; per dozen, by express, $5.80; Sheep, single copy, post paid, 58¢; per dozen, $6.96; Tuck, single copy, post paid, $1.10; per dozen, $11.00; by express, $11.40. New Tune and Hymn Book.—Half Leather, single copy, postpaid, $1.20. Per dozen, by express $12.00. Morocco, single copy, post paid, $1.50; per dozen, by express $17.50. Bible-school Buzzer. Is designed for the service of song in the several departments of church service, and Sunday-school. The tone of the book is practical and devotional,—has none of the military element in it. The melodies are graceful and easily learned, while the harmonies are well arranged without any straining after old "originals."

Table listing prices for Single copy, postpaid, One dozen, Two, BOARD COVERS, Single copy, postpaid, One dozen, Two.

Any of the above sent post-paid on receipt of price by addressing: BROTHERN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Tablets! Tablets!

Six tablets for 50 cents,—one for ink or pencil, the other five for pencil only.

Address: BROTHERN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

OUR PLEA.

THE BROTHERN AT WORK is an uncompromising advocate of 1. Primitive Christianity in all its sacred principles.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice,

And maintains that the avowal, unreserved, unqualified of Christ as the only source of pardon, and,

That the virtuous self-conceit and nevertheless works of Christ are the only price of redemption;

That Faith, Repentance and Baptism are conditions of pardon, and means for the remission of sin;

That True Immaculate, or dipping the candidate three times face-foreward, is Christian Baptism;

That Foot-Washing, as taught in John 13, is a divine command to be observed in the church;

That the Lord's Supper is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be eaten in the evening, or at the close of the day;

That the Salvation of the Holy Spirit, or Kiss of Charity, is holding upon the followers of Christ;

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ;

That a Non-Conformity to the world in dress, customs, daily walk and conversation, is essential to true holiness and Christian life;

It maintains that public worship, or religious exercises, Christians should appear as directed in 1 Cor. 14: 1-5.

It also advocates the scriptural duty of soothing the sick with oil in the name of the Lord.

In short it is a vindicator of all God's Word and the Apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, and the conflicting theories and dogmas of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

Single subscriptions $1.50 in advance. Those sending eight copies send $12.00, will receive six extra copy free. For each additional volume the amount will be added ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send us by express. Money sent by Post-office Orders, Registered Letters, and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk. Do not send checks, as they cannot be collected without charges. Address, BROTHERN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

"Great Rock Island Route!"

Stands pre-eminent among the great Trans-Mississippi Routes for being the most direct, quickest, and under the most favorable circumstances, THE CHEAPEST, THE MOST EASTERN, NORTH-EASTERN, SOUTH-ERN and SOUTH-EASTERN EXCURSION, which terminates there, with KANSAS CITY, LEAVENWORTH, ATCHAFALAYA, COUNCIL BLIFFS and OMAHA, the COMMERCIAL CENTRE from which radiate connects the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. The

EVERY LINE OF ROAD

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago overland track has Kansas City, where, by the most direct, quickest, and under the most favorable circumstances, THE CHEAPEST, THE MOST EASTERN, NORTH-EASTERN, SOUTH-ERN and SOUTH-EASTERN EXCURSION, which terminates there, with KANSAS CITY, LEAVENWORTH, ATCHAFALAYA, COUNCIL BLIFFS and OMAHA, the COMMERCIAL CENTRE from which radiate R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, Vice Pres and Gen. Manager, Chicago, Ill. Pres and Port Agent, Chicago.

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

SURE CONNECTIONS! UNION DEPOSITS! MAGNIFICENT EQUIPMENT!

Tidings from the Field.

Pastoral care communications solicited for this department.
Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Diller, Neb., Sept. 5, 1881.

Warm and dry. Crops pretty good. Bro. Allen Boyer and sister came to our place, Aug. 30 Had meeting here in town that evening. Bro. Al engaged us a good lesson. Next morning they started for Jewell Co., Kan.

JOHN FARRS.

Orleans, Neb., Sept. 5, 1881.

Health very good; wheat crop very light; stock looks fine. Bro. Arnberger was here last month and preached two sermons for us. Have started a Sunday-school.

J. P. N.

State Center, Iowa.

Have plenty of rain. Our Bro. David Martin is having a serious time with diphtheria; buried wife and two children, and five more are prostrated. — Pray for them.

J. W. FROSTLE.

Brownsville, Mo., Sept. 8, 1881.

I am just home from the Bates Co. meeting. Met brethren A. Hutchison, S. S. and J. S. Mohler, and S. Clich. Had good meetings, many spectators. — Larger number of members commenced than ever before. Church is in a healthy condition, but needs some assistance in the ministry. Hope some experienced elder will move in among them — Crops light on account of drought. Health is good.

DAVID L. WILLIAMS.

Mulberry Grove, Ill., Sept. 11, 1881.

Funeral of sister Melinda Goodman was reached Sept. 4, by Eld. John Wise. Our quarterly council passed off quite pleasantly yesterday. Bro. Wise is spending a week preaching in Union Co., before leaving for Canada. You omitted three of our deacon's names, — Fanster, Matthew Vandyke, and I. P. Lilligh. One mispelled, — "Mable" instead of Mohler is correct.

N. E. LILLIGH.

Liberty, Ill., Sept. 12.

Our quarterly council-meeting came off on the 4th. Eld. Dan Vaniman presided. Weather was somewhat stormy, consequently a slim turn out. — Agreed to hold Love feast Nov. 1 and 2. Will have a council again, Oct. 15th, to make further arrangements. Sunday-school is in good working order. Bro. S. S. Hummer, Superintendent.

JOHN WOLF.

Three baptized at the Washington church, near Warsaw, Ind., on the 11th. Good harvest-meeting on the 10th.

Cyrus Wallick, of Libertyville, Jefferson Co., Iowa, reports a good Love-feast held in the church of Eld. Daniel Zook, of Appanoose Co. Two baptized and two deacons elected — Samuel Peebler Joseph Wagner. This church was organized in 1844, by Eld. Geo. Wolf.

One received into church fellowship in the Pipe Creek church, Peru, Ind., at their quarterly council on the 8th, inst. Twenty-two received since May.

Samuel Teunis, of Fairview, I. L., reports one sister received into the church. Good prospects for more. — A refreshing shower of rain.

Fallen Asleep.

SHIPPED BY THE GREAT WESTERN EXPRESS CO. — DAY 10 10

PHILLIPS — July 31st, in Morrill, Brown Co., Kan., July 31st, 1881, Myrtle Gertrude, daughter of friend Aaron and sister Ettie Phillips, aged 1 year, 5 months and 22 days. Funeral services by the writer, assisted by other brethren.

W. J. H. BACHMAN.

CRUME — In Springfield district, Noble Co., Ind., Samuel Walter, only son of Bro. Levi and sister Crume, Aug. 31, 1881, aged 10 years, 7 months and 10 days. Funeral by writer.

BUCHANAN — In the same district, Sept. 3, 1881, Bro. D. J. Buchanan, aged 40 years, 5 months and 4 d. yrs. Funeral services by writer, assisted by Geo. Swihart and Joseph Weaver.

DR. J. STUNOIS.

GRAYBILL — In the White Oak church, Lancaster Co., Pa., Aug. 22, 1881, Bro. Samuel Graybill, aged 72 years, 3 months and 11 days. He was a minister in second degree for a number of years.

ANNIE E. LIOTAT.

ROTHROCK — Near New Stark, Ohio, Aug. 26th, Harry, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rothrock, aged 1 month and 11 days. Funeral services by the writer and Eld. S. Z. Sharp.

PATTERSON — Near Ada, Ohio, Aug. 31, Maggie, daughter of Bro. Roberts and sister Nancy Patterson, aged 10 months and 6 days. Funeral discourse by the writer.

S. F. BOSSERMAN.

REPLEGLE — In a Fairview church, Appanoose Co., Iowa, August 25, 1891, sister Barbara Replegle, wife of Eld. A. Replegle, aged 71 years, 8 months and 17 days.

Funeral services by brethren Wm. E. Stocker and J. W. Hawa.

JOS. ZOOK.

CRAMER — In Williamstown Ohio, on the 18th inst. Nora Catherine, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cramer, aged 1 year, 5 months and 23 days. Funeral by the writer and Eld. E. H. Searman.

S. F. BOSSERMAN.

WILMORE — In the Centreville congregation, Johnson Co., Mo., Sept. 6th, 1881, Daniel B., infant son of B. O. Jacob and sister Amanda Witmore, aged 4 months and 24 days.

A HUTCHISON.

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

Sept. 29, at 2 P. M., in the Marion congregation, Ind.

Sept. 29 and 30, at 10 A. M., Pine Creek, Ogle Co., Ill.

Sept. 30, Bear Creek, at Bro. Owen Peters', 3 miles south-west of Morrisonville, Christian Co., Ill.

Sept. 30 in Turkey Creek congregation, Elkhart Co., Ind. Meeting to continue over Sunday.

Sept. 30, Platt Valley congregation, at house of Bro. J. P. Moorman, two miles South of Rising City, Butler Co., Nebraska. Meeting to continue over Sunday.

Sept. 30, Stony Creek, near Nobleville, Ind. Oct. 1st, near Longmont, Colorado.

Oct. 1, at 2 P. M., at residence of William Gooch, six miles east of Scandia, Kas.

Oct. 1, at 10 A. M., Thorn Apple church, Mich., 7 miles south-east of Lowell.

Oct. 1, at 10:30 A. M., Seneca church, one and one-half miles North of Bloomvi, Ohio.

Oct. 1, at 10 A. M., River Falls church, Wis.

Oct. 1 and 2, Maple Valley church, Cherokee county, Iowa.

Oct. 1 and 2 at 10 A. M., Deep River church, Poweshiek Co., Iowa.

Oct. 1 and 2, 4 miles east of Harlan, Shelby Co., Ia.

Oct. 1 and 2, Weyman V. ley church, at house of Bro. Philip H. nosel, near Edgewood, Clayton co., Iowa, to commence at 2 o'clock.

Oct. 1 at 2 P. M., Monroe co. church, Iowa, at residence of David Kinergy.

Oct. 1, at 5 P. M., Newton Grove church, Cass co., Mich.

Oct. 1 and 2, at 4 P. M., Bethel church, Holtcn, Mo. Oct. 1 and 2, six miles south-east of State Center, Marshall Co., Iowa.

Oct. 4, at L. nark, Ill.

Oct. 4 and 5, at 2 P. M., Franklin Grove, Lee co., Ill. Oct. 4 and 5, at 1 P. M., Waddam's Grove, Ill.

Oct. 5, Santeague church Miami county, Ind.; 6 miles south of Peru; 2 miles east of Bankerhill.

Oct. 6 at 4 P. M., Fairview church, Appanoose co., Iowa.

Oct. 6, at 2 P. M., Howard church, Howard Co., Ind. Those coming by R. R. stop off at Kokomo.

Oct. 6, at 4 P. M., Pleasant Grove church, near Lawrence, Douglas co., Kansas.

Oct. 6 and 7, at 1 P. M., Arnold's Grove, Carroll Co., Ill.

Oct. 6 at 10 A. M., Logan church, Logan co., O.

Oct. 6, at 10 A. M., Springfield church, Summit co., Ohio, near Mogadore.

Oct. 6 at 1 P. M., Limestone church, (tonia) fewell co., Kan.

Oct. 7 at 4 P. M., Macoupin Creek church, Montgomery co., Ill., in new church, six miles south-east of Girard.

Oct. 7, at 10 A. M., at Panther Creek, Woodford co., Ill.

Oct. 7 at 10 A. M., Nettle Creek church, Wayne co., Ind., near Hagarstown.

Oct. 7 and 8, Dallas Center, Dallas co., Iowa.

Oct. 8 at 10 A. M., Hudson, Ill.

Oct. 8 at 5 P. M., Portage church, St. Joseph co., Ind.

Oct. 8, at 3 P. M., at Bro. Philip Sazely's, 1 and one half miles east of Dorchester, Saline Co., Neb. Those coming by R. R. should stop off at Dorchester.

Oct. 8 and 9, at Festoot, Hampshire Co., W. Va. Oct. 8 and 9, at 10 A. M., Spring Run, Fulton co., Ill., at meeting-house, 9 miles east of Prairie City.

Oct. 8 and 9, Falls City church, Neb.

Oct. 8, at 10 A. M., Draw church, near La Place, Ill.

Oct. 8 at 2 P. M., Beatrice church, Gage co., Neb., 8 miles south-east of Beatrice.

Oct. 8 at 10 o'clock, Somerset dist. ct., Washash Co., Ind.

Oct. 8 and 9 at 11 A. M., Fairview, George's Creek, Fayette co., Pa.

Oct. 8, at 2 P. M., Smith Fork church, Clinton co., Mo.

Oct. 8 and 9 at 11 A. M., three miles east of South English, Kewokuk co., Iowa.

Oct. 8 and 9, at Fall River church, near Fredonia, Wilcox co., Kan.

Oct. 8, Poplar Ridge church, DeWane co., O.

Oct. 8 at 10 A. M., Rome church, Wyandot Co., O., 8 1/2 miles north-west of Carey.

Oct. 10, West Otter Creek church, Macoupin co., Ill.

Oct. 11 at 10 A. M., Spring Creek church, Ind.

Oct. 11, at 1 P. M., Shannou, Ill., to continue next day.

Oct. 11 and 12 at 1 P. M., Lost Creek, Juniata co., Pa.

Oct. 12 at 10 A. M., Four Mile congregation, at White Water meeting-house, three miles north-east of Comersville, Fayette co., Ind.

Oct. 12 and 13, three miles north east of Grenola, Elk Co., Kan.

Oct. 12 and 13 at 10 A. M., Prairie Rock church, Wells co., Ind.

Oct. 13, at 2 P. M., Bethel church, Montgomery co., Ind.

Oct. 13 at 10 A. M., Beaverdam, Kosciusco co., Ind. Oct. 19 and 20, Oswego church, Jefferson co., Kan. Oct. 6 and 7, at 4 P. M., South Kewokuk church, Ill.

DISTRICT-MEETINGS.

Oct. 4, Southern District of Illinois, Astoria church Fulton county, Ill.

Several Announcements for October are crowded-out, but will appear in due time. Please bear with us.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

11.50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Sept. 27, 1881.

No. 37.

Editorial Items.

MUMMUR not, brethren, one against another.

BRO. D. B. GIBSON was sick nearly all the time he was in Missouri.

ONE hundred and thirty-five students here attending the first term of College.

THE Gospel Preacher reports prospects of Ashland College as very encouraging.

THE ordinances were not committed to the ministers for keeping, but to the church.

TWO baptized at Fredericksburg by brother Hope. Others there also persuaded.

THE next Annual Meeting will be held in the Solomon's Creek church, near Milford, Ind.

BRO. Hope has moved to Copenhagen, where he will continue to hold forth the word of life.

THE article accredited to Sue L. Thompson on page 566 of last issue should be credited to Sue L. Thompson.

NOW is the time to canvass for the YOUTH'S ADVANCE. Send for sample copies and terms to agents.

WHEN the elders could not gain the arguments of Stephen they had him put to death. The world is evident.

THE long-desired rains have come throughout the West, and the people are glad. We hope they are thankful, too.

THE account of our sojourn among the Brethren of Root River church, Minnesota, is crowded out, but will appear next week.

CURST used the scourge of cords to cleanse the temple, and not to tear off a wing for his private use. What a lesson for factionists!

BROTHER A. W. FLOWERS is still lecturing on health among the Brethren in Northern Indiana. He will be at Gosben from Sept. 27th to Oct. 3rd.

SOME very interesting correspondence must go over to next issue. Be patient with us, comrades your articles as much as you can and thus aid in making an interesting paper.

ON Monday 20th at 2 P. M., memorial service in respect to the late President, will be held in the M. E. church in this place. Bro. S. Z. Sharp will deliver the discourse.

WE would like to say, for the satisfaction of the whole Brotherhood, that Bro. S. Z. Sharp gave the readers of the E. at W. a good paper last week, but we think you all know that.

SISTER Mary Hillery spent the greater part of the Summer visiting friends in Illinois and Iowa. She arrived home in Republic Co., Kan., Sept. 8th, and says she found Linnell well.

IF any of you have a superabundance of postage stamps and stationery, you can make some of them work for Jesus by sending them to brother C. H. Balbaugh, Union Deposit, Pa.

E. S. YOUNG, formerly a student at Ashland College, but now attending school here, was received into the church the 15th. May many others seek the Lord in their youthful days.

BROTHER John H. Estelman, of Libertyville, Iowa, reports a very good Love-feast, and states two were received by baptism and one by letter. There were also two elected as deacons.

TWO Brethren of Union church, Marshall Co., Ind., will hold their Feast at Plymouth, Ind., Oct. 7th, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M. All are invited to attend, especially ministering brethren.

BROTHER R. H. MILLER secured a new proof-reader Sept. 15th. Before that time she was known as sister Emma Norris, but since then they call her sister Emma Miller. Joy and happiness be theirs.

THE Lanark church had a very pleasant council meeting last week. Considerable business was done, and not an unkind word was used during the meeting. The church seems to be in love and union.

UNDER date of Sept. 21, brother Meyers, from St. Louis writes: "Brother McTager is here. Had Communion the 19th. There are now seventeen members here, and a young man to be baptized to-morrow."

THE trial of Dr. H. W. Thomas of the M. E. church for heresy resulted in finding him guilty. He was deprived of church fellowship until he can be heard before the Rock River Conference at Synanon next week.

THE church at Lanark has changed the time of their Feast from Oct. 4th to Sept. 30th, commencing at 3 P. M. As the Feast will be on Friday they will also have meeting on Saturday evening, Sunday morning at ten, and Sunday evening.

BRO. J. H. MILLER, of Milford, Ind., says: "I am favorable to the consolidation providing you will be one of the editors. I have long since wished the church could see the heavy in having one paper and then all support it. It would make for peace and union."

UNDER date of Sept. 14th, brother D. D. Shirely of Mouthouth, Kan., says: "Our quarterly council convened last Saturday. Everything passed off well. Brother Henney from Clay county, Ind., was with us last Sunday and preached two sermons at our school-house."

OVER $1,500,000 have been extracted from the U. S. treasury by the "Star route" swindlers, who are to be prosecuted for their crimes. Bob Ingersoll is employed by them as one of their attorneys. It seems appropriate that Bob should expose the cause of the wicked.

THOSE coming from any point east of Chicago, wishing to attend Mt. Morris College, will find it greatly to their advantage to correspond with D. L. Miller, Secretary of the College, concerning railroad route and fare. Hope all will avail themselves of this advantage.

A FEW years ago, the Chinese Government sent a number of young men to Yale College to be educated. They have been taken away on the ground that the schools of America are cramming the students with dead languages, and theoretical science instead of giving them a practical education. Is not the real motive of a classical course to conform to public opinion? And when the students do conform to this opinion, what does it advantage them?

DURING the Communion season, some one in each church should make effort to sell Close Communion by brother London West. It contains much that is valuable to the Christian, and deserves a wide circulation. Price, 50 cts. For sale by Western Book Exchange, Mt. Morris, Ill.

WHEN Bro. R. H. Miller had taken unto himself a wife, Dr. G. W. Boteler, of Waynesboro, Pa., immediately followed the good example and on the 20th inst. was married to sister Emma Rober, who is a sister to the wife of Eld. D. P. Saylor. The B. at W. extends happy greetings.

By saying in the last issue that the Vindicator is not loyal to the Brotherhood, we meant that fellowship has been withdrawn from Samuel Kinsey because of his participation in the meeting of Aug. 24 where the members were persuaded to sever their connection from the Brotherhood. Sedition is denounced by the holy Scriptures; and those who sow division among brethren, the apostle declares, shall be marked.

PROP. Sharp's Normal class for training teachers opened with about fifty pupils. Prof. Sharp is a graduate of the first Normal School in Pennsylvania. Was a Professor in that institution for several years and has been engaged in Normal work for twenty years. Those who place themselves under his instruction at Mt. Morris College for the purpose of preparing themselves to teach will receive first-class training.

ON returning from Minn., we were detained six hours in Aurora, Ill., and knowing not how to spend the time more profitably, we went to the public park near the school-house. Here in the beautiful shade upon the green sward, about one hundred children were spending an hour in gleeful sports. With pleasure we associated with them, and beheld their lively recreation which brought by-gone days vividly to mind. Good children drive away melancholy, and teach us lessons of love and kindness. We did not hear a disrespectful word spoken by these children.

THE habits of American travelers are peculiar. Each wants a good seat in a car and as much of it as he can get. Packages and valises are given seats to the exclusion of weary travelers who have also paid for good seats in the same car. Would it not be well to require valises and packages to purchase tickets if they must have the seats? And the seats in depots might be made to yield quite a revenue from baggage deposited upon them. And we go one step further. Those who stand in the door-way of depots so that no one can pass in or out ought to be reformed in some way. Perhaps some wise mind can devise a method and give relief to an appreciative public.

BELIEVE brethren, be calm, trust in the Lord and do right. Be slow to speak, and study well before you write to the papers the troubles in the church. It is doubtful whether the misdeeds of any one can be remedied by telling it to the world over. It is doubtful whether the wrong can be made repentant by publishing their sins to a wicked and cruel world. Charity covers a multitude of sins. Let brotherly love continue, no difference what others may say. The B. at W. is loth to publish church difficulties, knowing none are made holy thereby. O for more piety, more love-suffering and brotherly kindness! Sackcloth and ashes are ours in this hour of perplexity; so let us all pray more, seek to possess a meek and quiet spirit and then no one will turn to rend his neighbor.

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

A HYMN SUILED TO A LOVE- FEAST.

BY JAS. EVANS.

In the Gospel we are apprised,
We must repent and be baptized,
If sin's remission we'd obtain;
All others seek this grace in vain.

'True faith in Jesus must precede
The observance of the solemn deed;
For so the Savior's last command:
"Go preach the word in every land."

To all the words of life you hear,
To all who will the Shepherd hear,
Of them you must disciples make,
And sin and Satan quite forsake.

With joy they must confess the Lord,
And in their hearts receive his word.
Their wills they bow to him who gave His Well-beloved their lives to save.

Again in solemn rite they bow
To Him who dwelt in flesh below;
Then to the Spirit they're consigned
Whose presence purifies the mind.

Thus by three acts they quite fulfil
All the heavenly Master's will.
From the cleansing waters they arise,
Sav'd by the faith that justifies.

Now as the race is just begun,
No other cross they'll seek to shun.
Their Master's yoke they choose to take,
And for it all things else forsake.

What the Master says "you ought to do,
As I the way have shown to you";
As Jesus washed his brethren's feet,
To do the same is right and meet.

That night it which he was betrayed,
We find the table duly laid,
And meat was plac'd thereon to show,
How we should eat while here below.

The meal prepared, he did arise,
And round his waist the towel tied,
And washed their feet before they eat,
A rule for all who'd sit at meat,

The meal of which we all do eat,
Reminds us of the heavenly feast,
Where we shall eat the bridal feast,
With him who made himself the least.

Then after supper he took bread,
To symbolize himself the Head,
Using these memorial words,
Which to our hearts such love afford:

"Take, eat, my body symbolizes,
And thus remember him who dies,
My flesh to all is life indeed,
Who on my words will live and feed.

The covenant cup you must partake,
All who the world and sin forsake.
Remember me until I come
To lead you to my heavenly home.

LITTLE drops of rain brighten the meadows; and little acts of kindness brighten the world.

For the Brethren at Work.

LOVE DOES IT ALL.

BY C. H. BALSCHAUGH.

To Bro. J. R. Spacht, of Dunkirk, O

YOUR fraternal message is here, and has put me all aflame with love and gratitude. Not the hope of reward, but the impulse of devotion to Jesus, is the pulse that quickens all Christian activity. It is soul-gladdening to know that there are those still left who are controlled by so high a principle as personal love to the Almighty and All-gracious. To such souls sacrifice loses all sense of loss and self-denial, even if it empties the purse of its last two mites. To feel enriched by giving, and to feel restrained by withholding, is one of the most conspicuous proofs that the Holy Spirit is inwardly moulding into the image of the Crucified. Love must give itself to its object or it is not love. The easiest and sweetest and most natural thing in heaven and on earth, is for love to offer itself to the will and pleasure of the one that kindles and sustains its flame. Herein lies the highest power of all moral life. God gathers all his attributes into focus in love. Hell, whether in Eternity or on earth, is only a terrible, necessary, and reluctant expression of love. "He afflicteth NOT WILLINGLY." Lam. 3: 33. Rom. 8: 20. Love makes the family possible, is the root of fatherhood and motherhood, wields the rod as well as rocks the cradle, dandles on the knee, and gives the breast to feed the young life out of the mother-heart. "As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten." Love is the foundation of all true social order, is the pentecostal fire of all pure missionary effort, binds the elect into a unit, gives Heaven its attraction and fruition, and Eternity its ever-growing rapture. This makes Christ's yoke easy, and his burden light, and "thinks it not robbery to be equal with God" in character, aim, endeavor, and bestitude. The whole Bible is God's love-lesson, to teach souls how to feel and act with Himself, so as to restore that relation and nature which knows not satisfaction save in harmony with the mind and heart and purpose of God. This is our high calling, and it is high as God, presenting his life as the fount and type of ours, and his blessedness as our eternal heritage. It is not only in line with His very and glorious ends, but it is wholly in the life and feeling of God. This is "the peace which passeth all understanding," the calm that rests eternally in the bosom of Jehovah. If there is anything revealed as with a sunbeam it is that the life of God brings the repose and self-possession of God, "My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth: let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Here is the sweetness and serenity and majesty of that "love which is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost." It "Keeps the heart and mind untroubled Jesus Christ." How opposite to all this the character and conduct of the bull-dog, and hell hounds of Christendom, who bite and devour each other, and whom nothing can appease but fraternal blood. How revolting to all Christian-faithful souls to see those who "name the Name of Jesus," carry their secret daggers sheathed in the scabbard of a hell-hardened, devil-dominated heart, waiting and hungering for opportunity to stab and dispatch the victim of their malice. God came in the flesh to save, not to destroy; to forgive, not avenge; to elevate and beautify, not to degrade and mutilate and harm. "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His." Thousands in our own Brotherhood it is to be feared know nothing of the reality of "pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father." Any one who nurses ill-will, and thirsts for power to wreak it, is of the devil. Brother-hatred is murder and damnation. It is the antipodes of the Incarnation. "God so loved the world." Christ the fleshed God died "the just for the unjust." The Sovereign became the rebel; substitute in the penalty for disloyalty and rebellion. "Behold, what manner of love." This is Christian, and this only. This comes from God, and to him returns. This focalizes our whole nature in the Cross. To reprove is then a most painful office; to forgive, our highest bliss. This is to be like God, and this is salvation, heaven.

With many, religion means no more than a dubious morality, ordinances, tradition, conventionalism, fat horses, and kine, a well-stocked pantry and table, warm bed, unbridled indulgence inside of legal relations, and plenty of tobacco, with just as much of the mammon of unrighteousness for Jesus as will save their credit with their fellows, and often not that. God is love, and religion is love, and neither is satisfied with less than a tenth of all our increase. He that owns Jesus as the author and finisher of faith, the fountain and river of love, need not be goaded with the spurs of ecclesiastical authority and the pride of decency, to open his heart and purse to promote the cause of his Savior-God. If we cannot coin our blood into currency for the extension of the blood of Jesus to the ends of the earth, it is still black and foul and deathful with the elements of unredeemed self. "Who loved me, and gave Himself for me." This was the living coal that glowed in the heart of Paul, and made him a spectacle of devotion and self sacrifice to angels and to men. His case is not peculiar. "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." "The life which I now live in the flesh" is Christ. This was all his glory, all his peace, all his joy. But his life was common with all the saints. "Your life is his hid with Christ in God." The Head supplies all the members with vitality. "In Him is Life," and He is Love. The little toe lives in the heart and brain equally with the members which we deem more honorable. "Our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness," because Christ's life is in them, and His special care given them. More abundant honor is bestowed on less conspicuous parts, lest of schism of interest be also a schism of life and organic unity. "No schism in the body," is the great, universal law of life. How can there be a gap in a life knit organism? Can love work ill per se? Must not love have an ultimate good in all its measures, and show itself as love in severest discipline? How can hand or foot be loyal to half a dozen different heads, or only two? Who are Paul, Cephas, Apollos, John, and James, but fellow members? One Lord, one faith, one LIFE, one hope, one aim, one goal for all true Christians. What are progression and conservatism but essential cofactors of all life, and pre-eminently of the life of Christ and his mystical body? These terms will save nobody, and their disruption is impossible. No one is either exclusively. All life tends to a centre, and all true love is life in right character and relations and activities.

"I am meek and lowly in heart," I lay down my life for the sheep," is the God impressed seal which every saint carries on his forehead. This is the characteristic of "the wisdom which cometh from above," the essence of the love that throbs on the Throne of the Universe. "Love suffereth long, and is kind; envieth not, seeketh not her own; is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, rejoiceth in the truth, beareth all things." This is God's richest, deepest, highest, most perfect and thrilling classic. Angels and saints will never exhaust its fervor, and fragrance, and fullness, and soul ravishing, soul-beautifying, soul-exalting Divinity through all Eternity. This alone makes God and Heaven possible. "Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God: he that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God." Here is the multum in parvo of God and the endless ecstasies of his soul-entrancing apocalypse in the world to come, and no less in the world that now is. He that loves with God's love, is deep in God's sacrifice for the consummation of his glorious purpose in Christ Jesus. Did we all, as a church, love Jesus with a feeling that deserves the name, heaven and earth would be amazed at the prayers and sacrifices and devotion that would replenish God's treasury, care for God's poor, and roll the tide of Divine human blood over millions of sin-blackened, sin-deadened hearts, and beautify humanity with the holiness of Emmanuel. If we deem this an object unworthy all our interest and energy, we are not fit to share the final triumph and glory of the Incarnation. It is great and grand enough to occupy God, and it is great enough for all who have the mind of Christ. It is God's highest and best. Love does it all.

For the Brethren at Work.

MEEKNESS.

BY ENOCH EBY.

Mildness of temper; soft; gentle; not easily provoked, or irritated; yielding; given to forbearance under injury; submissive to the divine will; not proud, or refractory.—Webster

WHAT a volume of thought and practical instruction in that one word, the whole vocabulary of heaven seems to be embodied in it! No wonder Christ said, "Learn of me meekness." Where is the student that will ever get done learning? Practically, its meaning is as broad and long as the universe. It reaches into the lowest hell, and sits, like the Lord of paradise, on the highest pinnacle of the brightest arch-angel. Well may the apostle say, "I beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ." 1 Cor. 10: 1.

Its practical use would swallow up the popular religion of the age, that not one vestige would remain to mark its existence. It would turn all the bitter wranglings and sparings and jarings and hickerings, of church and state, neighborhood and families into a paradise. It would crush the sinner in his sins as a mill-stone fall upon him. Yea, devils must tremble and flee from its presence, or submit and walk in the light. It would completely obliterate those offensive terms or titles extant among us, by which the church is divided into three elements. The abomination thereof would be forever wiped out of the pages of our religious papers, and from the history of our beloved Brotherhood, the scent of which is a stench in the nostrils of every meek and lowly servant of Jesus, and I believe to Jesus himself; meekness would be a balm for all our wounds, a cordial for all our fears at this present crisis of the church.

And while the waves are rolling high and fast, and following each other in quick succession, and destruction seems to be threatening the good old ship from different directions, until many hearts are trembling and beginning to cry out with fear: "Master, save us or we perish." Be not alarmed; she is lying down in the ship with her head on the pillow fast asleep; go awake her dear brother and sister, and she will arise in the strength and beauty of her Master, and clothed with her heavenly majesty. She will say to the roaring elements: "Peace be still," and we can all sail along smoothly as before. No necessity any more of throwing some overboard, like Jonah, (to appease the wrath of God) who are always on the stern of the ship and on the lookout for something new, and often get into the way of the pilot and governor of the vessel, (which by the way is always near the middle of the vessel) for when too many get on the stern it is hard to control the vessel; hence necessarily must be brought to order. But sometimes they remain there till a wave comes along and washes them overboard. If not, their eyes are filled with salt water so that they can no more see plisn when danger is near. In the meantime, those in the stern seeing the crowd in the stern of the ship weighing her down, and the wave approaching mighty and high, and expecting the vessel to sink, they begin to fear and out loose a little life-boat and jump out at the stern, while those in the center of the ship are comparatively safe and calm. The center is the only place the pilot can be to accomplish his work. The propelling power is generally about the middle or a little back; the controlling power is near the stern of the ship. So in society; if we had nothing to depend on but those who are running on and (as they sometimes say) moulding public sentiment, we soon would be ship wrecked, both church and State. But there is a centralizing power, aided more by the experience of the old heroes and veterans of by-gone days than by the inexperienced young American, who hold power in a balance, and who are the bone and sinew of all good government, whether civil or ecclesiastical.

Now, dear reader, picture to yourself a society whose tempers were all mild, not stern and bold, whose words were soft, not harsh and grating; whose manners were gentle and kind and affable, not rough and coarse in their general deportment, and who are not easily provoked or irritated, but yield to insults and injuries, and bear all as Jesus did, not even uttering a word in defense or retaliation, but submit in all things to the divine will; not proud but humble, ready to do good unto all, the low and despised; and in no way refractory, not rebellious, not selfish, but willing to concede to the opinions and feelings of others when they are mere matters of opinion, and especially to a majority, and you will at once see a pattern worthy of imitation, and all those heavenly characteristics shone bright in the life and character of Jesus. Therefore he says, "Learn of me meekness and lowliness of heart and you shall find rest unto your souls," for his yoke is easy and his burden is light.

Dear brethren, as a church, let us cultivate meekness more, and a quiet spirit, which in the sight of God is of great price. May God help us all through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom be glory forever. Amen.

Lena, Ill.

"Charity thinketh no evil."

For the Brethren at Work.

GOD IS LOVE.

BY C. HOPE.

LESSON II.

"The Son of Man came to seek and save that which was lost."—Luke 19: 10.

WHAT JESUS WANTS YOU TO GIVE HIM.

ON the site of that place where Jesus was born is a cave where old father Hieronymus lived in his last years. He himself wrote a conversation he had with the holy child Jesus and which I give verbatim: "O Lord Jesus, I say, how hard is your bed there in the crib in order to procure me salvation! How can I ever repay it?" And it seems to me the child answered: "I desire nothing but that you shall sing, 'Glory to God in the highest.' I will yet be more needy on the Mount of Olives and on Calvary." "O thou beloved," I continue, "I must give thee something—I will give you all my money." He answers: "Heaven and earth are mine beforehand; I need nothing; give your money to the poor, and I will count it as done to me." "I said: 'That I will gladly do, but I must give you something for yourself, else I will die of sorrow.'" Then the child answered, "Because you are so liberal to give, I will tell you what you shall give me: give me your sins, your evil conscience, and your condemnation." Well, what will you do with that? I ask the Savior. He answers, "I will lay it on my shoulders, and it shall be my greatest and most glorious work to bear thy sins, and have your chastisement resting on me, as the prophet Isaiah long ago has testified." Then I poor old man commenced to weep, feeling my heart broken and said: "Dear child, how hast thou moved my heart! Take, then, what is mine, and give me what is thine. Then I am free of my sins and sure to have eternal life."

Dear reader, do you know that Jesus wept over Jerusalem because they would not give him their sins to bear, and receive him as their Savior? And do you know whether you acted better toward him, or does he stand before you yet, weeping, pleading: "My son and my daughter, give me your heart,—that corrupt, evil, deceitful thing which none can heal?" If so, give it to him at once, and fear not to come to him, for even if your sins are as scarlet, he will make them white as snow, and if they are as numberless as the stars, he will wash them all away. 'The only danger is to stay away; the only condemnation, to disbelieve; the only fearful vengeance to despise his grace and trample his precious blood under foot. I fear there are some who yet neglect to give Jesus all their sins and their whole heart; but think rather to climb to heaven on the ladder of their own works, and by obeying external commandments. Please remember he wants first of all your heart—he wants to give to you until his love constrains you to obedience in external action. Such actions done for the sake of gaining heaven and not flowing from love to Jesus profit nothing (See 1 Cor. 13.) But all such members will finally be swept into eternal perdition. What, then, will become of those who do what they do from corrupt motive for honor or gain among men? Judge ye!

I fear there are a great many among our Brethren's children who until this very minute have neglected to give Jesus their sins and folly, but run down the broad road, against better knowledge. Please let my voice, from across the Atlantic, cross your path, young man and young woman: why will you die? How can you refuse to give the Holy Child Jesus your sins, your evil conscience, your condemnation? Let me entreat you, give him his desire now.

In case those lines may find one who has disgraced Jesus, fallen deep into sin and now lives in despair and thinks there is no hope, but that he is lost forever, I would say, take courage. Go and tell Jesus; go and ask him if he who saith, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out," if he will cast you out. Go and show him your sins; if perhaps they are too red to be made white. Be sure to hear your condemnation out of his mouth before you believe more on the devil than on him, before you hope more on your own feelings than on his promises; before you believe on frail humanity more than on the word of his power. And you will no sooner show him your bloody crimes, your evil lusts, and your blasphemous words than he will tell you: "Lo, I have born your grief and carried your sorrows. I was wounded for your transgressions and bruised for your iniquities. The chastisement of our peace was upon me, and with my stripes you are healed." Isa. 53. Wrap yourself up in his wounds and all will be well. Believe his report, and you shall see it is true, even unto these: "I, even I, am he that blotted out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thine own sins." Isa. 43: 25. And it will resound with a heavenly echo in your ears: "I have blotted out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and, as a cloud, thy sins: return unto me, for I have redeemed thee." Isa. 44: 22. And let even from this hour, your heart melt and your tears flow with joy while you say: "Jesus take what is mine, and give me what is thine; then I am free from my sins, and sure of eternal life."

For the Brethren at Work.

A FEW REASONS WHY WE SHOULD BELONG TO THE BODY OF CHRIST.

BY J. S. SHAEFFER.

THE first reason is, because there is not a single good point in all the orders, societies, organizations, moralists, and whatever else you may include, but that good characteristic is embodied in the perfect plan of salvation. There isn't anything but what has its good points; but Christianity embraces them all, and more, too. We will notice a few:

1. Temperance societies. These are doing a great and good work in many places, as far as drinking liquor is concerned, and they have their reward. But the Gospel reaches further; it says: "And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things." 1 Cor. 9: 12. Again, "Let your moderation be known unto all men." Phil. 4: 1 once heard a man remark that he didn't want any one to talk temperance to him, and at the same time have a big pool of tobacco juice before him.

Some men get their lives insured in case of death. Their widow and family would not be thrown on the charities of the world, but could comfortably help themselves by so doing. Others will get their property insured in case of fire, lightning, or storm, so that they would have something to fall back on to replace the loss. The Psalmist David says: "I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread." Ps. 37: 25. We may also find consolation in reading Ps. 145, 146, 147. Jesus also says: "Lo, I am with you always." What better company could we wish for?

Others will join secret societies because they are bound together by oath to help each other in case of misfortune or sickness. Gather all their good qualities, and you can't be a Christian without them. Besides, we have a more powerful Master in heaven, who hath said: "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, the Lord is my helper." Heb. 13: 5, 6.

Again, "But whose hath this world's goods and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" If we do not these things, of helping one another in time of need, it is not likely that it will be said unto us, that "I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat." "Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The moralist has a great many good points, yet he is no Christian, and could not be one without his morality. But his influence is ruining more souls than the drunken sot in the gutter. No decent man would want to be seen in company with a sot, drinking and reveling; but with a moralist and modern user of the cup he may even dare to partake, which may be the very means of bringing him to the final destruction of the soul.

The worldly associations only last through this life; but when we put on Christ and become heirs with him, it reaches to a home in heaven and to an everlasting eternity. Paul says to the Corinthians, "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

For the Brethren at Work.

ONLY ONE DOT.

BUT it may mean much. God punctuates with precision. Not one jot or tittle will fail. Where He puts a period, it is damnation to substitute an interrogation. His comma is significant enough to divide between Heaven and Hell. The fight of centuries, and the wail of Eternity, hinges on the comma of Matt. 28: 19. One iota misused, God's meaning is destroyed and eternal confusion and horror may be the result.

In No. 35 B. AT W., 2nd page, 2nd column, first line, put a period after the word Everything.

C. H. BALSBAUGH.

For the Brethren at Work.

BLOOD OF CHRIST.

BY JOHN KNISLEY.

ST. Matthew was martyred in a city in Ethiopia.

St. Mark was dragged through the streets of Alexandria in Egypt till he expired.

St. Luke was hanged on a tree till he was dead, in Greece.

St. John after having been put in a caldron of boiling oil at Rome and receiving no hurt, died a natural death at Ephesus in Africa.

St. Peter was crucified at Rome, and according to his request, with his head downwards, thinking himself unworthy to die in the posture his Lord had done.

St. James the great, was beheaded at Jerusalem.

St. James the less, was thrown from a pinnacle of the temple and beaten to death with clubs.

St. Philip was hanged against a pillar at Hierapolis, a city in Phrygia, till he expired.

St. Thomas was pierced through the body with a lance at Cororandel, in the East Indies.

St. Jude was shot to death with arrows.

St. Simon the zealot was crucified in Persia.

St. Matthis was first stoned and afterwards beheaded.

St. Barnabas was stoned to death by the Jews, at Salammis.

St. Paul the Great, teacher of the Gentiles, was beheaded at Rome by the tyrant Nero.

Such was the fate of the first preachers of the gospel of peace according to the best accounts we have of their end, and truly they were "sent forth as sheep among wolves." Matt. 10: 16. Nor is the world any more friendly to the true disciples of Christ in our day than it was in theirs. 2 Tim. 3: 12. Let us then take our Lord's advice, "Love all men and fear none." Luke 12: 4, 5.

The chief reason why so many difficulties are found in the Word of God, is because the reader's heart is not right with God. For how can earthly minded men enter into the meaning of heavenly truths. 1 Cor. 2: 4, 15. May we all be faithful.

Plymouth, Ind.

For the Brethren at Work.

WE MUST LOVE.

BY SUE L. THOMASSON.

By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another. John 13:35.

It seems that our Savior, before He left His disciples, gave them a new commandment, that they should "love one another" as He had loved them. Though the moral law commanded them to love their neighbors as themselves, this was to be explained with a new clearness, enforced by new motives and obeyed in a new manner. Thus it might be called a new commandment. They were required to love each other for His sake, as bearing His image, and in imitation to His compassionate and generous love to them. This implied a regard for each other—interest, a sympathy in sorrow and in joy, in peace and in harmony, in kindness, in forbearance, in forgiveness and a special unremitted affection; being Brethren in the same family and disciples of the same Lord, and this mutual love was appointed by him as the distinguishing mark of His disciple, by which all men might everywhere know them from all other persons, by having such love as would cause them to give up their own interest, ease, or pleasure, to promote the welfare of their Brethren in such a manner as was never known before. Had angry zeal for doctrines, forms, and minute exactness, been the sign to know the church we would not wonder if it did distract the church; I say, had these been the test of Christianity. But alas! the commandment to "love one another" as Christ loved us, by many, seems never to have been received, and but few seem to remember or understand how to practice it. Because iniquity abounds, the love of many waxes cold. If love would prompt all our actions toward each other, how much less talk and disturbance there would be.

Paul, in the third chapter of second Timothy, said, "In the last days perilous times shall come; for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affections, truth-breakers, false-accusers incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heavy-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof; from such turn away."

The apostle fore saw, and gave warning to Timothy, that it would be extremely difficult for Christians to escape the contagion of bad examples, and for ministers to preach the unadulterated truth of the Gospel; that those who would retain their integrity, would be threatened or persecuted by their professed Brethren.

The love of Christ distinguished real Christians from the false, who are ready to violate promises, betray those who trusted them, falsely accuse others, and who are fierce and savage, their tempers are not loving; but despising good men; yet, along with these and other vices, they would retain a form of godliness, professing Christianity, attending on sacred ordinances, and pretending to be religious. Can any one think that crimes are less abominable in those who profess Christianity, than in the heathen. We think they will be more terribly punished. Hypocrisy and superstition are infections beyond other mental maladies—a wolf in sheep's clothing is the most dreadful to the flock.

We should all study to make ourselves acquainted with the Scriptures, the doctrine and example of the apostles and copy their manner of life.

If ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another. Eph. 5: 15. We should follow after the fruit of the spirit, which is this: love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness and temperance, against such, there is no law; for they might be known by their fruits—by their example and conduct. Vehement passions and habitual tempers are contrary to the mind of Christ; but the end shall be according to their works.

Parsons, Kan.

For the Brethren at Work.

HEarken UNTO THE WORD OF ALMIGHTY GOD.

BY MARY C. NORMAN.

He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and that which he hath given will He pay him again. Prov. 19: 17.

BUT this I say, He that soweth sparingly, shall also reap sparingly, and he which soweth bountifully shall also reap bountifully. As it is written, "He hath dispersed abroad, he hath given to the poor: his righteousness remaineth forever." 2 Cor. 9: 6, 9.

Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness (Psa. 41: 1, 3). For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love, which ye have showed toward His name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister (Eph. 6: 10). Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the Brethren which dwelt in Judea (Acts 12: 29).

Certainly we have abundance of Scripture in defense of the duty which is bound upon God's children, in that they should minister unto the poor.

Brethren and sisters, we are sinning in the sight of God, when a call is made from our brethren and sisters who are in need of help, if we carelessly pass it by unnoticed. Let us then consult our own heart and conscience and give without murmuring; for God loveth a cheerful giver. We should not hesitate to do anything that God requires at our hand; since He spared not His only Son. What an unpeakable gift! It certainly calls for every exertion of praise and gratitude.

We hear a call from the dear Brethren of Peabody, Kan. Will you assist? Certainly we will, and do it cheerfully as unto the Lord. Again, when we hear the trials and afflictions that Bro. Hope has endured and is still enduring, all for Christ's sake, if we have no money to send to help spread and defend the Gospel, we feel like taking our flight, if it were possible, to Denmark, and help brother Hope defend the truth, and thus with him share the blessings of God. God in His goodness has blessed us with a small portion of this world's goods. Hence we shall give a part to Bro. Hope and in this way we can help brother Hope preach the Word in Denmark. God has blessed the work in Denmark by the hand of Bro. Hope, so that the faith and practice of the Brethren is beginning to be spread abroad in that country, reaching the ears of many who never before heard of Christ. This shows what a noble worker, one who is full of zeal for God's cause, can do.

Surely God has verified His promise in Denmark, in that He would be with His servants. Certainly He has accompanied Bro. Hope; for no man could do the work that Bro. Hope has done, except God be with him.

We hope the Lord may open the hearts of our dear Brethren everywhere, that they may respond to the calls of the poor and needy. Dear brethren and sisters, we should do all in our power for the salvation of mankind, and not withhold the Gospel from any by neglecting our duty. May the Lord bless the dear members in the body of Christ and strengthen them to continue in the right.

DON'T DELAY.

THE great mischief of most persons is to procrastinate—put off.

It is not that they resolve to be damned, but that they resolve to be saved to-morrow. It is not that they reject God forever, but that they reject Christ to-day, and truly they might as well reject Him forever, as continue perpetually to reject Him "now." Sinner let me put this "now" before thee.

Thou must soon pass away and be forgotten, like the flowers that wither in Autumn, and the insects which flit through the Summer hours. "Now," then, is the time to prepare thyself to meet thy God.

"See to your business first, James," said a careful father—"get a good trade, and after that look to your religion." There spoke a fool, who knew not what infinite wisdom had commanded, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

Wouldst thou give God the fog end of thy life? Take care lest thou have no old age at all; for many candles are blown out as soon as lit.

Wouldst thou, as a lamb, be Satan's? and when thou art withered and worn out, shall the lean skeleton of tottering weakness be brought and laid upon the altar? Be it not so; let thy flower be plucked in the bud and put into the hand of Jesus. God grant thee grace to seek Him in the days of thy youth; for the promise is, "They that seek me early shall find me."—Sel.

In these days of formalism and worldly-mindedness, pride and fashion, it is no wonder that skepticism is securing a strong hold in the minds of many professors. So long as we live in Christ and to us by the power of the Holy Spirit, we are not troubled with doubts. They come when we disobey the Lord, and neglect to perform our Christian duties. When vital godliness ceases, then we naturally seek to gratify our sense; and an individual, or church, in that cold, formal condition will go for what is popular, fashionable, pleasing and entertaining, without regard to pleasing God.

Home and Family.

MAHA C. NORMAN, LE SUICR, MINN. - Editors.

THE LAW.

FOR sin shall not have dominion over you; for ye are not under the law; but under grace (Rom. 6: 14). We would conclude from the language of the apostle that sin once had dominion over God's people; but after that, grace came. They were free from the law of sin and death. We think the apostle has made this subject so plain that none need to be in darkness concerning it. Again, "wherefore my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ, that ye should be married to another, even to Him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God. For when we were in the flesh, the motions of sin, which were by the law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death; but now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held, that we should serve in newness of spirit and not in the oldness of the letter." Rom. 7: 4, 5, 6.

We are not under the law, but under grace. We learn from God's Holy Word, that grace signifies the Gospel, and that grace is opposed to the Law; for the Law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ (St. John 1: 17). We may therefore call the Gospel grace. For proof we quote from 2 Cor. 6: 1. "We beseech you, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain," that is to say, ye may not receive the doctrine of the Gospel unprofitably. Paul taught and exhorted the people of Antioch, to continue in the grace of God (Acts 13: 43). Again, we learn that God gave testimony unto the word of his Grace (Acts 14: 3). Therefore we conclude that Gospel and grace are the same.

We are not under the Law but under grace. By the "Law" we do not understand the apostle to mean the ceremonial Law of Moses, so called, which was peculiar to the Jews, and to which the Roman Christians had never been subject; but the Law of the Ten Commandments, out of which the apostle himself learned the true nature of sin (Rom. 7: 7). This was the Law which he (the apostle) says is holy, just, good, and spiritual, in which he delighted after the inward man (Rom. 7: 12). This holy Law of God was a system of just, but awful, severity. It was given at Mount Sinai in so tremendous a manner that Moses himself was exceedingly terrified; but God had wise and holy designs in the establishment of it.

The Law entered, that the offence might abound, it was introduced among the Jews, not that they might be justified by it; but by discovering how far they fell short of the obedience it required, and how their native corruption was rather irritated than suppressed by its most holy precepts, and that they might be more deeply impressed with a sense of their abounding sins. Thus it became a school-master, to lead them to Christ, and to prepare the way for the Gospel.

Hence, believers in Christ are not under the Law. They are dead to the Law. They are delivered from the Law. For Christ is the end of the Law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. 10: 4). Again, "For what the Law could do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin condemned in the flesh." Rom. 8: 3.

Jesus Christ has fulfilled all righteousness for His people, in that He kept the Law perfect, and is the end of the Law for righteousness to every one that believeth; being accounted righteous through faith in Christ, they are redeemed from the curse of the Law. Therefore there is no more condemnation to them, and the Gospel, which is the Law of the spirit of life in Christ, hath made them free from the law of sin and death (Rom. 8: 2).

Hence all that believe in Christ are justified from all things; from which ye could not be justified by the Law of Moses (Acts 23: 39); for the Law made nothing perfect; but the bringing in of a better ministry, by which we draw nigh unto God (Heb. 7: 19).

Therefore we are not called to Mount Sinai to hear the terrible threatenings of the Law. For as much as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistles of Christ ministered by us—written not with ink; but with the spirit of the Living God—not in tables of stone; but in fleshy tables of the heart (2 Cor. 3: 3).

Hence we are come to Mount Zion, where free sovereign grace and mercy are published. The Gospel affords many advantages above the Law. The Law was given to that people until Christ, and it included the substance of all the holy precepts now contained in the Gospel of the grace of God, which are all-grown and appear in all the loveliness and beauty of holiness. M. C. N.

GONE TO PREPARE.

JESUS, our great adorable head while here upon earth, made many promises to His apostles, which reach down through all ages. Hark! His sweet voice, "In my Father's house are many mansions, if it were not so, I would have told you, and if I go to prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." St. John 14: 2, 3. Our blessed Redeemer resides in heaven, and that in behalf of His people, "that they may be with me," saith Jesus. "Where I am." What a glorious thought to contemplate! that the Christian may dwell with Jesus. He has gone to His Father; for the disciples saw him ascend to heaven (Acts 1: 9). There he appears in the heavenly temple—the true sanctuary, as our High Priest, as our great Representative, to prepare a place for us, and at the appointed time, to receive us to himself and to present us faultless before the throne of His glory with exceeding joy.

Dear reader what actuated the Holy One of God to leave the glory He had with the Father before the world was, and come to the earth? He took not upon himself the nature of angels; but he took on Him the seed of Abraham and became subject unto death—even the death of the cross. We answer, love brought Him down from the throne of glory to poverty, to contempt, to the cross, to the grave.

Dear ones, his people are his bride, yea, His body, and He loves them more than any one loveth his own flesh. Nor has His love abated since this glorious exaltation. He is touched with the feeling of our infirmities and He will wipe away all tears from our eyes. Should not this tender love, shown to us, prompt us to a full surrender and obedience to all the requirements of the Gospel? Certainly it should. The yoke which others think hard, should become pleasant to the true believer, he should delight in it after the inward man. O what marvelous love the Savior has bestowed upon us! He therefore demands a return of affection to Him. Dear reader can you do anything for Him on earth? Surely you can. Therefore do it gladly. If you are called to suffer any thing for Him, bear it joyfully, and do not cleave to the earth too much; for your Savior has long wished for your company. Thus it remains for you to choose whether you will enjoy His company or not. Shut your eyes upon the fading glories of the world and open them upon the glory of the incarnate God—your beloved Savior above, who waits to receive you to himself, that where He is, you may be also, thus you will behold the glory of His holiness, meekness, humility, and self-denial, which will cause you to study to be holy, and meek, and humble, and self-denying, like Him. It is eternal life to know the only true God and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent. Hence the importance of the right knowledge of God. May divine grace fit and prepare us, that we may be with Him and behold His glory. Amen.

M. C. N.

AND in that day seven women shall take hold of one man, saying, we will wear our own apparel, only let us be called by thy name to take away our reproach (Isa. 4: 1). The above reminds us very much of the majority of professors now-a-days. They say, by their actions, "Lord we will eat our own bread and wear all the ungodly fashions and changeable suits of apparel, only let us be called by thy name, that we may thereby cover our hypocrisy and idolatrous worship of the God of this world—fashion. Yea, Lord we very much desire to be called Christians." It is a positive fact that the holy name of Jesus is blasphemed from time to time by ungodly professors of religion who want to serve Baal under the name of Christ. M. C. N.

WHEN Dr. Bliss announced to Mrs. Garfield that the President was dying and that nothing more could be done, for the moment she seemed crushed by the awful words, but rallying she stood up and said: "Gentlemen, you shall not give him up! He is not going to die. He is going to live. I feel it, I know it.—Go back to your post, and leave it not until every remedy is exhausted, until death itself has set its seal upon him, for I will not believe that he is dying. Go back and do what you can. You cannot do more, but don't you give up. I am his wife, and I say that we will not give up until the end itself is upon us." (N)

A MINISTER without boldness is like a smooth file, a knife without an edge, a sentinel that is afraid to let off his gun. If men will be bold in sin, ministers must be bold to reprove.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

SEPTEMBER 27, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN,..... Editor.

J. H. MOORE, } Corresponding Editors.
S. J. HARRISON, }

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Booth Eby, A. W. Bacon, D. F. Sneliker,
James Cross, R. W. Miller, J. P. Rosebarger, Daniel Vaniman, Mattie A. Lord, J. W. Southwood.

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not include in personalities and un courteous language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."
Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending additional names and $1.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the balance.

Money sent by Post-office Order, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

THE MINNESOTA FIELD.

CONFORMABLY to arrangement, Bro. D. M. Miller and the writer, left Lanark the 12th inst., for Minnesota to see how our brethren do. Now when we had passed through Iowa and a portion of Minnesota, we came to Ottawa, on the 14th day, and sought out our friend Clark who took us in and administered to our wants, then conveyed us to Sharon, the home of brother and sister Norman, and brother and sisters Bacon. For as yet the church in Sharon consists of Robt. Norman, Mary C. Norman, Henry Bacon, Lucy Bacon, Laura Bacon and her sister.

"Having had a perfect understanding of all things from the very first" introduction of the Gospel of Jesus by the Brethren in Sharon, and being an eye witness of the work, it became us to "set forth in order a declaration of those things" which have transpired in the vale of the Minnesota.

In December 1879, Bro. Miller and his brother in the Lord, after a series of meetings in the city of Ripon, Wis., took train for Le Sueur county, Minnesota, and in due time arrived in Sharon. Bro. Norman had induced the members of the Disciple or Christian church to open their homes unto us. Here we assembled daily for one week and taught the people out of the Scriptures, alleging that Jesus should in all things, whatsoever he commanded, be obeyed. On Saturday evening as we were about making an announcement for meeting on the morrow, one Denton arose and declared that he intended to speak on the morrow, and overthrow what we had builded during the week. Being non-resistant in principle, we made known our willingness to depart unto the school-house hard by, where we would continue to persuade both men and woman; whereupon Denton beckoned to us declaring that we might remain on the morrow, and in the evening he would show that we were persuading men to obey God "contrary to the law."

We remained on the morrow and declared the counsel of God from Matt. 28: 19; and in the evening paid respectful attention to the disciple of Alexander Campbell, who declared with vehemence that we should go out of that region into a country where the Gospel had not yet been proclaimed, alleging that the Word of God had long time ago been preached in Sharon, and the regions round about.

And when we "would have entered into unto the people" to teach them the way of the Lord more perfectly, the "disciples" of Campbell "suffered" us not; so after a meeting in the school-house several miles from the meeting-house, we bade adieu to the brethren and sisters, and returned to Lanark, Ill.

In June 1880 we again visited the Lord's people in Sharon, and for a week in the grove near Bro. Norman's, made known the way of the Lord to the people. Once upon a beautiful night, after we had, by God's grace, declared the Word of the Lord, a young man named Thomas arose and made proclamation that he was ready to deny the truth of our preaching, saying that he represented no church, but represented himself only. To this we gave answer that we came not to debate, but to preach the Gospel; but that if we were forced to debate, it must be with a gentleman and a representative of some society. We further announced that we would continue to preach the Gospel, and at the close of our meetings, if the people thought a dismission should be held, we would then consider the matter, providing a representative man could be found on their part.

We continued to labor in the Lord, and many came out to hear, while others came declaring that we seemed to be satters-forth of strange doctrines; and the chief man becoming alarmed, sought to dispute with us, following us to our abode. Here we disputed with one Bacon—a minister of the tribe of Advents. When we had finished disputing with him, we went to the water near by, and baptized sister Bacon who formerly was a member of the Advent society. At the waterside there were murmurings because one had turned to obey the things commanded by God; but the disciples of Jesus held their peace and went about their Father's business.

Last June, Bro. Miller and Bro. Ogg, of Fillmore county, Minn., went to Sharon, and in a tabernacle by the home of Bro. Bacon, declared the word of the Lord with power. But the opponents of Matt. 28: 19, John 13: 1-16, Rom. 10: 16, and Matt. 5: 34, and many other commands of the Gospel, were loud for debate, saying that they desired Eehelman to come—that he was afraid to come again into the vale of the Minnesota.

Seeing that the army of Israel was thus defied, we gathered up the sword of the spirit, buckled on the armor of God, and went forth to meet the giants. The next day after we arrived at Bro. Norman's, Bro. N. went to the home of Elder F. M. Stewart, to notify him that we were again in Sharon, and that if he now desired to see us he should come forth. Bro. Norman drove twice eight miles through mud and rain to inform the Elder so that he should be without excuse. After some hesitation he came, and about five o'clock met us at Bro. N.'s. His daughter is the wife of Bro. Norman. Our readers know her as the editress of the "Home and Family" Department of the BRETHERN AT WORK.

Elder Stewart opened the matter of debate, stating he had not sent us a challenge; but in this he was slightly mistaken as was shown him. He then requested us to write a proposition which we did. This following was presented.

The church of the Brethren in its teaching and practice exhibits the teaching and practice of Christ and the apostles.

M. M. Eshelman affirms.
F. M. Stewart denies.

The church of the Disciples in its teaching and practice exhibits the teaching and practice of Christ and the apostles.

F. M. Stewart affirms.
M. M. Eshelman denies.

These propositions the Elder rejected, saying he would discuss only trine immersion and the Lord's supper, assigning as a reason that he had not time to discuss more. We insisted on discussing the whole difference between the Disciples and the Brethren. This alone will give satisfaction, we think, to the people in that region. We do not desire to go over a part of the difference between us, and then perhaps he compelled to turn around and discuss the entire difference with some one else. We desire to end the controversy by the discussion of the whole Sa'd, thus showing the people of Sharon what we teach and practice from A to Z. We are by no means anxious to enter into a public discussion, but after hearing so much about debate and cowardice in and around Sharon, we confess to surprise, when the Elder persisted in refusing to defend all the teaching and practice of his church.

We then offered the following:

The church with which I, M. M. Eshelman, am identified possesses Bible characteristics entitling it to be regarded as the church of Jesus Christ.

M. M. Eshelman affirms.
F. M. Stewart denies.

The church with which I, F. M. Stewart, am identified, possesses Bible characteristics entitling it to be regarded as the church of Jesus Christ.

F. M. Stewart affirms.
M. M. Eshelman denies.

This the Elder also rejected. Seeing that he steadfastly refused to defend the entire teaching and practice of his church, we declared the matter closed, the Elder to take the responsibility. He then desired time until Oct. 6th, at which time the Ministerial Association meets in Minneapolis. He promised to give us a definite answer after that time. We hope he will conclude to invite us to return to baptize him "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

The next morning he changed the first proposition so as to read "The Christian church, etc." We agreed to return any time between Oct. 15th and 30th, and discuss the first proposition as many days as he may appoint, on condition that he take half of the whole time in affirming the teaching and practice of his church. It was also understood that the time to be consumed, please, and the rules to govern the debate, should be arranged before our return so that there would be no delay upon arriving there. We would prefer holding the discussion in Le Sueur. The house in Sharon is small, and if the weather should be wet, the roads would be almost impassable. However, we will submit to the Brethren in Sharon, and if called to defend the truth, shall do what we can by God's grace.

The brethren and sisters in Sharon are passing through a severe conflict. Oppositions bordering on persecutions are theirs. On every side they are perplexed by the opposers of obedience to a whole Gospel. A few are almost persuaded to cast their lot with our people; and we hope many may yet see the beauty of full and complete obedience to the Gospel. We know that if they could but once enjoy John 13: 4, 16; Rom. 16: 16 and many other of the Lord's commands, they would wonder why they so long stood against these plain commands and pleasant duties. We have the most kindly feelings towards all who reside in and around Sharon. We could die for them if it would awaken them to righteousness. God help them to yield themselves servants of the Most High, and to learn the way of the Lord more perfectly.

THE NEEDS OF THE HOUR.

At no time in the history of our church has there been a greater necessity of humility and earnest prayer to God for a spirit of unity. "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one as we are." This was the prayer of the Savior before he was taken from his disciples, well knowing the seed of discord that Satan would try to sow among them when he was gone. While He was in their midst He preserved unity. He restrained the impetuosity of Peter, rebuked the ambition of James and John, and chided mildly the doubting Thomas. He made himself the central figure and drew all eyes on him. There was not then "one for Paul, another for Cephas, and another for Christ," but all were for Christ. There was but one purpose, and that was to serve their Master. This unity of purpose produced unity of feeling. It always has done this and will do so yet.

Two bitter enemies at court could lay aside all personal feeling—join hands on the meadow of Rutili, and resolve to stand shoulder to shoulder in the battle of liberty for Switzerland. Is there no cause on which we all could unite that would induce us to lay aside our personal preference—our self-interests, every other consideration for that one great object that would draw us together as closely as the followers of Alexander the Great, and would make us as victorious as his legions? Yes, there is one grand cause around which we may all rally—the grandest cause ever supported on earth. A cause for which we may quit our tobacco forever, even in order that we may not offend some weak brother for whom Christ died. May we crucify our propensity for gay clothing, jewelry, and every other token of pride, and bring ourselves nearer on an equality and nearer to the God-man. May we cease to strive after filthy lucre, which will only consign us to the torment of Dives, from whose abode we may see across the gulf some happy Lazarus. May we quit our aspirations for positions of honor in the church, only to receive the greater condemnation. In short, we may sacrifice all in favor of the one great cause that will bind all our hearts in one. It is the cause of Christ, the Lamb that stands in the midst among the saints who sing their everlasting hallelujahs. Were we all to labor for greater holiness and a higher Christian life, pay more attention to "the weighty matters of the Law," instead of mint and cumin, we would be one in Christ Jesus, and his best prayer for his disciples would be realized by us. a. v. s.

HE IS DEAD.

THIS was the message that came over the wires immediately after 10: 35 P. M., Sept. 19th, when the President of the U. S., James Abram Garfield, had breathed his last. The sad news was immediately proclaimed by the tolling of the church bells in every city and hamlet in the country—the words passed from lips to lips, "He is dead." The highest in authority over fifty millions of people had at last succumbed to the fatal stroke of an assassin, after eleven weeks of intense suffering and heroic endurance, and now the whole nation mourns for one in whom they discovered so many excellent qualities which fitted him for the position to which a people's partiality had called him.

He was born and cradled in poverty, and worked his way up to the highest position in the gift of the nation. Few men have filled this office, who were better qualified by learning and breadth of culture, as well as a keen natural insight into business. He gained the confidence of both political parties, and those who voted for his competitor, now shed tears of sorrow over his untimely death. The blow which struck him down has a deeper significance than simply the slaying of a human being. It is a blow at the life of a nation. It betrays the danger to which our chief rulers are exposed, and God only knows what other calamities may yet befall us. It becomes us therefore in a special manner to obey the Scriptural injunction to pray "for kings and rulers and all in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty." 1 Tim. 2: 2.

STEIN AND RAY DEBATE.

THIS is an extraordinary work, and possesses rich material for the Christian believer. The lines between the General Baptists and the Brethren or German Baptists are closely drawn, and the characteristics of each are brought out prominently. Church history and Christian theology, facts, times, and dates, are all brought together in an interesting manner. A small edition published. Order now if you want a copy. Printed on good white paper, and bound in neat durable bindings. Sent post-paid, cloth, $2.00; leather, $2.50. Send to Western Book Exchange, Mt. Morris, Ill., for terms to agents.

How is it considered, when teachers at the beginning of meeting exhort so long, and consume so much time with speaking before prayer? Considered that it would be more edifying to make the exhortation as brief as possible, since the apostle teaches that first of all applications, earnest, intercessions, etc., be made. 1 Tim. 2: 1-4. Annual Meeting 1840, Art. 12. This is very good; now let the teachers practice accordingly. But here is another worth heeding, "Considered, that a due sense of order and propriety will teach us how to conduct our meetings so as to edify, and not weary, the congregation."—Annual Meeting 1848, Art. 3, of special council in Indiana. We know that a due sense of order and propriety will teach us this; but how about such as shut up their ears and will not be taught? Shall they go on and weary the congregation? Reform, brethren, reform!

ANY one having No. 44 of the B. at W., of 1879 and Nos. 32 and 33 of 1880, will confer a favor by sending them to us, if he does not wish to preserve them. We need them to complete our files.

For the Brethren at Work.

VERILY NAY.

BY J. S. FLODY.

It has been said and still is being said that there are hundreds of "sisters" outside the church, simply because they were not allowed to wear a certain kind of head gear. I protest against such arguments being used; it is a shame that such things be said among us. I do not believe there ever was, or ever will, be a sister turned out of the church because of wearing of certain apparel; the real cause is pride in the heart, which is a damning sin. Pride kills humility, engenders self-will and unfits the character to belong to the church of the living God. Now when "by the fruits ye know them" and the ax is laid at the root of the tree, and the truth as it is in Jesus will not hold in subjection the carnality of the human heart, and by all the means in the power of God's Word and the church pride, and self-will cannot be destroyed, as dead branches they are cut off. Not because of the fruit only, but because of the in-brewing sin, such sin that separates from God and necessarily separates from the church.

We need not look into the heart of a diseased tree to know the truth concerning it. We know from its appearance and the defective fruit it bears that there is something wrong, and if all our efforts to cure prove unavailing, we cut it down lest it contaminate the rest, or give the orchard an unsightly appearance.

The "sister" who sat in the assembly of A. M., with a forty-cent hat on, and then when an adverse decision was made on the wearing of hats, she proudly and in a defiant manner went down town and purchased one costing two dollars and fifty cents. If she were cut off, would it be for "simply" wearing a hat? Verily no! It would be because of her yet being in the "gall of bitterness and the bonds of iniquity." What advantage are such to the church? None, so long as such a spirit is manifest; but may God in his great mercy save them from the terrors of a just judgment that He shall render at that great day. To leave such rebellious characters alone to sleep in the arms of the world, with their heads pillowed on a membership in the church, will only add to their sorrow in a coming day.

Blessed is the brother or sister who can get the wayward member to see, from a sense of principle, the beauty of laying aside "every weight" and walking worthy of the vocation in which we are all called.

If only the hideousness of pride, self-will and all "that maketh a lie" in our baptismal covenant, were plainly brought to a sense of our understanding, and could we see the cloven foot in all these abominations (for it is there), how we would tremble to think we were so blinded. Oh! God give us all of that eye save that we may truly say: "I was blind, but now I see."

TO T. W. DRENNEN.

WILL you please explain yourself? I have before me a letter from your hand, in B. AT W., No. 24, page 380, in regard to the discussion between you and Eld. Fennimore, and in your letter the following appears:

"I wish to make a few corrections to your issue. It is stated by you, that the Adventists admitted that I could trace trine immersion within thirty-three years of the apostles; but right to the apostles. He supposes because the apostles practiced trine immersion they were in error. Well if the apostles were wrong, Christ must have been wrong, who gave the commission," etc.

You also claim a complete success; going on to give a few more of Mr. Fennimore's arguments, then close your letter with the following remarks:

"Here are a few of the god-dishonoring arguments and soul destroying dogmas he presented." To-day we have another letter before us which is published in the Restitution. Mr. Fennimore says you wrote it to him. It reads thus:

"COPY OF ELDER DRENNEN'S LETTER TO ELDER FENNIMORE.

AUG. 6th 1881.

Dear Brother:

Since my last combat, I have been investigating the doctrine you advocated, and now, like an honest man, must acknowledge that you are right, and if God spares my life, I will preach the same doctrine you teach; but I want to preach it where I condemned it. Now write just as soon as you get this and let me hear from you. Make an appointment for you and me at Argos, and let me know at what time you will be there and I will meet you, if the Lord will let me live to get there.

T. W. DRENNEN."

We think there is quite a contrast between these letters, and we would like an explanation. We are anxious to know whether Bro. Drennen wrote such a letter to Mr. Fennimore. We can scarcely believe that Bro. Drennen could so soon believe that the apostles were in error when they practiced trine immersion; nor do we yet believe that he is yet ready to preach that Christ, who gave the commission, was wrong; nor to advocate a doctrine which he thinks is God-dishonoring and soul-destroying. Mr. Fennimore boastingly says, "If the German Baptists have any more preachers that they want converted to the truth, let them bring them out."

We will inform Mr. Fennimore that we do not think that we have many preachers who wish to become converted to a doctrine whose advocates are so hard pressed as to charge the apostles with being in an error, or as Mr. Reed, one of their chief men, was driven to the conclusion, no doubt, after noticing the argument pro and con on the subject of trine immersion, that according to the teachings of the Bible, their doctrine must crumble. This was a little more than the man was willing to hear.

Let the reader imagine the agony the man must have been in by the course he pursued. When writing on the subject of baptizing in the name; it would seem, that he got discouraged with all the arguments that he and others could advance, and as the last resort, boldly claims that Mat. 28:19 is spurious. This is just enough to show to the world the fallacy, the weakness of a doctrine that demands such embarrassing arguments to sustain it.

May God bless our faithful Brethren for the honor they have ever manifested for Him in so nobly defending his Holy Word; who have never taken authority to set aside a part of God's Word as some others do. We are well acquainted with some of these who do, and they are as liberal with us. They have told us that they did not think that the Lord would reject us on account of being baptized by trine immersion; neither have we any fears that the good Lord will reject us for doing according to His bidding. They say we are only "over-doing" the matter a little. Now in all endeavor let me ask, does it not look more like over-doing the matter, and that not a little, to claim that the apostles were in error, or as Mr. Reed tries to impeach Matthew as a true witness of Jesus? I would be slow to tell them that the Lord would not reject them for such conduct.

Then let me kindly say to Mr. Fennimore, "Physician heal thyself," and thy brother Reed; persuade him to believe the whole Gospel; then if you have more time, make all the improvements on the German Baptist preachers you possibly can, and I am sure we will not fall out with you.

Now in conclusion let me say, the reason of our writing is because some of our Advent friends are boasting that they have got one of our most able men, and after comparing the two letters, we confess we fail to see theabity; and if Mr. Drennen is one of our most able men, he must have been misrepresented, or something is wrong somewhere. We feel no disposition to give up the "old ship," notwithstanding great men should leap out into darkness and popularity. May God grant us grace to stand firmly, though the storm of opposition rags on every hand. Brethren let us ever bear in mind that it is the truth that always was and always will be evil spoken of, and trine immersion gets a due share. They bear us witness that we have learned of Jesus. Now we hope that Mr. Drennen will answer soon.

A. ROOT.

Oswald, Kan.

A PURE life is a gem from heaven. Through this gem the sunlight of God reaches ears and hearts, and makes its power felt wherever Christians live. Christians are to hold forth the light to a lost and benighted world. Through the consecrated hearts and lives of Christians God moves upon those who are without hope in the world. The unsearchable wisdom of Christ, sad life everlasting come to the children of men through instrumentalities of God's own choosing. Happy is the man who is able to interpret the human heart and the will of God, and to so adjust himself to living forces that he may grow in the knowledge and the riches of Christ.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, - - - - - EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Ladue, Henry Co., Mo.

Will some one please explain 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35? Why are women to keep silence in the church?—Should they not sing or pray or what shall they do? A BROTHER.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations?

Ans. David Moore wants to know whether there is more Scripture for an organ in a family than to dance.

Will some one please give the Scripture where it is said that man has an IMMORTAL soul, or it is said man has any immortality before the resurrection? C. D. H.

Please explain the difference between a good man and a righteous man. JOHN V. SNAVELY.

What are the seven spirits of God? C. D. H.

Please explain Matt 24: 40, 41. It reads, "There shall be two in the field; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, the other left." LYDIA ZANER.

QUERY ANSWERED.

Will some one explain the last part of the 6th verse of the 8th chapter of John: "But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground," etc. How could he write on the ground, when he was in the temple? A SISTER.

THE question arises whether the term ground really means literal earth, or whether it simply means the floor of the temple. Again, we are not sure that the floor of the temple in the days of Christ was the same material as of the one built by Solomon; as the one built by Solomon had been destroyed. The probabilities are that there was a vast difference.

Again, it seems clear from various readings of the Gospel, that there was a particular room in the temple in which the people would meet to receive instruction out of the Law. In this room or place Christ was teaching when they brought unto Him the woman taken in adultery. It seems plain that the floor of that place was of such a character that a person could write upon it; either in the fine dust, or otherwise.

The object of the writing was, doubtless, to make the impression on the minds of those who tempted Christ, that a record was being made out in reference to their own cases of wickedness; and feeling the lashings of a guilty conscience, one by one, they sneaked out, before the record could be read. J. S. M.

HOW THE BIBLE GOES OUT.

MANY suppose that Bibles in the language of the several countries are given away in large numbers. This is not so. They are, as a rule, sold. The prices are generally the low rates that are fixed at the Bible House. To give them away has proved to be a useless expense. If they are sold only, they will pass into the hands of persons who prize them. When one, who is truly poor, comes and desires the book, it is either given freely, or put at a nominal price.

The London Bible readers combine sales and reading. The book is sold to the poor at low rates on time, a penny a week, or as much per month, and, if need be, the seller comes around at stated times to read. In China a man precedes the seller, calling the attention of the passers-by, in the narrow streets and he sells a few at once.

In a few minutes he is followed by another who sells also, and many more buy. He is followed by a man carrying hundreds of copies.—Discussion, crowding, calling out the nature of the book, and the low price all conspire to help the sales.

In Spanish America the book is so well known that it meets a ready sale, and the same is true in most countries in Europe. The price coming back helps the Bible Society to increase its work so that about seven books are issued every minute of the day.

This great society not only makes these books but bears the expense of getting them into the hands of the readers. The sales pay for the books or they pay for the distribution, but they do not do both.

If each book, as finished should drop into the hands of a reader, it would take thousands of years to supply the world with the Bible by the American Bible Society at present rates.

It is a noble charity, but its work should at once, be made a hundred times as effective. Its only source of income is from bequests and annual gifts.

FUEL FOR THE FINAL FLAMES.

A BLACKSMITH in Titusville, Pa., spading in his garden in the month of June of the present year, noticed that little parts of crude petroleum formed in the cavities made by the spade. He dug a pit four feet deep, and dipped out five barrels of oil of excellent quality. He has put down other pits and dug a trench around his garden, and his grounds are yielding one hundred barrels a day.

The same process was speedily followed in adjoining gardens and yards, with the same result in almost every instance. There is no diminution of the supply, and all the property along Oil Creek, between Washington and Franklin streets has been leased for the purpose of being developed on a large scale.

How has it come about that this oil, usually found only by boring to a great depth, is now found on the surface? Our this point the Journal of Science, of August, 1881, says:

There are many theories in regard to this unheard of presence of petroleum in large quantities so near the surface. One is, that the oil is the leakage of tanks and pipe lines, which has sunk into the earth, until it reached the gravelly deposit, in which it is now found in pools. Another is that this deposit has been forced up from the true petroleum sand stratum by some unknown agency, and caught and retained in the stratum where it now lies. The theory, last stated would seem to be the correct one; and we would add to this a query: Why is it that petroleum and other inflammable substances, the discovery of which in any considerable quantities is a comparatively recent event, are being thus forced to the surface by some "unknown agency?"

The writer quoted says, that this is an unheard-of thing. Is it not that the Lord is preparing the fuel for the burning day, when he shall be revealed in flaming fire? The prophet speaks of a time, when the dust shall become brimstone, and the stream burning pitch.

To the people who lived when the prophet wrote, it was, no doubt a wonderful mystery, how this could be. To us it is not. A land, petroleum-soaked, and streams bearing upon their surface the inflammable liquid, would, if ignited, present to the eye of the beholder, a literal fulfillment of the prophet's words.

Is not this "unknown agency," then, simply some force used by divine providence to bring to a proper position, by forcing it to the surface, that combustible material which is to set its part in the fiery ordeal before us?

How vast a quantity of this there may be, or over how large a part of the earth's surface distributed, we know not. It doubtless exists, where now least suspected. And if it is to be one of the agencies employed in the work referred to, it will be found where its presence is needed, and that, too, in suitable quantities.—Review and Herald.

THE INFIDEL SILENCED.

A CERTAIN infidel, who was a blacksmith, was in the habit when a Christian man came to his shop, of asking some one of the workmen if he had ever heard about Bro. Scand So, and what they had done? They would begin and tell what some Christian had done and say: "That is one of your fine Christians we hear so much about."

While the infidel was trying himself one day, an old deacon entered the shop and after listening a while, asked, "Did you ever read the story about the rich man and Lazarus?"

"Yes, many a time; what of it?"

"Well, do you remember about the dogs,—how they came and licked the sores of poor Lazarus?"

"Yes, and what of that?"

"Well," said the deacon, "do you know you just remind me of those dogs, content merely to lick the Christian's sores."

The blacksmith had no more to say!

NOTICE.

LA DUE, Mo., Sept. 6, 1881.

To the Readers of the B. at W.:

THIS CERTIFICATE, that a number of queries have been answered by me and others, and have been sent up to B. at W. for publication, but from some cause they failed to reach the office, hence are lost. We make this statement that our correspondents may know why their queries and answers have not been published. J. S. MOHLER.

Correspondence.

Committee Work.

We, your committee, have conferred with the District Meeting of Northern Kansas, Nebraska, and Colorado in re-districting the State. The result is, the State of Kansas is now divided into three separate districts as follows: The south line of Franklin county, thence west through the State, dividing the Southern District from the North eastern and North-western districts. The line dividing North-western from North-eastern District is the Western line of Dickinson county, thence north. The North-western District includes Colorado. Those churches where the lines run through should fall where the main body of the church is, if convenient.... If the work is satisfactory, the churches composing the three different districts will represent at their separate districts, next District Meeting, to-wit: Southern Kansas in Cana Church, North-eastern in Valley Falls church, North western in Solomon Valley church. The churches falling to North-eastern District are satisfied as to the above work.

DANIEL BARNHART, } Com.
JOSEPH MICHAEL, }

Centropolis Mo.

On a Mission.

According to the wishes of the Missionary Committee of Northern Illinois, I started for the Southern mission field, where C. S. Holsinger is laboring in the Mester's cause. Arrived at Sparland, Marshall Co., at 4 P. M. Was met by brother Holsinger, and was conveyed to his house. Found the family all usually well.

Had a night meeting at the Breese school-house. Next day, (the 6th) met with the dear brethren in council. Here I also met Jas. R. Gish from Roanoke, Ill. Was very glad to meet him and his companion. The church was well represented. The meeting was opened in the usual manner, after which the deacons reported their visit. After disposing of the visit, we took the voice of the church for a deacon. The lot fell on brother William Buck. Next, we took the voice of the church to advance brother Holsinger to the full ministry, which was unanimous, after which they were both installed.

On the whole, we had a pleasant meeting. The council being on Tuesday, we held meeting during the week; part of the time at different places, until Saturday at 4 o'clock, when the members met at Richland Township hall, which is a fair-sized room for meeting purposes, to celebrate the ordinances. We had good attention and excellent order.

Three made the good confession and were baptized, and one applicant, and a number almost persuaded.

On Sunday, at 4 P. M., brother Holsinger and myself attended a funeral at the Richland school-house. At night, had meeting at the Brick town school-house. Brother Gish had meeting in the town hall.

On Monday night, all met at the town hall, at which time we bade farewell to the dear brethren and sisters, leaving brother Gish to continue the meeting.

About forty members communed. Love and good feeling seemed to prevail generally.

Bro. C. S. is doing as well as we can expect under the circumstances, and by the help of the Lord and proper management, the mission cannot help but be a success. I would say to my co-laborers, don't forget brother Holsinger. He would be glad at any time to see some of the ministers come to his assistance. His address is Henry, Marshall Co. Ill.

This sketch is intended more especially for Northern Illinois, under whose care they are, so that they can see a little how things are moving. EDMUND FORNEY.

Polo, Ill., Sept. 14.

Our Journey.

Mother and myself, accompanied by brother Samuel Forney and wife, started for brother Eli Rothrock's, near Davenport. Crossed the great Platte river, then went across the sand ridges to Juniata, where we formed the acquaintance of Brother David Bechtelheimer and son and daughter. From there we started en route for Hastings, where we remained all night at brother Josiah Ashenfelters' and family. They are keeping a boarding-house. Some members living at Hastings.

Next morning, (Sept. 1st) started for Davenport. Took refreshments at Reuben Slaver's, then completed our journey, and reached Bro. Eli Rothrock's at 5:30 P. M., where we spent the evening very pleasantly, in conversing on various subjects.

The next day we took a view of the great scope of beautiful land round and about brother Rothrock's. It seems to be very good soil. In the evening we went to brother Samuel Trimmer's, and remained all night.

Sept. 3rd was the day appointed for the Love-feast near brother Rothrock's house, to be held in a tent—nice and convenient for all to be seated. Meeting commenced at 10 A. M., by singing and prayer. Brother Samuel Forney preached from 1 Pet. 1, and gave us good counsel; after which Bro. John Snowberger preached a very interesting sermon from Heb. 4: 10, 11, 12. Closed morning services by singing and prayer. After dinner, the Bethel church held a choice for a minister. The lot fell on brother Eli Rothrock. He was then installed according to order, after which a hymn was sung, and brother Joseph Brubaker spoke from 1 Pet. 1. Then closed, and prepared for the supper. We believe that Christ could not have risen from supper to wash his disciples' feet if he would not have had any; hence the Brethren had supper on the tables. They came around the tables to do as Christ commanded. Everything passed off pleasantly and in order.

Sunday Sept. 4th, came together again to hear more from the Word of God. Brother John Snowberger and Henry Brubaker preached.

At 4 P. M., went to the Shepherd school-house, where brother Henry Brubaker preached from James 5: 14, 15, 20. After meeting went to uncle John Lambert's, and next day went to Abraham Horner's. In the evening went to the Lakman school-house, where the Brethren had meeting. Brother Samuel Forney preached an interesting sermon from the 2nd chapter of Hebrews. On account of the rain, the meeting was not very largely attended.

After meeting went to Bro. Rothrock's, and stayed all night. During the night brethren Samuel Forney and Rothrock became very sick, and were sick all next day; so we left Bro. Samuel and wife at brother Rothrock's, and after visiting brother Samuel Trimmer's, next day we returned to brother Rothrock's, and after bidding them adieu, we started for home. Found all well, for which we ought to feel thankful to God who kept us all our journey through. MICHAEL F. SNAVELY.

In the Church or Out of the Church.—Which?

The above is the caption of an article in the Progressive Christian of Sept. 2nd, 1881, written by S. H. B.

Brother B. labored hard to show that H. R. Holsinger is still in the church of the German Baptist Brethren. I will answer the above by quoting from the same issue of the Progressive Christian under the heading:

"AN ECCLESIASTICAL COURT-MARTIAL."

This article is taken from the Somerset Democrat, and endorsed by the Progressive Christian. I quote from first page: "They disloyalshipped a man," etc. (Italics mine). Again, page 4, same paper: "In the evening (Aug. 10) services were held in the Disciple church, and elder Stephen Hildebrand expounded the Scriptures to a densely-packed house. After services, it was announced that the arbitration of the committee had severed all connection between this congregation and the German Baptist or Dunkard church, and at their council meeting it had organized itself into the 'Brethren's church.'"

Again: "Thus elder Hildebrand preached the first sermon to an independent Progressive Brethren congregation, a fact to which he will point with a just pride, when the germ which was planted in Berlin on the 10th day of Aug., 1881, shall have matured into a mighty tree," etc.

Again: "Organizing a denomination which will grow in numbers * * * until the Progressive Brethren church will have drawn to its bosom all that contains the germ of life in their bosom, and the 'Old Order' is numbered among the things that were."

The above shows where to find H. R. Holsinger and those who departed with him,—in a new denomination, organized in the town of Berlin, State of Pennsylvania, Aug. 10, 1881, with the denominational name, "Brethren Church." Further called, the "Independent Progressive congregation."

The above should settle the agitation of this question "among the Brethren," and show whether H. R. Holsinger "is in the church or out of it."

JOHN WISE.

From Samuel S. Hummer.—The Mill Creek church, Adams Co., Ill., is said to be one of the oldest established churches in Illinois, and I think don't receive the attention in regard to her spiritual wants as it should, by the traveling ministers, as they travel from East to West. We would be glad to have brethren stop off with us when they can make it convenient to do so. We are situated on the main line of railroad running east and west—Wabash and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. . . . Brethren willing to labor for us a few days will stop off either at Camp Point, or at Coatsburg or Quincy. By dropping a card to the writer, brethren will be brought and taken to the railroad. Would be very glad if brethren when on a traveling tour would give us a call and preach for us a few days. We have only one resident minister in our church, (Wm. R. Lierly) a very efficient and zealous worker in the Master's cause. But his field of labor is too large to do justice to all. . . . Our elder is Daniel Vaniman; but he living in Macoupin county, can seldom be with us, and is so much engaged in his ministerial duties that his stay with us is necessarily short. I think we need ministerial assistance very much. The members of our church are mostly in a lethargic state, and we need a thorough awakening activity. May we pay more attention to the welfare of our soul's salvation and the assembling of ourselves together at the house of the Lord. May we pay more attention to our spiritual wants and less to secular affairs, that we may grow and prosper in grace and favor of the Lord.—Adams Co., Ill., Sept. 12.

From D. E. Brubaker.—The Love-feast held in the Dec Moines Valley church yesterday and to-day was an occasion of much enjoyment to the Lord's children who partook of its blessed influences. Quite a good representation of the ministry, and a very fair attendance of spectators, who were very attentive to the Word preached, and the most refined behavior from all. . . . Our esteemed and worthy brother S. M. Goughnour was advanced to the full ministry. At the close of our services it could be read on the countenances of many: "We're loth to leave the place Where Christ reveals his smiling face."—Peoria City, Ia., Sept. 11th.

From J. W. Southwood.—The quarterly council meeting of the Antioch church came off last Saturday at Dora. Among other things, there was an earnest effort made to induce the church to become more spiritual. . . . Meeting lasted a good while, but to us was very interesting, so much so that we went home feeling well over the day's work. May the Lord bless us as well as all others, and help us to become more spiritual and less carnal, so we may be ready at all times to change worlds.—to change time for a blissful eternity.—Monument City, Ind., Sept. 13, 1881.

From H. Engel.—Our Annual council came off on the first of this month, and all passed off in love and harmony, and after the meeting closed, four dear souls were added to the church by baptism and to walk in newness of life. We trust their names have been written in the Lamb's Book of Life, and may they continue faithful until death. . . . Our communion meeting at the Meadow Branch meeting-house will be on the first of October, and at Sam's Creek on the 4th of October.—Pipe Creek Church, Md., Sept. 16.

From David Bowman.—Our meetings are among the things of the past. Brethren S. S. Mohler and A. Hutchinson were with us and preached seven sermons and attended our church meeting. Everything passed off pleasantly. Had one of the best meetings in the history of Morgan Co. That is the expression of Brethren and friends. One soul made the good confession, and many more are near the kingdom. We hope to reap the fruits of these meetings in the near future. Our Love feast was one of those soul-refreshing seasons. Our new house was full and overflowing; could not near all get in. Good order and solemnity seemed to prevail in the whole house. We will look back to it as one of the happiest seasons in the history of our life. . . . Our new church will be known as Prairie View church. Any brethren coming West we would be glad to have stop with us. By giving notices to the writer or John Ramer, or P. C. Lehman, they will be met at Tipton on the M. P. R. R., and those on the O. V. & S. R. R. at Jover Pond, and you are within one and one-half miles of my house.—St. Martins, Mo., Sept. 16.

From J. R. Keller.—I attended a Love-feast in the White Cloud church Sept. 3rd and 4th. Had a pleasant Feast indeed. Ministers present, eight. The meeting continued until the evening of the 7th. The result was, one restored. . . . Also on the 8th attended a Feast at Whitesville, Andrew county, where we met many dear brethren and sister, who, with us, found it pleasant to wait upon the Lord. Two young persons were received by baptism. District Meeting next day. A full report by clerk.—Mount City, Mo., Sept. 12.

From Geo. Long.—On the 1st ult. we left home to attend the Love-feast in Emmert county. Had good meeting and good order. . . . On Sunday the church held a choice for a speaker and two deacons. The lot fell on Samuel Weimer for speaker, and Benjamin Lyon and James Hendershott, deacons. . . . Twenty-seven members communed. . . . Health good among them, and season favorable and pleasant. Bro. Benjamin Sholtz, from Hills Dale county, Mich., was with us at the meeting. . . . We have good health.—Lowell, Mich., Sept. 13.

From A. J. Correll.—We held our annual meeting on the 3rd inst. All passed off peaceably. Four were received in the church (Mountain Valley church) by baptism. . . . We have had one of the driest Summers here I have seen for many years, and still remains dry. Fruit is tolerable plenty. . . . Our Love-feast will be on the 1st of October, at 2 o'clock.—Romeo, Green Co., Tenn., Sept. 10.

From S. T. Bosserman.—On the 25th of Aug. a committee of brethren met at the house of Bro. H. Willard, Foster, O., to make the necessary arrangements to hold a Sunday-school meeting in North-western Ohio. After a season of devotion, asking Almighty God to direct us in the work, brother S. A. Walker was chosen Chairman, and S. T. Bosserman, Secretary. The plan for holding the meeting was then discussed and adopted, program adopted, workers selected, and agreed to hold said meeting some time this Fall, provided a place could be granted, and sufficient encouragement to go on with the work. Latterly, a place has been granted to hold the meeting; but as we have a little opposition at present, the committee has concluded to postpone the work until another season, hoping in the meantime all the workers will endeavor by their love and kindness and Christian courtesy, to overcome all opposition that we may finally work together harmoniously in the grand cause of Sunday-school work.

S. LOOSE,
L. H. DICKEY,
S. T. BOSSERMAN, } Committee.

From B. H. Strickler.—The second council meeting of Lorraine was held at the house of H. W. Strickler, Aug. 27th, 1881. F. Nehrer, (minister), of Concord church, John Wolf (deacon) of Mill Creek church, and elder H. W. Strickler were present. After singing hymn No. 382 and prayer, the 3rd chapter of 1 John was read and reviewed, after which the following business was transacted:

Query 1. Are the brethren and sisters of Lorraine church in love and union?—Answer: Yes.

Here brother B. H. Strickler offered his letter of membership dated April 3rd, 1881, Siver Creek church, Ogle Co., Ill., endorsed by a number of ministers and deacons and signed by clerk of the same. He was unanimously received by all the members present.

2. Will we have a Love-feast this Fall?—Answer: Yes.

3. At what time and place?—Answer: At our new meeting-house in Lorraine, Oct. 15th, at 2 P. M.

4. Will we, the Brethren, dedicate our chapel to the Lord? If so, when?—Answer: Yes; on the 16th of Oct., at 11 A. M.

5. Will we send a delegate to District Meeting this Fall?—Ans.: Yes; and Lewis Pitman is hereby appointed delegate, and H. W. Strickler, substitute.

It was then moved and seconded that B. H. Strickler prepare and send the proceedings to the BRETHREN AT WORK, together with a notice of Love-feast and dedication of our new chapel, with invitation to adjoining elders to assist, and all who wish to enjoy a feast in the Lord. Come, brethren and sisters, and help.—Lorraine, Ill.

From Lottie Ketring.—The B. AT W makes its weekly appearance, and is much appreciated. Am much pleased with sister Norman's article entitled, "All for Christ," also F. E. Teague's, "In Union There is Strength." They are true and noble as the truth itself, and are in harmony with the Gospel order. . . . I am the author of "God's Thunders" that appeared in No. 29 B. AT W. Some of the brethren think I did wrong by not giving my name, hence I say I alone am responsible for what appeared in the same.—Maria, Pa.

Notice.

All corrections for minister's lists for next issue of Advocate and Register must now be sent in. Deaths, elections, and removals should be noted. Every minister should see that his name and address are correct. Send corrections by postal card at once. H. J. KURTZ.

Coeating, Ohio, Sept. 18.

Health and Temperance.

S. T. BOSSERMAN, - - - - - EDITOR.

All communications for this department should be addressed to S. T. Bosserman, Dunkirk, Hardin Co., Ohio.

PERSONAL ADORNMENT.

THERE is now and perhaps ever has been more attention given to personal adornment than anything else. By some it has been reduced to a fine art and exquisite taste; by others, but to secure frivolous admiration, while in another case all tends to carelessness and neglect, unfitting themselves for the association of others.

The taste for dress has grown to a great extent frivolous and sinful. But while this is true, the same taste for handsome houses, gardens, yards or farms also has grown, and many cultivate by and make this their idol as well as others do their dress, and as such all might be condemned. Vanity in anything is wrong, and is no characteristic of good or holy principles. Our dress, therefore, should be placed or based on the line of healthfulness and comfort, convenience and good taste.

Our personal adornment may beautify the soul as well as the body, which adornment advances the healthful interests of both. Personal dress exclusively of that which the Scriptures or law of heaven commands, is, and will be, healthful to the soul. That which is based upon the laws governing life and health is healthful to the body. Therefore strict adherence to both renders our dress healthful, tidy, comfortable, and in a line recognized by the laws of heaven and earth.

Imitative fashion and overmuch attention given to dress to please the desire of the eye or the gaze of society is sinful. 1. Because it robs the individual of higher emotions and he cannot attain to that meekness and quietness characteristic of purity and holiness. The finer senses of the soul become less susceptible and the individual sours only in the region of carnality, or is compelled to the adherence of the whims of the pride of life. 2. Because it is unhealthful to the body. Frivolous fashion, to please the eye or to caper to the whims of others, in warm weather will dress its victim to excess regardless of its hurtful influences; while in cold weather she denies the comfort of heavy wardrobe, so necessary to the protection to health.

Dress for the health of the body should be on the line of simplicity, neatness and comfort, and that the dress might be an ornament by the possessor, and not the possessor an ornament in the house or society by the dress.

The following confession of a lady writer expresses much thought worthy of imitation: "You may be well dressed without great expense. The entire costume of the best dressed lady we ever saw did not cost twenty-five dollars—she wore her own hair—she had not a puff, a fringe, a bit of ribbon, or lace, a jewel or ornament of any kind about her, except a moss rose at her throat where her dainty little collar was fastened. Perhaps it is only fair to say that she was beautiful, and that we may have looked at her more than at her clothes. Be-that as it may, from that day to this we have studied sin plicity in dress, and we think it did us much good."

HOW MILK SHOULD BE TAKEN.

MILK is a food that should not be taken in copious draughts like beer, or other fluids, which dilute it chemically. If we consider the use of milk in infancy, the physiological ingestion, that is of it, we find that the sucking babe imbibes little by little (the natural food provided for it). Each small mouthful is secured by effort, and slowly presented to the gastric mucous surface for the primal digestive stages. It is thus regularly and gradually reduced to curd, and the stomach is not oppressed with a lump of half coagulated milk. The same principle should be regarded in the case of the adult. Milk should be slowly taken in mouthfuls, at short intervals, and thus it is rightly dealt with by the gastric juice. If milk be taken after other food, it is almost sure to burden the stomach, and to cause discomfort and prolonged indigestion, and this for the obvious reason: that there is insufficient digestive agency to dispose of it. And the better the quality of the milk, the more severe the discomfort will be under these conditions.

Milk is insufficiently used in making simple puddings of such farinaceous foods as rice, tapioca, and sago. Distaste for these are engendered very often, I believe, because the milk is stunted in making them, or poor, skimmed milk is used. Abundance of cream milk should be employed, and more milk, or cream, should be added when they are taken. In Scottish household this matter is well understood, and a distinct pudding-plate, like a small soup plate, is used for this course. The dry masses commonly served as milky puddings in England are exactly fitted to create disgust for what should be a most excellent and delicious part of a wholesome dinner for both children and adults.—Popular Science Monthly.

FRUIT AS A MEDICINE.

THE importance to health of eating plenty of fresh, ripe fruit can not be too strongly urged. Not only imported tropical products, but the fruits of our own latitude and climate. Not green or rotten fruit.

All the patent pills and half the physicians' prescriptions for average human indisposition are for a simple purpose—to drain the system of dead and injurious matter. Headache, dullness, sluggishness, fever, and two-thirds of the symptoms which precede some form or other of disease have their origin in imperfect human drainage. With a very large proportion of people a certain consumption of ripe fruit will regulate this economy. It is better than any pill, for the action so induced is regular and constant in proportion to the supply. At best, the action of any drug is spasmodic. It is only a choice between two evils.

Fruit is not only food but medicine also, recommended by the palate. It nourishes and cleanses. Yet thousands of people live on year after year, whose daily experience is that of "not feeling well," whose soil trouble is more or less constipation. The burden of their diets is meat, salt and fresh, bread and potatoes. Thus they go on perpetuating their misery, and ignorant of the simple remedy within their reach. Or to effect the necessary action they use citrate pills, aperients, and occasionally, when an extra stoppage, with all its disagreeable symptoms occurs, a dose of salts and cathartics, or "blue mass." Of course a long neglect of the clogged up system renders such remedies imperatively necessary.

The range of fruit is large. Apples, pears, peaches, berries of various sorts, plums; and all of these are dried for Winter consumption. Call on those from doctors, doctors, citrates and pills. Study the working of your own system. No doctor can do this for you. It is your own house, and you should best know how to take care of it. Don't despise allusion to these plain, homely facts. Your strength of body and mind, your cheerfulness of temper, and clearness of head, your skill in doing business, driving bargains and making money, all depend very much on keeping the drainage of the system in as perfect a condition as possible.

Napoleon attributed the loss of his first battle to a clogged stomach. Many a man has failed at the trying hour because his blood was charged with impurities. When blood is another dead matter, the man or woman is also one-third dead. Moral courage, confidence, decision, wit, presence of mind, good address, powerful magnetic influence, and the right word and action at the right time and place, depend for their force, vigor and presence very much on proper bodily conditions.—See.

MANY a girl is careless as to how much money a young man spends for her. Three and five dollars for a horse and carriage he can poorly afford perhaps, yet she will go with him week after week, with no particular interest in him, unmitigatedly apparently, whether he earns the money or takes it from his employer's drawer. He makes her expensive presents. He takes her to a concert, in going to which usually, save for her pride and his gallantry, a horse-car ride for ten cents would be far wiser than a carriage ride for several dollars. A young man respects a young woman all the more who is careful of the way in which he spends his money, and will not permit too much to be used for her. A thoughtful and well-bred girl will be wise about these matters.

WHEN Hagar was quite disconsolate with fatigue of body and distress of mind, there was a fountain by her, though she knew it not. So the weeping believer has relief at hand, which he cannot see. God's Word, God's Spirit, and God's ministers are the angels that direct and lead his afflicted people to the Fountain opened.

IN Connecticut a bill has just passed both houses declaring cider an intoxicating beverage, to be subject to the same restrictions in its sale as apply to other intoxicating liquors.

QUEEN Victoria is reported to have declined the gift of an elegant barrel of "Victoria Whisky" from a Kentucky distiller. Her good sense gave the associations an unpleasant flavor.

tidings from the field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department.
Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Oak Park, Madison Co., Va.

We had beautiful rains during the past week, for which we thank the Giver. We have Sunday school under the trees in the grove at our new church, while it is being plastered. Have prayer meeting semi-monthly. Our band of believers is small, yet if they exemplify in their lives what they profess with their lips, many more will come.

S. O. LARKINS.

Washington, Iowa, Sept. 1881.

Had church meeting yesterday, and the very best of feelings were manifested. Our dear sister was restored to the fold. May the God of all grace enable her to prove faithful and be a shining light in the church.

ABRAHAM WOLF.

Panora, Iowa, Sept. 13, 1881.

Love-feast over. Attended very largely, but order good under the circumstances. One received by baptism. Bro. Flora (recently of Colo.), and ministers from Harlan and Panther Creek churches did the preaching. God bless them and keep us faithful.

J. D. HAUTVELIN.

Ministers and members traveling west through these parts, are invited to stop off at La Due, a station on the Mo., K. & T. R. R., about 45 miles south-west of Sedalia, and be with us at our Feast, Oct. 20th in Mineral Creek church, Johnson Co., Mo. This county joins Henry county on the North. Their Love-feast immediately to follow the District Meeting.

J. S. MOELLER.

Waraw, Ind., Sept. 10, 1881.

Our Harvest meeting passed off last Saturday and Sunday. We had some very able speaking by Bro. Jesse Calvert, which made impressions upon the mind of friend and foe. The pure teachings of Christ—the truth, could not be denied, as it was held forth in plain facts. During the meeting we were made to feel glad that three more souls were willing to confess their Savior, and practically exhibit their faith.

N. B. HEKLER.

Greenland, Wis., Sept. 19, 1881.

In No. 35 of B. at W., page 540, in conclusion of my article is the word "divided" which, according to my MS., should have been "derided."—The Brethren of the Greenland congregation have two large and commodious meeting-houses, nearly completed; one at Knobley, the other at Luney's Creek. Love-feast at the former, Oct. 6th and 7th, at the latter, November 5th and 6th. Since Aug. 1st the county has suffered greatly from drought, but now, thank the Lord, we are again blessed with refreshing showers.

WM. M. LYON.

Olathe, Kan., Sept. 17, 1881.

The church assembled in council to transact some business in the house of the Lord. Elders Jesse Studebaker and James Hickey were present, and fully organized our church by ordaining Isaac Studebaker to the eldership. A choice was held for one deacon. The lot fell on Bro. Jacob Vanman.

ISAAC H. CRIST.

Matrimonial.

MILLER—NORRIS—Sept. 16, 1881, by Eld. D. P. Saylor, at the house of the bride's mother, near Ludisburg, Frederick Co., Md., Eld. R. H. Miller of Ashland, Ohio, and sister Emma Norris, of Frederick Co., Md.

DUNAHOE—GOODNOW.—At the residence of P. Goodnow, in Cambridge, Iowa, by the undersigned, Sept. 14, 1881, Mr. Wm. S. Dunahoe and Luiza C. Goodnow.

RAY—GOODNOW.—At the same time and place Mr. I. A. Ray and Miss Mary C. Goodnow. The young ladies being twins, and the only girls in the family, it will bring a shadow over the household, when they take their departure.

D. E. BRUBAKER.

NORRIS—BROUGH.—In East Berlin, Md., Sept. 13, at residence of bride's parents, by the undersigned, Edward O. Norris, of Maryland, to sister Nannie L. Brough, of near New Chester, Adams Co., Pa.

PETER B. KAUFFMAN.

Fallen Asleep.

Blended are the dead which die in the Lord.—REV. J. H.

PLATE.—At Mt. Morris, Ill., Sept. 20, 1881, Clinton M., son of Bro. Lewis A. and sister Laura A. Plate, aged 9 years. Sermon at Silver Creek meeting-house by Bro. W. C. Teeter, assisted by E. Newcomer, from 2nd Kings 4: 24.

Clinton was an unusually intelligent boy and the only child of fond parents. His departure leaves the home very desolate, and the stroke falls with great severity on our dear brother and sister. We cannot always see the object of our Heavenly Father, but we are told we must walk by faith and not by sight, and when we remember the faith of Abraham when he laid his son upon the altar, believing that the Lord would restore him from the dead, so we believe the Lord will restore the son to the everlasting joy of the parents. They have our heart-felt sympathy.

S. Z. SMART.

CREIGER.—In the Dry Creek church, Linn Co., Iowa, Sept. 18, 1881. Bro. Solomon Creiger, aged 64 years, 3 months and 1 day.

Deceased was a member of the church for 35 years, a mute. He lived a devoted and faithful Christian life, and expressed a desire to go home.

MEYER.—In the Dry Creek church, Linn Co., Iowa, Sept. 10, 1881, Susanah M. Meyer, aged 21 years, 8 months and 2 days.

THOS. G. SNYDER.

BRUBAKER.—Aug. 24, 1881, in Washington church, Kansas, sister Elizabeth Brubaker, wife of Elder Peter Brubaker, aged 69 years, 10 months and 10 days.

DANIEL BARNHART.

BEAGLE.—In Houtkown, Hancock Co., Ohio, on the 5th inst., Minnie Gertrude, daughter of Bro. Thomas and ——— Beagle, aged 1 year, 4 months and 0 days.

S. T. BOSSEMAN.

YARGER.—At Whitneyville, Cass Co., Iowa, Sept. 6th, Sarah Alice Yarger, daughter of D. S. and A. Yarger, aged 8 years, 11 months and 15 days.

B. S. SPRAUUE.

DITCH.—In the Nettle Creek church, near Hagerstown, Ind., May 4, Bro. Ditch, aged 30 years, 10 months and 26 days. Funeral services by Bro. Daniel and Jacob Bowman.

ALEXANDER DITCH.

OVERLEES.—In the Elkhart congregation, Ind., Sept. 8, 1881, sister Maggie Overlees, aged 22 years, 9 months and 8 days.

McCOLLOUGH.—Same congregation, Sept. 0, 1881, of old age, friend Andrew McCollough, aged 78 years, 2 months and 19 days.

DAVID H. JONES.

BENDER.—Aug. 19, 1881, in English Prairie congregation, La Grange Co., Ind., sister Catharine E. Bender, wife of A. Bender, aged 40 years, 1 month and 20 days.

Deceased was born in Franklin Co., Pa. Funeral services by Bro. P. Long from Rev. 14: 18.

N. H. SHUTT.

Announcement.

LOVE-FAEST NOTICES.

- Oct. 4 and 5, at 2 P. M., Franklin Grove, Lee co., Ill. Oct. 4 and 5 at 1 P. M., Waddam's Grove, Ill.
- Oct. 5, Sautefee church Miami county, Ind.; 6 miles south of Peru; 2 miles east of Bunkerhill.
- Oct. 6 at 4 P. M., Fairview church, Appanoose co., Iowa.
- Oct. 6, at 2 P. M., Howard church, Howard Co., Ind. Those coming by R. R. stop off at Kokomo.
- Oct. 6 at 4 P. M., Pleasant Grove church, near Lawrence, Douglas Co., Kansas.
- Oct. 8 and 7, at 1 P. M., Arnold's Grove, Carroll Co., Ill.
- Oct. 8 at 10 A. M., Logan church, Logan co., O.
- Oct. 8, at 10 A. M., Springfield church, Summit co., Ohio, near Mogadore.
- Oct. 6 and 7, at 4 P. M., South Keokuk church, Ia.
- Oct. 6 at 10 A. M., Washington church, 3 miles east of Warsaw, Ind.
- Oct. 6 at 1 P. M., Limestone church, (Tonja) Jewell co., Kan.
- Oct. 7 at 4 P. M., Mescoupin Creek church, Montgomery co., Ill., in new church, six miles south-east of Girard.
- Oct. 7, at 10 A. M., at Panther Creek, Woodford co., Ill.
- Oct. 7 at 10 A. M., Nettle Creek church, Wayne co., Ind., near Hagerstown.
- Oct. 7 at 2 P. M., at Corwahanoc meeting-house near Greendale, Pa.
- Oct. 7 and 8, Dallas Center, Dallas co., Iowa.
- Oct. 8 at 10 A. M., Hudson, Ill.
- Oct. 8 at 5 P. M., Portage church, St. Joseph co., Ind.
- Oct. 8, at 3 P. M., at Bro. Philip Snively's, 1 and one half miles east of Dorchester, Saline Co., Neb. Those coming by R. R., should stop off at Dorchester.
- Oct. 8 and 9, at Tarscoat, Hampshire Co., W. Va.
- Oct. 8 and 9 at 10 A. M., Spring Run, Fulton co., Ill., at meeting-house, 6 miles east of Prairie City.
- Oct. 8 and 6, Dry Creek, Linn co., Iowa.
- Oct. 8 and 9, Falls City church, Neb.
- Oct. 8, at 10 A. M., Okaw church, near La Place Ill.
- Oct. 8 at 2 P. M., Beatrice church, Gage co., Neb., 8 miles south-east of Beatrice.
- Oct. 8, at 2 P. M., Wichita church, Sedgewick Co., Kan.
- Oct. 8 at 10 o'clock, Somerset district, Washah Co., Ind.
- Oct. 8 and 6 at 11 A. M., Fairview, George's Creek Fayette co., Pa.
- Oct. 8, at 2 P. M., Smith Fork church, Clinton co., Mo.
- Oct. 8 and 9 at 11 A. M., three miles east of South English, Krokuk co., Iowa.
- Oct. 8 and 9, at Fall River church, near Fredonia, Wilson co., Kan.
- Oct. 8, Poplar Ridge church, Deshae co., O.
- Oct. 8, at 10 A. M., Rome church, Wyandot Co., O., 5½ miles north-west of Carey.
- Oct. 10, West Otter Creek church, Maconpin co., Ill.
- Oct. 11 at 10 A. M., Spring Creek church, Ind.
- Oct. 11, at 2 P. M., Antioch, Ind.
- Oct. 11, at 1 P. M., Shannon, Ill., to continue next day.
- Oct. 11 and 12 at 1 P. M., Lost Creek, Juniata co., Pa.
- Oct. 12 at 10 A. M., Four Mile congregation, at White Water meeting-house, three miles north-east of Connersville, Fayette co., Ind.
- Oct. 12 and 13, three miles north-east of Greenok, Elk Co., Kan.
- Oct. 12 and 13 at 10 A. M., Prairie Creek church, Wells co., Ind.
- Oct. 13, at 2 P. M., Hethel church, Montgomery co., Ind.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

5c. 50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.—Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1881.

No. 38.

Editorial Items.

Let your forbearance be known to all men.

CHOLERA has broken out among the pilgrims at Mecca in Arabia.

SNOW fell to the depth of four inches in Carroll Co., Ia., Sept. 16th.

THAT heart must indeed be wicked that will not treat even an enemy fairly.

BRO. D. L. WILLIAMS of Missouri continues to open up new fields and establish churches.

WE go to press a little earlier than usual in order to attend the Love-feast at Lanark.

THE procession at Garfield's funeral was ten miles in length. 200,000 people were present.

CONTRIBUTIONS for Danish Mission quite liberal. God be praised for the work in Denmark.

ADDRESS of Thurston Miller changed from Oakwood, Indiana, to Warren Centre, same State.

FRANK EBY who attended Mt. Morris College during the first year is now in Ashland College.

THIS week we began the publication of a series of interesting letters of foreign travel, by a lady.

IF you have not a very good reason for doing a thing, then you have already one for leaving it undone.

EIGHT girls between the ages of thirteen and sixtish were baptized in the Monroe, Iowa, church the 25th ult.

ONE hundred and forty students now here. About half are members of the church and children of Brethren.

SAMUEL WEINER chosen speaker and James Henderson and Benjamin Lyons elected deacons in Hillsdale, Mich.

A PLOT to assassinate President Arthur has been discovered. The police have taken measures to protect the President.

ON the 10th ult., Daniel B. Heiny was chosen to serve in the office of deacon in the Wesleyan Water church, Neb.

THE gunpowder struggle between the government and the Apache Indians is ended. Many lives lost, and nobody made better.

YOU can have hundreds of BRETHREN AT WORK for free distribution to aid ministers or churches in their work. Order now.

PRELAPS you can find some new readers for the B. AT W. Only twenty-five cents to Jan. 1, '82. Stamps received for subscription.

WE are glad to hear that brother A. S. Leer's eyesight is improving. Bro. Atran is a faithful minister and servant in the Lord."

FROM various churches comes the cheering news of conversions by baptism. Quite a number of zealous, wide-awake workers are out telling the old, old story of Jesus crucified; and some gladly bear the Word and obey.

BRO. JAMES EVANS is preparing a number of articles on first principles for the readers of the B. AT W. The Lord bless him in his labor of love.

THE excursion to the Dry Creek, Linn county, Iowa, Love-feast, will leave Lanark Oct. 7th at 3 P. M. instead of Oct. 6th. Fare $1.45 round trip.

ELA. A. Walker who debated with Bro. R. H. Miller, recently held a four days' debate at Whitewater, Indiana, with S. P. Carlton, a Universalist.

If you have envy in your heart, be assured unless you destroy it with the blood of Christ; it will come out, though it be ever so hideous and deformed.

ON the 6th of Sept., all over New England the atmosphere had a yellow tint, so that the green grass looked bleached, and yellow flowers seemed white.

A TERRIBLE earthquake visited Abruzzo, Italy, recently. Over 1,000 houses were rendered uninhabitable. Four-fifths of the population have no shelter.

BROTHER MOORE writes: "I am now arranging to furnish one article each week for the B. AT W. I do not like to act the 'drone' while my name is on the paper."

THE Eagle Church held its first meeting in the new house in Dunkirk, Ohio, Oct. 2nd. Bro. R. H. Miller was present, and declared the word of the Lord to the people.

In scolding a lady, young man, is it gentlemanly to belittling smoke through a cigar into your mouth and blowing it out to taint the pure air which she should breathe?

NOTWITHSTANDING the "Temperance Department" is given up to correspondence this week, considerable news must go over to next week. Must hold down,—shorten and flavor.

LET every good and faithful minister prepare to spend much of the Winter preaching the Gospel. Do not let the enemy occupy the field; it is too rich to give over to the destroyer of souls.

ON the King of Charity, Jagan Colubina in his Domestic Bible says of Rom. 16: 18: "This mode of salutation is still common in the East, and in other countries, and is used among men."

THE Gospel Messenger published by J. H. Swihart at Bourbon, Ind., is the interest of the "Congregational Brethren" is on our table. It is a neat monthly, breathing peace to all and slaughter to none.

WE were mistaken in saying the Home Mirror would be published in Huntington, Pa. Brother Fryer says it will continue in the West, and will soon appear in an improved manner. We make this correction cheerfully.

IN our last issue, brother John Wise gave some extracts from Somerset county Democrat in reference to H. R. Holsinger's position before the Brotherhood. Whilst the Democrat would seem to treat the matter, as given by Bro. Wise, in justice to H. R. Holsinger, we state that he claims to be a member of the church and declares that he and those at Berlin have not effected a new organization. It should be our aim to treat all fairly; and though we be ever so careful such mistakes will occur. But when they do occur, we should meet cheerfully correct them.

BRETHREN Wise and Ruppel have gone to Canada to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ. They expect to remain several months. Their address is New Dundee, Ontario, Canada, care Wendell Holliman. They arrived there the 24th ult.

A FEW weeks ago we gave notice that those who wished suits after the Brethren's fashion could get them of G. W. Lawrence & Co., North Manchester, Ind., for $3.00 and $3.50. We should have said coats for that price instead of suits.

ON the night of the 26th ult. the Disciple Society at this place dipped an individual, not into the name of the Father, nor of the Son, nor of the Holy Ghost, but into Amen. Concerning such baptism neither Christ nor the apostles gave commendation.

BRO. D. F. PRICE returned from Wisconsin the 30th ult. Held two council meetings while there, and one Love-feast. Brother Michael Henderson was chosen to the ministry, brother C. H. Heitner to the deaconship, and brother C. Brown was advanced in the ministry.

THERE is jealousy between the Catholics and Protestants over the Yorktown celebration Oct. 19th. Both want the uppermost seat. The Catholics, it seems, have secured the lead, and some of the Baptists suggest that they take revenge by erecting a monumental church in New Orleans—the very heart of Catholicism.

PROF. KING did not sail far in his balloon. He went up from Minneapolis, sailed across the Mississippi River, and came down eight miles from the place of starting. Cause, insufficient wind. He waited a few days, when a high wind compelled him to take down his balloon, and abandon his contemplated trip across the country.

THE Love-feast at Pine Creek, Ill., was very enjoyable. There was one baptized after the forenoon services. In the afternoon brother Albert Titus was installed into the office of deacon, having been chosen a few months ago. An election was then held for a minister, and the church chose Albert Titus; thus the same individual was twice installed on the same day.

THE grief of the nation is everywhere manifest, and the evidences of mourning are in all places visible. Garfield was a great man, but Jesus Christ is greater. If the nation could feel for Jesus as it does for its lamented President, inestimable would be the blessings and great the results. It is to be hoped that even President Garfield's death will turn many to Christ.

WHEN Bro. Metzger first began meetings in St. Louis, he went to the meetings held by the "Salvation Army," and as they gave opportunity to any one to speak ten minutes, Bro. Metzger embraced every such opportunity, and the result is, quite as surprising in that city. So did our Savior. He went among the erring, the Pharisees and Sadducees, and preached to them Jesus. He did not wait until they called him to preach.

INTELLIGENCE received from the Warner's Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., announces the discovery of a new comet located in the constellation of Virgo. It is a striking coincidence that this new and bright comet appeared at the same hour President Garfield was breathing his last. It was first seen by E. E. Barnard in Nashville, Tenn., who has made claim through Prof. Swift for the Warner prize of $200 in gold. This makes the fifth comet seen since May first, and of this number four have appeared from almost the same spot in the heavens.

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE BEAUTIFUL LAND.

There's a beautiful land by the spoiler untrod,
Unpolluted by sorrow or care;
It is lighted alone by the presence of God,
Whose throne and whose temple are there;
Its crystalline streams with a murmurous flow,
Meander through valleys of green, [glow;
And its mountains of Jasper are bright in the
Of a splendor no mortal hath seen.

And throngs of glad singers with jubilant breath,
Make the air with their melodies rife;
And one known on earth as the angel of death,
Shines here as an angel of life!
And ineffable tenderness beams from his eyes,
On his brow is an infant's calm,
And his voice as it thrills thro' the depth of the skies
Is as sweet as the seraphim's psalm.

Through the amaranth groves of a beautiful land,
Walk the souls who were faithful in this,
And their foreb'ds by the br'h of the zephyrs are fanned

That evermore murmur of bliss;
They taste the rich fruitage that hangs from the trees

And breathe the sweet odor of flowers,
More fragrant than ever were kissed by the breeze,

In Araby's loveliest bowers.

Old prophets, whose words were a spirit of flame,
Blazing out o'er the darkness of time,
And martyrs whose courage no torture could lame,

Nor turn from their purpose sublime;
And saints and confessors, a numberless throng,
Who were loyal to truth and to right,
And left as they walked thro' the darkness of wrong

Their foot-prints encircled with light.

And the dear little children who went to their rest,
Ere their lives had been sullied by sin,
While the angel of morning still tarried a guest,

Their spirit's pure temple within—
All are there, all are there—in the beautiful land

The land by the spoiler untrod.
And their foreb'ds by the breath of the breeze
are fanned

That blow from the gardens of God.

My soul hath looked in thro' the gateway of dreams,
On the city all paved with gold,
And heard the sweet flow of its murmurous streams.

As through the green valleys they rolled;
And though it still wails on this desolate strand,

A pilgrim and stranger on earth,
Yet it knew, in that glimpse of that beautiful
land,
That it gazed on the home of its birth.

—Selected by B. Seibert.

For the Brethren at Work.

ABOUT MYSELF.

BY C. H. BALSBAUGH.

To Bro. D. S. Clark, of Wisconsin:—

AUTO BIOGRAPHY has ever been unpleasant to me, but I am pressed by so many inquiries from loving hearts that once in a while I venture to inflict on the public a bulletin of my personal conditions.

It would be a long and tedious history to recount the course and characteristics of my invalidism. It runs parallel with my being, and I have no doubt had its root in ante-natal causes. My nerves have ever been very weak, tending to development of derangement in every part of the system. My spinal marrow is very sensitive, and this originates and perpetrates suffering in all the viscera. My brain has from my childhood been disproportionate in calibre and activity, thus keeping my muscular capability at a low standard. I have been a student from my earliest recollections, and perpetually made heavy drafts on my nervous system by close, mental application. I must be mounting and digging and exploring in the realm of thought, books or no books. Nature is so full of lessons, and the Bible so full of parables taken from nature, that I cannot arrest mental activity if I would. This drains my vital force so that I have none left for other forms of labor. My mother not only fostered my hunger for knowledge, but imbued my embryonic life with her intense longings to interpret the mind of God in nature and revelation. Nine days' schooling in her childhood was the sum of her scholasticism. She was especially anxious to be able to write, and dyed the warp and woof of my being with this predominant desire, so that figuratively speaking, I was born with a pen in my hand, and my life must necessarily be given to this inborn impulsion. Writing is as natural to me as breathing. My brain-generations must come to birth in this form.

My hereditary nervous tension consumes all the oil of life, and keeps me an invalid and a sufferer. My pains extend from scalp to toe, and are often agonizing. But thought goes on. In my dreams I fellowship prophets and apostles and philosophers of former centuries, and hear utterances of highest wisdom, which I would fain recall in my waking hours for the inspiration of others.

I have been partially voiceless for seventeen years. I have used slate and pencil most of that time. Occasionally I can whisper, or talk in a strained undertone, but the effort is so painful that I must soon desist. I am much of my time in utter isolation, preparing my own food, and eating it in the solitude of Cherih, my better three-fourths being meanwhile in light service abroad for our mutual benefit.

I have a small annuity which partly covers the wants of my suffering condition, and what I need more the Lord never fails to supply. I never accept charity in the common sense of that term. The life of Christ teaches me the utility and philosophy of fasting. There are many ways to fast. I have ampler fare and raiment than John the Baptist, and greater conveniences than the Son of God in His earth life. When I yearn for more, the Cross makes me rich by contemplation of the infeshed Jehovah, and the antepast of the great consummation. If those who are nourished and strengthened by my penmanship, will supply me with the means to continue my voiceless apostleship, and an occasional tid bit of phosphate as fuel to keep my mental fire aflame, I am content.

Suffering is bitter but salutary. Pain is a blessing beyond our power to compute. Christ Himself was "made perfect through suffering." "He learned obedience by the things which He suffered." This is a truth which may well hush all murmurings. There is a height and depth in it beyond our scale and plummet. But it brings us this consolation, that Christ's humanity was like our own, and his discipline by it, and attainment in it, are our ideal and inspiration. The end pays, and overpays a millionfold, for all the agony of the preparatory state. "Out of great tribulation" they come up in white flowing robes into the beatific perfection. With God, pain spells love. Let us spell it so, too, and then it will terminate in rapture which will never be broken.

May great grace be upon "the Israel of God."

ANY system of religion which does not break the power of sin, is a lie. If it does not expel selfishness and lust, and if it does not beget love to God and man, joy, peace, and all the fruits of the spirit, it is false and worthless.

For the Brethren at Work.

GOSPEL VS. MINUTES.

BY D. P. SAYLOR.

THESE are some among us who are clamoring, "Give us the Gospel, and not the Minutes for our rule of faith and practice in all things." Beware of them; they generally are ignorant of the Gospel, and know but little whereof they clamor. Who has ever thought of being governed by the Minutes of Annual Meeting in the work of salvation? Repentance, faith, and baptism for remission of sins, are so clearly defined in the Scriptures as the first principles in the doctrine of Christ, that none but an infidel doubts. Neither has Annual Meeting ever been asked for counsel in reference to it. It is on church government only that A. M. is asked for counsel, and for this she never volunteers her counsel; neither does she send committees not asked for. Churches who preach the Gospel and observe the rule and order of the general Brotherhood, don't send queries to, nor ask committees from A. M. It is from churches in which there are men "speaking lies in hypocrisy" that the trouble comes. These preachers cause confusion and trouble in the churches by preaching and advocating departures from the simple and time-honored rule and order of the church held and observed since her organization in America. And when the church in General Council decides to maintain the rule and order of the ancient church, these disturbers of her peace clamor, "Tradition! Tradition!!"

I said these generally were ignorant of the Gospel. An instance or two will prove the fact. It has ever been the order of the church to receive members into her fellowship through her private councils. Recently these "Gospelers" conveyed the thought that this order was tradition, and by the Gospel it should be done in the public meeting, asking all present (saint and sinner) whether they had any objections to those before them to be baptized; claiming for authority the words of Peter in Acts 10:47. And one of these advocates actually publicly declared in A. M. that he had acted the hypocrite for twenty five years by complying with the order of the church, against this plain Scripture example. But when the Brethren showed that in the assembly referred to none but Brethren, and those who had received the Holy Ghost, were present, their ignorance of the Scriptures was manifest. But to cover their defeat they said: "We have other Scriptures to sustain us in our views. Jesus said, 'In secret have I done nothing.'" Too ignorant of the Scriptures to know that he had done all his praying in secret and the presence of his disciples only. This in secret was the hobby urged as authority for a public church meeting in the Berlin church recently. But when the Brethren brought it to the reading text it read: "In secret have I said nothing," the champion advocate had to acknowledge, "I stand corrected." These clamor, "Give us the Gospel," when in reality it is a sealed book to them.

When in Ohio recently, I was accosted by two of these and charged with being a "Yearly Meeting man." I said: "And what are you?" "We are Gospel men." "Well, upon what part of the Gospel did you hold your schismatic meeting on the 24th of August?" "On the whole Gospel," was the reply. "On what part of the Gospel, then, did you pass your secession resolutions?" "On the whole Gospel," was the silly reply. "These," Peter says, "are unlearned and unstable, wrest as they do also the other Scriptures, unto their own destruction." 2 Pet. 3:16. "For they, being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." Rom. 10:3. Thus from the beginning to the close of the Gospel dispensation are the Scriptures in constant fulfillment.

For the Brethren at Work.

CONVERTED TO WHAT?

BY J. S. FLEURY.

YES, that is the question, and who shall decide it? Decide it for yourself and marvel not if others see fit to decide it also. You decide it from the convictions of your conscience; others from a manifestation of the spirit within you, as made apparent by the fruits. In both cases the truth must be the governing principle or criterion by which righteous judgment is rendered.

Conversion is the result of believing something we have heard and accepted unto obedience thereto in carrying it out in our lives. Let's see; a man comes along and preaches in part the truth as it is in Jesus, and a part he leaves unpreached; you believe the part he preaches and to that you become converted and that you do or maintain; but to the other you were never converted, then you see the great trouble is in not having been converted to the whole truth. Have you not often heard it said, "this or that is not essential to salvation," or "you need not be so precise in your Christian duty in this or that respect," or "the cross of Christ is not what some would make you believe it is," or "that the non-conforming principles of the Gospel do not apply to our every-day life—it does not refer to the 'outer man,' but only to the spiritual life." "You believe such a wresting of the Scriptures because it is congenial to human nature; and so converted so the creature will set?" Oh! vain man or vain woman, knowest thou not that it is the principle within that is the controlling element in your whole lives? As the inner life is converted, so the outer will conform. This is a law unalterable, for it is so ordained of God. How in the name of common sense and in the name of all that is true, can a person be truly converted to the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and then not "do the truth?" It is the principle that underlies the truth that springs up within the heart of a truly converted man or woman and impels them gladly to take up the cross and to see the consistency of non-conformity to the world, and will fashion their lives in accordance with the recognized principles of the church; they being the principles of the Gospel.

If from a sense of principle we see the propriety of order in the church, what a lovely thing it is to be in order! If you have been converted to the self-denying, self-abasing, world-hating, flesh-despising principles of the Gospel, it follows as true as like begets like, that you will be as obedient as a child, oppose nothing that is in harmony with the principles of the Gospel, but in love will use your influence to maintain order, love, and a oneness in the church fraternity. When all are converted to the same rule of divine truth, then all will be of the same mind. There being an expression of the mind of Christ in the order and government of the church and all are converted to that, it is evident there will be unity, sameness, and consistency throughout; just what the church demands, and what every child of God earnestly desires and will labor for.

For the Brethren at Work.

TAKE WARNING.

BY CYRUS BUCHER.

AS all temptations and devices to lead the soul from the narrow path of duty have a start, and sometimes localities are cursed with an evil before others are aware of it, it is therefore good policy on the part of the Brethren to try to beat the enemy before he is inside the portals of the church. I will, therefore, living in a locality as I do, cursed with life insurance, warn the Brethren who are yet free from it, to leave it to world where it belongs.

It was started here as the U. S. Aid Society by the United Brethren about ten years ago. And it has grown to such dimensions that we have fifteen or twenty insurance companies in our town of about 9,000 inhabitants; not only life, but marriage and birth insurance companies. As my letter would get too long to state some of the plans taken to make money, I will only state that one man, Jos. Raher, was insured by rather poor people, and as he lived too long that they could not raise the money to hold their policies, they laid a conspiracy and killed him. They were found out, and five men were hung here in Lebanon. Yet the thing afterwards started afresh, and people near the grave are insured. False returns are made as to their health, and they are styled as "Graveyard Insurance Coe." But this is not all the evil done. People are taken in by the agents, and after they pay up their policies awhile and their "man" does not die, they forfeit their policies, and the little money they had had is gone to the company, of course.

Our schools have to be filled mostly with female teachers. Our male teachers have left for the insurance business; for, he it knows, they make money; that is, the companies do. They live in the best houses, eat of the best of the market affords, support gold-headed canes, etc.

The law is either not enforced or there is as yet none in existence to stop the evil. I hear that in our neighbor-

State, Maryland, they are working against the evil; for it has already gone over the State line and seems to sweep the country like the late fire, making the poor still poorer, and the idlers and drones rich.

We had only a few cases to deal with in the church, for we worked against it from the beginning, and as the Brethren at present see the evil effects they take warning by the failures of others. I would therefore say to those localities and churches where the thing is new, avoid it from the beginning, and save trouble to yourselves and the church. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Baltimore, Pa.

For the Brethren at Work.

WORLDLY LOVE.

BY PRISCILLA E. GARBEL.

"Set your affections on things above, not on the earth."—Col. 3: 2.

IN our journey through life we have many conflicts, hence we should set our affections on things above. Worldly love opposes us perseveringly, in our religious experience, in our self-denying duties, and in our sufferings. In searching the Scriptures, we find that God's enemies are those who mind earthly things, (we do not wish to join them) that the love of the world is hatred to God. "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world." "If any man love the world, the Love of the Father is not in him." 1 John 2: 15.

We are naturally so strongly wedded to earthly objects, that to us the separation is almost impossible. Though we are convinced that the things of the earth are unsatisfying, yet we pursue them eagerly. Instead of seeking for the pearl of great price, we seek for worldly riches and worldly honor. While we are enjoying all the necessary comforts of life, why do we labor so hard in storing away earthly treasures for the future? For many years we may toil and labor in order to gain a little of this world's goods; but how soon they may be destroyed! We see no pleasure in this. All the joys and pleasures this world can afford are of short duration. Whatever engagements we may make, for work or pleasure, they are all liable to be canceled at any moment by the Commander.

If we take this life for what it is worth, and if we use all its opportunities in preparing for another and better life, when the end comes we can welcome it with joy. How important it is that we should be making plans for the future; for the fact is, life is rapidly passing away. Man cometh forth as a flower, and is cut down. Many who started with us on the journey have long since fallen, and many are falling every day, and we, like they, are liable to pass away any moment.

The Divine Word, from the first to the last page, would teach us not to extend our greatest efforts, or fix our fondest expectations upon worldly possessions that so soon glide from our grasp and fade away. Seek not the riches of this world, for they bring sorrow, trouble, and often destruction; but ever seek the riches of Christ—riches that are full of joy and peace.

Mt. Sidney, Va.

For the Brethren at Work.

WITHOUT SHEDDING OF BLOOD IS NO REMISSION.—Hcb. 9: 22

BY J. H. KILLER.

MOSES informs us it is the blood that maketh atonement for the soul. God has so arranged it, and nicely too, that from the creation of the world, nothing short of bloody sacrifice would reconcile man to God.

After the transgression by our ancestors, they hid themselves because of shame. They saw their sinful condition, and sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons. These would not fully answer the purpose, for they would soon wear out; so the Lord God made coats of skins and clothed them. This could only be done by the shedding of blood.

Next in order, two of Adam's sons offered sacrifices unto the Lord. Cain brought of the fruit of the earth, Abel of the firstlings of the flock. The Lord had respect for Abel's offering, but not for Cain's. Why? Because Cain's offering had no blood in it. "Without shedding of blood is no remission."

After the deluge, Noah builded an altar unto the Lord, and took of every clean beast and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt offerings on the altar. It is said, "The Lord smelled a sweet savor," and that offering was accepted because there was blood shed.

About the first miracle that Moses performed was that of turning water to blood, which meant death. Ex. 7: 20.

The first miracle our Savior performed was turning water to wine, which meant life. John 2: 9.

All the blood shed under the law was typical of the blood that was shed by the Savior for our sins, and that will save us, if we make the proper application. It was the blood on the sides posts and ladders that saved the children of Israel from the destroyer. Ex. 12: 22: 23. That would not suit our Christian women now. They would like to wash and cleanse their houses from such a stain; but the Lord had spoken it, and in that Word was power. Wherever the blood was not found, the first-born was found dead.

The blood, when properly applied, will strengthen us so we can perform the ordinances of God more fully.

Moses was to take blood and put it on the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and on the thumb of the right hand, and upon the great toe of the right foot. All these are typical of our present salvation.

The Savior, in addressing the people would frequently remark, "He that hath ears to hear let him hear." Matt. 11: 15. If we apply the blood to our ears, we will hear the Savior in all things and do them. "He that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, is likened unto a wise man." Apply the blood the Savior shed for all mankind, and we will hear the Gospel all alike, and practice all the same way.

Brethren, a little blood upon our right thumb would greatly assist us in writing for our periodicals. If the blood of Christ were ever upon our right thumb, the pen would never be made to say: "Burn the Minutes; away with your Old O. derivatives." And worse than all, a brother once said, "Every time the Brethren meet in Annual Council to do business I can hear the Golden Calf howl." Oh what folly.

It is also very necessary to have some of the precious blood of Christ upon our great toe. The Gospel is a lamp to our feet and a light to our pathway. And more, we should have our feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace.

The Savior, after his resurrection, spake to his disciples and said, "Behold my hands and my feet." The rugged spikes were driven through them, and blood oozed out, and with an eye of faith we can see them; and that will keep us walking with God, as Enoch did. If we walk in the light as he is in the light we have fellowship one with another; and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin.

For the Brethren at Work.

ETERNAL LIFE.

BY S. G. MILLER.

THE human family loves life. Men often spend great sums of money for the preservation of their lives. De Leon crossed the mighty deep in search of a fabled fountain in which one might bathe and be restored to youth again. Had he discovered the supposed fountain, how many millions from all parts of the earth, would have come to bathe in its waters.

Would such have been the case, the thousands of vessels that are now sailing the sea could not have accommodated them. All the railroads now in existence would not have been sufficient unless they would not have believed the report. But De Leon was compelled to return an old man still, having found no trace of the coveted fountain.

There is a fountain opened in the house of David that can wash the disease of sin and all uncleanness away. That fountain was foretold by the holy prophets. It was hoped for for many generations. That fountain was opened when Jesus was led as a lamb dumb to the slaughter; He was crucified to take away the sins of the world, and filled that fountain with his own precious blood.

If we allow ourselves to be plunged in that fountain it will give us life indeed. Not restore to youth again as we experience youth in this world to go over the trials and vexations of life again. It gives eternal life beyond this "vale of tears," not where all is vanity and vexation of spirit.

True life is sweet in this world, especially when we are surrounded with friends and those we love; but how many disappointments meet us at every turn of life. How often are our friends taken from us! How often must parents bid adieu to their children, children their parents, brothers, sisters, and sisters, brothers! How often we must go to the house of mourning and see a loved child of some parents, or some husband or wife, father or mother, son or daughter, brother or sister, taken away by the pale messenger of death, and their bodies conveyed to their last resting place.

Thus we are made to experience suffering and sorrow all around us, so that but for the hope of the Christian, who would want to live? Yes, who would want to dare to die? But those who have been bathed in that fountain filled with blood can look forward to a time when friends shall meet again, when we shall see death no more, neither sorrow nor crying, for God shall wipe away all tears from our eyes. There will be no need of doctors there, using all the skill they can command by years of hard study, to administer medicines, trying to keep soul and body together. There will be no need to travel hundreds of miles to find a climate, if possible, to restore health.

There will be the Tree of Life, the fruit of which gives life, and the leaves are for the healing of the nations. There is the River of Life, whose water when we drink we shall thirst no more. Why will men refuse to come to the Fountain of Life and live forever? It is not far off. We do not have to go up to Jerusalem, take a pilgrimage to Mecca, nor cross the wide ocean in search of it.

We must "seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness;" forsake unrighteousness and bathe our souls in the "blood of Christ," which "cleanseth us from all sins."

"Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his," for he has eternal life in the glorious haven of rest.

CONSCIENCE.

THE testimony of a good conscience will make the comforts of heaven descend upon man's weary head like a refreshing dew or shower upon a parched land. It will give him lively earnestness, and secret anticipations of approaching joy; it will bid his soul go out of the body undauntedly and lift up his head with confidence before saints and angels. The comfort which it conveys is greater than the capacities of mortality can appreciate, weighty and unspeakable, and not to be understood till it is felt.—Sel.

There never did, and never will exist anything permanently noble and excellent in a character which was a stranger to the exercise of resolute self-denial.

For the Brethren at Work.

OUR FEELINGS.

BY FLORA E. THAOUER.

"I BELIEVE it is just as a person feels about it, whether baptism is necessary or not," was the remark made by a very dear friend of mine, a short time since, after I had pointed out to her the hallowed spot of my baptism. Our situation at the time prevented our entering into a discussion; but I shall take this plan of answering her and others who allow their feelings to be their guide.

I presume that there are no readers of the B. AT W., but those who believe in the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures. If so, then they should also believe in its commands. Every person who accepts of the gospel, will also accept of the fact, that no one arrived at the years of understanding, can come to Christ without repentance.

We are all ready and willing to believe that; but when we read a little further, we are told we must be baptized. Now comes the difficult point in which we want to let our feelings be our guide. If one part of the command is essential to our soul's salvation, why in the name of reason is not the other when it is given by Christ and his apostles? Do we suppose they would command us as some parents often do—an unreasonable command which they do not expect to have obeyed. The Scriptures were not given in that way.

"Repent and be baptized every one of you for the remission of your sins," Acts. 2:38, means just what it says, no more, no less. For instance, to illustrate more forcibly our argument, we will suppose a case.

A father, upon leaving home for the day, says to his son, "Willie, about nine o'clock you must water the horses, and then lead them to pasture." Now as it is rather warm, and some of Willie's playmates have called for a little game, he concludes he will use his own feelings in the case, and not attend to any of it until his playmates leave. About eleven o'clock he is free, and he then proceeds to his work with rather a guilty feeling, and waters the four animals which he has left suffer so long. This has taken him quite a while and dinner is ready, so Willie again concludes that he would use his own feelings in regard to the latter part of his command, and eat his dinner first. By and by he is ready and on the way to do his bidding, probably having been strongly urged to do so by his loving mother who acts as a mediator for him, as some dear friends often do for us when they urge us to come to Christ; when, whom should he see but his own father who has unexpectedly arrived home at an earlier hour, and he meets him with about the same feeling as those of us will have when we meet our heavenly Father, with his commands equally as we obeyed. How many of you would not punish a child for such a disobedient act, and how many of you dare to, when you are disobeying your Father equally as bad? Our feelings lead us to imagine that baptism is a most disagreeable rite to be performed, particularly so in Winter. Some of you have had those ideas instilled in your minds in the home circle by your dearest earthly friends, who will be called to render an account for thus tampering with God's laws. Go into the coldest and most chilling waters, my dear friends, with faith and love to your Maker strong enough to keep you from being chilled, and you will arise to walk in newness of life with a similar feeling to that of Jesus when he came up out of the waters to hear the blessed words, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." If we few, indeed I know of none, have suffered physically by being baptized, and how many have and are suffering mentally by not. But few persons can feel their conscience clear who say they do not believe in baptism, and who have not had this rite attended to, when a minister introduces it into his sermon, or when they witness the performance of baptism. If it is not essential it will do us no harm, but if it is, and we have not attended to it, what will we offer to our Maker when he calls us at judgment? Will we say, "we did not feel it necessary to obey that part of your command, we thought repentance and faith alone sufficient?" How does that sound? We who have attended to it at least stand one chance more to gain the heavenly kingdom—a place of rest, which no exertion will be too arduous to perform—than those who have not.

In conclusion, my dear friends, let me warn, and beg of you, not to treat your feelings alone. Study God's Word, obey his commandments, they are easy for those who are willing to act obediently, and risk naught that will deprave you from God's presence.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER I.

ON the continent at last! It is an agreeable, yet painful sense of novelty, to stand, for the first time, in the midst of a people whose manners and language are different from your own. As our steamer swept up to its pier in Antwerp, the first that struck us unpleasantly was the degrading employment of women. There were some fifteen or twenty of them, barefoot, with a petticoat and chemise, the sleeves rolled above the elbow, a handkerchief tied over the head, with heavy brooms, sweeping the wharfe. After landing, and on our way to the hotel, we saw a woman and a boy drawing a cart filled with vegetables. Speaking of it afterwards, one of the party said they saw a woman and a donkey drawing a cart together, whereupon another facetiously remarked that we need not come to Europe to see that, for they had often seen a woman yoked to a donkey in America. These novel sights struck us rather unpleasantly at first, but we soon became accustomed to them, and gave ourselves up to sight-seeing. We found the city situated on the right bank of the river Scheldt, forty-five miles from its mouth. It is an old city, with its quaint old houses, six or seven stories high, tapering up to a point, with the tracery which characterized the buildings erected in Flanders by the Spaniards. The women in this part of the city are seen invariably knitting, and always without any covering upon the head other than their luxuriant hair. Servant girls here, as well as in Scotland and England, when in-doors, wear dainty little caps on their heads as a badge of their calling. We also saw in this part of the city, women and children with esbats, or wooden shoes, making a great clattering on the pavement when walking or running. In the new part of the city are fine boulevards, squares and promenades, and here the French language is spoken, while in the old part is spoken the Flemish dialect. After lunch we went to the Cathedral, where are some of the finest and best of Rubens' works. The "Descent from the Cross," which is considered the best, presents Joseph and Nicodemus removing the body of Christ from the cross, while the three Marys are near, assisting with all the care and tenderness imaginable, for fear the dead Saviour might still have the power to feel. The suffering Mary, kneeling and looking up at her Redeemer with tears of love and sorrow, is one of the most magnificent conceptions of female loveliness, and the figure of Christ is one of the finest figures that could be invented, the attitude being one of the most difficult to execute. The hanging of the head on his shoulder, and the falling of the body on one side, gave it such an appearance of death, or rather the heaviness of death, that nothing could exceed it. The "Elevation of the Cross" is fine, but does not strike the beholder with that feeling of awe as does the Descent. The "Crucifixion" is fine also, but none had the power to draw us, as the Descent. We lingered until the doors were about closed, and giving it one last lingering look departed.

Our next visit was to the Museum, where are found some of the choicest works of Vandyke, Teniers and others. The master-piece of Vandyke, in this collection, is the "Crucifixion," and the artist chose the time when the executioner is plunging his spear into the Saviour's side; at the same time, one of the soldiers is breaking the legs of one of the malefactors. In his writings, he has torn one of his feet from the cross, and the expression of his face is terrible to behold. The attitude of the other, as he looks upon the dying Saviour, is full of repentance, though in the agonies of death.

The churches and museums are filled with paintings of the old Flemish school, and almost all of them are from scenes of the crucifixion, death and resurrection of Christ.

How little we know of what is going on in the minds of others. Often when we have given up the hope of their conversion in despair, and look upon them as hopeless cases, the Lord has still gracious purposes respecting them, and in his own way brings them to himself.

We should carry up our affections to the mansions prepared for us above, where eternity is the measure, felicity the state, angels the company, the Lamb the light, and God the inheritance and portion of his people forever.

WEAR your watch in a private pocket, and don't endeavor to show it unless asked what time it is.

To teach early is to engrave on marble; to teach late is to write on sand.

Home and Family.

MARY O NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN. EDITRESS

LOVE.

MANY waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it. If a man would give all the substance of his house for love, it would utterly be contemned. (Sol. 8: 7). We have often dwelt upon this grand subject in time past. However, we do not get weary in talking and meditating upon the one grand cause that brought our loving Savior to earth to die, even the death of the cross, for a wicked and disobedient generation.

Oh! may every soul that has the right use of its reasoning powers consider that weighty saying of our Lord, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." How imperishable is this love! many waters cannot quench it, neither can the floods drown it.

Dear Christian brethren and sisters. It is this love that will entice us to do the will of our heavenly Father. For, says Jesus, "If ye love me keep my commandments."

When we have the love of God our Savior shed abroad in our hearts, it cannot help but kindle a fire of grateful affection towards God and towards one another. The exercise of love is of great importance in true religion; so much so that Paul pronounced man to be accused where destitute of it (1 Cor. 13: 22) How deep the Savior wanted to impress upon the minds of his followers the great importance of love to Him, when he thrice repeated to his servant Peter the pathetic question, "Lovest thou me?" Who can answer with Peter, from the heart, "Thou that knowest all things, knowest that I love thee." It cannot be improper for each one to ask himself the question, "Do I really love Jesus?" Dear reader, send this question home to your heart; for if you do love Jesus, you will accept him as your teacher, obey him in all things that he hath required at your hands; and thus your happiness will consist in being like Jesus.

There is nothing that will cement friendship so much as similarity of disposition; hence to enjoy communion with our Redeemer, we must be like him, and thus we become like Jesus, the more we can say "Father, not my will, but thy will be done; hence the will of God seems pleasant to us. The yoke which others account heavy, is light to us, and we think none of his commandments grievous ones.

Oh, how little practical religion we see among nominal Christians and unstable professors. There is a notorious want of mutual affection, they do not possess that love which should characterize them as followers of Christ. But, says one, you have no right to judge. Ah! it is written, "By their fruits ye shall know them;" such adorn their mortal bodies with all the ungodly fashions and superfluities of the day, and go to church and sit like others who diligently listen to the Word; but they do not listen, their thoughts are otherwise employed. Their eyes are surveying the congregation, observing who they are, and how they are dressed. Hence they go to church to see and be seen, and to take so much notice of the apparel of their neighbors, as peculiarly if it be new or peculiar, that it becomes a fruitful topic of discourse at home or in company. Oh! it may be said, and well said too, "this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing." It is truly affecting to think how entirely the most precious truths of God are lost upon such people. Such persons are willfully ignorant, they shut their ears against the whole truth, they have just a part of the Gospel, and that is all they want. Should they take the whole Gospel, it would demand that they abandon the fashions of the day, and thus come down on a level with the people of God. But no! it will not do to accept the whole gospel; for if we do, we will be compelled to dissolve partnership with the world in all its pleasures, pomp and display; hence we will be cast out by the world, and thus be disowned.

It can be seen at a glance that these who will not receive, neither listen, or hearken to the whole Gospel, do not want to turn their backs upon the world and give it up, thus they want to carry religion in one hand and the ungodly fashions and worldly pleasures in the other. Certainly such are trying to do what the apostle has said is impossible—to serve two masters—God and mammon.

We sometimes think that even the sins of Sodom are committed in this country; yea, it may be said of people who call themselves Christians, who even get insulted if others do not call them the same, "that Sodom hath not done as thou hast done;" for greater are their privileges than Sodom ever possessed, and thy sins are more aggravating than theirs. Thus you may fear a just punishment; for God is now, and always was, the hater of sin, and though a punishment like Sodom's may not be inflicted upon you in this world, yet He, who is to be our Judge, hath said, and he says it to us as much as to the Jews, "It shall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment" than for those who will not hear the whole Gospel and with a proud heart reject its evidence and neglect its salvation.

Fair reader, you are possibly deceiving yourself if you persist in sin and still claim to know Christ; for the apostle John tells us, that he who saith, "I know Him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him." 1 John 2: 4 On the contrary, he who truly knows God, will love, serve and obey him, thus the love of God will prompt you to act by the power of his spirit which is given unto us.

Oh! for a heart in thought renewed,
And filled with love divine,
Perfect and right and pure and good,
A copy, Lord, of thine.

M. C. N.

THERE is no use of regretting the past except so far as to profit by its experience in the future; while half the evils a gloomy-minded person is always predicting, never happen.

NOT to know where to find an article is as bad as not have it.

REAL HOMES

WILL it not be well for parents to reconsider thoughtfully the question of home-making? Do your children love their home? Do they prize it? Is it the "dearest spot on earth," or a mere boarding house? If there is a fault whose is it? If a lack, who is to blame?

Home-making, be it remembered, is a work in which all have a part. Fathers may not shirk their duty by saying that it is "woman's business." Neither can it be done without forethought, direction, and effort. Oftentimes it involves the sacrifice of selfish comforts and pleasures. The happy tumult of the youngsters' play may disturb your after-dinner dose. A "children's hour" in the early evening, given up to games and entertainments, in which you are their companions and leaders, may not be so agreeable as to spend the time at play, the club, or in neighborhood gossip. But you are under bonds, morally, to give yourselves to your family as the need requires. If you do no more than to "raise" your children, you have before God, no right to have any.

Makes your house a real home—cheerful, bright, beautiful in spirit, happy in all its expressions,—and you will be a good deal better fitted to begin enjoying heaven at once, when you get there.—Golden Rule.

KEEPING THE PEACE BY FIRE.

HERE is a domestic story with a moral, which is told by Curtis Andrews, an octogenarian living in Carolina county, Maryland. His wife is nearly the same age, and they had lived together for sixty years. Their life has been plain and laborious, but their faces wear a look of smiling content that draws kindly feeling toward them. When asked the secret of his happiness, Andrews replied: "Well, sir, I have always noticed that there is more trouble between man and wife ever making the fire in the morning than anything else. If they can get along smoothly about that, everything else is smooth. My wife and I went to house-keeping together in our log-cabin fifty eight years ago. We've only got one fire-place, and that's a big one. When we moved in I said to her, 'Sally, I'll make the fire and I'll tend to it.' I made that fire, and it has been burning ever since. For fifty eight years I've covered that fire before going to bed, and I've fixed it up in the morning. I've never had any matches in the house, and there are never any sulphur smells in the household.

While that fire burns, sir, there is peace in Curtis Andrews' home."

BORROWING TROUBLE.

BORROWING money is a bad habit; but borrowing trouble is no better. Some people are always borrowing trouble, and in this way making not only themselves but every one around them uncomfortable. They have contracted the habit of taking a discouraging look at everything. What time they do not spend in lamenting over the unalterable past they devote to the prognostication of evils to come.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

OCTOBER 4, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE, } Corresponding Editors.
S. J. HARRISON, }

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Ernest Ely,	A. W. Ross,	D. E. Brubaker,
James Evans,	S. S. Nichols,	J. J. Boerger,
Abel Vaniman,	Mattie A. Lear,	J. W. Southwell.

TeX ERRORS will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not indulge in personalities and inconsonant language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Three reading club names and $12.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send us the balance.

Money sent by Post-Office Order, Registered Letter and Bank property addressed, will be at our risk.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.ERRETT'S DEFENSE OF ALEX-ANDER CAMPBELL.

ELSEWHERE in this issue we give Mr. Errett's reply to our criticism of Alexander Campbell's position on trine immersion, notwithstanding Mr. Errett had no hope that we would do so. This shows how easily it is for Mr. Errett to lose his hope. Mr. Errett complains because we did not publish his article of June 25th. Before he lodges his good-natured perambulation against us he should scan the horizon and firmament of his actions and see that no cobwebs of injustice are hanging thereon. What did he do with our article of May 14th? Did he publish it? Or did he give only such portions of it to his readers as suited his purpose? Was that garbling? We are not complaining because in his wisdom he did not publish every line of it; but we only wish to remind him that there are glass sides to his house, and he should be careful about throwing stones. We want our readers to see his best efforts in behalf of Mr. Campbell, so we cheerfully give space to his reply.

Our first attempt shall be to show how highly Mr. Campbell esteemed history, hence we quote from his seventeenth address:

"History is a very authoritative commentator on language, as well as on men and manners. It sometimes enters into the philosophy and philology of language, and decides the proper interpretation of words, by showing, in matter of fact details, how these words were understood in days of yore. The historians tell us what the ancients did under the same baptism. They record certain acts and then call them by the word. They are, then, strongly proof, to the great mass of society, than dictionaries, grammars, classics, translators, or anything in the form of mere language. History is the favorite, the growing favorite in all departments of philosophy."

Mr. Campbell admired history. He says "the historians tell us what the ancients did under the name baptism." On this subject history is an "authoritative commentator." Not only an "authoritative commentator," but "a very authoritative commentator." This is strong. It is as true as it is strong. We accept it most cheerfully because of its truth and strength. Here is a rich cluster of trine-immersion grapes plucked from Mr. Campbell's vineyard; and we transfer the cluster, leaves and all, to Mr. Errett, with the hope that by the using thereof his eyes may be opened. Mr. Campbell found the vine bearing this precious fruit in trine immersion lands. It was highly esteemed by the great reformer. Here is the cluster. In his eleventh address as recorded on page 174 of his debate we read:

"A triple immersion was first used and continued for a long time; this was to signify either the three days that our Saviour lay in the grave, or the three persons in the Trinity. But it was afterwards laid aside, because the Arians used it; it was thought proper to plunge but once."

This is a part of the rich cluster—the historical evidence used by Mr. Campbell to refute sprinkling and pouring. You now see who first "lugged" in trine immersion. This testimony the readers will observe is found in Mr. Campbell's eleventh address on page 174. On page 177 Mr. Rice in his eleventh address, being on the negative, said:

"Will the gentlemen, then agree to practice the trine immersion of Tertullian, with the accompanying ceremonies? No—he must out of two immersions, he sign of the cross, and divers other things thus practiced * * * He cuts it down, till it suits him. Very well let me have the same privilege. Let us cut off a little more; and it will suit me, and in doing so, I will only set upon the principle which he adopts—I follow his example."

Mr. Campbell had quoted from history in support of triple or trine immersion, and Mr. Rice answers, that according to Mr. Campbell's principle of cutting off two immersions he will cut off a little more and adopt sprinkling. There can be no mistaking Mr. Campbell in this. He makes as his own the words, "a triple immersion was first used" but "afterwards laid aside because the Arians used it." Wonderful reason! Will Mr. Errett lay aside prayer because the heathen pray? Why not? for in so doing he would "act upon the principle which he adopts."

The fact is Mr. Campbell found himself in a dilemma when Mr. Rice pressed him closely concerning plain testimony in favor of trine immersion, and to parry the blow he exclaimed, "What have we to do with such eccentricities?" He would not deny that trine immersion was the primitive practice; neither would he admit it, for his prejudices kept him from it. The same subject came up in his seventeenth address, and he attempted to turn the force of the testimony aside by saying; "Tertullian denies that three immersions (not one immersion) had an ancient origin." Truth might have been observed if Mr. Campbell had given book and page concerning this Tertullian denial. Perhaps Mr. Errett will give it. We shall see.

As further proof that Mr. Campbell believed in trine immersion, and believing it, would likely express what is set down to him concerning "all the historians," we bring out a few of the witnesses he uses in his "Christian Baptism." The first person we introduce from Mr. Campbell's company of witnesses is,

Basil A. D. 360. "By three immersions, the great mystery of baptism is accomplished."

Basil was a good witness for Mr. Campbell against sprinkling and pouring. We now introduce another witness quoted and used by Mr. Campbell, Ambrose, A. D. 374:

"Thou wast asked, Dost thou believe in God the Father Almighty? Thou saidst, 'I do believe,' and wast dipped, that is buried. Thou wast asked again, Dost thou believe on our Lord Jesus Christ and his crucifixion? Thou saidst, 'I believe,' and wast dipped again, and so wast buried with Christ. Thou wast interrogated the third time, Dost thou believe in the Holy Spirit? Thou answeredst, 'I believe,' and wast dipped a third time."

Still another witness from Mr. Campbell's list, Mr. Reeves:

"The ancients carefully observed trine immersion, in so much, that by the Canons Apostolical, either Bishop or Presbyter who baptised without it, was deposed from the ministry."

Mr. Reeve's testimony is excellent when used against a Presbyterian, but amounts to nothing in the hands of the Brethren! How is this Mr. Errett? But here comes another of Mr. Campbell's witnesses, George Waddington:

"The ceremony of immersion (the oldest form of baptism) was performed in the name of the three persons of the Trinity."

Others might be given, but we deem these sufficient to show that Mr. Campbell still had, in 1852 when his Christian Baptism was published, the idea of trine immersion. Three years after this work was issued, and twelve years after his debate with Mr. Rice, he denied what is found on page 258 of his debate. Was it an afterthought? What must we think of men who thus shift the truth so ruthlessly about? Does it savor of honesty? Is it just? Is it honorable? Can the world be persuaded thus to embrace the truth? Can primitive Christianity in all of its brilliancy find its way into the heart amidst such higgling?

Mr. Campbell did not say that trine immersion is not Christian baptism. He could not find one ancient Greek scholar who wrote on Matt. 28: 19 that says it meant single immersion. These he was willing to quote in favor of immersion when disputing with an advocate of sprinkling and pouring. If they proved immersion they proved trine immersion no less.

It took Mr. Campbell twelve years after his debate with Mr. Rice to ascertain that he did not say that,

"Not only Mosheim, Neander, but all the historians, as well as Professor Stuart, trace trine-immersion to the times of the apostles."

Is it not a fact that he made no public reference to this until the advocates of trine immersion pressed him and his followers? Is it not a fact that he used trine immersion testimony to prove immersion? Is it not a fact that this testimony was regarded as substantial until Mr Rice turned it against him? Is it not a fact that when turned against him he sought to evade its force by saying:

"The gentleness tells you of the trine immersion of Tertullian, and of their baptizing persons, not only once into the name of the Divinity, but also undressed! And what have we to do with these eccentricities? It only makes the argument stronger, for, if they thus submitted to three immersions instead of one, how strong their faith in immersion! The gospel commands one immersion, but, it seems, they got to three."

We have done Mr. Campbell no injustice! He made his own record, and we have presented that record. It will not do for Mr. Errett to raise the cry "garbled!" "untruth!" If Mr. Campbell was at war with his practice, that is no fault of God, Christ, the Holy Spirit, the church or the Bible!

Mr. Errett says: "This is not the first time that Mr. Rice has attempted to break the force of Mr. Campbell's historical argument in favor of immersion by thrusting in trine immersion. We have shown that Mr. Campbell thrust it in, in his eleventh address, and that Mr. Rice replied in his next speech. We have gone into the merits of the case and find Mr. Campbell guilty of the truth when he said "all the historians trace trine immersion to the times of the apostles." We have shown that he used trine immersion testimony in his debate. We have shown that he used it nine years after his debate as proof against sprinkling and pouring. We have shown that he believed strongly in history. We have shown that if trine immersion testimony is acceptable evidence against sprinkling, it is equally strong against single immersion. We have shown that he made no public denial of his utterance in question until twelve years after the debate. We have shown that what he said about "all the historians" on page 252 is not "at war" with all he said in his Christian Baptism. Having shown these things, it will appear that Mr. Errett is himself in error and does Mr. Campbell gross "injustice," holding him up, we fear, as an "equivocator." Why did he not bring out this testimony used by Mr. Campbell? Did he "purposely" exclude it? "He that doeth truth cometh to the light."

GITTEAU sets up the plea of insanity. His brother-in-law, Mr. Scoville of Chicago, will be his attorney. It is not yet announced when his trial will begin.

HELL.

Will you please define the word "hell" as found in the Common Version of the New Testament? Has it but one meaning? or two or three? HENRY BRIDGES.
CITY OF IND.

THE Hebrew for hell is sheol, the Greek hades. The Hebrews used it in the sense of the grave. Gen. 37: 35, Pa. 55: 15. Jonah cried out of the belly of hell. Jonah 2: 2. In Pa. 139: 8, the word hell, we think, means the grave. In Matt. 5: 29 we understand it to mean a place of punishment—a place where there will be grief, sorrow, despair, vexation and gnashing of teeth. The same of Matt. 10: 28. In Matt. 16: 18 "gates of hell," or hell's gates, has reference to power of Satan, the word hell having reference to the under-world. Job 38: 17, Isa. 38: 10.

In Acts 2: 31 it means grave. Christ was not left in the grave. The word soul in this verse, is not in the original. In Rev. 20: 13 it means grave also. Death and the grave gave up the dead.

Turning to Luke 16: 23, we read of the rich man lifting up his eye in hell. Here we think it means a place of the dead—the undiscovered country.

From these Scriptures, we understand hell to mean the grave (Acts 2: 31); the under-world (Luke 16: 23); the place of punishment (Matt. 10: 28, 2 Pet. 2: 4). God help every man to escape "the damnation of hell!"

VISIT TO MINNESOTA.

NOTHING unusual transpired on our way to Minnesota. We arrived in Le Sueur county the 14th, and found all the members well. The country had been visited by rains for several weeks previous to our arrival. The roads were in such a condition that it was almost impossible to get about, and the rain continuing to fall, we thought it best to make no attempt to hold meetings, so came South to Fillmore county on the 17th. On Sunday the 18th, we twice tried to point sinners to the Lamb of God. The members of the Root River church have a good meeting-house, and seem to be active in the work of the Lord. Bro. Joseph Ogg is the Elder in charge, and has as helpers Bro. Sadler, Drury and Broadwater.

The Bible-school holds its session every Sunday, and old and young assemble to read and study the Word of the Lord.

On Monday the 19th, Bro. D. M. Miller left for Preston in the same county to hold forth the truth to the people of that town, and the writer was conveyed to Lime Springs, Ia., where he addressed the people in the evening in the M. E. church. While here Bro. John Sadler took us in and lodged us. God will repay him manifold. We hope to hear good news of Bro. Miller's labors in Preston. He will labor there one week, then hold a series of meetings in the Brethren's house near brother Ogg's. The Love-feast will be held Oct. 1st.

Bro. Miller will return the first week in October. He is mighty in the Scriptures, and shuns not to declare all of it. Patch work is none of his. God has enriched him with a sound mind, and a willing heart to labor to persuade souls to accept and obey the truth. To him with pleasure we say, "Take heed to the ministry which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it."—Col. 4: 17. Idle tongues will wag against you, and the more you pull down Satan's stronghold, the more his "angels" will gnash their teeth on you.

On every hand were signs of the people's grief because of the death of the President. Such universal sorrow was never before felt in this land, and it is to be hoped that the lesson may be appropriated by the nation, and that all the people may feel that the Lord is God, and that he will lead the nations in peace that follow his peaceful ways.

Bro. J. W. Stein, one of the editors of the BRETHREN AT WORK, promised to write for that paper from Europe and Asia, but as far very little has been heard from him since he left last Spring. Where is he?—Brethren's Advocate.

BROTHER Stein is not one of the editors of the BRETHREN AT WORK. His name was taken out because he requested us to do so before he left for Europe. In fact he asked nearly one year ago to be excused from writing for the paper on account of his health and the many duties connected with the school. In answer to the question, "Where is he?" we would say, that is just what we would like to know. We fear something has happened to him. Now please do not say we said something has befallen him; for this is only our opinion. God grant that he may yet be alive! His last letter was dated July 1st; since then nothing has been heard of him. Steps have been taken to ascertain his whereabouts, and so soon as we shall receive any news directly or indirectly concerning him, we shall lay it before our readers. We hope he is yet alive and well, but his silence is extremely painful to all of us. Each day we eagerly scan our mail matter hoping to receive something from his hand. We feel the disappointment keenly, and realize that our readers are perhaps no less anxious than we are. We hope our fears of the result of an overworked constitution may prove groundless; but it is certain Bro. Stein has done too much mental labor the past few years. We shall gladly suffer our disappointment in not receiving news from him, if he returns in good health and renewed energy to labor in the Master's vineyard.

THE disturbance in Ireland continues.

From the Christian Standard.

ALEXANDER CAMPBELL AND TRINE-IMMERSION.

IN the Standard of June 17, we gave some statements from M. M. Eshelman, in the BRETHREN AT WORK, charging Alexander Campbell with testifying, in his debate with N. L. Rice, that "not only Mosheim, Neander, but all the historians, as well as Prof. Stuart, trace trine-immersion to the times of the apostles." Supposing Mr. Eshelman to be honest in his statement, we are at pains to give the evidence that he was mistaken.

1 He does not allow his readers to see a single line of what we wrote. Our entire article is carefully excluded. If he has "no desire to place A. Campbell in a false light, or to cast a single stain upon his fair name," why did he not allow his readers to see what was said, an said respectfully, in his defense. "Is that death truth cometh to the light." There is always just ground for suspicion of unfairness and injustice when an editor dare not let his readers see what is said in reply to his charges.

2 Although he has no desire to "cast a single stain upon the fair name" of Alexander Campbell, yet rather than acknowledge himself mistaken, he in effect charges Mr. Campbell with deliberate falsehood! Because Mr. Campbell did not deny a false charge until he learned of it, or correct an error until he learned of its existence, therefore his denial of the charge when brought to his attention authorizes the conclusion that he told a deliberate lie—since the matter to which it referred was some twelve years old. And this against a man whose whole life was characterized by truth and righteousness! This, too, merely for the sake of building an argument on an assertion which Mr. Campbell declares he never made! Had Mr. Campbell been a man of bad reputation for truth and honesty, such a suspicion might be warranted, especially if there were other evidences to prove his assertion; but when a man through a long life, with multitudes of keen-eyed opponents to watch him, has established a cloudless reputation as a truth-loving, God-fearing man, common justice, to say nothing of Christian charity, forbids that he shall be held up as a deliberate liar, or a guilty equivocator in a case which can be readily explained by what is known to be a very common occurrence—a typographical error.

3. The quotation made from N. L. Rice, as proof that Mr. Campbell used the phrase "trine immersion," proves directly the contrary; and Mr. Eshelman has carefully excluded the first sentence of the paragraph, which clearly shows this. Let the reader turn back and read the quotation from Mr. Rice, as Mr. Eshelman gives it, and then read the paragraph in full as given below, especially the first sentence, we have italicized. Mr. Rice said (Debate, p. 266):

Stuart, the gentleman tells us, admits that the Oriental church has practiced immersion from the beginning. It is true, Stuart admits that from an early period the Oriental church practiced trine-immersion, as the Greek church still does; but he does not admit that such was the apostolic practice.

Here it will be seen that Mr. Rice does not quote Mr. Campbell as saying that Prof. Stuart, or any one else, admitted that trine immersion could be traced to the days of the apostles. He quotes Mr. Campbell as seeking to prove from Prof. Stuart that "the Oriental church has practiced immersion from the beginning." It is evident, from Mr. Rice, that Mr. Campbell had said nothing about trine immersion; and Mr. Eshelman is so well aware of this that he purposely excluded Mr. Rice's statement of Mr. Campbell's argument, and deceives his readers by a garbled extract, leaving them to conclude that Mr. Rice is replying to what Mr. Campbell said about trine-immersion, when in fact, he is simply replying to what Mr. Campbell said about immersion.

And Mr. Eshelman does injustice to Mr. Rice as well as to Mr. Campbell. He charges Mr. Campbell with saying that trine-immersion could be traced to the times of the apostles, and then says that Mr. Rice "confirms" this statement. This is not true. What Mr. Rice says is, that Stuart admits "that from an early period the Oriental Church practiced trine-immersion." He does not say "to the times of the apostles." On the contrary, he says that Stuart "does not admit that such was the apostolic practice."

There are two grave offenses against truth on the part of Mr. Eshelman; (1) in garbling Mr. Rice's language in such a way as to exclude his testimony as to what Mr. Campbell had said about immersion without the trine; (2) in misrepresenting Mr. Rice's statement of Stuart's position.

Mr. Eshelman asks with an apparent air of triumph, if Mr. Campbell did not say trine-immersion, why did Mr. Rice say "it is true?" If he had not garbled Mr. Rice's statement, his readers could readily have answered his question without help from us. Mr. Campbell quoted Stuart and others as tracing immersion back to the apostles. Mr. Rice replies, "As far as Stuart's evidence is concerned, it does not help you, for it is trine-immersion that he testifies to, and not the single immersion that you contend for." This, so far from proving that Mr. Campbell had said anything about trine-immersion, looks right the other way, for it is Mr. Rice, and not Mr. Campbell, that lugs at trine-immersion and does it as an offset to what Mr. Campbell had said about immersion simply.

This was not the first time that Mr. Rice had attempted to break the force of Mr. Campbell's historical argument in favor of immersion by thrusting in trine-immersion. On page 254, Mr. Campbell says, in reply to him:

The gentleman tells you of the trine-immersion of Tertullian, and of their baptizing persons, not only once into each of the names of the Divinity, but also undressed; and what have we to do with these ecclesiastical? It only makes the argument stronger, for, if they thus submitted to three immersions, instead of one, how strong their faith in immersion! The Gospel commands one immersion; but, it seems, they got to three.

And page 258—the very page on which it is claimed that Mr. Campbell committed himself in favor of trine immersion—he says:

To resume the argument from history, the gentleman will have Tertullian to be a sort of contemporary with the origin of immersion, Trine-immersion he ought to have said; for trine-immersion and tertullianus, as a favorite word with one or two Greek fathers, were indeed contemporaries; but Tertullian denies that three immersions (not one immersion) had an ancient origin.

Yet in the face of these declarations Mr. Eshelman would have us believe that Mr. Campbell stultified himself by stating, almost in the same breath, that "all the historians traced trine-immersion to the times of the apostles."—a statement untrue in itself, at war with all Mr. Campbell had previously said, and which, when his attention was called to it, he denied having ever made.

The simple fact is, that "trine" in the passage referred to, is a typographical error, which was corrected when discovered, while the first edition was going through the press. The German Baptists are hard up for evidence, when they are driven to rely upon such evidence as this.

We would not devote so much space to this were it not that some of our brethren, who have not the means of correct information, are annoyed by the confident and persistent assertions of trine-immersionists as to what Mr. Campbell said. But we have not the least idea that Mr. Eshelman will allow his readers to see what we say on the question.

SEEKING HONOR ONE OF ANOTHER is ruinous in its tendencies. Some colleges in America secure the title "D. D.," for their instructors by exchange; others give it to a minister who is pastor of a rich congregation in order to secure funds. These things degrade and paralyze. We raise our voice against such corrupt practices. Why should there be "Doct'rs of Divinity?" Divinity needs no doctoring; but the men who assume such titles need healing. Their hearts are badly diseased; and the word and grace of God is need'd to cleanse them.

BRO ADDISON HARPER writes: "I expect to be out at sea in November for twelve months if spared so long. My wife desires to spend a year at least in Virginia. Good feeling in the Church." By this we understand brother Harper intends to spend some time in the Lord's vineyard. God bless him whose praise is among the churches of God!

The following is taken from the Sullivan County Record published at Jeffersonville, New York:

THE BRETHREN AT WORK is the title of a weekly paper published at Mt. Morris, Ill., which reached our desk this week. "Set for the defense of the Gospel" is its motto, and I think it a good work of its kind. Subscription $1.50 per year.

HE who works and waits, wins.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Ladue, Henry Co., Mo.

Will some one please explain 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35? Why are women to keep silence in the church?—Shall they not sing or pray or what all they do? A BROTHER.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations? C. D. H.

Bro. David Moore wants to know whether there is more Scripture for an organ in a family than to dance.

Will some one please give the Scripture where it is said that man has an IMMORTAL soul, or that said man has any immortality before the resurrection?

If man has got immortality, why is he exhorted to seek for it? Rom. 2: 7. A. H. CUSHING.

Please explain the difference between a good man and a righteous man. J. O. Y. SNAVELY.

What are the seven spirits of God? C. D. H.

Please explain Matt 24: 40, 41. It reads, "There shall be two in the field; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, the other left." LYDIA ZACKER.

Will some one explain the last part of the 6th verse of the 5th chapter of John? "But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground," etc. How could he write on the ground, when he was in the temple? A. S. FEE.

QUERY ANSWERED.

Why did Simon want the honor as mentioned in those verses—to gain honor, fame, money, or what? PETER BROWN.

THE verses referred to, read: "And when Simon saw that through laying on of the Apostle's hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered money, saying, 'Give me also this power, that on whosoever I lay hands he may receive the Holy Ghost.'"

The point in the query is, what was the motive that prompted Simon to make this request?

The means through which Simon sought to obtain the power of conferring the Holy Ghost, were very reprehensible; hence the reproof of Peter,—"Thy money perish with thee. * * * For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity."

The motives that prompted Simon to make the request he did, were, doubtless, fame and money.

For we read in the same chapter that he had bewitched the people of Samaria through sorcery, giving out that he was some great one. As long as he was successful in his witchcraft, his fame was great, and, doubtless, he accumulated money in this way. But when the Samaritans had received the Gospel, and saw miracles performed by the apostles and the Holy Ghost imparted, Simon felt that his day had come to an end, his fame was eclipsed by others, and that his source of revenue would fail, and the best he could do was to unite with the believers and by this means he might be able to confer the Holy Ghost on others, he might also have a source of money opened up to him again. These flattering prospects, no doubt, tempted him to offer money, that he might procure the power of conferring the Holy Ghost. J. S. M.

For the Brethren at Work.

CAIN'S WIFE.

IN Sister Mary C. Norman's letter to the B. at W., No. 35, Page 555, she says, "If Cain's wife was not the daughter of Adam, then she must have belonged to another race of which the Bible gives no account.

I am of that opinion that there was another race of people before Adam. (Adam was the first man that there was any law given to.)

1st. From the fact that Cain says, "and it shall come to pass, that every one that fiddeth me, shall slay me." Who was there to slay him? Cain knowing now that he had to leave his father's premises and go to another country, and there knew his wife, who could he have been so apprehensive of, that would slay him: if there were no other race of people existing at that time.

2nd. From the fact, (25th verse)"and Adam knew his wife again; and she bore a son and called his name Seth." "For God," said she, "hath appointed me another seed, instead of Abel, whom Cain slew."

This is the third son born to Adam and Eve. This being the truth according to Bible authority, the question is, if there were no other people besides Adam's family, who were they that he thought would slay him? S. S. GARMAN.

Darlington, Mo.

REMARKS.

In consequence of the narrative of the creation, and transgression, being so very brief, we may be led into error.

We are not sure that Cain immediately went unto the land of Nod after receiving his sentence. Neither are we sure that he took unto him a wife in that country, but he knew her there. Neither is it at all clear that he knew her immediately after getting there. All these events are grouped together in a few words, yet hundreds of years may have elapsed in their fulfillment.

When Adam begot Seth, he was 130 years old. Cain and Abel were begotten previously. Adam may have been 100 years old, or more when he begot his first born. Adam lived after he begot S. th 800 years, and begot sons and daughters. If Adam had begotten a son or a daughter, every four years he would have begotten 200 children after Seth. And inasmuch as men did not take to themselves wives then till they were nearly 100 years old, or more, by that time some of Adam's daughters, born immediately after Seth, would have been marriageable. For the space between the killing of Abel, and the birth of Seth may not have been over a few years, and after the birth of Seth, the birth of sons and daughters followed. Suppose Cain to have been 50 years old when he slew his brother, and to have waited 100 years more before he took him a wife (which he might have done as some waited 160 years,) by that time some of Adam's first daughters might have been nearly 100 years old, and from these Cain could easily have selected a wife even after he had gone to the Land of Nod.

Permission to return for that purpose would have been granted him.

The existence of another race of people co-existent with the Adamic race is hardly sustained by the Bible. J. S. M.

For the Brethren at Work.

A CRITICISM.

THE writer on the Sabbath question, page 539, present vol. B at W., allows 365 days and 6 hours for a year, but does not a year consist of 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 43 seconds? Then 5854 years reduced to days and divided by 7 leaves a remainder of one, which indicates, if it indicates anything, that the year 1850 went out one day after the Sabbath, as it went out on Friday, the day before, or Thursday would have been the Sabbath.

SAMUEL SALA.

Wakenau, Ind.

WANTED—A MINISTER.

MY DEAR — * * * O! by the way, if you learn of any one with energy, careful interest in the conversion of souls, attractive in preaching, great-hearted, unselfish, merry, in fact, holy,—let me know. Paul was much this kind of man we need. We want a man who knows all about the enemy—has some capacity for working miracles, is ready to be stoned, can teach women, interest children, make princes tremble, confound the Jews, convert kings, pick up sticks, earn his own living, go through fire and water for good of others with no expectation that they will interest themselves in him—and in general lead a forlorn hope of despondent followers.

Solicited by J. S. Mohler.

LEAVE consequence to God but do right. Be genuine, real, sincere, true, upright, godlike. The world's maxim is, trim your sails and yield to circumstances. But if you would do any good in your generation, you must be made of sterner stuff and help make your times rather than be made by them. You must not yield to customs; but, like the anvil, endure all blows until the hammers break themselves. When misrepresented, use no crooked means to clear yourself. Clouds do not last long. If in the course of duty you are tried by the distrust of friends, gird up your loins and say in your heart, "I was not driven to virtue by the encouragement of friends, nor will I be repelled from it by their coldness." Finally, "be just, and fear not;" "corruption wins not more than honesty;" "truth lives and reigns when falsehood dies and rots.

NOAH'S Ark was 81,662 tons burden, This equals the tonnage of about 81 first-rate ships of war. It was 547 feet long, 81 feet broad, and 54 feet high, making 2,750,752 solid feet.

He who employs not his time profitably, will one day come to want.

Correspondence.

Extract from a Private Letter.

From a letter written to me by our dear sister in the flesh, Lydia J. Miller, we glean the following:

"To-day, Sept. 25th, eight tender young plants came out on the Lord's side and were buried with Christ in holy baptism, and arose, I trust, 'to walk in newness of life.' Among the number were our dear sisters in the flesh, Emma and Barbara. * * * * May they be found faithful in doing their duty; and may they set a good example before their young associates, for it might be the means of bringing them to the church also. There are others, I think, 'almost persuaded' to come, too; and I think, if we can judge from actions, there are several more of our young friends who will come before long. They are deeply moved to-day; it seemed as though they could scarcely refrain. I never witnessed such an impressive and touching scene before. Every one seemed so solemn and a great many wept. It seemed as though the sermon to-day, together with the events, was enough to soften the hardest of hearts.

Do you, friendly, young reader, view the scene where eight young souls, from thirteen to sixteen years of age, are covenanting with their Master to do his bidding, and yet resist? Let us entreat you to do likewise; give yourself unto the Lord as a living sacrifice and you can rejoice in the hope of unending happiness with joy unspeakable and full of glory and finally realize the full fruition of the exceeding great and precious promises of the Lord unto the faithful.

ISAAC H. MILLER.

Mt. Morris, Ill.

From C. Hope—Have moved to Copenhagen. Mary is still poorly and no girl to help in housework. Baptized two at Fredericksheaven just before I left. Three members there now and others almost persuaded. Use our private house there now in which to hold meetings. Attended council meeting at Hjørring Aug. 21st. Some proposed to build at that place, but a large majority to build at Sindal if ground can be had. Bro. C. C. Eklidse was given the contract to build, and the cost will be about $900. Cannot get it ready before next June. Only $600 on hand, so we could not go on if we were ready with ground and material. I need a hall here in which to hold meetings.—Copenhagen, Sept. 1st, '81.

From Landon West.—The Love-feast in the Brush Creek church was held Aug. 27th and 28th at the Strait Creek meeting-house. One baptized. A large assembly. Brethren Mallow, Moomaw, from Ross and Fayette Cos., were in attendance; also brother Dutrich, from H. giland Co. Had preaching at two points,—in the church and in the grove; both before and in the afternoon. A very pleasant and good meeting. The Love-feast at Fairview, Fayette Co., was Sept. 3rd and 4th. A pleasant meeting, though not so large in attendance. Also at Hollowtown, Sept. 10th, with a very large attendance and good feeling. It is going on yet, (the 14th) with three baptized, seven applicants, and one to be restored. Brethren John Mohler, Joseph Pringia, of Clermont Co., and Quinter, Calvert, and ourself were in attendance.

[This should have appeared sooner; but was unavoidably delayed. Glad to hear that the word of the Lord is being glorified.—En.]

From D. F. Eby—Many of my dear friends and brethren asked me to write them after we got settled in our new home. To write to each one that feels an interest in my welfare, both spiritual and temporal, and out of love asked me to write, would take much time; hence I write to all of them through the BRETHREN AT WORK.... We found this county nearly destitute. There is not more than enough wheat in this county need'd for bread and seed. Corn is a total failure, although the acreage was large, which goes to show that the farmers have been accustomed to get corn, or else they would not have planted so many acres. Oats and hay good, but the acreage too small. Had the yield been a hundredfold, it would not be a supply. The farmers in this country have put their whole attention to wheat and corn, and these two cereals have now failed; the wheat crop by an unusual hard winter, the fly in the Spring; and the drouth as d ebunch bug ruined the corn. I have no doubt but it not been for the chinch bug there would be a reasonable crop of corn, notwithstanding the drouth. This ground will stand drouth above my expectations. Cucumber and melon vines kept green and bearing a tasteless fruit during all this drouth, which lasted from the 24th of June to the 31st of August. Then we had a soaking rain, and two good rains since.... Look upon this country as being in its infancy; although it is an old settled country. The land is naturally good, but much abused. The fault is not in the land that there is lack of grain here. I know some farmers that have enough to carry them through nicely.... I will not go into detail about my home. The land is here, and the improvements as bad as they can be. No houses fit to live in. I am now engaged in building fences.... Fruit in this country is very scarce. There was a good show for apples and pears, but the most dropped off during the drouth.... Good farms can be bought very low; and no man need be afraid to invest in land at such prices as it can be had now. I will not give the reason why land can be bought so cheap, as this letter may come under the eyes of people that are not interested in buying farms, but would rather sell. (I will answer questions privately).... The climate is good. Such a drouth has never been known before, and no failure of crops since the year 1854. Health good.... Have no organized church here; and the want of it does almost cause us to repent of coming here. Hops that a church may be built up here in the near future. There are ten or twelve members in the county, but we are living twelve miles apart, and seldom get to see each other. We hope the Brethren will not forget us, but come and hold meetings for us during the Winter. We are not able to say we will bear your expenses. We have enough to do to carry us through this Winter, but if the Lord will bless us with good crops by another year we may be able to do better. The Brethren here tell me that Bro. Metzger, from Cerro Gordo, said he would come. Thank you, brother; we shall give you a call before long,—as soon as we can give you lodging. We are building, in a manner, a new house. Our roof is very poor. It is hard work for us to keep our goods dry in time of rain. When night comes we sleep as best we can. We expect to have good horse-room in a few weeks.... There are many questions set us in regard to the mineral waters. They are very efficacious; they have restored some to health, and it is claimed that they will cure any case of dyspepsia, no matter how obstinate or of how long standing. I have been told people that have been doctoring for years to no purpose, and after drinking the mineral water from three to six months they get perfectly well.—Mt. Vernon, Ill., Sept. 11th.

[This letter was addressed to the editor personally, and he being absent, it was delayed.—En.]

From Daniel Vaniman.—To the Brethren who have written to Eld. A. S. Lver, of Morrisville, Ill., for his help at Compton, etc., as well as to his large circle of intimate friends, I will say, our esteemed brother has for weeks been under severe affliction, being neither able to read nor write on account of his sore eyes. For some time he has been under the treatment of an experienced oculist in Decatur, Ill. From direct intelligence received Sept. 21st I learned that he is now improving, his suffering being less intense, and strong hopes are now entertained that both his eyes may be saved. He says, "Some time ago I entertained fond anticipations of meeting the Brethren of Southern Illinois in district council Oct. 7th, but Providence rules otherwise." Desires the prayers of the saints in his behalf. Virden, Ill., Sept. 23rd.

From D. M. Miller.—Am still alive and well. At times loomsome. Preston is full of religion—brimful and running over; Masons and Old Fellows predominate. Poor attendance; attention good. Had three meetings in town; one here where I am now writing, at Brother Jonas Mast's. Will preach here again this evening. Have an invitation to visit a family to-day. Some good can be done here. Work is slow, but the "continual dripping of water will wear away a stone." Stony hearts may be melted. To-morrow we will go to Bro. Ogge's. I think I shall not leave Minnesota until the Love-feast is over.... There is one here that will unite with the church, perhaps before I leave.... The death of the President and caucus preparing for State Convention have occupied the time of the people so much in Preston that religious services were all secondary matters. Wonder how such people will feel when the Lord will come to wind up politics and place the humble followers of Jesus to reign over the cities, who formerly considered them as fools. They may, to their sorrow, discover that the political boat was a failure to insure permanent happiness. I would rather crawl on hands and feet to serve my Master and enjoy the true riches than to enjoy those pleasures, so-called, by worldlings and nominal Christians, and at last have no part with Jesus.—Preston, Minn., Sept. 23rd.

From D. L. Williams.—Just home from Clear Creek Love-feast. First Communion meeting held there. No ministers from abroad. Large audience, and good interest. Meeting held under arbor at brother John Odgden's. On Sunday a man came forward and said: "You have converted one Campbellite to-day, and I want to journey with you to the Father's home." Two young sisters also came and gave their hearts to the Lord. Prospects excellent for building up a large church there. Others near the fold of Christ. We first preached there last January, at which time eight were baptized. There are now twenty members. If any want good homes, go to that country. Already the members talk of erecting a meeting-house.

On my way home stopped with G. W. Miller, son of D. P. Miller of Polo, Ill. Had an interesting talk with him. He thinks Saline county hard to excel. Mild climate, healthful good water, timber, fine soil—all combine to make it desirable. Promised to have meeting there soon. Expect to begin a series of meetings at Walnut Grove, first Sunday in November. This is a new point also.—Brownsville, Mo., Sept. 20th.

From John Wise—I, in company with Bro. David Rapel of Ind., arrived here on the 24th inst. Held meeting yesterday, and will continue of evenings until Thursday evening. Then we go to Toronto. We are prospecting; we do not know what the result of our mission may be, but we hope for good. The people are very kind. We are among the River Brethren, Monicians, and others.... Health is good. Thank God.—New Dundee, Ontario, Canada, Sept. 26th.

From E. R. Stifer.—My last was written about July 4th, at my cousin's, (E. Brumbaugh) whose wife died last March. Remained there until July 14th, when we visited friends and relatives. Traveled by private conveyance in Stark, Portage, Summit, and Columbus counties. Find the relatives well gifted with hospitality. Have attended services at the East Nimbilleen, Lake, (a part of E. N.) Springfield, and Sandy churches. The former is under the eldership of my uncle and aged brother, Hoary Brumbaugh. Here is where our beloved brother J. J. Hoover is in the ministry, and the only one of four who speaks in the English. Am sorry they have not yet succeeded in establishing a Sunday-school at this place. But there are earnest workers only waiting for the privilege of organizing. Pride does not enter the church through the Sunday-school, but through the parents at home. The matter was discussed at their last church meeting.... At Springfield Aug. 21st, a sister was baptized, and a brother and sister were received by certificate. Thus the good work goes on. Attended services here seven times. Spent a happy time with our cousin and brother Henry Snyder and family, who live two miles west of Kent, Portage Co. They are somewhat isolated from the Brethren, but are faithful members. Trust the Brethren will not neglect to make that a point for preaching.... At Kent visited the glass works, where they manufacture window glass. The labor is principally performed by men from Belgium. There are extensive car shops at Kent. The N. Y., P. & O., and Connotton Valley railroads pass through this place, and they are busily engaged in building the Pittsburg, Tontington, and Chicago R. R. Ohio is being well supplied with railroad facilities. Visited Akron, the county seat of Summit Co. This is the most business place we have visited in Ohio. Here they have several large oatmeal mills, one of which we visited. They also make farina, which is a delicious food. It is made from the best of white wheat.... The city is lighted by electric lights. At Middleburg visited the large pottery where they manufacture what we term Liverpool ware. The town is in close proximity to Akron. Tiles are also manufactured here. Have visited a number of potteries where they make stoneware, charms, fruit jars, etc. Morgadore, a small town in Portage county, is quite a place for potteries. Also visited Congress Lake, the great Summer resort we spoke of formerly. It is a beautiful body of water, about ten miles long and about a mile wide. It is a point on the Connotton Valley R. R., some miles from Canton. Here the R. R. Co. has erected a depot three hundred feet long. Also other buildings resting over the edge of the lake. Here they have excursions, picnics, etc. It is a great place for fishing. But there is a sadness connected with this beautiful place. They run their regular excursion trains on Sunday also; and sadder still, they sell intoxicating liquors quite extensively, so that many a young man is induced to turn aside from the path of duty. Many, for the first time take the vile stuff that ruins the soul and body. A dear mother but a short time ago wept to me that a near and dear son had been led astray here. All sorts of enticing game are played there. How much I wished that it could be as in the time of Christ, that the Gospel might be preached on these beautiful shores. Visited Tricher's lake, another great place for fishing. This lake is being d-e-re-ased in size. From it the city of Akron is partly supplied with water. Springfield lake is near Akron. They also get a supply of water for the city.... Visited the interesting home and family of brother Jacob Mishler of Springfield congregation, and Librarian of Ashland College. Learned that he set the stakes for the College. Among others, met his daughter who is a lovely girl; but, dear Lizzie, do not forget the "one thing needful".... On account of the busy time at Ashland, did not visit the library at Ashland College.... We feel under many obligations to our friends for so kindly taking us around.... Thirteen years ago, I had a pleasant visit here, but find that some have gone to the spiritual world since then. At Sunfield, Portage Co., visited the grave of a dear cousin who suffered severely for eight months with cancer ere she died.—Mariboro, Stark Co., Ohio, Sept. 13th.

From D. S. Clark.—Saw remarks on nameless tract. Sorry such tracts are circulated, for they lead down instead of up. The editor might have said we know the church of Christ will never conform to the wicked practice of the world. Have no fears for the church, for God will take care of it. Let us beware how we attack the church—the Brotherhood of God. The church may be smaller than we wish, nevertheless the gates of hell shall not overthrow it.—Hudson, Wis.

From D. P. Saylor—Whereas the report of the proceedings of the committee to the Stillwater, Ohio, church as published by Samuel Kinsey in the Victor No. 9, Vol. 12, page 266, may produce a wrong impression, the report itself should be published. He says: "The committee retired to write out their report. They soon returned and had nothing more to ask of us. Brother Saylor said he himself had written sharper letters than ours was." He says, "Three articles were referred to as having been objectionable. Two of them were from the pen of D. B. Mentzer in 1880, and one from our own pen—an answer to a query on Protracted Meetings, in No. 2, page 57 of the present volume." These letters were published; first letter in Vol. 11, No. 10, page 314; second letter in Vol. 11, No. 11, page 340; third an answer to a brother on Protracted Meetings in Vol. 12, No. 2, page 57 in the Victor. The untruthfulness of these letters was stated and proved by testimony. These letters the committee carefully considered, and report as follows: "And we decide that brother Samuel Kinsey did wrong in publishing said letters. But as he has made apologies for publishing said letters, as will be seen in Vol. 11, No. 12, page 58 and Vol. 12 No. 2, page 58, the committee believe brother Kinsey was imposed upon by said correspondent; and because of the very heavy confession he made and forgiveness asked for before the committee and the church, we accept it, and impose no further penalty upon him in the matter, more than we advise him to be more cautious and careful in the future. And in regard to the editorial in reply to a brother on Protracted Meetings in Vol. 12, No. 2, page 57, we find no objections to, and therefore dismiss it, and acquit brother Kinsey." It was in reference to this editorial that I said I had written sharper articles on similar subjects.... Submitted to church and unanimously accepted. (Signed by the committee.)

From Martin Neher.—Still dry and warm. Had a shower of rain last Saturday morning; it refreshed things a little so people could do their seeding, but too dry for wheat to come up; still may not fail.... Health is good. Have not much church news to send you. Are trying to do the best we can.—Monmouth, Kan., Sept. 21.

From J. L. Brown.—There were about seventy-five members and seven ministers at the Love-feast at Bro. Wolfe's Brethren there from all parts of the State. Only met once a year. Meeting one week. Much love and union, and good order. The Brethren gave all to eat during the meeting. Brother Wolfe, though a twenty-two years old, and well aged, came forth from his seat on crutches, and exhorted all. Thanks to the beloved for their kindness to us.—Glencoe, Cal., Sept. 18th.

Who can tell the power of kindness in reforming character and inspiring life.

From E. Fansler.—Our Love-feast at Mound church, Crescent Hill, Mo., is past. Had a good meeting, and good order. About sixty members commended; some from other churches were with us. This church numbers thirty-four members. Ministers present from abroad were, A. Hutchinson, from Centerville, Mo., S. S. Mohler, J. S. Mohler, S. Click, and David Williams, from Saline Co., Mo. They preached the Word with power, for which we may thank God and take courage.... An election was held for a deacon; the lot fell on brother Simon Fansler, a talented young brother. May the Lord bless him in the work that is before him. God bless our little church.—Adrian, Bates Co., Mo., Sept 11

From Daniel Citre.—On the morning of the 1st of Sept., Bro. David Bowman and I left home en route for the Pulaski Brethren, known as the Dixon church, a distance of seventy or eighty miles. We reached brother Simmons on the evening of the 2nd. He is an earnest worker in the cause of the Master. On the morning of the 3rd, in company with brother Simmons and wife, we started for brother Stamps', where the council meeting was to be held; a distance of fourteen miles. We went there feeling somewhat despondent, but am happy to say we had one of the best council meetings I ever attended. Each brother and sister seemed to say, "Old things have passed away and all things have become new." While visiting the church I was forcibly struck with two little brethren, which I must not fail to notice in this letter. They came in with their mother to be visited. She introduced them as brethren. We received them with the salutation and proceeded with the visit. They answered the questions with promptness and surprise. One is eleven years old and the other thirteen, and have belonged to the church three years, making them at the time of their baptism eight and eleven years respectively. They both took courage to ask brother Lair to baptize them. Now my friends, if you chance to see this, think of these young brethren that started out in the service of God at the age of eight and ten years.... After the close of our church meeting, we returned to the riverside, where prayer was wont to be made. A prominent young sister was buried with Christ in baptism to walk in newness of life. We then returned to the public school-house for public worship.... Sunday morning, met for public worship in the grove at brother Stamps'. The meeting was tolerably well attended. Two more made application for baptism. After having taken some refreshments, we again repaired to the riverside to administer the ordinance of baptism. Solemnity gave evidences there are others near the kingdom; besides this, I heard others say they had their mind made up.... We then returned to brother Stamps', and observed the ordinances as directed in the 13th chapter of John, which was enjoyed to the fullest extent by the brethren and sisters. There are now twenty-two members that compose the Dixon church, one speaker in the second degree, and two deacons; but scattered over a territory of twenty or thirty miles. It has some substantial and very prominent members.... You Eastern brethren living in large congregations know but little about the various oppositions isolated members have to meet with; but I think they are only calculated to prompt us to be more watchful and prompt in discharging our duty toward our God; for he has said that he would not suffer us to be tempted above that we are able to bear. This, then, is encouraging to our minds. I sometimes think isolated members are standing as the lonely oak on the plains exposed to the cold and wintry blasts of time; though the storms may rage, the winds may howl, yet they stand firm.... On Monday morning, having completed the work, we took leave of the brethren and set our faces homeward.—Excelsior, Mo., Sept. 9.

From Cyrus Bucher.—We have not many glad tidings of great joy to bring which are not already known to the followers of the Lamb. The church enjoys peace and union, consequently it has power. We have not much trouble with the different nicknames used; such as "Old Order," "Conservative," and "Progressionist," for we are all in one. We try to do our duty as well as we can. We try to stay in the old order; are conservative in judgment to all, and progressive to the grave and to our eternal destiny, whether for good or evil. A solemn thought! No time to wrangle and strive. Time is short and eternity has no end. Let us try to do our duty, "For in the grave there is no repentance," and we are brethren if "we love one another".... We started a Sunday or Bible school, and are trying to raise our children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. There were about five hundred verses committed the third Sunday. This shows that the children's thoughts are in the good work. If we can fill their young minds with Christ and his teachings there is not much place left for the foolishness of sin to enter. We have a meeting in our church at eight different places. Our church embraces an area of about 100 square miles. There is still room along the borders to increase. Few actual calls but no place to preach. This, however, may be remedied in time and an opening gained.—Rivestille, Pa.

From F. C. Meyers.—I have received the following from brethren to pay rent for the hall to hold meetings in: Daniel Vanman, $16.75; Daniel Gibson, $3.70; S. S. Mohler, $4.00; J. Metzger, $11.50; C. C. Gibson, $ 50; James Wirt, $.75; total amount, $37.20.—St. Louis, Mo.

Voice of the People.

[We present the views of those of our readers who have thus far spoken on the one-paper project. We shall give these from time to time, and we trust those who write upon the subject will do so with moderation.—Ed.]

LETTER NO. I.

The subject of consolidating our church papers being now before the Brotherhood, I will give my views on that subject. It has long since been my mind that we should have but one paper, and that to be under the control and supervision of Annual Meeting, and such paper to fearlessly contend for the principles and doctrines of the church, and work for the building up of the cause of Christ and glory and honor of God. Such a paper would be a power for good. I firmly believe our papers are the cause of much of the trouble now existing in the Brotherhood. Questions of minor importance were agitated through the papers till finally a disunion of sentiment was created and a separation of the church has taken place; and we, here in the Miami Valley, perhaps, feel the effects more than any other part of the Brotherhood. Here hundreds are expelled because they will no longer hear the church. We therefore would urge a consolidation of our papers that peace, union, harmony, and the integrity of the church might be maintained.

The B. A. W. suggests Chicago as a fine point to locate the publishing-house. While that may be a good point, I think Dayton, Ohio, would offer superior accommodations. It is a central point, ten railroads varying from there; while paper is manufactured in and about the city, and would not need to be shipped, while rent would certainly be cheaper than Chicago. Then, too, there is a church located in the city and no minister residing there. Most of our editors being ministers, there would be a field open for them. Hoping some plans may be matured, and a consolidation speedily effected, I leave the subject for the present.

S. Book.

Mansfield, Ohio.

LETTER NO. II.

I have been a subscriber to the B. A. W. ever since its start, and I think there never has been a mistake of a cent on your part, although I sometimes may have failed to come to time. You talk of consolidation. My notion of that is that one paper always swallows up the other, then the man that has the most money brings the other to terms to suit him. I think that the B. A. W. is the best paper published in the Brotherhood; therefore can stand on its own merits by keeping the old landmarks. For this reason I am opposed to consolidation.

S. S. CRESWELL.

Onbury, Pa.

LETTER NO. III.

I feel to say more of the idea of consolidation. Think it would be a grand move in the right direction. Hop it will receive general and prompt attention, and that it may be fully arranged and presented to next Annual Meeting for her approval.

STEPHEN JOHNSON.

Garrison, Iowa.

LETTER NO. IV.

I must believe that the B. A. W. is, by far, the best paper published in the Brotherhood. It seems to me that it gets better almost every week. May God help you to keep it so.

I believe it would be a good plan to have the papers consolidated; but I am not in favor of it, because I believe that the paper thereby established would not be any better than the B. A. W.. I don't believe a much better one could be published.

May God bless us and save us all.

J. M. N.

Rosam, Ind.

It is no great thing to be humble when you are brought low; but to be humble when you are praised is a great and rare attainment.

Gidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Cerro Gordo, Ill., Sept. 28, 1881.

I spent the greater part of this month in St. Louis. Nine more came out on the Lord's side. Left the 23rd. Found all well; thank the Lord.—Bro. A. S. Leer, from Morrisville, came to my house last Saturday evening and preached to a large congregation in Cerro Gordo on Sunday, followed by our dear Bro. D. B. Gibson.

JOHN METZGER.

Stanton, Iowa, Sept. 28, 1881.

This is the branch of the church broken up by the removal of the Maple Grove Colony, now in Kansas. Some talk of Bro. Isaac Barto moving in here. Hope he will and revive the church here once more. Very lonesome; no preaching. Small grain very light. Corn half crop. Had 8 inches of snow the 16th of present month.

GEO. WORKMAN.

Panora, Iowa, Sept. 28, 1881.

The construction train on the railroad about 15 miles north of Panora, ran off the track at 8:30 A. M., killed three hands, and wounded seventeen more. Besides two passengers who are not expected to live. One is Jacob M. Deardorff, son of Bro. Ephraim Deardorff of Gettysburg, Pa. He just started home to commence his school in Pa. in two weeks. This is the saddest day Panora ever had.

J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

Locke, Ind., Sept. 28, 1881.

Two received by baptism since my last. Made our annual visit last week. Reported the same, at our council last Saturday. All business disposed of satisfactorily, so that we anticipate a feast of love on the 4th of October. Weather pleasant and roads good at present. Seeding nearly done and doing well. General health middling good, although death is still among us, claiming its victims, both old and young; reminding us almost daily, of what will be our lot some day. J. R. M.

To the Collectors of the Orphans' Home:—

Have all receipts for Money that you sent to the Treasurer, at District Meeting, or forward to me at Astoria, Fulton Co., Ill., as far as canvassed. Don't neglect this, as we want to settle.

JAS. N. GRESH.

Milford, Ind., Sept. 28, 1881.

Much rejoicing amongst the saints. One more young sister has united with the church. Attended a funeral to-day. A young man in the prime of life was called down on a sick-bed, and in one week breathed his last. A pitiful thought. Just before he expired, he called for the ministers to baptize him. — hot too late; he became delirious, and soon passed away.

L. H. MILLER.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 28, 1881.

Likely a little news from St. Louis would be interesting to your many readers. Bro. D. Vaniman came here the 15th. Next day one was baptized and the 16th one more. The evening of that day had a Communion meeting. Many came up and said, this was the best meeting they ever attended, because it all was done according to the Scriptures and the example of Christ. The 20th, Bro. Vaniman left. Yesterday two more were baptized, and one more to-day. JOHN METZGER.

Panora, Iowa, Sept. 28, 1881.

Just returned from Love-feast in Carroll Co., Iowa. Small attendance, but everything was very quiet, reminding us of that large upper room. — Brethren traveling over the C. & N.-W. R. R., stop off at Maple River Junction and inform D. W. Shirk — Council meeting to-day. Bro. Geo. Boots, of Dale City installed as deacon of Coon River church. Weather fair; no frost yet. Snow on the 10th four inches deep, in Carroll county, this State.

J. D. HAUGHTELIN.

Mulberry Grove, Sept. 26, 1881.

Elder John Wise started for Canada the 19th. — He intends to stay about three months and preach for the people there. His wife is visiting friends in Pa. J. P. Lilligh and Henry Lilligh are the delegates to the District-Meeting from this church. We intend holding a series of meetings this Fall, and hope the Lord will revive his work here.

Matrimonial.

SNYDER—CHILDS.—At the residence of Bro. H. R. Taylor, Sept. 18, 1881, by Bro. S. P. Miller, Bro. J. S. Snyder of Poweshiek Co., Iowa, and sister Jennie Childs, of Wayne Co., Ohio.

JESTINA MILLER.

Fallen Asleep.

Elimed are the dead which die in the Lord. — Rev. 14: 13.

GLOTFELTY.—Sept. 10, 1881, Willis Gloftelty, son of Bro. Michael (deceased) and sister Anna Gloftelty. CYRUS WALLICE.

SHOEMAKER.—On Sept. 14, 1881, in the Smith Fork congregation, Clinton Co., Mo., sister H. Lulu, daughter of Bro. Joseph and sister Margaret Shoemaker, aged 18 years, 6 months and 20 days. Funeral services by Bro. D. B. Gibson, who arrived just too late among his old friends to see sister Lulu alive.

This dear young sister was baptized Aug. 15, 1875 at the age of sixteen; and notwithstanding her surroundings of everything, wealth, luxury and giddy and fashionable society, that naturally leads one from God, her life was such as to show that she never forgot her Master, and that she was not ashamed to be found an humble but earnest worker in his vineyard.

When the news came to my school room that sister Lulu was dead; and when I had announced the sad fact to the pupils with whom she had so long associated, the gloom, the death-like silence, the warm tear, and the heart rending sobs, were but a feeble representation of esteem in which she was held by her associates. E. A. ORR.

PLANK.—At Pretty Prairie, La Grange Co., Ind., Sept. 8th, 1881, Christian Plank, aged 87 years, and 10 months.

He was the father of 12 children, 89 grandchildren and 117 great grand-children; whole number, 218.

SHOTTS.—July 8th, 1881, Jesse Shotts, son of Bro. H. and sister Maria Shotts, aged 21 years, 7 months and 20 days.

McKENZIE.—In La Grange Co., Ind., Sept. 8, 1881, Mary Ellen McKenzie, aged 0 years, 6 months and 18 days.

KEEFER.—In La Grange Co., Ind., Sept. 13, 1881, Grace Etta Keefe, aged 10 days.

KEIM.—Sept. 15, 1881, in La Grange Co., Ind., Martha Anne, daughter of Bro. Alexander and sister Eliza Keim, aged 20 years, 8 months and 5 days.

COCHENSPEAKER.—In Branch Co., Mich., Sept. 10, 1881, Henry Cochenspeaker, aged 32 years, 5 months and 21 days.

Disease, enlargement of the spleen. An examination after death showed that the spleen weighed eight pounds. N. H. SHUTT.

Announcements.

LOVE-FAEST NOTES.

- Oct. 8 at 10 A. M., Hudson, Ill.
Oct. 8 at 5 P. M., Portage church, St. Joseph co., Ind.
Oct. 8, at 3 P. M., at Bro. Philip Snaveley's, 1 and one half miles east of Dorchester, Saline Co., Neb. Those coming by R. R., should stop off at Dorchester.
Oct. 8 and 9, at Teareot, Hampshire Co., W. Va.
Oct. 8 and 9 at 10 A. M., Spring Run, Fulton co., Ill.; at meeting house, 8 miles east of Prairie City.
Oct. 8 and 9, Dry Creek, Linn co., Iowa.
Oct. 8 and 9, Falls City church, Neb.
Oct. 8, at 10 A. M., Okaw church, near La Platte Ill.
Oct. 8 at 2 P. M., Beatrice church, Gage co., Neb., 8 miles south-east of Beatrice.
Oct. 8, at 2 P. M., Wichita church, Sedgewick Co., Kan.
Oct. 8 at 10 o'clock, Somerset district, Wabash Co., Ind.
Oct. 8 and 8 at 11 A. M., Fairview, George's Creek, Fayette co., Pa.
Oct. 8, at 2 P. M., Smith Fork church, Clinton co., Mo.
Oct. 8 and 8 at 11 A. M., three miles east of South English, Kentucky, Iowa.
Oct. 8 and 9, at Fall River church, near Fredonia, Wilson co., Kan.
Oct. 8, Poplar Ridge church, Defiance co., O.
Oct. 8, at 10 A. M., Bome church, Wyanot Co., O., 6½ miles north-west of Carey.
Oct. 10, West Otter Creek church, Macoupin co., Ill.
Oct. 11 at 10 A. M. Spring Creek church, Ind.
Oct. 11, at 2 P. M., Antioch, Ind.
Oct. 11, at 1 P. M., Shannon, Ill., to continue next day.
Oct. 11 and 12 at 1 P. M., Lost Creek, Juniata co., Pa.
Oct. 12 at 10 A. M., Four Mile congregation, at White Water meeting-house, three miles northeast of Connersville, Fayette co., Ind.
Oct. 12 and 13, three miles north-east of Grenada, Elk Co., Kan.
Oct. 12 and 13 at 10 A. M., Prairie Creek church, Wells co., Ind.
Oct. 21, Mineral Creek church, Johnson Co., Mo.
Oct. 13, at 2 P. M., Bethel church, Montgomery co., Ind.
Oct. 13 at 10 A. M., Beaverdam, Kosciusko co., Ind.
Oct. 14, Black River church, Van Buren co., Mich.
Oct. 15, at 10 A. M., Green Spring church, at Sugar Grove meeting-house, 1½ miles from Watson station, O.
Oct. 15, Grand River church, Mich.
Oct. 15, Minnescan church, Nickerson co., Kansas. Preaching at 10, 2 and 4 o'clock.
Oct. 22, at 10 A. M., Eagle Creek church, Hancock co., Ohio.
Oct. 29, at 4 P. M., Swan Creek church, Fulton co., Ohio.
Oct. 29 and 30, Concord church, Adams co., Ill., 5 miles south of Clayton.
Oct. 29 and 30, Osawatie church, Jefferson co., Kan.
Oct. 29 and 30, Bosser Run, Mine al co., W. Va.
Nov. 5, Millinice church, Platt co., I. I.
Oct. 29 and 30, at 4 P. M., Salem, Marion co., Ill.
Nov. 1 and 2, Mill Creek church, new Liberty, Ill.
Nov. 5, at 2 P. M., at Farragut, Fremont Co., Ia.
Nov. 5 and 6, at 2 P. M., Big Creek congregation, Richland Co., Ill. Conveyance at Parkersburg, by informing J. M. Forney.

DISTRICT-MEETINGS.

- Nov. 4 & 5, at Knob Creek church, Tenn.
Oct. 30, Southern Missouri, in Mineral Creek church, Jefferson co., 12 miles south of Warrensburg, Mo.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

15 25
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Oct. 11, 1881.

No. 39.

Editorial Items.

Are you God's penmanaker?

Do you love the Brotherhood?

PLEASE do not misrepresent any one.

The church in Lanark is enjoying a pleasant season of peace.

Two baptized and one reclaimed recently in the church at Hopewell, Pa.

There are one hundred students at Ashland College, and prospects for more.

BRO. S. T. Boserman is sick with malarial fever. The Lord help him to health speedily.

TWENTY-NINE baptized in the Point Creek church, Kansas, during the year, and others to be baptized.

A COMPANY of soldiers has been placed at the town of Garfield to prevent the thieves stealing his body.

BROTHER John Nicholson will be at Waterloo, Iowa, during the present month, holding forth the word of life.

Who will prepare doctrinal matter for four and eight page tracts? It should be short and sharp--clear and logical.

CATALOGUE of A. H. Cassel Library now ready. Price 30 cts post-paid. Send to D. I. Miller, Mt. Morris, Ill.

ANY one having Book of Minutes of A. M. published by Davy and Quinter and wishing to sell it, will please write to this office.

BROTHER D. M. Miller returned home from Minnesota the 4th inst. One baptized in Root River church. Love-feast quite interesting. Rains very much interferred with meetings.

BRO. D. B. Storgis is in Alexandria, Mo., preaching the word of life. The old soldier is still full of zeal and love for God's holy ways.

COULD not each of our agents sell two or three copies of Stein and Ray Debate and thus clear the shelves at the first edition? If so, it would be quite a help to Bro. Stein's family in his absence.

THE Love-feast in this (Silver Creek) church will be held the 27th inst., commencing at 10 A. M. We expect to see many of God's children from other churches at the communion table with us.

BRO. Levi Andes and family arrived here the 1st inst. Brother Andes came here last Spring and worked diligently at tailoring. He went East a few weeks ago for his wife and children, and now they are all here.

A TERRIBLE tornado passed over Madison, Neb., Sept. 29th, destroying the town almost entirely. It swept over Southern Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin, causing great damage in places. A passenger train was blown in two. At the same time a storm visited the Ottomow and Neshka Valleys, Kansas, causing loss of life and destruction of property.

It is perhaps not generally known that Mr. Moody was privately immersed three years ago in Baltimore. His daughter was baptized one year ago by Mr. Pentecost. Why are the newspapers so quiet about this?

In this issue brother Moore begins his weekly review of the B. at W. Now let us watch our thoughts lest having wrought, our folly may appear. Brother Moore will try to see us all as we show ourselves from week to week.

THE Brethren at Woodstock Wis., have purchased the Disciple meeting-house, where D. M. Miller preached two years ago, and persuaded about all the members of the Disciple Society to turn from that way to serve Christ.

MINUTES of Annual Meeting for the years 1877 to 1881 inclusive for 25 cts. These Minutes are not in the Book of Minutes; but they are put up the same size pages as the book, hence can be laid in at the back part. Send orders to BRETHREN AT WORK.

As we went to Lanark to attend the Love-feast, we stopped in Leaf River, and there met our old friend "Jake" Kaufman, who is engaged in the clothing business. "Jake" calls himself "Cheap Jake," because he sells goods at the very lowest living prices.

THANKS to C. L. Jones of Amherst Co., Va., for sending us fourteen new subscribers at $1 50 each. Friend Jones is an ardent admirer of the Worker. He read among people who are not members of our fraternity and secured their names. He promises another list by Christmas.

DR. A. W. Flowers will lecture on health in the Centre church, Marshall county, Ind., commencing Tuesday evening, 18th inst., and continue two weeks. Go and hear brother Flowers and profit by what he tells you. Not one of us has yet learned too well how to take care of our bodies.

BRETHREN J. T. Meyers and William Hertzler go to Eastern Maryland about the 10th to preach the Gospel. The District Meeting of Eastern Pa. sends these brethren and ordered them to purchase a lot of tracts to distribute free. We have sent them several hundred. The Lord bless them in their labors of love.

We shall publish the names of all who send in subscriptions, and the number sent by each, so that every one may know whether we have received the right number. Only the name of the sender and number sent will be given, and not the address. Send in your new names for the remainder of the year at 25 cts. each.

THE churches throughout Northern Illinois are enjoying peace generally. The ministers, of whom there are upwards of sixty, are united about as well as that many men can be; hence there are no factions in the District. The missionary spirit enkindled a few years ago is still alive, and with a desire to be a blessing among the people the good work is being continued in Central Illinois and Wisconsin.

If each subscriber should within the next two weeks send in one new subscriber for one year, they would secure very desirable improvements on the paper by another month. We have in mind some very desirable improvements--such as new type and headings--all of which can be realized if each reader will get one new subscriber. We are not begging. We shall give value received, which is a legitimate business. What say the friends of the Worker?

THE Wisconsin Methodist conference has requested the bishop not to give charges to clergymen who use tobacco.

THE Love-feast at Lanark Sept. 30th was quite enjoyable. Brethren Enoch Ely, D. E. Price, J. J. Emmert, B. F. McCune, and D. Rowland were the ministers present to help in the labors.

An active brother in the ministry is sending an article for the B. at W. says: "If not thought worthy and profitable to publish, O please do not do so, for every word that goes into the paper should be for the welfare and prosperity of our holy Zion." This is the spirit of the Master, and we pray God we may all imitate it freely.

BRO. Kinsley lays bare the truth concerning Drennon. We have also a letter from the outsider who reported his debate in B. at W. and a number of other letters, all showing that the man needs repentance and a new heart. We think enough has now been published, and suggest that the Adverts be left in undisturbed possession of their "great gain."

LESS than two months ago we published 2000 tracts on Non-essentialism and Baptism, and they are already out at work. We have a few hundred on "Washing the Saints Feet," which will send at the following rates: 10 for 20 cts., 25 for 40 cts., 100 for $1.00. We shall get out new tracts soon. We are now at work on one written by brother Daniel Bright.

To Our Agents.

PLEASE say to all new subscribers for 1882 that the BRETHREN AT WORK will be sent to them free during December. Send names of new subscribers by November 20th so that we may know how many extra papers to print during December. By making a little effort you may be able to greatly increase the list, and thus increase the usefulness of your paper. The money can be sent with your regular list.

Special Conference.

ABOUT eighteen years after Christ went to his Father, some ministers from Judaea went to Antioch and taught that the Brethren must be circumcised after the manner of Moses. They made this old rule a matter of salvation. Paul and Barnabas tried to persuade them out of this question; but they clung to it with the greatest tenacity. Fail ag, they, with certain others, went up to Jerusalem to see the elders and apostles about the question. The apostles, elders, and brethren came together to consider the matter. This was a special meeting for the adjustment of a grave difficulty which had been thrust upon the church by those who claimed to be men after the old way. Is not this clear? If it is not also manifest that the church now needs a special conference. If it ever needed counsel and deliberation it does now. Men have lost their love for the Brotherhood and are going to and fro striving up strife and leaving away innocent members, and certainly the church should meet and lay bare the whole matter so that none may be deceived.

Conduct the Standing Committee's appoint time and place of meeting? Let it be held about Christmas or earlier, if practicable, at some place where there are many members and where there is a large house. We do not believe there will be a large crowd; especially when it is known that many cannot be entertained. I think of this, brethren, and let the Standing Committee consider the matter. From our standpoint we see the necessity of a meeting.

Religious Essays.

WORK AND PRAY.

Brethren, we are called to labor,
 In our blessed Master's name—
 Called the precious seed to enter,
 Fearless of reproach or shame.

See, the fields are white to harvest,
 Still the laborers are few;
 Jesus calls on you, my brethren,
 Something in his fame to do.

Look around you—souls are living
 Heedless of the coming day,
 When the things of time shall vanish,
 And forever pass away.

Why not warn them of the future—
 Of the place where lost ones dwell—
 Of the dreadful night of darkness,
 Christ-less souls shall spend in hell?

Why not tell them of the Savior,
 Who was nailed up on the tree,
 That, by tasting death for sinners,
 They might be from death set free?

Tell the worldling and the careless
 Of your Savior's boundless love;
 Tell the outcast and the wanderer
 Of a home with Christ above.

Let the love of Christ constrain you
 To proclaim the joyful sound
 Of salvation for the guilty,
 And a ransom for the bound.

Ask your Lord for grace to labor;
 He will give you all you need;
 Seek the Spirit's help and guidance,
 Earnestly with souls to plead.

Let your seed by prayer be watered,
 Ere you strew it o'er the ground;
 With your Father's blessing on it,
 It shall yet with fruit abound.

While the Lord delays his coming,
 Do not idle time away;
 Oa, my brethren, be not weary;
 Now's the time to work and pray.

—Selected.

For the Brothers at Work.

FUNDAMENTAL.

BY C. H. RAISBACH.

To a Progressive:—

SO you call yourself. Self-appropriated terms are easy no matter how ill they fit. I too am a Progressive, although not forward to adopt the title. What we call progression may be, and often has been, retrogression. It is next thing to a scandal to flout as progress what owes its existence to the flesh, and altogether a scandal to engage in hot controversy over it and claim to be "contending for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints."

Honest differences of opinion have always been among Christians. But honesty is no criterion of truth. I have just received a letter from a theological student at Gettysburg, in which is as strong and pathetic a plea for Lutheranism and personal holiness on the ground of sincerity as was ever put on paper. Is it therefore true? Is any opinion or creed true because it is held religiously and in all sincerity? Your letter is an honor to your heart, although as wide of the truth as Tyndallism from Paulism. Are we going to fall out because we disagree? That would be childish, and worse.

There are some things we believe, not because we are so taught, but simply because the opposite is unthinkable. Such is the distinction between common or flesh-generated humanity and humanity begotten and indwelt by God. None but an idiot can fail to see this cardinal truth. Does this distinction stop with Christ? Is he severed from those whom he begets in that which differed Him from the world, or do all the elect maintain common life and common cause with him? If the former, what constitutes Christianity? The settlement of this question embraces all differences in Christendom, and between the church and the world. It is this single radical truth that underlies all real progress and conservatism. Many so called Progressives are no more than vandals and many self styled conservatives, no more than lifeless, shriveled mummies. A true progressive is equally conservative, and vice versa. The progress of God incarnate never forgets the fundamental standard, "thy will be done on earth as it is done in Heaven." Nor does the conservatism of infleshed Deity forget that the Fact itself necessitates "increase in wisdom and stature." The humanity of Christ will remain humanity forever, and will develop as long as Deity and humanity are two. Either stagnation must become the law of the redeemed in the upper world, or the Man Christ Jesus must keep in advance of the elect, or the distinction between Deity and humanity in Him is obliterated.

The gulf between Christ and the world is ineradicable. It necessitates no rigid, unchangeable exterior, and yet moulds the entire life away from native inclinations and the universal world-life. "I am not of the world" is the standing testimony of all Christians. There is a permanent element in all life that reserves its type, and yet allows multiform variations within its essential characteristics. I am far from endorsing a rigidity which has lost the flexibility of life, and rests wholly on tradition and official authority. And yet both these elements necessarily enter into all forms whose only moulding power is the silent Divine Omnipresence. God cuts nothing off from the past, nor allows a seed to germinate, or a leaf to color, or bud to open, or fruit to ripen, or insect to flutter or breathe, independent of his Omnipotence. This is the type of all life. The church is no exception. Our low ideas of God and the incarnation result in low life and carnal deportment. We are individuals, and as such must live and give account. But our aggregation in church relations puts us on the plane and responsibility of a higher, wider life, where the apparent limitations of the individual are only his elevation and expansion. Therefore no one is fit for membership who has not learned of Christ to die, and by death to live a larger life. He that knows not to live in and for the many, is no Christian.

There is no possibility of excluding dress from the general formative principle of the indwelling Christ. Just as sincerity is no certainty of truth, so simplicity is not necessarily devotion to the cross. The non-recognition of this fact is the fallacy of "Seven Thunders." To contend that dress has nothing to do with our distinction as Christians, is glaringly unphilosophical, and inconsistent with the absolute nature of all life. The exterior of everything that exists of which we have any knowledge, has a vital connection with its life, and derives from it its external characteristics. Christianity is in this order. It is the eternal law of God's own being, not only of his Universe. I am quite willing to have this central truth subjected to the severest ordeal. And just as ready to rule a plain hat for sisters, in the present state of society, out of the category that begins and ends in the Cross. There is no danger that any sane person will attempt to refute the former, or, admitting the first, attempt the defence of the latter. Or, in other words, no sensible, honest person who apprehends the Divine order of life in Christ, will plead for what stands in essential antagonism to it, no matter how simple. It requires but little brain or conscience to determine the ground of choice in relation to those things that cause so much commotion in the Brotherhood. No person can care less for a rigidity that must be maintained at the point of the bayonet, than I. And yet the official of God "beats not the sword in vain." "The law is not for righteous men," "but for the lawless and disobedient." He in whom is the law of "the spirit of life in Christ Jesus" can be safely left to the working and moulding of that law. The Cross is his life, and the law of the cross his liberty. "But they are not all Israel who are of Israel." Those who have no inner law supplied by the Divine indwelling, must have restrictions from without. It makes a very dry, unsavory, restive religious experience, but it is the best such souls are capable of. There are hundreds in the church whose ideal of dress has absolutely nothing to do with the cross. Their first and last inquiry is about the world and their relation to it. In a few instances simplicity is allowed as the varnish of pride, and the shield of a carnal motive. I do not undertake to say that such persons are always conscious of the deepest element in their promptings. Their feeble apprehension, or total non apprehension, of Christ, renders them incapable of discerning both the Lord's spirit and the Lord's body. Had sisters no male instigators, they would not occasion much trouble. In every instance that has come under my personal observation, the principal support on which the fair insurgents rested was found on the opposite side of the house. An unreserved commitment to the Holy Spirit will cure all this blindness and observation in relation to the real meaning of the cross, and the real nature and outcome of the Christian life. Religion is not talk, or conference, or dress, or ordinance, or fixed conventionalism, but life, even the VERY LIFE OF GOD. This will shape all else, so that Christ will be our tailor and milliner, our cook and baker, our flesh crucifying, bed-superintending chamberlain, our baptism and eucharist, "our life," and ALL THAT COMES OF LIFE. This idea is worthy of God, and nothing lower should we suffer to charm or dominate us. "Christ liveth in me." Have we ever really considered what this means? Is it a reality with us, or a self cheating hypothesis? A living fact, or an empty, delusive dream? Can we in very deed say, and do we in sober truth demonstrate, "to me to LIVE is CHRIST?" If we all "walk according to this rule," our Annual Meetings need convene only septennially, or at longer intervals, to adjust perplexing differences. Our convocations, whether for general or special occasions, will be glorious Pentecosts. What we want is life, LIFE, LIFE—the life of "God manifest—mark, MANIFEST—in the flesh," our flesh. Then are we children of God, heirs and joint-heirs with Christ. All else is pretence no matter how adroitly whitewashed, all else is bastardy no matter how the Christian lineaments are simulated. Born of God, "walking as He walked," living in the flesh the life He lived. This is Christianity, this is salvation, this fulfills Rev. 21: 2, 3, and John 14: 3. It is the wedlock of Deity and Humanity.

For the Brethren at Work.

HEARING GOD.

BY M. MYERS.

"And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."—Rev. 22: 12.

THIS is the language of Jesus the Son of God, in reference to his second advent unto the world, signified by his angel unto his servant John while in banishment on the Isle of Patmos for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ. He testified of things which must shortly come to pass. Moreover there is a blessing promised unto those that hear the words of the prophecy of this Book and keep the things written therein; for the time is at hand.

"Behold, I come quickly." Note of attention and exhortation to a provident care; watchfulness on the part of all beholders, for he shall suddenly and unexpectedly come to gather his elect from the four winds. He also forewarns us that he shall come quickly. The time is very short; the Son of Man will soon make his appearance in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. So near is it, my brethren, that it is not a time to say "My Lord delayeth his coming," and begin to smite the fellow-servants and maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken. "The Lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him and in an hour that he is not aware of and shall cut him asunder and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites and unbelievers." Luke 12: 45, Matt. 24: 50.

Others may say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" See what the prophets who have spoken in the name of the Lord said upon the subject; also Jesus and the apostles, and find he saith, "Surely I come quickly." Learn also that one day is as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day. 2 Pet. 2: 8. Not yet two days with the Lord (of a thousand years each) since Jesus expiated on the cross for fallen man. When thus considered in the light of the Gospel, how short the time when it is past. Even as a watch in the night. Ps. 90: 4. "And my reward is with me." The reward and retribution of every one shall be with him, to give every man according to the deeds done in the body. He shall judge with righteous judgment, "Who will render to every man according to his deeds; to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life," (Rom. 2: 6, 7) which the Savior shall give unto his followers. And they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of his hand. St. John 10: 28. The gift of eternal life they receive through implicit faith and confidence in the promises of God through the Savior, entering by the strait gate, following in the narrow way of righteousness, the highway of holiness, continuing therein unto the end or until in death they obtain a crown of life. Rev. 2: 10. "But unto them that are contentious and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation, and wrath." Rom. 2: 8. (See also 2 Thess. 1: 7, 8.) And it may plainly appear that the great sin of the world is disobedience to God. It was by Adam's disobedience that we fell.

Again, by obedience to the Gospel of His Son, the Word of God, we can be reinstated into communion and fellowship with God the Father and his Son Jesus Christ. In conclusion, let us inquire among ourselves, (every man for himself) Am I engaged in the work of the Lord? If not, it is high time to wake out of sleep. For he cometh to judge the earth; according to every man's work shall the judgment be rendered, and the reward given. Obey God in faith, love, and meekness, and all shall be well.

Markburg, Va.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A NEW SECT.

The Dunkers Establish Themselves in St. Louis—Some of the Peculiarities of the Brethren.

A NEW sect—new to St. Louis—has lately been established in the city, that of the church of the Brethren, or German Baptists, commonly known as Dunkers. Last night they held a meeting at Sturgeon Market Hall, and had prayer and sacred song. The larger portion of the congregation was composed of women, who all wore white lace caps and plain gowns or dresses of dark stuff.

Daniel Vaniman, of Virden, Illinois, presided. He is a tall, well-built, plain spoken man, with heavy black beard—most of the brethren grow beards—full face and well developed forehead. He was assisted by John Metzger, of Cerro Gordo, Illinois, a very old gentleman, on whom infirmity had laid its heavy hand.

Brother Vaniman briefly explained to a Globe Democrat reporter the peculiarities of the church. They baptize only those who have come to the use of reason and are capable of sin. Both the administrator and recipient of the rite go down into the water, and the candidate, while kneeling, is immersed three several times, as "Of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost" is said. The Brethren also lay hands on those they baptize.

They never go to war, nor to law with one another. Disputes are settled in the church. If a member will not pay his just debts, when able, he is expelled by a majority vote.

They do not join secret, oath-bound societies, and will not lift the hand and swear in court, simply affirming.

"The brethren and sisters adorn themselves in plain and modest apparel, and utterly repudiate the vain and ever-changing fashions of the world, comprehending 'the plaiting of the hair, the wearing of gold and of pearls, and of costly array.'"

In connection with the Lord's Supper and Communion—which is a literal supper, including soup—they wash one another's feet. One brother rises, girds himself with a towel, washes and wipes the feet of another, and this latter one does the same by the next, and so on. The sisters perform the same ceremony on the other side of the house.

They practice the salutation of the holy kiss, and the elders anoint the sick members with oil.

Each church is under the supervision of an overseer or bishop. Ministers of the first and second order are elected by the church, each member, even the children, having a vote. Last night there were instances of this. Brother Vaniman asked: "Does this suit you, brother Charles? And you, sister Saxy? And you? And you?"

Besides, there are deacons, or overseers of the poor.

The church in St. Louis comprises fourteen members, many of them late soldiers in the Salvation Army. To day, at 2 P. M., Charles Funk is to be baptized, and, as he is sick, will be carried in a wagon to the water. At 7 P. M., at the hall, the Lord's Supper, Communion, and Feet-washing will take place. The Brethren are eager that every one should come and witness these proceedings.

Sept. 13, '81.

For the Brethren at Work.

DEAR BRETHREN AT WORK.

BY THURSTON MILLER.

I MEAN by this, all who are laboring for the advancement of Christ's kingdom on earth, and the perpetuation of all his ordained institutions in their primitive beauty and simplicity; and not merely the paper bearing that name. To you I address myself upon a subject that has been for some time agitated in the form of a question of right or wrong.

Inasmuch as the Communion season is upon us, and many Feasts are being held all over the land, I thought it might be good to call attention and awaken thought. 1st. Upon the growing propensity among us to discuss at length and with an exhaustive argument, during the time of our Love-feasts, the reasons and authority for engaging in these exercises as we do. And not unfrequently in a boasting and defiant manner challenge the opposition to arise and gainsay our arguments, or to produce Gospel authority to controvert and overthrow our position. Suppose our challenge were accepted on the spot, what would be our condition? A ludicrous predicament to say the least of it, for in complying, the opposition would be pronounced out of order, when in fact they had but accepted an invitation, giving in the strongest of terms; imagine, where we would stand. I have always thought that these seasons were intended for the special benefit of the members of Christ's body, and I feel sure that a boisterous display of even Bible authority and defiant appeals make but few converts to our holy religion. Had we not better then confine our remarks, at such times, to the edifying, instructing and strengthening of the faith of the members, for whom these things were ordained by Christ the Lord, leaving the discussion of those disputed points for times and places where both parties may have equal opportunities and privileges?

I, for one, am willing to begin a reformation and cease this one-sided debating.

And secondly, a desire in some places (I know not how extensive this is) to avoid or cut off the privilege of speaking upon the subject of the sufferings and death of our Savior almost entirely. Twice I have been present where it was forbidden, beyond a very few words, by way of introducing the salutation; and once when it was publicly said that "as this (the sufferings and death of the Savior) was a subject about which there was no disagreement, we should use the time we had in discussing disputed points. How inconsistent this looked to me! For it had been announced in the opening services that we had met to celebrate the sufferings and death of our Lord and Savior; yet we must not talk about it to each other. We had met to partake of the emblems of his broken body and spilled blood, yet we were not to tell the story of cruel mockings, of thorns, of spikes and spear, of groans, of agonies, of despair, and then of death. The Lord Jesus said that we should do these things in remembrance of Him; but now we are admonished that memory is not to be revived, nor the heart deeply impressed by strong and pathetic reference to the awful ordeals through which he passed in order to secure our eternal redemption. But here upon an occasion of the solemn meeting on earth, and amidst the sacred assembly of the saints of God, where every eye should be moistened, every bosom convulsed with emotion, and every heart bleeding at the recollection of circumstances that make necessary these solemn assemblies, an elder coolly advised his co-laborers not to consume time in talking about these things that nobody disputes, but says, "you may review all sects, creeds, and denominations, that disagree with us about Feet-washing, Lord's Supper, Holy Kiss, etc., when they may not answer back again."

Now brethren, when we come to look at it in the light as here represented, does it not look, at least a little unfair? To me it does; and although I have many times, to some degree, indulged in this kind of warfare, yet never without a smitten conscience. And, after much and prayerful thought upon the subject, my opinion is that many times and in many places the thing is overdone, and very much to our hurt.

This is written with a view to caution us against what might become a serious hindrance to a rapid spiritual growth, and not to find fault or invite unprofitable controversy; but to call out our higher thoughts and finer sensibilities upon a solemn subject, and not to restrict us in any right or privilege. Don't understand me that I am opposed to speaking upon the different ordinances; but that it would be with a view to instruct, edify and build up the members of Christ's body, and then "not leave the other undone."

I submit the question, and hope that if I am wrong, some dear brother or sister will be as free to correct me by showing wherein the wrong lies as I have been in presenting these thoughts.

Waterloo Centre, Ind.

For the Brethren at Work.

PERSEVERANCE.

BY I. F. KELSO.

"But ye, beloved, building up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghost, keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life."—Jude 1: 20, 21.

THAT the Christian life is a continued forward work, we have no doubt. We are either advancing or retrograding.

Simply to unite with a certain religious sect, and then consider ourselves saved without further effort, is an erroneous idea.

There is an arduous work before us; for the crown is not to be obtained at the beginning or middle, but at the end.

In verse 29 we are commanded to build and to pray: build on what? On the most holy faith; build ourselves up on the sacred promises and consoling truths of God's word.

The Scriptures always bring forcibly to our minds the good and pure things of life; and cause us to detest and deplore evil and wrong-doing.

Keep yourselves in the love of the Lord. Important thought! How are we to continue therein? Here is the Scriptural answer direct. If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love.

Looking forward unto eternal life. Let us press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus, ever looking forward unto the author and finisher of our faith.

To the only wise God our Savior, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever.

Waterloo, Iowa.

For the Brethren at Work.

LEAVING HOME.

BY LIZZIE H. DELP.

WHEN we leave home and go forth into the wide world, do we realize what it is? I fear we have but a faint conception of the importance of the step we are taking.

The parting hour is sacred, for human lips cannot express all that is passing through the hearts of those who are bound together by the strongest cords of love, and who are about to be separated. It may be the brother is about to leave the parental home. As he presses the last kiss upon the lips of a sister and brothers, he receives in return a silent caress; he grasps the hand of his father, who utters a solemn "God bless you, my son," and he approaches mother. Ah! who can tell the varied emotions, who can fathom the thoughts that are passing through her mind at this moment, when she beholds him leaving home, going away from her watchful love and care, where she can no longer shield him from temptation; she trembles for his future, and with an earnest prayer to God to bless and protect him she gives him farewell.

With all this deeply graven upon the scroll of his memory, can he stray from the right path? He meets with many temptations, but memory is ever bringing to view the picture of the happy ones at home; can he do anything that would bring to their cheek the blush of shame? Ah no! thank God for these memories of a happy home; they are a shield against crime; many a youth who is an honored member of society would have been ruined but for Home influences.

Mainland, Pa.

For the Brethren at Work.

DRENNEN AGAIN.

BY JOHN RUSLEY.

AS for the Drennen and Fennimore debate I do think the less we say about it the better off we are, as both men were rough, and Drennen the worst of the two. I was Drennen's moderator; it was as much as I could to keep him in order. I do not like to expose any one and have said nothing yet, but it must be stopped or I will give a full account of Drennen—how he did in our church and how he did at Argos. If Drennen is one of our smartest brethren, I pity the ignorant. He chewed and smoked tobacco and drank enough whiskey during the debate to cause his mind to be confused. I know whereof I affirm. I told him on the first day that he would have to do better or I would go home. I persuaded him, or the parties, not to debate the kingdom question, for I was tired of their slangs.

Now let this suffice for the present; but if I should hear any more from T. W. Drennen then I will give you a full history of him. And as to Fennimore, if he boasts any more we will get some of our ignorant brethren at him, if he has converted our smartest.

MANY an unwise parent labors hard and lives sparingly all his life for the purpose of leaving enough to give his children a start in this world, as it is called. Setting a young man afloat with money left by his relatives, is like tying bladders under the arms of one who cannot swim; ten chances to one he will lose his bladders and go to the bottom. Teach him how to swim, and he will never need bladders. Give your child a sound education, and an honorable trade, or profession, and you have done enough for him. See to it that his morals are pure, his mind cultivated, and his whole nature made subservient to the laws which govern man, and you have given him what will be of more value than the wealth of the Indies.

For the Brethren at Work.

NON-CONFORMITY AND UNIFORMITY.

BY J. S. FLOYD.

THE idea or doctrine of non-conformity to the world apart from uniformity to any established peculiarity of the church is the latest inconsistency advanced in the direction of religious innovation. A more cunning plan to overthrow the self-denying principles of the Gospel, would be hard for Satan to devise. And strange to say there are those, who, Ere-like, are ready to listen to and accept the wily arguments of the great deceiver of mankind.

To the question, why a people accepting the non-conformity principles of the Gospel should object to a reasonable, modest, and comfortable uniformity in mode of apparel and general appearance, there can be but one true answer and that is a dislike to be odd or different from the world, and the very fact of this dislike existing in the mind is an evidence that the person has not been converted to the real true principle of non-conformity to the world. What! believe in the principle of non-conformity and not practice it? We have already too much of this inoperative faith in the religious world. But, says one, we may be conformed to the world to a certain degree, just so we do not run into the excesses of fashion and folly like the world and in this way we can carry out the principles of non-conformity. Indeed! well let us see how that will work. You can, according to your logic, go to a horse-race and act prudently (?) in only betting a few dollars and not run in excess in betting hundreds like the world does. Or you can go into a saloon and play cards for a glass of lemonade, and by not going into the excess of gambling for rum or money as the world does, you thus show your principles of non-conformity! Then you can go into the ball room and just take a few whirls for exercise, and by not dancing to excess you show up the principles of non-conformity in a most affecting manner! You say there is no harm in doing as the world does only so you don't run to excess, or conform to the world in what you (to your way of thinking) judge to be not sinful. Yes we see now your idea of non-conformity without uniformity! That is, you feel to adopt the cut and style of the world in dress, trim and color your mount-che as the world does, just so it is modest (?) and so long as you don't go into the excesses of fashion you are a non-conformist. Yes we see! but things in that direction look rather dark.

Once a man said, "I don't believe in teetotalism, I am temperate in all things; 'tis true, I sometimes get drunk, but then I go to bed and sleep it off, I don't make a beast of myself or disturb any one's." That was his idea of temperance—a little like non-conformity without uniformity.

A person may be a non-conformist in the extreme of acting silly and dressing in an absurd distasteful manner; and this doctrine of non-conformity without uniformity leaves every one to act as their most absolute folly may dictate; whilst the principle of uniformity brings all to see the beauty and consistency of a neat apparel, such as is in harmony with comeliness, neatness and common sense.

Says one, I have no objection to making non-conformity a test of church fellowship, but I am not willing to make uniformity a test. The evidences of non-conformity are dim indeed, where there is no disposition to uniformity in any thing other than to be as near like the world as one dare be. When a professed non-conformant stands up so stiff against uniformity as to lean strongly toward the world one may know that the principles of uniformity are in the last throes of strangulation.

It is a fact that when the principles contained in the Scriptural injunctions, "Be not conformed to the world," "Be separate," "love not the world," "The lust of the eye and the pride of life are not of the Father," are applied to the Christian character, it will bring one and all to the same thing, which is uniformity, and nothing else.

Some have taken exceptions to uniformity because now and then a man or woman was found who were strict advocates of the doctrine and yet themselves devoid of piety. Is hypocrisy any less sinful in a member who is conforming to the world than one who conforms to the church rules? Or should we condemn anything because of the abuse of it? Certainly not.

This antagonistic opposition to uniformity avows of the same spirit that has made such sad havoc with the simplicity of Gospel truths in the lives of professed Christians,—to cause the simple ordinance of God to be trampled upon and the religious world to arise above the self-denying principles of the meek and lowly Savior. Once let the church say, we do not recognize uniformity as one of our peculiarities, then farewell to non-conformity as an expressive feature in our fraternity. United they stand, divided both fall! Can there be any other reason why objection should be brought against uniformity, only that the worldly-minded might have liberty, and converts the more readily be obtained? Yes! converts to what? To a religion that has no cross, no self-denying principles—a religion that separates not from the world. From such a religion may the Lord ever keep us as a people.

There are now, as in apostolic times, preachers who would compass the whole world to make converts, and when made, make them two-fold more the children of darkness than themselves, and those who would make merchandise of the Gospel and expect to enhance their financial prospects in proportion to the number of converts they get.

I by no means wish to detract the mind of the reader from the fact that non-conformity and uniformity of themselves are as tinkling cymbals or sounding brass—they can make no man or woman a Christian, nothing saving in them, apart from the indwelling of Christ, back of any tangible, visible manifestation of his life. It is the true faith of the Gospel and Christ within the soul that results in the external fruits of non-conformity. No faith is saving only that which brings us humbly to the cross of Christ, destroys self and every vestige of love for the world. One must become dead to the world and then the world will be dead to us. How easy then to become, not only a non-conformist, but anti-conformist.

A soldier is no less a soldier because of his uniform, yet he is what he is, and all men know it.

Christ within, is the Christian's hope of glory; but Christ without, in the fashioning of our lives as seen of all men, is the light by which the world may see what the true principles of the cross are.

If we would have the world converted, we must be true ourselves—true to every expression of the principles of the Gospel. Christ crucified must enswathe itself through every fiber of our being, the cross of the cross! is the agonizing cry there; but in heaven the exultant cry will be, the crown! the crown!

For the Brethren at Work.

FOUND IN AFRICA.

BY D. E. BRUBAKER.

AWAY up three hundred miles, or more, North of Cape Colony, in the wilds of Africa, the missionary Livingston found a poor ignorant tribe of heathen that seemed to be absolutely wanting in the remotest approaches to anything like faith in prayer.

Livingstone says of them: "It was almost impossible for these poor creatures to restrain their amusements when I would kneel down to pray. They saw no God; and the idea of talking to an unseen being was ridiculous to them."

True it is found that in Africa among the benighted heathen, is found an exact parallel for our English enlightened heathen in this country.

If, in the presence of some of our skeptics, the servant of God would feel it his duty to kneel down and pray, it would be almost impossible for them to restrain their amusement. They see no God, and the idea of talking to an unseen being is ridiculous to them. Really, at first thought one is hardly prepared to believe that there exists such a union of sentiment between the heathen infidel and his brethren in this country; but in the judgment the balance of favor will be in behalf of the African. See Matt. 10: 15.

An amusing application of the wonders of the telephone as an assistant detective of crime comes to us from Julius. Several horses were recently stolen in that neighborhood, and suspicion fell upon a certain Indian as the thief. Some one having introduced a telephone upon there, the same was being exhibited, when it occurred to the owner of the stolen horses to get the Indian to come in and hear the "Great Spirit" talk. The Indian took one of the cups and was thrilled with astonishment at being apparently so near the Great Keeper of the hunting grounds. After some little time spent in word-rant the Indian was solemnly commanded by the "Great Spirit" to "give up the stolen horses!" dropping the cup as if he had been shot, he consented to having stolen the horses and tremblingly promised if his life was spared, he would restore the "caballos" to once, and his did so.—San Diego Union.

The memory of the just is blessed.

Home and Family.

MARY C. NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN. - EDITRESS

NON-CONFORMITY TO THE WORLD.

And be not conformed to the world. Rom. 12: 2.

THE above text is an excellent rule for the Christian's conduct which he may apply when tempted to follow the course of this world. It is easy to know what the world loves, and pursues; and it is easy to remember that the Christian must take a different course. There is not one of the commands of God more uniformly broken by the Christian world than this. It is agreed upon by all to be a doctrinal truth, yet in its very face, professed followers of Christ deny it in practice. There are, comparatively, few of whom we can speak with certainty and say, these are followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. And when we express ourselves thus, many get deeply offended and consider us uncharitable judges; because we doubt the reality of their Christian profession. It should be remembered that it is written, "by their fruits ye shall know them." Matt. 7: 16 There is a real and essential distinction between the world and the church; which is made abundantly plain from the Scriptures of Divine Truth.

Jesus hath said of his disciples, "they are not of this world, even as I am not of this world." John 17: 16.

Again, we learn from 1 John 5: 19, "And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness." Hence a distinction prevails throughout the entire Bible. Everywhere God's people are represented as differing from the world. Believers are called children of God; others, the children of the devil and the children of wrath; the one are friends, the other enemies; one far from God, the other brought nigh to God.

Was not the death of Christ designed to deliver his people from this present evil world, to save them from the evil that is in the world, to make a separation, and to purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works? Most assuredly this was the design. The Gospel of Christ calls believers to be separate, and it is also the instrument of effecting a separation. "Come out from among them, and be ye a separate people, saith the Lord." 2 Cor. 6: 17.

It is therefore necessary that a proper distance be kept from idolaters and unbelievers, and nothing but the Gospel of Christ will cause division or disunion with the world; thereby the truthful believer is crucified to the world, and the world unto him; thus faith, which is the bond of union with Christ, keeps us in the straight and narrow path which leads to immortal glory. Hence, the marks of distinction are visible.

We would not have you understand that we mean believers should wholly avoid intercourse with the people of the world. Nay, then we must needs go out of the world (1 Cor. 5: 10); but we would have you understand according to the Gospel, that Christians are not to countenance the sinful fashions and immoral habits which are practiced by the people of the world. Religion does not require a morose and sullen, or uncivil behavior to the people of the world, neither does it require an entire exclusion from the affairs of this life; but it requires a wise, holy, prudent conduct among men, and thereby condemn the world, as to what is evil in it, and recommend the Gospel, they (believers) profess, to the notice and approbation of others; and thus preserve them from utter corruption.

The god of this world is very cunning and crafty. He has many worshippers who bow down in reverence to his commands. He is a triune god; consisting of the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life. His works are manifest, as adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, wrath, strife, sedition, envyings, murders, revelings, and such like (Gal. 5: 19-21). Hence the marks of distinction are visible.

We lose confidence in those who profess to follow Christ, when at the same time they are conformed to all the ungodly fashions and customs of this world; for we learn from the Scriptures of Divine Truth, that all ungodliness and worldly lusts, must be denied if we would be true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ.

We would just remark that if the apostle Paul were here among us, it would puzzle him to distinguish the Christian from the world. If they have been made new creatures in Christ, we would like to know, what was their appearance when old? M. C. N.

HOW YOU TAKE THEM.

WHAT people call "worries," are very common. Often they come from mere trifles, but they are not the less "worries" for that. Little things sometimes vex and trouble us more than great things.

"I am so worried with the children," says one who is the mother of a large family; "I cannot get a quiet moment."
"Something happened to worry me this morning, and I have felt upset all day," says another.

"One thing or another is always coming to worry me," complains a third, taking a more general view, and setting himself down as more tried with worries than other people.

But, after all, worries depend very much on how you take them. What puts one person out for a whole day will hardly disturb another for a moment; and a lot in life that seems to one full of trouble and vexation, is found by another peaceful and happy.

"Ah! I know that very well," cries Mrs. Sharp; "but I can't take things so quietly. There is Mrs. Meek, now, next door; come what may, nothing ever seems to put her out; but I'm not one of that sort."

Well, Mrs. Sharp, is not that just what I said? Worries depend very much on the way we take them. You agree with me, you see Mrs. Meek takes them one way, and you take them another. And you grant they do not trouble her so much as they do you. Is not her way the best?

"Yes, but I can't take things as she does. I'm not one of those quiet folks; and when worries come I must be worried."

Stop! not so fast. I am not so sure there is any must about it. Do you strive against being worried? When things turn out amiss, or the children are troublesome, or any one says something that vexes you, do you try not to be vexed, or worried, or put out? For that is what Mrs. Meek does.

Again, do you match against worries? You know they are likely to come; do you prepare your mind for them, that you may meet them aright, and get the better of them? I am much mistaken if your neighbor Meek does not do this too.

Once more, do you pray? I know your neighbor does that.

Depend upon it, Mrs. Sharp, it is chiefly trying, and watching, and praying, that makes your neighbor so much less worried by things than you are. Perhaps she may be of a quieter disposition by nature; but she never would have been able to meet the troubles of life as she does without God's help, and that she gets by prayer. She strives, she watches, she prays, and God helps her. That is Mrs. Meek's way. Yet she is only a poor woman like you. And what she does you can do. (N.)

A QUESTION NOT SETTLED YET.

THE question of the antiquity of man is raised for the hundredth time by some discoveries lately reported in different parts of our country. The city of St. Louis is having a new sewer made through solid limestone rock twelve feet below the level; and therea, or still lower, it is said, has been found a new bone, or bones, which "scientists" will make haste to pick. Near the substratum of the rock the workmen came upon two human feet, firmly planted in the rock. The calf of the leg can be traced, but the other foot possesses only a part of the ankle. They occupy natural positions, as if the individual that owned them had been standing erect in the mud that hardened into limestone. No traces of the body are visible. Persons who have seen the fossils do not doubt that they are intimately related to some departed human being. Hardly more creditable or less incredible is the statement that workmen boring a well near Athens, Ga., have found a perfect iron wedge such as rail-splitters use, in the middle of a solid blue granite rock, forty-six feet below ground. The wedge, according to the Georgia paper which relates the discovery, was in perfect state of preservation.—Sel.

I BELIEVE that virtue shows gifts as well in rags and patches as she does in purple and fine linen. I believe that she and every beautiful object in external nature, claims some sympathy in the breast of the poorest man who breaks his scanty loaf of daily bread.

HE who hat an enemy, gives him more reason for animosity; he who shuns him, creates the suspicion that he hates him; he who forgives him, always triumphs over him; he who loves him, makes him a means of good.

THE man whose thoughts, motives, aspirations and feelings are all devoted to himself is the poorest of Judges as to the effect of his own action on other men.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

OCTOBER 11, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE, }
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Edwin Eby,	A. W. Jones,	D. S. Brunsaker,
Andrew Brown,	S. S. Mohley,	J. J. Boush,
Daniel Vaniman,	Mattie A. Lutz,	J. W. Southwood.

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not indulge in personalities and unchristian language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.00 per annum. Those sending eight names and $10 will receive no extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the balance.

Money sent by Post-office Order, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be our rule.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

FACTIONS.

WITH the face of God before your eyes, read the text and study the thoughts and results of factions and divisions:

For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you. Now this I say, that every one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ. Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul? 1 Cor. 11-14.

There was probably some peculiarity about Paul which caused men to admire him more than they did others; hence they unduly set their affections upon him, forgetting Christ, and began to follow the apostle, calling them selves Paulians. No doubt they boasted they were Paulians, and this caused division. Another class chose some peculiarity of Apollos and swinging around that peculiarity—announced themselves as Apollonians. A third party found a peculiarity in Cephas, and made it a central thought around which they rallied, and called themselves Kephians. The remainder and they were for Christ—a saying in which they were perfectly justifiable. If all the others ran away after men, Christians, were precisely right in remaining with Christ.

When brother Paul heard of the contentions and divisions he immediately wrote a letter to the church. And what did he write? Did he urge the brethren who declared themselves Paulians to hold fast to him—to yield not to the others? Did he say to them of Peter,

I withdrew him to the face, because he was to be blamed. For before that certain came from James, he did eat with the Gentiles; but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision. And the other Jews dissembled likewise with him; insomuch that Barnabas also was carried away with their dissimulation. But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of the Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?

Did he say to them because Peter did this, they should stand against the followers of Cephas and Apollos? Did he boast that he was the author of all that was good among them? No; for boasting was excluded by the law of faith—Rom. 3: 27. Did he tell them to separate from each other? Did he inflame their passions against others by denouncing Cephas and Apollos? Did he try to make all of his sect white, and those of others black? None of these things did Paul; but like a Christian he turned the word of reproof upon them saying, "Is Christ divided?" "Was Paul crucified for you?" "Were ye baptized into the name of Paul?" "O what cutting reproof! What loyalty to Christ on the part of Paul! Here was an opportunity to become a great leader of a faction, but he spurned it; for accepting it meant death and loss of eternal happiness. No Paulians after that. With the power of God he put them to shame, and they returned to the Lord Christ. Let us notice another point.

Paul did not say, "Was Peter crucified for you?" "Were ye baptized into Apollos?" Nay; but rather he puts the question about himself, humiliating as it may be. He thus spares the feelings of the Kephians and Apollonians.

But there was a class at Corinth that had not gone astray—that did right. It was those who remained with Christ. No difference if some did after Paul, some after Cephas, some after Apollos, those who were for Christ were right. The Christian party was right for declaring fixedly for Christ. A man is perfectly justifiable in remaining with Christ. No one will be condemned for refusing to go into a party or faction headed by men. But to a modern picture—or rather the old Corinthian picture reproduced.

One man announces with show and vauncheon that he is a "Progressive." What does this mean? Is the word found in the Bible? No, not there! God, Christ, the Holy Spirit nor the apostles, ever gave commandment for a man to rise up among his brethren and call himself a "Progressive." What does he mean? Does he mean that those who do not think as he thinks, walk as he walks, talk as he talks, are unprogressive? If he does not mean that, certain it is, that is how it is received by those who differ from him. He takes some idea, calls it Progressive, swings around it, makes a great noise, attracts some to his standard, and thus gets up a party. Such as do not bow down to his central thought are "dull," and "stupid," and "bigoted," and "foggyish" and "unlearned." This causes division. Could there be division over "Progression" if no one would make it a hobby, cry it up and down the land, denounce those who refuse to swallow the whole thing? Does not the man who screams "Progression" virtually declare that all who will not believe as he does, are in error? Does he not virtually say that Peter did not express growth sufficiently clear when he said, "grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ?" Is not this the way to state the church's position on growth? Or does "Progression" mean something different from growth in grace and knowledge? It would seem so, because the language of the Book is not enough for so-called "Progressives." If the men who say, "I am a Progressive," would forever cease saying that, and say "I am for Christ," (1 Cor. 4: 10) there would be no divisions from that source. To "Progressives," Paul would say, "Is Christ divided?" "Was 'Progression' crucified for you?" "Were ye baptized into Progression?" Away with such degrading, soul destroying efforts among men!

Therefore be it known unto all men that we shall not aid, abet, countenance, nor in any manner give strength to a "Progressive party" in the church of God; but by grace divine, shall teach that men everywhere should "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."—2 Pet. 3: 18. This is enough for a Christian, and more than enough is superfluous. Just as little as Paul would endorse Paulianism, so little do we endorse, as a whole, what sails under the banner of "Progression." It has a pernicious tendency—makes divisions, alienates from Christ, leads to destruction and eternal misery. "Growing in grace," "growing in knowledge, is Bible enough for us. We need coin no new terms, make them the centre of a faction, and lead to division. It is enough to know "All ye are brethren."—Matt. 23: 8. It is enough to know "ye are all the children of God"—Gal. 3: 26. These are the names to use—they make no division in the church, and are of God.

Another picks out a particular feature in the church and calls it "Old Order," makes it his central thought, talks about it, until he induces some to follow him, and thus he creates a faction—a party in the church. There is some principle in the Gospel which he puts foremost, under the name "Old Order," and makes that his motto. Does he mean that those who will not think as he thinks, talk as he talks, acts as he acts, are for confusion? This is the impression he makes whether he so means or not, and the result is faction—division. Does he mean that Christ is divided? Were ye baptized into "Old Order?" Was "Old Order" crucified for you? This is how Paul would write to you. Had not some made "Old Order" their shield, thus raised a cry in its favor, would there be division over that?

Do you think ignorant souls could have been deluded by such a plea, if all had said as Christ, "All ye are brethren?" As for us it is enough about the manner of applying Gospel principles to do as Paul says, "Let all things be done decently and in order." The thing to be done, and the way of doing it are two things. To be pitied is he who attempts to live on the manner of making bread instead of the bread itself. The skeleton is not the life. The plow is not the corn; it is only a means of producing the corn. A very little wisdom will show what order is.

But here comes a third man crying "Conservatism." He has found some peculiarity in church government, calls it "Conservatism," and rallies around it attracting followers to his call. He tells it in a way to leave the impression that others are not conservative, thus alienating all citizens, and causing bitter feelings. No man has a right to turn from Christ and make "Conservatism" his rallying cry, neither God, Christ, the apostles, nor the Spirit ordained any one to set up such a thing as "Conservatism" as a wedge to separate. Was any one baptized into "Conservatism?" Was "Conservatism" crucified for you? Put away this term and use Bible words which unite. Keep the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace.

The "Progressive" may have some good things in his creed; but all the good there is in it, is in the Bible; and he has no right to take some of the Bible, mix it with his notions, and induce men and women to accept it as the Bible idea of religion and government. Without doubt the "Old Order" has in it some Gospel principle; but whatever Gospel principle there is in it was taken from the Gospel. It is wrong for a man to take part of the Gospel, mix it with his notions and pass it off for the Gospel. That there are some good principles in "Conservatism" we do not deny; but whatever good there may be in it, was taken from the Word of God, and we deny the right of any man to take a part of the Word and mix his notions with it, and make the mixture a point around which to rally. It is wrong, and begets delusion.

Now what shall the remedy be? Shall this factionism continue until there be little squall over the land? Shall man have followers in every little notion they may chance to present? Let there be a change! Let every man make Christ the central object. Put away these nesciptural names; for the word "Progressive," "Old Order," "Conservative" and "Congregational Brethren" are not found in the Book. Let there be less honor seeking. Let there be less nick-naming—less pulling down of love, and more building up in that holy faith of Je us. Let there be less concern for show, vanity and position in the world. Let there be less effort to hold authority over each other. Let there be more submission one to the other—more studying and obeying the Gospel, and less studying how to circumvent and encompass each other.

Probably we have written quite plainly—may be some of you will not relish the dish, but duty demanded that something be said in defense of the Gospel and in behalf of the church of Christ. The church is growing; so God decreed. The church will walk orderly; for so God ordained. The church is steadfast; for so God commanded. And we repeat what we have several times before declared, that the church,—this great Brotherhood, which God commands we shall love—has never, in all its counsels, prevented any brother walking humbly before God. It has never entered a bar to any one dealing justly with all men. It has never advised any to be unmerciful. In all of its counsels, it has aimed to help the followers of Christ to live holily and blamelessly before God. And as a crown of life is the object of being in the church, and as the church has never prevented any one from living so as to obtain this, in the name of Jesus, why all this fussing, quarreling—devonring? God look with pity on those who oppose themselves! Is it wrong to be for the whole Brotherhood? Is it wrong to love the one body? If so, then we are wrong indeed.

Now for the call to primitive Christianity—this plea for oneness—this demand for the abolishing of party names, what may we expect? We may expect from the great majority "God bless you!" We may expect from thousands of humble souls, praises to God that God's grace was sufficient to enable some to speak forth words of truth and soberness with great boldness. We may expect a few to garble our article—to twist it. The devil will write, and fame, and worry, and the world will applaud his angels that shall thrust in the worldly sword. Misrepresentations,—vitiations, bitterness, and anathemas will likely be pronounced against us; yet we shall be for Christ. We have no idea that our whole article will be published by any one who is a factionist. Such have forgotten their first love and how the Lord forgave them.

Brethren be not removed from the hope of the Gospel. Use no party name. Christ is broad enough for all. "Brethren," and "family of God" and "peculiar people," and "one body" and "church of God" are terms good enough for Christians. Factionists and opinionists put these aside for their own, or add to them for their purposes. Softer no dogmatic theory to turn you from God, Christ, the apostles and the Holy Ghost. Neither Hermogenes, Hymanus, nor Diotrophes are good examples. Some may succeed in drawing away disciples after them; but the great body—the beloved of the Lord—"the family of God" will go on seeking more and more God's good pleasure and a holy life. Christ is our life. Col. 3: 3. Is he yours?

LAST WEEK'S LOOKING-GLASS.

—NUMBER 38 is on my table. I see your press-man is improving—glad of that; your readers like good press work.

—The itum department is interesting this week, if much of it was written in less than three hours before going to press.

—I am glad that Bro. Titus, of Pine Creek, Ill., has been put to the ministry. Hope he will prove as useful to the church as did the Titus to whom Paul addressed one of his epistles. I would like to have been present, and heard some brother, whose name is Paul, deliver the charge. It would have been Paul's charge to Titus, reminding one of apostolic times.

—I think the right man has gone to Canada. Bro. John Wise is a credit to the cause he advocates. What a good work Bro. John Metzger is doing in St. Louis! It makes me feel sad so thick that the good brother is getting old. I wish he could live to be as old as Methusalem just to do the work that others are neglecting. I wonder if people will now say that missionary work in the cities is a failure?

—Bro. Bulsbaugh's bulletin is the most interesting thing I have seen from his pen in a long while. I wish every mother could master all the wisdom there is implied in the last sixteen lines of the second paragraph. If all the matter there is in those sixteen lines was properly explained it would fill a volume of over one hundred pages. No one should fail to read the entire article if he has not already done so.

—Bro. Flory explains his subject well. There is too much of this half-way conversion to and around the church.

—I like the idea of filling the paper with original matter as much as possible.

—Sister Norman continues to do her work well. An energetic little woman, in a small house, can sometimes do much more work for the cause of humanity than many of those who live in grand and costly palaces.

—The editor seems inclined to trouble Isaac Errett rather much. This trine immersion, however, is rather annoying to the single immersionist generally. They know not how to get rid of it. If they blot it out of existence, a gap of nearly three hundred years is left between the origin of single immersion and the apostolic age, in which no immersion is to be found.

—I fear some of the readers may not notice that the article on page 602 is from the Christian Standard.

—When I read Bro. Mohler's reply to Bro. Garman I wondered why he did not tell the reader that "God has made of one blood all nations of men," hence there could not have been another race of people on the earth before Adam. In all probability there were several hundred thousand persons on the earth at the time Cain knew his wife—all descendants of Adam and Eve. Thus Cain would not have been compelled to marry his sister in order to get a wife.

—There is too much correspondence to be noticed in detail. It is all interesting.—J. H. MOORE.

From Ziss's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER II.

THE Church of St. Jacques is the handsomest in Antwerp. It contains nearly all the monuments of the leading families of the city, and also the tomb of Rubens, who was buried here. Beside the monuments, the church is filled with choice paintings. The Hotel de Ville is a handsome structure, several of the rooms being finely frescoed and contained beautifully carved chimney-pieces. Our time was too limited to visit the silk manufactories, which are a speciality of this city, the Belgian, Flanders and L-vantines silks being chiefly manufactured. Returning, we passed through the Bourse, which we entered from the street. A colonnade runs round an open area, which is four or five feet below and is entered by granite steps running below the colonnade. Each column or pillar is in bas-relief, and no two alike, and behind each pillar is a tablet showing the space allotted for each member. Passing out, we took, as we thought, the direct course to our hotel, but the streets are more winding and crooked, if possible, than the streets of Boston, and we became perfectly bewildered. We tried to ask our way in German and French, but to all our purpose,—having wandered into the old part of the city, where nothing but Flemish was spoken. The women would look at each other and laugh when we spoke to them; the men seemed to understand our dilemma, but were unable to make us understand them. Finally, one of the party named our hotel, and one of the men instantly comprehended and guided us safely back leaving Antwerp, we directed our course to Brussels, thirty miles distant.

We were whirled over a country perfectly level, but highly cultivated and fertile. Occasionally we would see a ditch with rows of trees each side, but otherwise there was nothing to mark the division of fields, or show where one farm ended and another begun. Not a weed, or thistle, or any unsightly shrub was to be seen, every rod and foot of ground being under the highest state of cultivation, and the party were continually calling to each other to look out of this window or that, to see the beautiful panorama spread out before them. The pleasure which is awakened by seeing a lovely combination of sky and landscape is never diminished, and the freshness and beauty which nature wears, to our eyes is one of the greatest blessings we enjoy. We forgot our weariness, we are not aware of hunger or thirst; we only realize that we are passing through such fields of beauty as we had only dreamed of in our dreams.

At last we were at "Bruxelles," as they call it here. From the windows of our hotel we see bare-headed and quaint head-dressed woman, curious jacketed and breeched peasants, with their teams, which were mostly dogs—stout mastiffs in little carts, harnessed companies like horses, except blinders—little dogs, big dogs, smart dogs, and occasionally a woman and a dog—a most comical sight. They had come into the city early in the day, with vegetables and other wares, and were now returning home. Brussels, like Antwerp, is divided into two parts: the one inhabited principally by the lower working classes, and containing many quaint, old-fashioned, Dutch looking buildings of three centuries ago, while the upper part of the city is the abode of the richer classes, and contains fine, large, open squares and streets, palace gardens and palaces.

For the Brethren at Work.

WAS HE RIPE?

BY MARY C. NORMAN.

WE saw not long since an account of a certain church, in Indiana, having on its records, certain curious items. It was said, that a motion was made that the mind of the church be taken, whether brother Scott is ripe for ordination or not. That motion certainly was in harmony with the Scripture's precept; although it was strangely worded. We know of some even among the Brethren who have received ordination who have proved themselves to be unripe.

ONLY ONE DAY AT A TIME.

A CERTAIN lady had met with a very painful accident which necessitated a very painful surgical operation and many months' confinement to her bed. When the physician had finished his work and was about taking his leave, the patient asked, "Doctor, how long shall I have to lie here helpless?" "Oh, only one day at a time," was the cheery answer, and the poor sufferer was not only comforted for the moment, but many times during the succeeding weary weeks did the thought, "Only one day at a time," come back with its quieting influence. I think it was Sidney Smith who recommended taking "short views" as a safeguard against needless worry; and one, far wiser than he said; "Take, therefore, no thought for the morrow. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

INSTANCES OF EXTRAORDINARY MEMORY.

SELECTED BY D. G. COUSER.

CYRUS, it is said, knew the name of every officer, Pliny has it, of every soldier that served under him. Themistocles could call by name each one of the twenty thousand citizens of Athens. Hortensius could sit all day at an auction and at evening give an account from memory of every thing sold, the purchaser, and price. Moretus saw at Padua a young Corsican, who could repeat, without hesitation, thirty-six thousand names in the order in which he heard them, and then reverse the order and proceed backward to the first.

Dr. Willis, of Oxford, on one occasion at night in bed, proposed to himself a number of fifty-three places, and found its square root to twenty-seven places, and, without writing down numbers at all, dictated the result from memory twenty days afterward. It was not unusual with him to perform arithmetical operations in the dark, as the extraction of roots, e. g., to forty decimal places. The distinguished Euler, blind from early life, had always in his memory a table of the first six powers of all numbers, from one to one hundred. On one occasion two of his pupils, calculating a converging series, on reaching the seventeenth term, found their results differing by one unit at the fifteenth figure, and in order to decide which was correct, Euler went over the whole in his head, and his decision was found afterward to be correct. Pascal forgot nothing of what he had read, heard, or seen. Menage, at seventy-seven, commemorates, in Latin verses, the favor of the gods, in restoring to him after partial eclipse, the full powers of memory which had adorned his earliest life.

The instances now given are mentioned by Mr. Stewart; but perhaps the most remarkable instance of great memory in modern times, is the case of the celebrated Magliabechi, librarian of the Duke of Tuscany. He would inform any one who consulted him, not only who had directly treated of any particular subject, but who had indirectly touched upon it in treating of other subjects, to the number of perhaps one hundred different authors, giving the name of the book, the words, often the page, where they were to be found, and with the greatest exactness. To test his memory, a gentleman of Florence lent him at one time a manuscript he had prepared for the press, and some time afterward, went to him with a sorrowful face, and pretended to have lost his manuscript by accident. The poor author seemed inconsolable and begged Magliabechi to recollect what he could, and write it down. He assured the unfortunate man that he would, and setting about it, wrote out the entire manuscript without missing a single word. He had a local memory also, knew where every book stood.

One day the Grand Duke sent for him to inquire if he could procure a book which was scarce. "No Sir," answered Magliabechi, "it is impossible; there is but one in the world; that is in the Grand Sagnior's library at Constantinople and is the seventh book, on the seventh shelf, on the right hand as you go in."—From Haven's Mental Philosophy.

LUCK is ever waiting for something to turn up. Labor, with keen eyes and stung will, will turn up something. Luck lies in bed, and wishes the postman would bring him the news of a legacy. Labor turns out at six o'clock, and with busy pen or ringing hammer, lays the foundation of a competence. Luck whines. Labor whistles. Luck relies on chance. Labor on character.

Our Bible Class.

J. N. MOHLER, - - - - - EDITOR

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. N. Mohler, Ladsburg, Perry Co., Mo.

Will some one please explain 1 Cor. 14: 34-35? Why are women to keep silence in the church?—Should they not sing or pray or what shall they do? A BROTHER.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations? C. D. H.

Will some one please give the Scripture where it is said that man has an immortal soul, or it is said man has any immortality before the resurrection? A BROTHER.

If man has got immortality, why is he exhorted to seek for it? Rom. 2: 7. A. H. CUSHING.

Please explain the difference between a good man and a righteous man. JOHN Y. SNAVELY.

What are the seven spirits of God? C. D. H.

Please explain Matt 24: 49-51. It reads, "Thou shalt be two in the field; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, the other left." LYDIA ZARNER.

Will some one explain the last part of the 6th verse of the 8th chapter of John? "But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground," etc. How could he write on the ground, when he was in the temple? A SISTER.

Why did Simon want the honor as men loved in those verses—to gain honor, fame, money, or what? PETER BLOWN.

For the Brethren at Work.

QUERY ANSWERED.

Bro. David Moore wants to know whether there is more Scripture for an organ in a family than to dance.

MUSIC has a powerful effect upon the mind. Men and minds alike are influenced by it. In the hottest part of battle, the charming tones of the instruments give new vigor and the discouraged soldiers, with renewed energy, press onward to victory.

In times of sorrow and grief, the weary soul has found relief in waiting his prayers upward to Heaven on the sweet strains of music. This relief has not only been experienced by many Christians to-day, but by David and many brethren of old.

Notwithstanding all these facts, and David's frequent and eloquent appeals for instrumental music, No. 31 of the B. at W., has the above query. In answering the above query, I would say; No; for David refers to dancing about as frequently as he does to playing on instruments. But to answer the question according to the idea, I infer Bro. David intends to convey, I would say, Yes.

There is a great deal of trouble arising from the fact that many things are used, both as an instrument for good and for evil. This is too common an occurrence to need any illustrations. Hence seeing only the evil a thing may do, some people without ever investigating or endeavoring to know whether any good can come out of it, condemn it entirely. Then, too, some families, living for many generations in a peculiar manner, have become so narrow-minded, prejudiced and unchangeable in their views as to think that any thing not precisely like theirs in style and character is entirely wrong and unchristian.

The Bible, from Genesis to Revelations is replete with references to instrumental music.—Let us, in a true Christian spirit, examine and see whether or not we can find a complete and satisfactory answer to this question. Though every Scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness; that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." 2 Tim 3: 16, 17 (Rev. Ed.) and also Rom. 15: 4, yet for fear some may say those old Scripture times are past and we must follow our new law, we will just turn to Rev. 5: 8. There we have the five and twenty elders fallen down before the Lamb, having each one a harp and god's laws of incense, which are the prayers of the saints.

Notice, please, how closely the HARP is associated with the PRAYERS. "Ye," you may say, "but that is not an organ." It is instrumental music, however,—must be performed with the hand, and where is the difference? See also Rev 14: 2; 15: 2. This proves conclusively that there is and will be instrumental music in Heaven. Now, if 'tis not wrong in Heaven, how, if performed in a Christian manner, can it be wrong on earth.

We have ascertained that instruments of music are and will be used in Heaven, and we will see how frequently they were used here on earth. Please refer carefully to the following: 2 Sam. 6: 5; 1 Chron. 15: 28; 16: 42; 2 Chron. 7: 6; 29: 25. Read also Psalm 35; 81; 92; 108.

Is this evidence enough? It is all written for our learning. Oh, how full of joy for the goodness and mercy of God was David! He could not praise Him enough by singing and speaking. Methods he was not one of these Christians who think we must have only one peculiar, sanctimonious look.

Oh, how many hypocrites, who have God no farther than in an outward appearance. But David was of the Lord's children for sure.—"The Lord was with David." 1 Sam. 18: 12-14. And having the Lord with him, he had no time to see whether or not this or that was used by his ancestors; nor even whether or not this or that was used for any bad cause.

But having his heart full of love to God, he must praise him, and harps, cymbals, cornets, stringed instruments, organs and everything by which he could manifest his joy, became subject to Him. After all his grand and glorious work, his songs for all men in every condition, consolation for the depressed, joy for the pure in heart, after these expressions that ring in every true Christian's heart, he closes, with a grand, swelling chorus, bidding us to praise the Lord with stringed instruments and organs. Psalm 150: 4.

David was aware of the power of music. He tried it upon Saul with a powerful result. 1 Sam. 16: 23. So every Christian who has been under its influence, will testify to a like power and effect. Ah! Brethren, let us lay aside prejudice, get the love of God fully in our hearts; and, if truly in earnest, as David was, we will use every available Christian means to show forth that love and praise Him with singing and music—organ, piano, harp, cymbals, or whatever it may be, so that it pleases the Lord.

Yes, let us praise him now as best we can, till He shall take us home, to praise Him forever on the golden harps in the bright fields beyond. H. P. MOYER.

Mohler, Pa.

WHEEL-BARROW RELIGION.

RICHARD BAXTER said a good thing when he said of some one who lived in his day, that they had a "wheel-barrow religion." They went when they were shod.

It would be hard to find a better name for the religion of many who live now. Many people are like wheel-barrow, and no Paddy up and down a steep incline has harder and more weary work than those whose duty it is to push them. As often as not they are quite empty. They take what is put into them, whether it is good or worthless. Whatever knowledge—feeling of duty they have, is proof of some one else's work. They are easily upset or emptied, and they have no power or will to get up again. They move as long as a firm hand grasps them and keeps them going. As soon as they are left to themselves they stop, and are helpless and useless unless they are lifted. When they move, it is up and down, backward and forward, never getting any further, or showing any life of their own.

It is wrong for Christians to tell the world that there is no happiness except in following Christ. One can find happiness in any course of life. But the question is as to the kind of happiness. The person who feeds on the pleasure which the miser, the pragmatist, or the devotee of fashion knows, is feeding on a very poor quality of happiness. And then one of the laws of the universe is that "there is always something left." Even a lighthouse does not leave us as it found us. Some reefs broaden and some contract. Some leave peace and some leave unrest, some give life and some give death. In order to secure the greatest success in the matter of happiness, or anything else, we must look not at the beginning alone, but also at the end; we must always ask ourselves what will be left. In these two respects a Christian life can be urged upon the unconverted without giving them any chance to argue or doubt; the Christian's happiness is of a finer quality than that of the worldling, and that which results from the Christian life is golden, while the results from worldliness are tinsel and dross.

HAPPINESS is like manna. It is to be gathered in the grain and enjoyed every day; it will not keep; it cannot be accumulated; nor need we go out of ourselves, nor into remote places to gather it, since it has rained down from heaven, at our doors, or rather within them.

Correspondence.

Proceedings of North Missouri District Meeting.

The North Missouri District Meeting met in council at Whitesville, Sept. 9th. The meeting was opened with prayer, by brother William Sell. The fourth chapter of Ephesians was then read, after which the following officers were elected: D. D. Sell, Moderator; William B. Sell, Reading Clerk; and P. E. Whitmer, Writing Clerk. Out of fourteen churches eight were represented.

The following are some of the most important queries disposed of:

1. We, the Brethren of the Bethel church, do hereby petition District Meeting to grant us the privilege of constructing outside of our church an artificial place for baptizing.

Granted.

FROM THE LOG CREEK CHURCH.

1. Is it not high time that the churches of North Missouri should by this D. M. be admonished and required to exercise themselves more rigidly against the growing tendency, of members following the fashions such as wearing fashionable coats, shirt-bosoms and collars, and with their hair as it beads in style after the fashions of the world and that of wearing of hats and reefs as by the sisters?

ANS.—According to Minutes of A. M., these things cannot be allowed; for they are not in harmony with Rom. 12: 2, 1 Pet. 3: 3, and 1 Tim. 2: 9.

Passed.

2. Is it in harmony with the order of the church, when necessary, for brethren not in office to go on annual visits, when authorized to do so by the official brethren?

ANS.—It is.

3. May our district clerk dispose of all papers in his possession after faithfully entering the same in the district record book?

ANS.—He may.

SMITH FORK CHURCH.

1. Has the church the right to forbid members voting in church council, who are under charge, and have been visited from time to time, and who have as often refused to comply with the wish of the church?

ANS.—It has not.

WHITE CLOUD CHURCH.

1. In order to avoid future failures in our Home Mission work, we petition D. M. to elect alternates.

Petition granted.

The meeting then proceeded to elect two evangelists to carry on the Home Mission work. Vote resulted in selecting brethren C. C. Root and Wm. B. Sell; and for alternates S. A. Honbarger and P. E. Whitmer.

Brother J. Bouserman was retained as Treasurer, and brother S. A. Honbarger was elected delegate to A. M. and Wm. B. Sell for alternate.

District Meeting for 1882 granted to the Smith Fork church.

A lengthy discussion relative to our Home Mission, and the best plan for more successfully conducting the same resulted in but little change in the plan formerly adopted.

The best feelings prevailed throughout the entire meeting, and all seemed to realize "that it was good for us to be here," and labor in the house of the Lord, for the good of Zion. And in connection with the feast of love, which was held the day previous, it was truly an occasion, to which the mind can but revert with pleasure, as one of the green spots in our Christian experience.

P. E. WHITMER.

From John Zuck—The Brethren of the Indian Creek church, Polk Co., Iowa, held their Love-feast the 24th and 25th of Sept. They were favored with fine weather.... Plenty of ministerial assistance from adjoining churches was present to deal out the Word of Life. The attendance was very large. Some of the Brethren remarked that about 700 people were fed at noon the second day of meeting.... This church seems to be in a healthy condition, working together for the upbuilding of Zion and the salvation of precious souls. Two were added to the church by baptism at their church meeting shortly before their Love-feast, and three on the first day of the Feast. This truly is encouraging.... This arm of the church has also erected a large and convenient house for worship this season—61x76. The Love-feast was the first public service held in it. At this meeting brother Henry Troop was advanced to the second degree of the ministry, and Francis Pike was called to the deaconship, whose charges were given by E. J. Jos. Trostle in an impressive manner. May the Lord assist them to honor their callings.... It was a pleasure to me to renew many former acquaintances at this Feast, as well as to make many new ones of brethren of adjoining churches. As I had labored some for the brethren here the past two Winters, I felt like enjoying a Love-feast with them. May the Lord bless them with "glory, honor, and peace" for their well-doing (Rom. 2: 10) and their Christian courtesy.... At this writing I am enjoying the home of Eld. D. E. Brubaker. Meeting again to night (Sept. 26th.)—Polk Co., Iowa.

From Harriet Buck—Met in council on the 6th of Sept. Brethren E. Forney and R. Gush were with us. Business of the church settled satisfactorily. Love and union among the members. Next came the ordaining of C. S. Holsinger to the eldership; also an election for the office of deacon. The lot fell on brother William Beck (husband of the writer) and preaching every evening up to the time appointed for our Love-feast, which was on the 10th of September. Just before evening services began, we repaired to the water where two souls were buried with Christ in baptism. Returning to the place of meeting we found Bro. J. Kudiz present. People from far and near gathered, until the house, though large, was filled to the uttermost. There were about forty-two communicants around the Lord's tables. A deep solemnity seemed to pervade the assembly. The best of order throughout the entire meeting. Services again Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Brother Forney preached a very touching discourse from Matt 24: 44 Sinners were warned to flee the wrath to come, and saints were edified and encouraged on their way to glory. At the close of the morning meeting one more soul heeded the warnings, and again the waters were troubled. We feel that there are others that are almost persuaded to become Christians. May God help them to be not almost, but fully persuaded.—Lacon, Ill.

From Lyman M. Eby.—I have hastily penned a few articles for B. A. W. and Y. A. I apologize for the manner in which they are written, as I was compelled to do the work on short allowance. If sufficiently weighty, insert in your paper, if not, consign to waste basket and I'll try again. I'll not get mad as some others may. Nothing is more pleasing to me than to sit down and talk to the little folks. I will have more time now, as our Sunday-school has closed, and you know I cannot be idle. My mind works if the hands don't. Herein is where I derive the most happiness. I would rather wear out than rust out. We had a very excellent Love-feast. Were much strengthened. My mind is often with you, and in spirit I am there, though not bodily. I would like to step into your sanctuary once more, and if I am spared I may. I miss the associations of the dear young brethren. Would like to receive at least a note from them once in a while. May our Father bless and keep you and yours, and may he strengthen you for your arduous labors so that you faint not.... Oct. 7th was the day appointed for the Feast in the Harlan church. The day was pleasant, cool, and lovely, betokening God's approbation of the proceedings of his children. During the previous week the Brethren held meeting each evening. They labored faithfully and earnestly, proclaiming the Word of God in its primitive purity. Their labors were crowned with success, as one precious soul came out on the Lord's side—made the good confession and put on Christ. No minister present but those resident, as the Harlan church is isolated. In the evening a small band of brethren and sisters surrounded the table of the Lord, and participated in the ordinances of God's house, concomitant anew their allegiance to the "Lord of Hosts" and pledging their obedience to one another. The small house was not large enough to contain the crowd that gathered, yet there was good order manifested.... Though we are few in number, we feel that God is aiding us in our work. We do not have the pleasure of associating with neighboring churches as many in the Eastern States have. We feel, by the grace of God to continue laboring in his vineyard until the time of gathering in shall come.—Harlan, Iowa, Oct. 2nd.

From J. W. Southwood—On last Thursday and I attended the Marion Love-feast. Brother Thomas and wife, of our district, were also there; they being on their way to Nettie Creek church. The meeting, though not so large as we have seen at this place, was indeed a pleasant one, and in which many were made to feel strengthened in the Lord. We once more were permitted to meet our much beloved brethren N. W. and J. R. Cramming, of Washburn church. We were with this (the Marion) church a week last Winter.... One was made willing to come and go with them. Our much beloved brethren John Baker and C. Tinkler are still biding forth the Word as good elders and ministers. They are assisted by brethren D. Tinkle and M. Whitbeck. My the blessings of God rest upon them and all his people every where and finally say, this is our prayer.—Monmouth City, Ind., Oct. 2nd.

From F. C. Myers.—The first two sermons ever preached in this city by brethren were preached by brother Daniel Vaniman, Jan. 16, 17, 1881. On the night of the 18th, brother J. Wise conducted the meeting, and on the night of the 20th brother Metzger arrived here and preached the nights of the 20th and 21. This made five sermons. This preaching was done in a church house belonging to the Campbellites. The weather being unfavorable, the congregation was small; but attend vs. This was the last preaching by the brethren until the first of April, when brother Metzger returned and preached two sermons in sister Crawford's house and one in sister Dimont's house. This made eight sermons, and had three applicants for baptism. He then returned to his home, and June 23rd came again. That night he spoke about ten minutes in a meeting conducted by the Salvation Army. He got permission to preach on Sunday the 19th in the hall belonging to the S. A. On Monday 20th he baptiz'd four. Brother Metzger is not is not afraid to speak for the Lord. As the rule of the Salvation Army was to let everybody speak ten minutes for the Lord, of course Bro. Metzger made use of his ten minutes every night he was there.... On the 23rd of June he baptiz'd four more. On the 24th of June he left here for his home. On the third of September he came here, preach'd that night in a hall which we have rented, at $1250 per month. He also preach'd Sunday 4th, at 10 A. M., and at 8 P. M.; also Monday and Tuesday night. On Wednesday he baptiz'd four more and preach'd that night and Thursday night. On Friday the 9th brother Metzger left for home and brother D. B. Gibson took his place. He preached five sermons; but feeling unwell, he left us on Tuesday 13th.... On the 15th Brother Daniel Vaniman came here and commenced the meetings. On the 16th brother Metzger came, accompanied by sisters Hendrick and Stroppe. On that day we had our first council meeting and one more baptiz'd. Preach'd that night and the night following. On Sunday 18th we had preaching in the morning and night. That day an old man was received by baptism. He being ill was taken to the water in a wagon, and was baptiz'd by brother Vaniman. This made fourteen received by baptism in a little over three months. That night at 7 o'clock a table was prepared, and surrounded by eighteen members of the Brethren church, to practice the ordinances of the house of God—Feet-washing, Lord's Supper and Communion. This was the first ever known to have been celebrated in this city. The sisters all appeared in plain attire with their heads covered with a plain white cap. It was supposed that the congregation numbered near about two hundred, and better order could not be wish'd for. From Jan. 16th, 1881, until the day of our Communion, which was the 19th of September, we had about twenty-seven sermons, and fifteen members here, including myself, besides the four visitors with us at that time.... On the morning of the 20th, brother D. Vaniman took his leave for home; and that night sister Stroppe hid us farewell for another part of the world. That night brother Metzger preached, and two came out on the Lord's side, and were baptiz'd on the day following, and on that night brother Metzger still held forth the Word of God to sinners, and a young man came out to unite with us. The day following we went to the river, and he was baptiz'd. On his way from the water he pulled from his pocket those deceitful things—pipe and tobacco—and threw them in the gutter, saying he was done with them. This was a peculiar act, as none of us had yet said anything to him about using tobacco. May the Lord bless and keep him in strength and love, for the truth and Word of G. To-night our dear aged brother Metzger preached his last sermon here for a while. His text was, "J-us wept."

O may the Lord preserve
Brother Metzger for this herd,
For to give us full food
To this weak little herd.

At present, there are eighteen members living in this city, and we hope that the Lord will not cease to pour out His spirit on the people. Dear brethren, you will notice by this letter that the church has had a steady growth here ever since the first addition. I am reminded of the time when the Lord add'd daily to the church such as should be saved.—313 Brooklyn St., St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19.

From John Keim. — Quite a number of brethren and sisters ask me how much Miss Burke, from the Orphans' Home, Chicago, received at our late Annual Meeting. As far as I know, she didn't receive anything, even not her expenses. Last year we had worked up a good light in Chicago, but now it is all in the dark again. Brethren, let us try and be more of a light to the world. We can't show our light by telling the world that we are Christians, but we must show it by our dealings, walk, and conduct; we must do as we promise. We can do a great deal of preaching by our dealings. If sinners will see our good works they will come over on the Lord's side. Let us help the poor, especially the poor orphan children in the church or out of the church. I want to be free to all.—Harpach, Ind., Sept. 10th.

[While we would have been pleased to see the Brethren contribute to the Protestant Orphan Home, we submit to the committee of arrangements, believing they gave the matter due consideration. No one is prohibited from giving now. Nor should the good deed done last year be forgotten because it was not duplicated this year. We do not think it is surounded with darkness, but think God will remember the last year's charity. With our brother we believe we should remember the poor orphans every where.—Ed.]

From Anna E. Light.—It was very dry, but this evening it is raining. I hope it will keep on raining until we get plenty of water. The new meeting-house (near Mountville) of which I spoke in my last letter is now finished, and on Sunday, Sept. 25th, the first services were held in it. Had preaching at 10 o'clock in the morning, 2 in the afternoon, and at 7 in the evening. The house is large, and comfortably arranged to hold Love-festivals. The attendance was good. Those from a distance were brethren James Quinter, Wm. Hertzler, John Hertzler and John Gibble. The brethren took for their text in the morning H. h. 10: 25, from which brother Quinter delivered a very appropriate sermon. In the afternoon brother Hertzler out-ruined the congregation on the "Lord's Prayer." In the evening from Psalms 2: 16.... Our oldest sister is ninety-one years old. She is sick at present, and perhaps may soon have to change time for eternity.—Sporting H. U., Pa., Sept. 27.

From Lottie Ketting.—On September 16th, brother S. B. Stucky and wife, of Paro, paid us a visit. Next morning we commended to the New Esterprie church. Bro. Simon preached to a very attentive attendance. In the afternoon we attended Sunday-school. The Brethren have a very good school, with brother Jacob Furry as Superintendent. On the 18th Brother Simon preached again in the Hollinger church, Woodbury district. We appreciated his sermon very much. Next morning had to take the parting band. It was hard to say farewell to a cousin Simon and his dear companion, for we learned to love them so dearly, and the longer they were with us the more we became attached to them.—Maria, Pa.

From S. O. Larkins.—We wish to thank our dear brethren and sisters who have contributed towards our new church. The Lord will reward you in eternity. Our church is about completed, with the exception of stationary benches, which will be put in soon. Have temporary ones that answer a very good purpose.... Our Love-feast will be Oct. 22nd. Will miss the presence of brother John Harshbarger. Brethren, hold up his arms in his new home that he may have more strength to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation to a gainsaying world.—Oak Park, Va. Oct. 3rd.

A Beautiful Scene.

On the 24th of September we met in council to make arrangements to hold a Communion. One brother was disowned for not bearing the counsel of the church. One sister was received by letter, and seven young ladies made application for baptism. On Sunday we met for public worship. Before preaching, the applicants were told to take the seat in front, and then the eighth came. All were between 20 and 30 years of age. Our elder remarked that never had he seen so many young applicants at one time. After their duties were laid before them, we went to the water, where they were buried in baptism. Young as they were they set a fair example for older ones.... Our Communion was held Oct. 1st. Good order prevailed. A choice was held for two deacons, and the 1st fell on brethren John Smeltzer and Aaron Miss. Brother Harshbarger was ordained to the full ministry, and one brother was advanced to the second degree. One more received by baptism.

DANIEL MILLER.

Monroe Co., Iowa.

From E. K. Stuffer—Saturday P. M., Sept. 4th, in company with my cousin A. Brombaugh, his daughter, &c., went to visit his daughter, twelve miles from his home. She lives three miles from Louisville, where our Br. Josiah K. lives. Sabbath morn we were directed to attend church at L., but company thought it not. We felt sorry after learning that Bro. Huber, of Ashland, was there. Drove five miles to East N. Union. Heard a sermon by Bro. J. H. Hoover; solemn, edifying. Although young in years of four ministers, he stands next to the bishop. He has been in the ministry two years, and labors faithfully in the Master's cause. Should like to say something right here on the encouragement of the minister, but space will not permit. I formed the acquaintance of our brother years ago, and am now having a very pleasant visit with the family. He has a dear companion, (a sister) and two interesting little daughters. Came home with them from church after the above services, a distance of five miles. The shortest of twenty-two miles made me sick for several days. Bro. H. has collected a fine library which is greatly interested in. Bro. H. has about all the books and tracts published by the Brethren. He is somewhat engaged in the fruit and tomatoe culture, beside farming. Has nearly four acres of tomatoes, which produce he sells to the canning factory at Marlboro, two and a half miles distant. Here they make the cans and prepare the fruit for shipment. Have as high as one hundred and thirty-five employees, men and women and can as high as five hundred bushels daily. Some work at night. Bro. H. has a fine crop, and quality of tomatoes, but the drought hurt them some. I found it good exercise picking them. Bro. Hoover desires to spend more time to the cultivation of the mind. Friday, Sept. 9th, 4 P. M. sister H. proposed taking us to Bro. David E. Bowman's, a distance of seventeen miles. Had met Bro. and sister B., at A. M. He is father-in-law to our Bro. B. F. Bowser, who with his wife and little Davis we learned to know at Huntingdon, Pa. We talked much of little Davis, and can scarcely tell how anxious I was to see him. Passed through Freeburg, two miles from Bro. B's, little thinking that little Davis's body would be in the graveyard there. We thought, could it be! Sister Bowser looked much improved in health, but they truly have our heartfelt sympathy. May they find great comfort in the little boy who was only six days old when David died. Found Bro. Bowman's family also somewhat afflicted. Her son, Bro. George was slowly recovering from so attack of fever, and the little girl was sick. They all have our sympathy. Bro. Bowser is engaged in gardening. In Sept. of the Brethren S. S. at Freeburg and with Bro. Hoover was lately called to the ministry. May the Lord be with them. The Brethren purchased a Methodist Chapel at Freeburg. This is part of the Sandy church. Bro. Bowman lives seven miles from Alliance. Saturday P. M. we made them farewell and started to visit sister Sherry, nine miles farther. Sister H's mother. On the way stopped to see father S's grave. He is we wept with those that weep. They were members of the Sandy church, Columbiana Co. Sabbath morning we all came to the Sandy church to meeting. Here Bro. Lewis Glass has the leadership. He and elder Graybill Myers were formerly co-laborers. Sermon from Matt. 26: 21, "well done thou good and faithful servant." Subject, Faithfulness, by Bro. A. Shively, followed by Bro. J. A. Clement, Bro. C. also speaks the French language. Formed a short acquaintance with many of the brethren and sisters. They were quite sociable. The congregation was not as large as usual we learned, but we thought it rather large than here they were an interesting S. S., but sorry to say we were late to attend. The services were conducted in the English. Where generally he is attended, services were in German. Bro. Hoover is the only one in the East Ninmishill that preaches in English. Stopped with Bro. Clement until 4 P. M. when we started homebound. At this church I have some hope of getting help for the Orphan's Home at Huntingdon. Sister H. and her sister, little boy and self had a delightful drive, passed through Harrisburg, H. was north and North Georgetown. Came by the Orphan's Home at Mt. Union. It is a beautiful place. Was built in behalf of Stark and Columbus Co's. We had expected to stop with our aged sister Quinter at Mt. Union, but lateness of the day would not permit. We hope in the near future to visit both our sister and Orphan's Home. Reached Bro. H. at 8.15 P. M., feeling rather tired after a ride of fifty miles by private conveyance. We traveled through some beautiful country, but found the drought prevailed throughout the land. On Friday P. M. the smoke was intense, so the sun looked like a red ball. Little did we then think that Michigan was in such great distress from fire. May the Lord comfort the poor suffering souls. The farmers here are busily engaged cutting corn. Some have finished cutting. Seeding was delayed on account of drought. Find the fruit pretty good in places. Grapes are reared in abundance. We are greatly indebted to Bro. and sister Hoover for kind favors, but will soon be obliged to bid them adieu and journey elsewhere. Have had excessive heat and dust. The thermometer about a hundred and upwards in the shade. To-day it is cool and pleasant. Find our church papers pretty generally taken among the Brethren where we have been.—Marlboro, Ohio, Sept. 14th.

From C. D. Hylton—Our congregation is progressing slowly, but is still in a working condition. We have five ministers and eleven deacons. There were 269 members visited. Our congregation number about 290. At our church council on the 17 inst. two women desired to go back to the world, but we don't think they ever came out of it. One was received into the church; will be baptized soon and still an other applicant. Bro. Paine, of Betsworth Co, spent one week preaching for us. Bro. J. B. Wrightman, of South Bend, Ind., is now in our midst preaching, lecturing and hunting for wild cat. He expects to remain until our Love-feast, which will be held on the first Saturday in Oct. We expect to start in a few days to visit the Pineknobs of Dan., also the Falls of Dan., which are very interesting to those not used to a mountainous country. We wish it were possible for you, kind reader to make one in our party, for I believe you would enjoy looking the trout that dart through the waters of Dan. The weather has been extremely warm through this Summer and so very dry that there will scarcely be half a crop of corn, and but very little hay put up. So the farmers must needs sell off most of their stock, and that at a reduced price owing to the quality. We trust drought will benefit us after all, that it will make us feel our dependence on God. Perhaps we may receive meat from the east (or consumer) and sweeten from its opposite—strong. The B. at W. is a welcome visitor to our home, in fact, we could not be without it. May God bless its editor.—Hylton, Va.

From J. D. Haughtelin—A few days ago Bro. Noah Fors and companion, of Ind., arrived in this vicinity on a visit among brethren and friends. They came unexpectedly, after a separation of about eight years. Had the pleasure of witnessing the first meeting and greeting of sister Fiora and an aged mother in Israel, of over four score years, familiarly known among us as grandmother Flora. The venerable lips trembling with emotion, the dim eyes sparkling with holy happiness, spoke more than words could. Now here I and sister if a meeting of friends here where they meet soon part, affords so much opportunity, what will it be when they shall meet on that other bright shore were parting shall be known no more?—Panora, Iowa.

From Jacob Hilberbrand.—Pine Creek district on the 17th inst met in council to consider matters of importance pertaining to the church, but a very pleasant meeting. Made arrangements for our communion on the 25th of Oct.; also sent two brethren to the meeting appointed on the 23rd, for the purpose of arranging matters pertaining to our A. M. On the 22d Peter Roppel started to Canada in company with Elder John Wise. May the Lord bless their effort in building up a church there. So today, the 15th, very large meeting, present indications cause us to hope for an gathering of souls at our Communion.—Walkerton, Ind.

Missionary Work Again.

We believe that Bro. N. if his plan of missionary work to be good, as given in B. at W. No. 34, present volume. We also believe this to be a good field of labor. The crops have been almost a failure for two years in succession. Many are very destitute and unable to take a penny of any kind; such would gladly receive the Brethren's papers and read them, whilst in old and more prosperous parts the people are already supplied with reading matter, and would not be so likely to read them. If there are any brethren or sisters that desire to engage in this missionary work, let them send their papers to me, and I will see that they are put into the hands of the people and will report through the B. at W. from time to time the success of the enterprises. Address me at Dallas, Norton Co., Kan.

R. R. MOON.

[We send you a "bundle" of B. at W. We hope you will receive them, and that they may do good.—Eo.]

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR THE

Brethren at Work,

AND

TRACT SOCIETY.

G. T. Bowerman, Danville, Va. John Flory, Albion, Mo.
 E. C. H. Linn, Ill. Daniel Watkins, Vienna, Ill.
 O. A. Shubarger, Graham, Mo. J. S. Flory, Longport, Colo.
 W. Lester, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Metzger, Germ. Grove, Ill.
 J. S. Mabee, Geneva, Mo. J. W. Southworth, Mount Airy, Ind.
 John W. Mulberry, Orono, Ill. D. Brewer, Salina, Oregon.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan. '81," shows that the paper has been paid up to that time. "1 Jan. '82" shows that the truth will tell to a expire.

If proper credit has not been given within three or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Youth's Advance.

Circulation Nearly Four Thousand the First Year!

SINGLE COPY, - - 40 CENTS A YEAR

READ OUR PREMIUM LIST.

1. PEN KNIFE & SCISSORS COMBINED.

A handy, two-bladed knife with a pair of scissors attached. Given for twenty subscribers and $8.00. Price of Knife alone, post-paid..... $1.75

2. WINGED WONDERS—About wings and their wearers from birds to butterflies; for wide-awake boys and girls, who are always seeing more curious things in a day, than some folks do in a year. We think the girls who get this book, will find something worth knowing, even about their particular friend the mosquito. Illustrated board covers, over 400 pages, and more than 60 attractive pictures. Given for ten subscribers and $4.00. Price of book alone, post-paid..... 75c.

3. IN THE MOUNTAINS—A book to open the eyes of boys and girls, so that they can see common things. These who have said, "Do Stones grow?" will find an answer here. It talks also about "How big the Moon looks," and other interesting things. Given for ten subscribers and $4.00. Price of book alone, postage paid..... 75c.

4. STORIES ABOUT WILD ANIMALS.—

By Anna Bernham. One of the largest and handsomest of our gift-books for young people. Size nearly 10 inches long by 8 inches wide. Very interesting stories & full-page pictures, large type and handsomely illustrated covers. Price of book alone, post-paid..... $4.00. Price of book alone, post-paid..... 75c.

5. THE NATURAL HISTORY OF THE BIBLE—

In a neat volume of 168 pages the birds and animals of the Bible are so described as to interest the young, and also instruct those who are older. Bound in cloth, with gilt dies on back and sides and illustrated by 36 good engravings, making a handsome and desirable addition to a young Bible student's library. Given for seven subscribers and $2.70. Price of book postage paid..... 60c.

6. BOOK OF NATURAL HISTORY.—

A picture book of Animals. Contains nearly sixty pages of interesting readings about Tiger, Kangaroo, Monkey, Beaver, Rhinoceros, R. deer, Weasels, Mice, Squirrels and other Animal. Colored picture covers, paper, nearly 30 pictures.— Given for three subscribers and $1.20. Price of book alone..... 15c.

7. A FINE TWO-BLADED PEN-KNIFE

Suitable for a boy. Given for ten subscribers and $1.00.

8. A BEAUTIFUL TWO-BLADED PEN-KNIFE—

For a girl or lady. Write has die, and made of good material. Given for eight subscribers and $3.20.

9. A BLACK HANDLE TWO-BLADED PEN-KNIFE—

For a girl or lady. Given for seven subscribers and $1.80.

10. A FINE KEY RING—

Given for two subscribers and 80 cents.

11. ONE DOZEN LEAD-PENCILS, with with rubber eraser on one end. Given for five subscribers and $2.00.

12. A FINE SATIN PURSE, good and strong, suitable for a little girl. Given for five subscribers and $2.00.

13. A GOOD STRONG PURSE, for a boy.

Given for three subscribers and $1.20.

14. AN AUTOMATIC LEAD-PENCIL—

Caution run out what you write with this pencil. Given for six subscribers and $2.40.

15. LADIES' POCKET-BOOK WITH HANDLE—Fine leather and well made. Given for fifteen subscribers and $6.00.

16. ELEGANT PIONEER WATCH—

For several subscribers and $28.00, a Pioneer watch. Very suitable for a boy. Price of watch alone, $8.00.

17. EXPANSION BALANCE WATCH.—

Freighty subscribers and $39.00 a 3 z Elgin Movement Expansion Balance Watch; Stem Winder and Stem Set; suitable for a boy. Price of watch alone, $8.00.

18. WATERBURY WATCH—

For forty subscribers and $16.00, a Waterbury watch suitable for a boy. Watch alone, $5.00.

19. FINE LADIES WATCH—

For twenty subscribers and $28.00 a fine watch for lady or little girl. Watch alone, $8.00.

To go to work at once and secure one of these valuable and useful premiums. For sample copies and further information address:

YOUTH'S ADVANCE, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Gospel Facts.

Non-resistance and Non-essentialism.—

An eight-page tract now ready. Great missionaries! Who will scatter the seed? Buy them and make them true for the Lord. Price, 10¢ per copy for 20 cents; 25¢ for 40 cents; 100¢ for $1.00. Buy some and give them to your minister to distribute at your meeting.

Address: BRETHREN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Books, Etc., for Sale at this Office.

Gifts of Membership in Book Form.—They are sent by printed on good paper, ready to fill out, with duplicate attached and all will be bound together in a book like some what after the style of blank note books.

No. 1..... 50c
 No. 2..... 75c
 Hymn Books and Hymnals.
 Brethren's Hymn Books—Morocco, single copy, post paid, 50¢ per dozen $9.50; per dozen, by express, $9.00. Standard, single copy, post paid, $1.50; per dozen, by express, $9.50; cheap, single copy, post paid, $1.00; per dozen $9.00; Tuck, single copy, $1.00; per dozen, $11.00; per dozen, by express, $11.40.
 New Tunes and Hymn Book.—Half Leather, single copy, post-paid, $1.25. Per dozen, by express, $12.00. Morocco, single copy, post paid, $1.50. Per dozen, by express $14.75.

Bible-school Echoes. Is designed for the service of song in the several departments of church service and Sunday school. The tone of the book is peaceful and devotional,—has none of the military element in it. The melodies are graceful and easily learned, while the harmonies are well arranged without any straining after old "originalities."

Single copy, post-paid..... 25
 One dozen..... 2.50
 Two..... 5.00

Single copy, post-paid..... 25
 One dozen..... 2.50
 Two..... 5.00

Any of the above sent post-paid on receipt of price by addressing: BRETHREN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

EVERY LINE OF ROAD

that maintains the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. This is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico. It is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico. It is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico. It is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico. It is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico. It is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico. It is the only line from Chicago extending back into Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Tidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Carroll, Pa., Oct. 4, 1881.

The Brethren in Sugar Valley are building a meeting house, 35x45; have it finished all but the painting, and expect to be ready for dedication till Oct. 25. Communion to be on the 25th. Two of our members are dangerously sick. Brethren, pray for them.

York, Neb., Sept. 27, 1881.

Attended the Communion in the Werpiug Water church, Neb. Had a very good and interesting meeting. Members much built up and attention good. — Sept. 24 attended the communion in Exeter church, in York and Fillmore counties. Strong, ministerial force, many members and spectators present. One baptized and others near the Kingdom. A choice for deacon fell on Bro. Daniel B. Hines, who was installed in regular order.

Oct. 3. Just returned from the Love-feast in Platte Valley church, Butler Co., Neb., over which Eld. J. P. Meemaw presides. Good meeting and large attendance as well as excellent attention. — Bro. John Wine was elected and installed into the ministry.

JOHN S. SNOVERGER.

Stockdale, Ind., Oct. 2.

Our annual council came off Oct. 1st. All in love and harmony. Intend to hold our Communion-meeting at our meeting house, near Roann, Nov. 4, at 2 P. M.

J. JOHN.

Odeli, Ill.

Had our Love feast in a hall in town. Eld. D. Krantz, from Ferris Grove, T. D. Lyon, from Hudson, J. Kindig from Benson, D. Most from Chenoa, were present. Their labors were appreciated by all. Much zeal was manifested by the brethren in putting forth the word following the example of Christ in the ordinances.

K. HECKMAN.

Alexandria, Mo., Oct. 1, 1881.

I arrived here last evening on a mission of love, to preach where only one sister, M. E. Rose, resides who has been wishing for brethren to come and preach. I will remain here until the 25th, and see whether this people will receive the truth and accompany our sister, who is longing for company of brethren and sisters in Christ.

D. B. STURDIS.

Midford, Ind.

Our Communion meeting in the Turkey Creek congregation was held Sept. 30, and enjoyed by all. A goodly number of ministering brethren present. Good attention and attendance. Two precious souls united with the church, and one more applicant. Hope that the good impressions made, will induce many to turn to Christ.

J. H. MILLEN.

Plymouth, Ind.

I wish to inform the churches in the State of Illinois and also Iowa, that my wife and I think of traveling through Shelby Co., Iowa, some time after Oct. 15th. We think of stopping in R. Badger's church, Dallas Center, Iowa. Thence to Bro. Geo. R. Baker, Altoona, Polk Co., Iowa. — Thence to Bro. J. D. Haightlett's, Panora, thence Shelby Co., Iowa. On our return we wish to visit some of the churches in Illinois and will inform the churches.

JOHN KNISLEV.

Clarence, Iowa, Sept. 26, 1881.

The brethren of the Pleasant Prairie church held their feast Sept. 17 and 18, four and one fourth miles south of Clarence at Bro. S. B. Stonerock's. The attendance was good and order commendable. As this was the first Feast held in this vicinity, we think good and lasting impressions were made. It was truly a feast to the soul. Elders E. Eby and D. E. Brutaker, with the adjoining elders were present. May the Lord bless them for their labors of love, and for the encouragement the church here has received. One dear member was reclaimed, one made application for baptism and one received by letter. The church is in love and union and our future prospects are encouraging.

JOHN ZUCK.

Nappanee, Ind.

The Communion meeting of Turkey Creek Elkhart Co., Ind., is in the past. The meeting is one long to be remembered. The members seemed to enjoy the meeting, and over 200 were present. Bro. D. Shively led the meeting. Splendid order. On Sunday afternoon baptized one more applicant.

D. WYSONO.

Ceylen, Ind., Oct. 2.

Our Communion-meeting is now past and we can truly say, we had a meeting long to be remembered. Over one hundred members communed, and quite a crowd of spectators were present. Several ministers from a distance were with us to encourage us in the way of the Lord. We feel to thank God that our beloved elder, Thomas Wenrick of Union City could be with us, and we can still call him our elder. Our entire district stands true for the Brethren bond. One sister baptized. All is peace and love among us.

EDMA WATSON.

Monument City, Ind., Oct. 2, 1881.

Our council-meeting, preparatory to our Love-feast on the 11th, just came off yesterday at Dora. In consequence of raining nearly, if not quite all day, the meeting was not largely attended. The report of the visit was mostly favorable and difficulties harmoniously adjusted. Hope, God may bless us and all others so his cause may prosper and souls be brought to Christ.

J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

York, Neb., Oct. 1, 1881.

Our feast is in the past. Large crowd and good preaching. We held our meeting under a shed, covered with slaw grass, 20 by 40 feet. We feel that the Lord was with us under the humble structure. One received by baptism. A choice for deacon fell on the writer.

D. B. HEINY.

Hanford, Ind., Oct. 3, 1881.

After this, my correspondents will address me at Hanford, Grant Co., Ind. Our Love-feast: no number-d with things of the past. It was indeed a feast of love to us. Good order preserved; two more were added to the church. J. C. TINKEL.

BENTON, MINN.

The Brethren of the Root River church held their Communion the first and second of October. Had a good meeting, though there were not as many present as usual. Brethren David Burghly, of Liscomb, Iowa, and D. M. Miller of Illinois, were laboring for us. We were sorry, Bro. Eselman could not be with us. We had his promise on condition. He and Bro. Miller came here two weeks before our communion. Bro. Eselman's business called him home, after having preached for us two sermons, which were only as a few crumbs to make us the more hungry. Hope he will come again. Bro. Miller preached one week, ten miles from here. One was baptized. Bro. M. did his duty, now it remains for us to put in into practice. Some perhaps, are counting the cost and life being short, we hope they will seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness.

SARAH BREDLEY.

Harlan, Iowa, Oct. 4, 1881.

Our Communion meeting passed off pleasantly and we think we had a profitable meeting. One received by baptism, and we believe others are counting the cost. Are having considerable rain at present. May the Lord bless the work in which you are engaged.

R. A. YODER.

Matrimonial.

BOSSERMAN—TOMBAUGH.—On Sunday, Oct. 2, 1881, by the undersigned, Bro. Jes. ph. E. Bosserman and sister Lydia M. Tombaugh, both of Eagle Creek church, Hancock Co., Ohio.

BLEAZOR BOSSERMAN.

MILLER—DONALD ON.—Sept. 22, 1881, by Theo. G. Snyder, at the house of the bride's father, John H. Miller and Nora B. Donaldson, both of Linn Co., Iowa.

TURNER—PIKE.—At the residence of the bride's parents in Polk Co., Iowa, Sept. 27, 1881, by the undersigned, Mr. Lyman Turner to sister Mary C. Pike, all of Polk Co., Iowa.

JOHN ZUCK.

Fallen Asleep.

Blinded are the dead which die in the Lord.—1 Cor. 15. 12.

BUCH.—In the White Oak ch. ch. Lancaster Co., Pa., Sept. 30, 1881, sister Susan Buch, aged 90 years, 8 months and 18 days. A. E. LIGHT.

AURANDT.—In the Dry Creek church, Linn Co., Iowa, Sept. 30, 1881, sister Anna Aurandt, aged about 28 years.

THOS. G. SNYDER.

CLAPPER.—In the Hopewell church, Bedford Co., Pa., Sept. 15, 1881, Preston, infant son of Bro. John and sister Bettie C. Clapper, aged one month and 27 days. Funeral discourse by Bro. John Rush.

MICHAEL KELLER.

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

- Oct. 15, at 2 P. M., Naperville, Dupage co., Ill.
Oct. 15, at 10 A. M., Green Spring church, at Sugar Grove meeting-house, 1½ miles from Watson station, O.
Oct. 15, Grand River church, Mich.
Oct. 15, Ninnesbah church, Newton co., Kansas. Preaching at 10, 2 and 4 o'clock.
Oct. 21, Wood River church, Buffalo Co., Neb., at house of Bro. Y. Shively, 5½ miles north-east of Kearney.
Oct. 21 Mutual Creek church, Johnson Co., Mo.
Oct. 22, at 10 A. M., Eagle Creek church, Hancock co., Ohio.
Oct. 27, at 10 A. M., Silver Creek, Ogle co., Ill.
Oct. 29, at 2 P. M., Swan Creek church, Fulton co., Ohio.
Oct. 30 and 30, Concord church, Adams co., Ill., 5 miles south of Clayton.
Oct. 29 and 30, Osawakee church, Jefferson co., Kan.
Oct. 29 and 30, Beaver Run, Mine co., W. Va.
Oct. 29 and 30, at 4 P. M., Salem, Marion co., Ill.
Oct. 30, Beaver Creek church, York Co., Neb., at the house Jacob Zera, 8 miles south and 8 miles west of the town of York. Meeting to commence on the 29th.
Nov. 1 and 2 Mill Creek church, near Liberty, Ill.
Nov. 5, at 2 P. M., at Farrago, Fremont Co., Ia.
Nov. 5, Millmine church, Platt co., I.
Nov. 5 and 6, at 2 P. M., Big Creek congregation, Richland Co., Ill. Conveyance at Parkersburg by informing J. M. Forney.

DISTRICT-MEETINGS.

- Nov. 4, 5 and 6, in Knob Creek church, Tenn.
Oct. 20, Southern Missouri, in Mineral Creek church, Johnson co., 12 miles south of Warrensburg, Mo.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

81 50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6. Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Oct. 18, 1881. No. 40.

Editorial Items.

ARISE O Lord, let not man prevail.
Dr. John G. Holland, the poet, died Oct. 12th.
When prayer is standing still, godliness is standing still also.
Two baptized in the Pigeon Creek church, Ill., since last report.
On account to Hudson Love-feast crowded out. Will appear next week.
As wood is fire so is a contentious man to stir up and continue strife.
Bro. Sharp's article on another page of this issue is worthy of perusal by all persons.

MINUTES of the Annual Meeting for the past five years in pamphlet form for 25 cts.

BRO. S. A. HOABERGER will represent Northern Missouri at the next Annual Meeting.

READ the 69th page of this issue, and then see what you can do for the Youth's Advance.

NEXT week, the Lord willing, we shall issue our annual address to our readers and agents.

ON page 634 in Bro. Daniel Vaniman's communication, T. C. Myers should be F. G. Myers.

WILL brother Vaniman give us some more "chips from the work-house" to keep up the fire of love?

THE address of William M. Lyon is changed from Greenland, W. Va., to Williamsport, same State.

BROTHER James W. Gish was elected minister in the Panther Creek Church, Woodford Co., Illinois, Oct. 7th.

SISTER Mary C. Norman, editress of Home and Family in B. at W., is suffering intensely from rheumatism.

WE send our prospects to our agents this week. Should any be missed they will confer a favor by notifying us at once.

MULLEN rain throughout the West the past few weeks. The Mississippi river is very high, and has caused great loss of property.

THERE were twelve ministers present from adjoining congregations at the Arnold's Grove Love-feast. Bro. J. H. Moore officiated.

ELDER David Frantz, of Cerro Gordo, Illinois, favors special Annual Meetings, and names Woodford Co., Ill., as a good place to hold it.

BROTHERS Henry Lander, of Brimingham, Indiana, writes: "Seven baptized in this church since Annual Meeting, and one baptized."

JUST as we go to press we leave to attend the Love-feast at Naperville, Illinois, Saturday 15th. Would enjoy a Communication meeting every Saturday.

GOD blessed the Shannon, Ill., Love-feast, for each member who commenced seemed filled with joy, sixteen ministers present. Bro. D. B. Ray officiated.

Is there any way for keeping people from sleeping during religious services? Will those in the habit of sleeping give a remedy?

THOSE who subscribed for the Microcosm and have not received it, will please inform us. It is desired that all receive the paper regularly.

THE Southern Illinois Orphan Home will soon be ready for occupants. It is located at Cerro Gordo—the home of brother John Metzger, the friend of children.

D. B. RAY comes out in the Dysticist Flag with a lengthy article on the Stein and Roy Debate. It is an excellent advertisement for the Western Book Exchange.

FOUR persons baptized in the Panther Creek (Illinois) church during the Love-feast Oct. 7th. One of these is the daughter of brother C. S. Holsinger, of Marshall county.

THE Brethren of Woodford county, Illinois, had an excellent Communion. Brother Christian Gish, father of Rufus Gish, aged ninety years, attended meeting and communion.

BROTHER Sharp comes over into our sanctuary almost daily after school and spends an hour or two with us, and thus drives away care and helps us turn over a new leaf for the next day.

BROTHER John Metzger left home the 15th inst. for St. Louis to continue sounding out the Word in that city. It is joy to the seat to hear him relate the Lord's works among that people.

EACH subscriber for one year will be given free, a copy of the BRETHREN AT WORK ALMANAC. They will be ready by December 1st. Send in name early so you may get the Almanac in due time.

EACH mail brings us gratifying assurances for next year's WORK. A number promise increased lists, and new fields are being canvassed in order to disseminate the truth among the unconverted.

BROTHER Finsmet Eshelman was chosen deacon in the Coal Creek (Illinois) church Sept. 10th. His friends of the Mt. Morris College will be pleased to hear of his field of usefulness being enlarged.

BRO. Daniel Vaniman, of Virden, Ill., writes: "Pleasant Communion Oct. 10th, at West Otter Creek. Election for minister and deacon. Charles C. Gibson chosen to the ministry, and David Neff, deacon."

THE Philippine Lesson Leaf will be discontinued until Apr. 1st, next, as there are not enough schools holding over to justify printing it. Brother Sharp gave us good notes during the Summets, and our patrons may expect them to be equally as good next year.

Our desire is to send forth a paper that will lead the unconverted to turn to Christ, comfort those who are away from the main body of the church and rarely ever hear the Brethren preach, and as a medium for the holy brethren to communicate with each other.

BROTHER S. T. Bosserman and wife are both protected with typhoid fever. They both have our hearts felt sympathy in their affliction, and we pray God to help them to bear it all patiently, and permit them to remain with us a little longer; for they are workers in the vineyard, and workers are needed. The latest information is that they are some better. Brother W. C. Teeter is with them.

A "MOUNTAIN NORMAL" is in contemplation in Floyd county, Virginia. It is to be located on the Blue Ridge 2500 feet above the sea level—a high school indeed. Nine trustees are pushing the work to completion. It will not likely be ready before Sept. 1882.

Dr. H. W. Thomas of the M. E. Church has been expelled from that church for heresy. He taught doctrine contrary to his church, and of course created confusion thereby. He can appeal to General Conference, but dare not preach in the interval between this and the meeting.

THOSE who desire to secure books from the Cassel Library should send a Catalogue from which to select. It is a pamphlet of fifty-four pages, containing the names of thousands of books, old and new. Among the number are about 2,000 German works. Price 30 cents. Address, D. L. Miller, Mt. Morris, Ill.

SOME churches make their ministers grow in grace and help bear their burdens by occasionally chastising them severely. Though the outward appearance of their ministers be plain and neat, yet for the neatness they are required to make acknowledgements. No woe-drawers follow in the wake of such ungodly work.

THE Southern Illinois District Meeting the 4th and 5th inst., was marked as peculiarly pleasant and enjoyable. Harmony of action and good feeling prevailed. Daniel Vaniman, Moderator; A. McClure, Reading Clerk; and E. B. Whitmer, Secretary. Daniel Vaniman and Jas. R. Gish were chosen members of Standing Committee for 1882.

THE October number of the Microcosm is out, and it is filled with live reading matter. The editor has work enough for several men. In addition to editing the Microcosm, he is called to meet the scientific attacks upon his new departure. And then there are professors of physics who have accepted his theory on sound, and they require further information. All these draw heavily on Mr. Hall. The Microcosm and B. at W. one year for $1.75.

An elder in Indiana in a private letter says of the Beaverdam and Miami party's work: "Some places they have made fearful trouble in families. The husband goes one way, the wife another. One old brother is nearly crazy, and will likely be taken to an insane asylum. Paul saw this work in his day and gave the warning to 'mark those who cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine of Christ and avoid them.'" In addition to this, we are informed that Samuel Kinsey is in Indiana seeking to draw away disciples after him, and is causing confusion and distrust. Brethren, look to your ways, and see where you stand. Go not in the way of destruction, but stand fast in the Lord."

WE learn that Samuel Kinsey is visiting churches in Indiana, trying to persuade members to join his party and leave the church of the Brethren. O that the Lord may deliver his people, and turn peace-breakers into better work! Kinsey and his associates are doing just what we predicted in No. 31 of B. at W. would come to pass. Husbands are spiritually separated from wives, daughters from mothers, mothers from sons, and sorrow and distress follow as a nighty river. If the history of those disruptionists were written, it would shock the senses of all good people; for it is an awful thing to make division among friends. We caution our brethren against doing anything rashly. Be kind, though you are distressed. "Charity beareth itself not unquenchably."

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

CONSOLATORY.

BY DANIEL BRIGHT.

Beloved, on earth we all do roam
As pilgrims and as strangers;
We know this world is not our home,
Mid sorrows, griefs, and dangers,
But Jesus did for us prepare,
A heavenly mansion, bright and fair,
To be our home forever.

Here oft we bid a sad farewell,
To loving ones who leave us;
We mourn and sigh, but cannot tell,
Why God should thus bereave us.
We fail to see the cords of love,
By which our hearts are drawn above,
By faith we may behold them.

By faith, Ah yes! by faith I say,
We truly may behold them;
And more than this, by faith we may,
Yet, stradd by strand unfold them.
By faith we see in every move,
How the mysterious hand of love,
Seeks our eternal welfare.

Then let us seek faith, hope, and love,
And never worldly pleasures;
Draw sweetest comforts from above,
In heaven lay up our treasures;
And soon with them ourselves we'll be,
Where loved ones gone before we'll see,
In glory with our Savior.

For the Brethren at Work.

A HYMN FOR THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK.

BY JAS. EVANS.

When from the dead the Lord did rise,
He burst the bands of death,
And gave a pledge by which to know
That life is more than breath.

Uprising from the darksome tomb
He broke the power of sin,
And opened free the gates of grace
To all who'll enter in.

Death could not hold the Son of God
Within its dark domain.
Beloved of God, he raised him up;
Our faith's no longer vain.

He who had the power of death
Was vanquish'd in the strife,
Beneath our feet he'll bruise'd be,
And we'll be crown'd with life.

When Jesus comes in glory bright,
And sits upon his throne,
Redemption's work will be complete;
The starry crown is won.

Most men take least notice of what is plain, as if that were of no use; but puzzle their thoughts, and lose themselves in those vast depths and abysses which no human understanding can fathom.

For the Brethren at Work.

ISOLATED.

BY L. M. EST.

WE often hear the sympathetic expression, "Remember us in our isolated condition." The tone or manner of expression indicates a loneliness, and those only know the full meaning of the term who have been taken away from places where they could meet with the saints once, twice, or three times each week, to a place where they are deprived of this soul strengthening blessing. There are two ways of understanding the meaning of words—one by theory and the other by actual experience. Those who have been taken from places that are dear to them only know the full meaning of these words. They then sensibly realize what it is to be blessed. The absence of those who are of like precious faith is keenly felt. The soul often yearns to meet with God's people, and though God is everywhere, yet there is not that intensity of feeling that exists where the saints are numerous. While constantly associating with those who are of "like precious faith" there is a feeling generated that enervates the soul wonderfully. The Christian goes out in his full strength and copes successfully with adverse powers and is not baffled by the fiery darts that are hurled at him from all sides. But when deprived of these blessings and surrounded by that which tends to lessen the soul's devotion, and nearly crushes the nobler part of man, the Christian often feels as if all had forsaken him. But at such times comes the gentle voice of God speaking strength to the soul. The Christian is encouraged; with renewed energy he goes forward, firmly determined to conquer or die in the attempt. He remembers that earnest and sincere hearts have been praying for him, O! blessed thought—when the Christian feels that warm hearts are concerned about him. Though hundreds of miles from the main body, his prayers and the prayers of dear ones far away, form an arch, and upon this tender invisible cord flow the throbbings of heart to heart. Absent, yet present, unseen, yet seen; separated, yet united. These thoughts strengthen the isolated one; his drooping spirit revives; he drinks deep at the altar of prayer and goes forward with humble boldness, manfully fighting the battle of the Lord.

Though this isolation is painful to the Christian, there is another isolation more painful to the sinner, and that is isolation from God. The Christian can well bear the separation of kindred spirits, but to be isolated from God is painful in the extreme. The sinner does not now feel it, but there is a time when the fact will be pressed home. When he will stand before the great white throne and hear the voice of God say in tones that fall heavily on the ear, "Depart from me, I never knew you." Ah! then would he give millions of worlds for an inch of time to become a favored one of God. But—too late, too late—he hardened his heart in the day of provocation, and now the one who once befriended him, laughs at his calamity and mocks when his fear cometh. He is banished forever from heavenly felicity. Dear friends, kindly I entreat you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God. Heed the gentle wooings of God's spirit, and it will be well with you at the final day.

Estes, Ia.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST AND MILLENNIAL REIGN.

BY JAMES EVANS.

NUMBER VII.

THE only sure basis of a future and unending life is the promise of the Redeemer, "I will raise him up at the last day." If I live ye shall live also. The assurance "That he is alive forevermore," and has the keys of Hades and of death, is to us more comforting than volumes of scientific reasoning on man's mental or dual nature. We rest on the promise of eternal life to all who hear the Shepherd's voice and no metaphysical reasoning can make it more certain.

We are not compelled to take the petal of a rose and weave out of its structures an argument for immortality. The buzzing of the insect or the emissions of sound are to us dumb oracles proclaiming man's future being. What if science teaches a dual nature in man, she teaches the same for the meanest insect that crawls on the earth. We want to know if our future existence is personal identity or reabsorption into the divine essence. The promise of Jesus that if we hear his voice and obey him we shall never perish but be raised up in the last day, set-ties this question forever. "We shall know as we are known."

Among those who believe in the living of the dead are two classes. 1. Those who claim that the entire human family will be raised at one or the same time. 2. Those who claim that the righteous only will be raised at the return of Christ. We believe the latter to be the true one. There is no positive evidence teaching the first view, while on the other hand there is much, both in the sayings of Jesus and of the apostles to sustain the latter. The time to be rewarded or recompensed is not at death, but when the Son of Man comes in the glory of the Father and at the resurrection of the just. Matt. 19: 27; Luke 14: 14. There were some who would be accounted worthy to obtain that age to come and the resurrection out from the dead (ek nekroon).

If all came forth at the same time, how could the resurrection of the just be out from the dead? True, Jesus says the hour is coming when all in the tombs will hear his voice, those having done good to a resurrection of life; and those practicing (praxantes) evil to a resurrection of judgment (Kriseos). This is not unusual in the Scriptures, to connect events which are really separated by centuries.

The resurrection of all takes place in the day of the Lord, but that day is at least a thousand years in length. In Isa. 9: 6, 7 the child born and the King sitting on the throne of David are really ages apart.

Paul is in perfect harmony with Jesus. He says: "As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive, but every man in his own order. Christ the firstfruits afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming." 1 Cor. 15: 23: 24. Here none are raised at the coming of Jesus but they who are Christ's, afterwards the end, when all power and authority shall be subjected to him.

Again, he says "if by any means I may attain to the resurrection out from the dead." Phil. 3: 11. The word rendered resurrection is not the usual word anastasis, but exanastasis, having the prefix ex out of, and can have no other meaning than selection out of many. Paul's earnest desire was to attain to the resurrection of the dead. This must refer to the better resurrection of Heb. 11: 35. The visions of John conform the same view. We have in Rev.

20 a succession of great events. Babylon has fallen, the beast and false prophet are taken and cast into the lake of fire; Satan is bound and cast into the abyss, then thrones appear, and those who set on them have had part in the first resurrection. The occupants of these thrones were once dead, but are now alive and judgment is given to them, that is, the judgment and angels. 1 Cor. 6: 2, 3. What John saw was not the revived spirit of martyrs, but real men, persons blessed and holy, who now reign with Christ and judge the world.

A chain of indubitable testimony is thus presented, every link of which is so strong that no force of criticism can break a single link.

The first resurrection stands associated with a cluster of thrilling events ushering in the great day of the Lord.

With Babylon's doom, the marriage of the Lamb comes, then the millennial kingdom. But the better resurrection precedes every man in his own order. The firstfruits, James 1: 18; Rev. 14: 4. The firstfruits are described as virgins in whose mouths were found no guile. They are the few chosen out of the many called, even those who have crucified the flesh with its affections and lusts and who have renounced the friendship of the world. The man who seeks to rule now or be great in this present evil world will not be counted among the blessed and holy, but will be judged with the world. The man who unites with the world in its self-government is not fit for the kingdom of God and can have no part in the first resurrection. Did the apostles or any of the brethren then attend national elections and vote for pro-consuls, emperors or rulers of any kind? The only politics they were interested in were those relating to the kingdom of God and his righteousness. And why should they? Their only weapons were spiritual and heavenly. The Divine Founder of the church would not permit them to draw the sword. How then could they record votes to support a man for whom they would not fight?

Now this first resurrection brings us to the marriage supper of the Lamb. What pen can describe the rapturous scene? We sit down at the King's table to partake of the royal banquet. The King's Son is there. He leads His Bride into the royal pavilion. His banner over her is love. He girds himself for the feast and comes and serves the guests. The Bride is all glorious within; her immortal garments are fragrant with odors breathed from the eternal throne. She is blessed forevermore, because she is holy. To share the glory of the first resurrection is the prize for which we run. Let us so run that we may obtain. Shall we lose this glorious prize?

For the Brethren at Work.

A SKETCH OF MY EXPERIENCE.

BY S. L. LAYTON.

IN the first place I would say that I was brought early into the Methodist Episcopal church. My parents belonged to that church ever since I can remember, and I always thought they tried to live a Christian life; for daily the Bible was read to the family by either father or mother, and we all bowed in prayer around the family altar, and often my heart was touched by the prayer that was offered up in behalf of their wayward children. Right here I would like to impress upon the mind of every parent that it is certainly their duty to form a family altar of prayer daily, for we are taught in Luke 8: 28 that we should deny ourselves and take up our cross daily and follow Christ. "Train up a child the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Prov. 22: 6. I think there is no other way we can have a better influence over our children than to offer them up daily to the Lord around the family altar. Although we may become discouraged at times and think our prayers avail nothing, yet we know not the hearts of our children; we may be slumbering in our graves before there be a change in the life of our children; but "The prayer of the righteous availeth much," and if we search the Scriptures and are obedient to God's commandments, our works will follow us. But I see in the B. at W. that there are two ways of reading the Bible, and I think I used to read it the former way; that is, "G through it blindly and unintelligently, in obedience to the feeling that it is our duty to read it daily.

While I was at home with my parents I never had an opportunity of hearing the Brethren preach, not because my parents would object, but because there were none near enough. The first Brethren minister I heard was Daniel Shively, of New Paris, Elkhart Co., Ind. He preached in the Lutheran church one mile from my home, a little over two years ago. I think he must have preached on the ordinances; I don't remember, but I recollect he spoke of obeying all the commandments and mentioned Feet-washing and the Holy Kiss, as he quoted Scripture that you never hear any other minister quote (outside the Brethren) at least I never did, and I was inclined to believe it because I knew it was there, and had always been taught to believe the Bible; but never hearing any of those passages he quoted talked about, my mind was not drawn to them. While going home and meditating on the sermon, I remember there was a young couple behind me that were members of a church, and one of them began to make light of a certain part of the quotations. They were not talking to me, but that was too much for me—to hear the Word of God spoken lightly of, and that too by a professor, and I spoke out and said, "That passage is there, and you can't deny it." The reply was, "I know it's there," and said no more. I often wonder how a professor can make light of those commands that the Brethren hold to, and be a devoted Christian.

I think that sermon was the means of me reading my Bible in a different manner. During the Winter I had been attending a protracted meeting and gave my letter in, as I had not had an opportunity before, for my husband was a non-professor at the time we were married and did not care about going to town to meeting much, and I, too, became careless, and did not live as a Christian should. But that Winter I went a few times with one of our neighbors, and then my husband took me.

One evening brother Simpson, the minister, said that he thought every Christian ought to lift his hearts to God in secret prayer and ask him what he would have them to do in his vineyard. I wanted to do something, for I knew I had not been living right, and right there in the church I asked God what he would have to do, and just that moment something seemed to say, Have family prayer. Reader, you may think that was an easy task, but for me it was the hardest cross I ever bore. I thought I couldn't pray before my husband, and prayed again for God to give me something else to do, but that was my duty, and nothing else was given me. It was more than a week before I could make up my mind to obey.

The Lutherans commenced a meeting in our neighborhood, and the church was new and members rather weak and timid. I told brother Simpson I felt it my duty to go to their meeting if I could do any good, for I felt an interest in the salvation of my neighbors' souls and also that of my husband, and therefore attended their meeting. Their minister was a young man. When he called for any that requested the prayers of the church to come forward and occupy the front seat, two ladies went. He then wanted the members to come forward to aid him in prayer and singing. But no one responded, and I felt very weak myself; but had determined to do something for Christ, and went and talked to a neighbor woman that used to belong to the M. E. Church, and told her I thought we had better go forward and help do what we could. I saw she was like myself—felt weak and timid; but she and I went forward, and after singing the minister called on her to pray. I could see her tremble. I then thought if I had lived right, I might have been strong in the Lord, and could have taken her place; but I knew if I were called upon, I could do no better, but was determined to do what I could if I broke down in the attempt. But I was not called upon to pray that evening; but every evening I went forward and prayed for the seekers, and as yet had not erected the family altar. I felt condemned, and night after night I would resolve to make an effort, and fail. I would go far enough sometimes to read a chapter, and fail to go any farther. Finally I returned home one night resolved to make an effort even if I failed. I read a chapter and then requested my husband to kneel in prayer with me, but it seemed as though words failed me. I presume it was almost the weakest prayer ever made to God. I felt as though it was a failure in my first attempt, but was determined not to give it up, and went in secret prayer to God, and promised if he would aid me and remove that timidity, I would serve him while I live, and I thank God he did help me and make me bolder in his work. But my husband was still back in the world, and I greatly desired his conversion. I talked some to him, but thought it did no good. I told him I would go with him in whatever church he wished to go, if he would do better. I prevailed on him to go forward for prayers, but he said every time he went forward he could do nothing where so many were praying, and felt harder than ever. I then told him if he could do better alone I wanted him to read the Bible and pray in secret.

(To be continued)

For the Brethren at Work.

MUSHROOM CONVERSION.

BY B. Z. SHARP.

A MUSHROOM is a plant that grows up suddenly, often in a single night and soon dies and mingles with the elements from which it sprung. For this reason, things that come into existence suddenly, and quickly return whence they came, are called "mushrooms."

Conversion means a change of state or condition. As a religious term it means a complete change of character and a transfer from the kingdom of Satan into the kingdom of Christ. There are three elements in conversion. First, a change of mind based on faith—accepting Jesus Christ as the Son of God, and his gospel as the Christian's law or rule of conduct. (Matt. 16: 6) Such a change of mind as that in Saul's case is an example. Second, a change of heart or of the affections, based on repentance, and a renunciation of Satan with all his pernicious ways,—sorrow for sin and hating what we once loved of it, and loving things we once hated. The case of the penitent Jews mentioned in Acts 2: 38 is an example. Third, a change of relation, based on immersion, a coming out of the world of sin, (2 Cor. 6: 17) an entrance into the kingdom of Christ (John 3: 5) a covenant with God through Christ (Heb. 12: 24), and a signing of that covenant according to Matt. 28: 19.

Any one of these elements lacking leaves conversion incomplete. The disciples at Ephesus (Acts 19: 1-6) lacked faith in the Holy Ghost, though sincere at heart and were baptized, yet their conversion was imperfect. Simon the sorcerer (Acts 8: 13 and 22, 23) believed and was baptized, but had not re-mented, therefore had neither "part nor lot" in the kingdom of Christ.

Cornelius believed and had his heart turned to God, but was told to send for Peter who would tell him what he ought to do, (Acts 10: 6) and Peter commanded him to be baptized, (Acts 10: 48) because without this baptism his conversion would have lacked the relation to Christ.

That which we denominate mushroom conversion generally lacks the second element, change of heart and sometimes both the second and third. I remember at a certain protracted meeting one hundred and sixteen were reported hopefully converted (?). In less than six months after, I asked the Superintendent of the Sunday-school how many of that number were faithful, and he said, "twelve." The rest had wandered back, and, mushroom like, had mingled with the elements from which they had sprung. The trouble in their case was, they were not converted by the Word of God. There is no true conversion except by the agency of God's Word. Pa. 19: 7. Those who are converted by the so-called "grave yard stories" and are baptized in the attendant excitement, will like a mushroom under the noonday sun whenever the pleasures of the world and its temptations are brought to bear upon them. "For this cause many are weak and sickly among you and many sleep." 1 Cor. 11: 30. They were born before the proper time and are sickly children in the household of God and often make a great deal of trouble when they mingle again with the worldly elements from which they came.

True conversion and its fruits will form the subject of another essay.

For the Brethren at Work.

SOLID FOUNDATIONS.

BY G. H. BALSBAUGH.

SOMEbody must know before anybody can believe. I believe all that God knows, but know not all that is clear to Him. Scientific investigators find nothing in nature but thought written in multiform hieroglyphics of matter. If not some Infinite Omnipotent Mind had preceded them, there would be no explorations to make and nothing to find. The same God that made the soul and regenerates it, also made the water to symbolize its regeneration, and the wheat and grape to represent the joy and communion of the higher life. All that is, was in God before it was projected into tangibility. Not an atom or arrangement in the Universe was absent from the mental programs of the Omniscient from everlasting. Jehovah is the source and sum of all law and being. When God said the Word was Christ and "in-Him was life"—all life. Every utterance was the expression and impression of law. He that sins, sins against law and by law. "The law of sin and death" is the law of God, but not the sin. The psychology of God and man and angels is alike. All mind is in his image, only not all invested with a shell of clay. Whatever thinks beyond the grave proves there is a conscious beyond. God is in mind, and this is the solidity of responsible being, and of the organization and order of Zion. The Divine incarnation is the complete filling out and regulation of the finite with the Infinite. God in the flesh did not allow even a little finger to escape the regnancy of Deity. So large and important an item as dress may not be relegated to a non-christian department of our nature. When our distinguished Bro. Bashor so positively pronounced "dressing for Jesus' sake a delusion," he struck blindly at the corner-stone of the Universe and of religion. A Christian is Christian all through and all over. Christ could not pare his toe nail save as God incarnate. Neither can the saint. "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or WHATSOEVER YE DO, do ALL to the glory of God." Did Paul mean that everything was to be done for Jesus' sake except dressing? "I speak as unto wise men; judge ye what I say." Such license is a wide and fatal breach in the continuity of life. Christ was no hybrid. He was the Word made flesh, and the whole of human nature was subject in Him to the sway of Deity. He that dresses not for Jesus sake, dresses for the devil's sake, and so of all else we do.

If there is so little certainty and solidity in Christ that we cannot know whether we must be wholly Christian he might as well have left the flesh to its own sovereignty and not made it the shrine of Divinity. When a person claims his dress as being outside the jurisdiction of God in the flesh, he cannot, in principle, claim that his heart is the throne of Divine royalty. There is no schism in the body, and none in the economy of Christian life. The new creature in Christ is hid, not partly but entirely, in God. His garment is dyed in the blood of the Lamb. His linen is pure and white, and not a thread but shows the flesh-slaving, flesh-sanctifying process of Calvary. O it is marvelous and soul-harrowing to me beyond all utterance, that for the sake of a little carnal license, people will make shipwreck of their eternal interests, and fill the church with confusion, division, and sorrow. Why not be as willful as we can be by knowing only God's will? Why "confer with flesh and blood" at all? Has any good ever come of it? Only one mind, one will, has right to rule—God in the flesh, not of eighteen centuries ago, but of to day. The foundation of God standeth sure, He knows his own, "they walk as He walked." They are dead, risen, and reigning with Christ over themselves, kings and priests unto God.

RICHES OF THE BIBLE.

IT is a Book of laws to show the right and wrong; a book of wisdom that makes the foolish wise; a Book of Truth which detects all human errors; a Book of Life which shows how to avoid everlasting death. It is the most authentic and entertaining history ever published. It contains the most remote antiquities, and the most remarkable events. It is a complete code of laws; a perfect body of divinity; an unequalled narrative; a Book of travels; a book of voyages; the best covenant ever made; the best deed ever written. It is the best will ever executed; the best testament ever signed; the young man's best companion; the school-boy's best instructor; the ignorant man's dictionary. It promises an eternal reward to the faithful and believing. But that which crowns all is the Author, "with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—Sel.

NOTHING can honor God so much as believing him.

If we would stand, Christ must be our foundation.

COMMENDING a right thing is a cheap substitute for doing it, and with this we are too apt to satisfy ourselves.

From Zion's Watchmen.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER III.

OUR first visit was to the Wiertz Gallery of remarkable and original pictures. One represented Napoleon in hell, surrounded by demons and fitting visions of the horrors of war and carnage, and its victims upbraiding him. Another a huge picture of a struggle of giants. One was so contrived that the spectator peeped through a half open door, and was startled at what he supposed to be a woman with a single garment, and gazing at you from an opposite door, which she appeared to have shrunk behind to avoid intrusion—a wonderful and marvelous illusion, or cheat. Again, the picture of two beautiful girls opening a rude window and presenting some flowers, and were so arranged that whatever position the spectator took, they were still facing him and holding out their floral offerings. An aperture invited you to look in, when lo, a groupe, grotesquely clothed, arrests you, and one more life-like, is working and moving. You start back, and on investigating it more closely, find that by some ingenious arrangement of a looking-glass, you yourself have been supplying the face of the figure. Everywhere are the most astonishing practical jokes imaginable. Some would absolutely cheat the spectators, although prepared for surprises; but as soon as you understand and are on your guard, they will lose their power to draw your attention from the really great works of the old masters. I singled out one—the "Triumph of Christ"—and seating myself on a divan before it, endeavored to concentrate my whole thoughts upon the grand idea of the artist, as he had portrayed it on canvas before me. Christ, the central figure, with outspread arms in the form of a cross, and before Him, fleeing into the darkness, were ignorance, sin and wretchedness, in every imaginable form. Taking the places lately occupied by those now disappearing, were joyous, happy looking things, with floods of light falling upon their upturned faces. While studying this picture in detail, I felt irresistibly drawn, as it were, to turn my head and look at a large picture on my right, which I had not noticed before seating myself at this. Turning my head for a moment, there was the gigantic form of Polyphemus with the wicked eye in his forehead, looking so malicious that involuntarily I sprang from my seat and was about to rush from the room, when one of the ladies of the party, asked me if I was ill. I replied that I was not, but was startled for a moment by that wicked eye. She said a number had been affected by it in the same way. Although the paintings are considered very fine, I did not care to prolong my stay longer, and was glad when the party rose to leave.

From the gallery we went to visit the lace manufactories. The thread used is of the finest flax in the country, and costs from three to four hundred francs a pound. The spinning is done in a darkened room, with a beam of light admitted only upon this thread, through a small aperture. The lace makers sit in a darkened room, with but little light admitted, each at a window. Some were at work on lace which had occupied more than a year, and was still unfinished. We were told that it took four years to learn lace making and the best and most expert workman could earn but two francs a day, or about forty cents, and 'that they lose their eyesight very early and often become totally blind.

The most interesting church in Brussels is the Cathedral of St. Gudule, the principal wonders of which are its painted windows—one representing the last judgment, and the pulpit which is a wondrous work of the carver's art. Upon it is a group representing the expulsion of Adam and Eve from the garden of Eden. The pulpit is upheld by the tree of knowledge and above it stands the Virgin Mary holding the infant Jesus, who is striking at the serpent's head with a cross. The tracery of the foliage, the carving of the figures and ornamental work, are beautifully chiseled and very effectively arranged. After the sitting of the Bourse, we visited it and found it much finer than the one at Antwerp. The interior is in the form of a Latin cross. Twelve gigantic Corinthian columns sustain the cupola. At the sides are smaller pillars which support galleries leading to rooms on the first floors. At the farthest end of the cross are four large allegorical carvatures. The pavement is mosaic, tastefully arranged, and the lighting is by sun chandeliers which inundate the decorations with a flood of light.

We passed through the palace gardens, and visited the house of Parliament, and went to the Hotel de Ville, where was held the revel the night before the Battle of Waterloo, where "Belgium's capital had gathered her beauty and chivalry." Its pyramidal tower rises to the height of 363 feet, and commands a fine view of the battle field of Waterloo, which many of the gentlemen of our party visited. In the court of the hotel there is a beautiful fountain formed of dolphins in bronze, and river gods in white marble.

After having visited every place of interest, we made preparations for a visit to Cologne. Leaving in the morning at four, we spent the day in riding through a country much finer than between Brussels and Antwerp. Instead of large fields of grass or grain, the fields are small and alternated, and of irregular shapes—sometimes square, and then curved, and again in parallelogram shapes, and as grains are now ripening, this alternating gives a pleasing variety to the landscape, on which we never tire of looking. The view is continually changing, as changes the scenes of a kaleidoscope.

Cologne is the oldest town on the Rhine, and is built with long, winding and narrow streets, along the river. A bridge of boats and a stone bridge span the Rhine from Cologne to a small town opposite; the city seems to have considerable business activity. It is called the city of perfumes, and needs all the perfume it manufactures to render the atmosphere of its streets at all supportable to one sensitive to unpleasant smells. It is the only city or place that we were not sorry to leave. We entered it weary from a long ride in the cars, and after a night of refreshing sleep and a good breakfast, went out to visit the great Cathedral which has been in process of construction since 1248, and is still unfinished, and strikingly suggestive of the vanity of human aspirations.

From the Bible Beacon.

'ENTERTAIN STRANGERS.'

"Be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares."—Heb. 13: 2.

A FRIEND of mine once remarked that "tramps" were always invited to his table, furnished with a 'square meal,' and a napkin. Had they come there at a time I don't know what he would have done; but we know what Abraham's conduct was when three strangers appeared at the door of his tent. They were not told that there was nothing cooked, they were not turned off with a cold bite, and a moral lecture against vagrancy, but Abraham washed their feet, while Sarah got up a good warm farmer's dinner, of tender veal, hot cakes, butter and milk. Had Sarah found fault, and said she had enough to do without feeding tramps, she would never have known a mother's joy. Such hospitality brought to that household the blessing of heaven, and, in less, the child of promise.

The strangers journeyed on. Two of them, at evening, appeared to Lot as he 'sat at the gate of Sodom.' Here they were invited to tarry for the night. Again their feet were washed, and "he made them a feast." They were hardly through with their supper before all Sodom was in a rage. What was the matter? Why, the idea of feeding strangers was never heard of before in that pagan city. And is there no hospitality among heathen? Sodom, indeed, to strangers. One of the maxims of the ancient heathen world was "man is a wolf to a man he does not know." In the early days of Christianity an astonished pagan exclaimed of the Christians, "They love each other without knowing each other." Such unheathen of humanity—no, let us not call it humanity but Christianity; for where the religion of Christ is not known, such hospitality is not practiced among heathen. If, sometimes, infidels of Christendom treat strangers with kindness and sympathy it is only because they reflect the teachings of Christianity.

Says Tertullian: "All men love their friends, Christians alone love their enemies."

Justin, martyr of the second century, charged paganism with being destitute of compassion for strangers, saying: "Our religion requires us to love not only our own, but also strangers, and even those who hate us."

We have associated in our ideas of a shepherd life, more of tenderness and manliness than with most other callings. In the story of the Seven Maids of Midian, the unkind treatment they received from the shepherds, stirs our indignation whenever we read the second chapter of Exodus, but it is only illustrative of the lack of pagan hospitality. The chivalrous "Moses stood up and helped them, and watered their flocks." Such gallantry comes from those who have a knowledge of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of men."

COURAGE is of the body and mind; that of mind is the greater.

Home and Family.

MARY C. NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN., - EDITRESS

LIVE SOBERLY.

WE are taught by the Gospel how to live—we are taught to live soberly, righteously and godly. These three words tell us our duty to ourselves, our neighbor, and our God.

To live soberly, is not only to abstain from drunkenness, which is a damnable sin; but from all excesses in eating, drinking, and other bodily indulgences. It is to be sober and moderate in our passions, our recreations, our speech, our dress and whole behaviour. It is to be temperate and moderate in all lawful things, as using the world and not abusing it,—using it as pilgrims and strangers, not making it our rest or portion; but making all worldly comforts secondary things, subservient to the interests of our souls, and the glory of our God; this is to live soberly.

The apostle Paul, when giving directions to Titus, both for his doctrine and life, speaks of the necessity of soberness. Not only does the apostle enjoin soberness upon the aged, but also upon the young. In the first part of the second chapter of Titus, Paul begins thus: "But speak them the things which become sound doctrine. That the aged men be sober; the aged women likewise." Likewise what? Why, that the aged women be sober, and that they be in behavior as becometh holiness, that they may teach the women to be sober, to be discreet, that is, to be prudent, cautious of what they say and how they conduct themselves. They should also be chaste, keepers at home; the young men likewise exhort to be sober-minded. The apostle begins with aged men, second, of aged women. Certainly the female sex is the bond of union to society. The various relations she successively fills, as of daughter, wife and mother, are of vast importance, and capable of the greatest advantages to mankind, especially as the means of forming the human character in life. It is a fact beyond doubt that the world to-day stands in great need of leaders; both of men and women. No wonder the young of our land are so light-minded when the heads of the families are leading them in the path of levity.

The Great God, seated on his eternal throne, beholds every individual of all the millions of mankind, and none of their actions can be concealed from his notice. O, what a world of iniquity does he behold! If God does not speedily punish the sins of men, it is not because he is not displeased with them.

Dear reader, the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ requires, of you and all others, soberness, hence, if you give a candid and serious attention to God's Word, and put what you learn therefrom into practice, the world certainly will be no worse off for you having lived in it. Certainly the Word of God presents to our minds the most serious subjects in the world—death and judgment, heaven and hell are serious things; hence they should be seriously regarded. A light and trifling mind should not be brought to the Word of God. We hope, dear reader that you will consider seriously the subject now before you. Let each say in his heart, have I regarded the Word of Life, with a candid, serious, devout, diligent, believing, joyful and practical attention; if not so, surely my negligence of my best interests, and my contempt of the Great God who speaketh from heaven, is criminal and dangerous. O, thou who hast the key of David, who openest, and no man shutteth, exert in me a sober mind that I may live righteously and godly in this present evil world; may you who are now favored with opportunities of reading and hearing the Word, make good use of them, lest they be finished before you are aware and the benefits designed by them not received. Remember that "to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." M. C. N.

MUST TELL IT.

A STORY was told of a New Zealand girl who was brought over to England to be educated. She became a true Christian. When she was about to return, some of her playmates endeavored to dissuade her. They said: "Why do you go back to New Zealand? you are accustomed to England now; you love its shady lanes and clover fields. It suits your health. Besides, you may be ship-wrecked on the ocean. You may be killed and eaten by your own people. Every-body will have forgotten you."

"What," she said, "do you think that I could be content with having got pardon and peace and eternal life myself, and not go and tell my dear father and mother how they can get it too? I would go if I had to swim there!" (N.)

TO THE LADIES.

MAN is the sport of circumstances. It is a fact which cannot be controverted, that the character of every man, to a greater or less extent, will be influenced by and assume the same general features of the character of those with whom he associates, and particularly of those whom he loves or respects. But there is a certain class of society (I allude to the ladies) who exert a peculiar influence over us, paramount to—yes, I venture to say, exceeding that of all others with whom we associate.

In the several capacities of mother, sister, wife, or daughter, they may almost be said to hold our destinies in their hands; but much of the weal or woe we experience, and the good or evil we do, or cause to be done, in life, depends greatly upon them. Independent, however, of the ties of consanguinity, affinity, or alliance, and merely considered in the abstract as ladies how unlimited their power over us, and what a vast amount of good may they not accomplish, by encouraging every virtue, and peremptorily exhibiting their disapprobation of vice and immorality in whatever garb it may be clothed, or by whomsoever it may be practiced.

In this way they may render themselves the happy instruments of causing "the wicked to forsake his way," and reclaiming licentious, wandering youths from the paths of ruin and disgrace. Where is the young man who has not actually become callous, and lost to every finer feeling ennobling our nature, that would dare to utter a bad word, or even entertain an evil thought, in the society of virtuous and prudent young ladies?

Seeing, then, that their influence over our sex knows no bounds, how great is their responsibility; and how many a soul bestow too little thought upon it, or will not think at all. Ladies, to you we look with confidence for the removal of the prevailing vice in our country. This you can do by ceasing to associate, and on every proper occasion discountenancing the vain, the drunkard, the libertine, and profane; convince them that you disapprove of their conduct, and that, so long as they continue to be the authors thereof, they must of course expect to incur your decided disapprobation. Such a course, universally and strictly carried out, will effect more for the improvement of society than a public lecturer on morality, stationed in every city, town, and village throughout the land. (N.)

A JOYFUL SERVICE.

"WHAT business are you in now?" asked one young man of another.

"I am working for Christ," was the reply.

The friends had met after a brief interval of absence, each to find the other changed.

"An honest, but not a paying, work. You will need to work for the world as well as religion. You always said you meant to be a rich man, an influential man; but you have started wrong for that. Large drafts upon your time, your purse, and the sacrifice of many plans, are demanded by this religion of yours?"

"I have started just the right way, my friend, to reach wealth, influence, and all the earthly good I have so foolishly hoarded I would have. I have sacrificed nothing, but gained all the things. I will try to prove all things."

And the young man did prove it nobly to his friend and to the world. In his business relations, in his intercourse with the world, he stood firmly upon the Rock which he had chosen for his foundation, and many, whose shelter had been early washed away, looked up to his secure dwelling, and built on the same Rock. Religion was his every-day dress, and no Sabbath cloak was needed to cover its soils; for prayer and watchfulness kept it pure day by day. To give as God had prospered him, of wealth, of time, of talent, was a part of his joyful service, and God gave him back in return four-fold. (N.)

SATAN.

IF the personality of Satan be not a vital principle of your religion, I do not know what it is. There is only one dogma higher. You think it is safe, and I dare say it is fashionable, to fall into this lax and really thoughtless discrimination between what is not to be believed. It is not good taste to believe in the devil. Give me a single argument against his personality which is not applicable to the personality of the Deity. Will you give that up? if so, where are you? (N.)

The human constitution cannot be amended by a two-thirds vote.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

OCTOBER 18, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN,..... Editor.

J. H. MOORE, } Corresponding Editors.
S. J. HARRISON, }

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Ernoch Eby,	A. W. Beese,	D. F. Brabaker,
James Evans,	E. S. Michals,	J. J. Rosenbergs,
Daniel Vandusen,	Mattie A. Lewis,	J. W. Southworth,

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not include in personal and anonymous language, but present their views "with grace associated with ability."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Three sending eight names and $10.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the balance.

Money sent by Post-office Order, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

PAPERS AND SCHOOLS.

WE clip an article from the Gospel Preacher relative to what a paper should publish. It contains grains of wisdom worthy of our consideration; and we bespeak for it a careful perusal and a general application. Out here we cherish and nourish it; but take liberty to carry the thought a little farther.

A paper is a mirror reflecting the ideas, the hopes and fears of those who control it and contribute to it. If those who control it and fill its pages, are actuated by selfishness, and seek to glorify God in their thoughts, their bodies and their spirits, then the paper is a reflector of God's will and an advocate of the pure and the good. On the other hand, if a paper is given to gossip, opinions and speculations, it should be sent out as such and not under the plea of Christianity. No paper can accomplish good, and honor God by giving out as facts that which is purely imaginative or based on evil surmising and unreliable rumor.

But papers among the Brethren do not alone merit censure, but the schools where our children are educated also give direction to feeling and character. It is undeniable that teachers have much to do with leading in public thought. To them the children are committed during the greater part of the time of mental development, and many opportunities are given the teacher to imprint his feeling and thoughts upon the young and tender mind. This is not only so in colleges but true of our common schools. It is important, then, who teaches our children and what is taught them. Not a few of the Brethren's children are led away from the plain, practical truths of the Gospel by the district school-teacher.

Should the district schools, therefore, be abolished? No; but efforts should be made to secure better teachers—to put good men and women at the head of school affairs. Over the common schools the Brethren have but little control; but when they can have a voice in the selection of teachers, they should see that men and women of judgment and noble habits are selected. But in colleges controlled by Brethren, what shall be taught and who shall teach may be prescribed so as to maintain the principles of the Gospel. And such owners are responsible to the church the same as editors of our papers.

What would our readers think if the BRETHREN AT WORK should choose an influential brother as its chief editor, and then hire a Presbyterian minister to edit it—to select the matter and oversee the work generally? Do you think it would long remain an exponent and defender of the Brethren's church? Do you not think considerable Presbyterianism would insinuate itself into the crevices and corners at first and eventually out into the room itself? Of course if he were a shrewd office editor, he would not say anything about Presbyterianism under the name Presbyterian, but he would infuse his theories and dogmas in a sly manner—at first not perceptible to the uninformed, but finally in a holder and more open way. Much of it would be finely engarbed and labeled "Christ." You see it would not do to engage a Presbyterian nor any other sectarian to control in the absence of the editor. He might make a very good clerk, but as an office editor he would be dangerous.

Again suppose the Brethren at Waterloo, Ia., should start a college and engage some influential brother to stand at the head—some one who knows but little about school work, but has influence in the church; and then engage a Presbyterian to do the work of the school—to attend to chapel services, and even to preach occasionally—to look after the pupils, to grant excuses, to classify them and determine what books shall be used—in short to control the school, would it be likely to remain a Brethren's school? Do you think the ardent Presbyterian would pass by the opportunities of engrafting here and there a little Presbyterianism? Would he not imprint his denominational ideas in his controlling the school? As a mere teacher he could do but little of this; but as governor his chances are unrestricted. The owners of our colleges should indeed guard this point if they would make their school a blessing to the church.

Schools purporting to maintain the principles of the Brethren may be made a power for good. No enemy should be permitted to silently and ruthlessly undermine the foundation of Gospel order and divinely-revealed principles. Great promises were made concerning these schools by their originators; and we call their attention to these solemn obligations. Unless they be strictly observed and the hallowed principles of the church respected, we shall be called upon to warn our beloved Brotherhood of the danger that it may guard its best interests. We wish all to do good; for doing good means success; but for any evil work we can have no sympathy.

WHO KILLED GARFIELD?

EXPRESSIONS and ideas have emanated from pulpit and press in a manner calculated to lead to the conclusion that God killed President Garfield. Many of the expressions we believe were made without due consideration. Are we to infer from those writers and talkers that God incited Guiteau to shoot the Chief Magistrate? This is what Guiteau says; and the way many ministers and writers put it, leads in the same direction. We regard all this so erroneous; and now since the people have had time to reflect, we regard it befitting to call their attention to some Bible facts. Turning to Job 1:6-12 we are instructed as follows:

Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them. And the Lord said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down it. And the Lord said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect man and an upright man, one that feareth God and escheweth evil? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, Doth Job fear God for naught? Hast thou not made a hedge about him, and about his house, and about all that he hath on every side? Thou hast blessed the work of his hands, and his substance is increased in the land. But put forth thy hand now, and touch all that he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face. And the Lord said unto Satan, Behold, all that he hath is in thy power; only upon himself put not forth thine hand. So Satan went forth from the presence of the Lord.

Satan came among the sons of God before the Lord. A discussion ensued regarding Job; and Satan charged God with protecting the man of God. To prove the fidelity of Job, God withdraws his protection in part, and Satan goes at him with haste and destroys his sons, daughters and property. Having failed to turn Job away from God, Satan again seeks the Lord and says if he will "touch Job's bone and flesh" he will curse. Then God says: "Behold he is in thine hand; but save his life."

Here God withdrew his protection over Job's bones and flesh, but held his life in his hand. Satan's power was limited. He could go no farther than God gave permission, or had withdrawn the hedge.

Again, in 2 Chron. 18, the devil went before the Lord and expressed a willingness to be a lying spirit in the mouths of Ahab's prophets. God withdrew his protection, and the lying spirit went in. Why God did so, is unknown to us. This is one of the mysterics; but because it is mysterious to us, is no proof that it is unreasonable.

Now we do not believe God shot Garfield or is responsible for his shooting. A destructive spirit sought to enter into Guitau, and God permitted it to go in by withdrawing his protection. The result was, Guitau shot the President. Why God withdrew his restraint over Guitau is unknown to us. If men will harden their hearts, and give heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils, no doubt God will withdraw his restraint and let them go. So did he, we believe, with Guitau. Where God withdraws his divine hand, you may be sure the devil will go in and occupy. But why does God withdraw his protection? That is unknown to mortal man. Then we must stop. The limit of knowledge is set here. The bounds of philosophy are reached, and we can give no reason.

God shoots nobody. This is the devil's business. God did not shoot Garfield, nor cause him to be shot; but Guitau shot him and the devil moved him to do it. Satan having done it, God will turn it into a blessing for the nation. For the blessing which follows, let God be praised; for he alone can bring good out of evil. All men abhor the evil deed; yet God will still lead if we trust him.

There is a wide difference between God's causative decrees and his permissive decrees. God caused the worlds to be formed; he permits pestilence to visit the earth to destroy millions of human beings. God caused Christ to come into this world for he so loved it; but he simply permitted him to be slain by the enemy. God will not deny himself; he is true, and all his laws are perfect. Hence we conclude Guitau shot Garfield, and the devil caused him to do it.

SISTER Deliah Petra nee Tomhaugh and her husband have settled down in the wilds of Oregon beyond the Rocky Mountains. Sister Deliah was brought up by Bro. Stein and was one of the family for many years. About the first of last May she married Mr. Petra, and with him left for the West. Three weeks later Bro. Stein left for Europe. Sister Stein is here, brother Stein in Europe or Asia, sister Deliah out in Oregon—thus those who six months ago were one family, are separated thousands of miles.

OUR REFLECTOR.

—I PRESUME that the editor's sickness last week prevented him from gathering the usual amount of items for the first page. The readers could assist the editor considerably by sending suitable items for this department.

—I do not know just yet what to think about the "Special Conference" proposed. Its legality might be called into question, yet it is evident that something should be done to prevent the false accusations that certain parties are circulating against Annual Meeting and the general Brotherhood. Hundreds of honestly disposed members are being led astray by the cunning craftiness of deceitful and unreliable men, who seem to have nothing in view save their own personal glory. There is traveling over the Brotherhood, a class of men who make it their business to "sow discord among the Brethren." They are separating father and son, mother and daughter and making general havoc of union and peace wherever they are permitted to get a foothold. These men seem to have but little money for missionary work; but when it comes to sowing discord in the church, and tearing down what has already been built up in the name of the Lord, they seem to have both time and money. Certainly such men ought to be exposed by name, that the public may know who they are.

—I find considerable food in the first and last parts of Bro. Balsbaugh's "Fundamental." The term "progressive" is very improperly applied. A "Progressive Christian" is one who is approaching still nearer to the Bible—one who is moving toward the Bible and away from the world. If he is moving towards the world—trying to dress like the world, falling into the evils of the world, he ceases to be a progressive Christian in any sense—his progression is in the wrong direction, it is away from the Bible and the farther he goes the worse he gets. Progression is all right if it is only in the right way. If it makes people more humble, more honest, more consistent and more obedient to every part of God's Word, then it is all right; but if it makes them high-minded, self-willed, proud, boastful, and disobedient to the Bible and the church, it follows that there may be considerable progression, but very little Christianity.

—Bro. Myers' "Hearing God" is so different from the other parts of the paper that it is refreshing to read it.

—"A New Sect" shows that the truth is at work in St. Louis in a very healthy manner. The article sets forth some of our principles in a very attractive manner. The brethren having the missionary work in charge in St. Louis want to keep striking while the iron is hot; it will not do to let the work lag. The young church is now growing and needs to be carefully fed and nourished till it has sufficient strength to care for itself. Too many churches are crippled in their infancy for want of proper care.

—Bro. Thurston Miller's article is just the right thing at the right time. The reformation has already been made in Northern Ill.—very little is said during the time of the feast; we read the Word, aim to obey it, and in this way let our actions speak louder than words to the people. I have long since been convinced that there is too much boastful preaching at the time feet-washing is going on. A few appropriate remarks from the brother officiating will often do more good on such occasion than long loud sermons. Besides, much preaching tends to prolong the services to too great a length.

—I must pass unnoticed several articles, among them one from J. S. Flory, that opens up a good field for a careful writer. I must leave the question till presented by another occasion.

—The editor's lengthy article tells some plain truths that people are not very much inclined to obey after they do read them—they will talk and write about parties all the same. But if we were all Christians in deed and in truth, there would be no "factions" among us. Still these different elements are virtually uncalled for; if they would act with the general body, as they ought to, we would have the most glorious organization on earth. By and by, those who are withdrawing may learn a lesson.

—In regard to the use of musical instruments, Bro. Moyer seems to make no distinction between the manner of worship in different dispensations. In olden times instruments of music were used in religious worship and they will also be used in the future kingdom when there will be no temptation for using them in a sinful way; but in the present dispensation we are to sing with the spirit and the understanding. There is no instance on record of the apostles, or any of their converts using musical instruments in their religious services. As the New Testament says nothing about the private use of such instruments in the family, I will also remain equally silent for the present, believing that a proper understanding of the manner of worship in the three dispensations will enable the true worshiper to do about what is right in the present dispensation, being always careful to give no unnecessary offense to any.

—Bro. F. C. Myers writes an interesting letter from St. Louis. That brother who threw his tobacco and pipe away immediately after he was baptized, saying that he had no more use for them, did just what I would like to see a host of our ministers do. The correspondence throughout is unusually interesting. Some of it is rather lengthy, however. When reporting our travels, I see very little use in telling where we ate dinner, how many acres of land this man has, who had the kindness to take us two miles to friend so and so, and a great many other things that are of no interest whatever.

—This No., reports forty persons recently received into the church by baptism, and thirty-four others received sometime ago, making seventy-four baptisms in all. Let the good work move on, and do not fail to report what the Lord is doing for his cause among the people where you live.—J. H. MOORE.

For the Gospel Preacher.

WHAT A PAPER SHOULD PUBLISH FOR THE GOOD OF THE CHURCH.

THIS is a subject of great importance to the church, because there are certain kinds of writing that excite a feeling of strife among brethren. To publish things that tend to divide the feelings of brethren will do more harm than good. There are other kinds of writing which have a tendency like novel writing, exciting the feeling of curiosity, to hear something that agitates the mind with new and strange thoughts,—Athenian-like, to learn of things that make no improvement in their conduct or usefulness. To publish all the troubles that occur in a church or family, like a police journal, giving all the bad things that are done in the church; such writing will do more harm than good. If one member in a family would spread abroad every little error, telling all the wrong done in a family, his course would be an injury to the family, and no good to himself. But it would be food for the gossiping world; so it with writings which give troubles among brethren; it does the church harm; but it gives the enemy plenty of gossip and tends to weaken the influence of the church. For brethren to publish their difficulties with each other in a public journal, only makes their difficulties worse, and injures the church they belong to, because it is in direct violation to God's Word. And it is wrong too, for brethren to write articles to injure each other. It is the most dangerous spirit that can get into the writings of a brother to be trying to tear some one down. It betrays the spirit of jealousy in its worst form. "He that hateth his brethren is a murderer." To murder the character is the worst form of murder; it is persecution in its worst form.

To be in a church and writing against its faith and practice, is another source of evil to the church which will result in division if continued. There is a legal way to reform the practice of a church if it be wrong. That way is by bringing before its councils the subject of its error. In this way the church may be made better and stronger; while this way of writing against it, will divide and weaken it. Another way in which the cause of truth may be injured by writing is in light and frivolous remarks about the truth or the church or the brethren. This shows a want of sincere regard for sacred things. It is hurtful to hear light and sporting remarks about the most sacred relation we sustain to God and to each other. Another evil in writing is the manner in which language is used to hurt some one. When brethren become regardless of other persons' feelings in their manner of writing, there is a lack of brotherly love which leaves many a bleeding sore, time will never heal. This kind of writing is far too often allowed in our papers; and has frequently obliterated the feelings of brethren, when there was no reason for it except the harsh, unkind manner of writing. For the good of the church, writing should be done to improve the religious character and conduct of the workers, to help them all to "grow in grace and the knowledge of the truth." Writing for our papers should be done in a kind and fraternal spirit. Mild and pleasant language may be used in writing which will show a Christian spirit and result in good to the church, making stronger the bands of union, and binding closer in affections the brethren who labor together in one common cause. The writings in our paper should be of that kind, which tends to encourage the church in faithfulness to every duty, and encourage each member in every good work. We need encouragement to do more for the salvation of mankind, and less to kill, and slay, and fight. Try to save people with love and encouragement, to do good in every way, to everybody, when it is in our power to do so.

Another thing in our writing to do good, is to take a straight-forward course in showing the principles of Christianity in all its graces, not stopping or turning aside to attack or reply to every one who may take a different course. We should write nothing that should work against the interest and good influence of the church; if we have a matter of dissatisfaction we should take it to the councils of the church, not spread it abroad in our writings. Our papers should work to secure harmony, and give peace to every part of the Brotherhood. To make public attacks upon brethren through the papers, stirring up ill feeling is nothing better than the spirit of political parties. We should see the evils in their contention, and in our writings take the opposite course, working for peace instead of war. If our peace principles are not in our writing, we contradict our profession of them.

For the Brethren at Work.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANHMAN.

"BELOVED think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you." 1 Pet. 4:12. The trials of life are ordeals of mercy to temper the metal we are made of. Without trials we should not know our capacity to do or not do.

Men and women who pass through the world "an flowery beds of ease" are like shadows, they leave the world but little better because they have lived in it.

The holy prophets, Jesus and his apostles furnish us good examples of patient endurance and trial. From them we learn how, through trials of the good, the world is made better.

Trials are benefactors to all who meet them with true courage and fortitude. Good metal becomes brighter by being much rubbed. Spices smell sweeter when pounded. Some herbs grow best and spread most when tramped upon. Stars shine brightest in deep darkness. He is the greatest philosopher who takes the undulations of life as they come and turns them into the best possible advantage without fretting and scolding because things are not thus, or so.

The best men and women may as well expect disappointment, losses, and trials, for Providence has for a noble purpose striven them along our pathway. All consistent efforts to elevate and ennoble others through the power of the Gospel, elevate and ennoble worker and in effect will continue through eternity.

"Preach the Gospel to every creature," means in the cities as well as in the country. Hundreds of honest, hard-working poor in the cities are tired of the wickedness around them and need the comforting influence of the promises of the Gospel as much as any in the country.

In St. Louis, through the efforts of the Salvation Army, conducted on the Moody style, some were made to desire salvation; but having no church organization they were directed to find homes in any of various branches of Christ's church in the great city.

Now comes the work of finding a congenial home in some church in which all the requirements of the Gospel can be practiced as we are taught in the Bible. After a long search, the honest seeker becomes discouraged because he cannot find it. The style etc., freezes him out.

Now if the Brethren will not preach the Gospel there and build up churches among these people in which all the requirements of the Gospel can be practiced by both rich and poor together, who will? Ye who are at ease in Zion, please answer.

Through the efforts of some quiet workers, a church of the Brethren is being gradually and quietly established in St. Louis. Noble-hearted brethren and sisters in Southern Ill. who only needed it mentioned in their hearing that means were needed to rent a hall in the city to preach the Gospel in, came forward and contributed means to rent a hall at $12.50 per month. It is but about eight months since the first sermon was preached by the Brethren in St. Louis, and seventeen candidates have in this time willingly came down into the great Mississippi and were baptized with Christ in baptism to rise and walk in newness of life. One being there before, make now sixteen members in all. Their first communion was held in the hall the evening of Sept. 19th.

The hall being rented and paid for during the month of Oct., more preaching is promised them Oct. 15th and 29th. The question arises, what then? Do the brethren and sisters say, contribute more means and continue the preaching at regular intervals through the winter. I think many will say, yes. If so, please say it in a substantial way and send it to F. C. Myers, 913 Brookfield St., St. Louis, Mo., or to Eld John Metzger, Cerro Gordo, Ill. Any means thus contributed will be used to forward the Master's cause in St. Louis.

[Why are not those expenses paid by the Domestic and Foreign Mission Board? It has a large sum of money idle; and it seems fit that the mission in St. Louis should be paid out of that fund.—Ed.]

Vols. 11.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Ladies, Henry Co., Mo.

Will some one please explain 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35? Why are women to keep silence in the church—why shall they not sing or pray or what shall they do?

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations?
A. BROTHMAN.

Please explain the difference between a good man and a righteous man. JOHN Y. SNAVELY.

What are the seven spirits of God? C. D. H.

Please explain Matt. 24: 40, 41. It reads, "There shall be two in the field; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, the other left."
LYDIA ZARNER.

Will some one explain the last part of the 6th verse of the 5th chapter of John: "But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground," etc. How could he write on the ground, when he was in the temple?
A. SISTER.

Dno. David Moore wants to know whether there is more Scripture for an organ in a family than to dance.
PETER BROWN.

Why did Simon want the honor as mentioned in those verses—to gain honor, fame, money, or what?
PETER BROWN.

QUERY ANSWERED.

Please give the true meaning of the word "closet." Matt. 6: 6.
JOHN Y. SNAVELY.

THE Greek for closet is Tombeion, defined, "a chamber, closet, place of retirement and privacy."

Christ, in using the term closet, or its substitute in Greek, had reference, not so much to an actual closet, as he had to a place of privacy.

This He did, to teach the people that in prayer we should have nothing in view but the honor of God. The Pharisees sought the most public places to pray. Their object in this was that they might have honor of men. This they got, and it was all they received for their praying. It was all they prayed for. But Christ would have us know, that if we would be benefited by prayer, we must retire away from the public gaze, where no eye but that eye that never elaps, can see us, and there make our requests known, and our heavenly Father will reward us openly. The reason that the door is required to be closed, or locked, when we enter to pray, is, from the fact, that we might go into our closets to pray, and by purposely leaving the door open, to be seen of men, we would be no better than the Pharisees.

It does not matter whether we retire to the closet or chamber, or into the deep forest, or caves of the mountain,—either of those places are equally acceptable to him, provid it have nothing in view but to pray to our Father in secret.

It has special reference to our individual relations to our Heavenly Father, and does not embrace family worship, nor worship in the assembly of the saints.
J. S. M.

No man can tell whether he is rich or poor, by simply looking on his ledger.

For the Brethren at Work.
HAS MAN AN IMMORTAL SOUL?

Will some one please give the Scripture where it is said that man has an immortal soul, or it is said man has no immortality before the resurrection?

If man has got immortality, why is he exhorted to seek for it? Rom. 2: 7. A. J. CUSHING.

THERE is no place in the Scriptures, where it says: "Man has an immortal soul" nor is there a passage which reads: "Man has no immortal soul." But the whole tenor of Christ's and the apostles' teachings, as also the Old Testament indicate that man has an immortal spirit. And it is a harder task for cavillers to show from the Scriptures with their materialistic philology that man has no immortality before the resurrection than it is for expositors of the Scriptures to show that man has immortality; that his personality, which, if you please you may call immortal soul, or immortality, will not be destroyed in death.

God is a spirit (John 4: 24) and the "Father of Spirit;" Heb. 12: 9) and Christ says: "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world, and go to the Father." (John 16: 28). "I ascend unto my Father and my Father, and to my God and your God. (John 20: 17) And Christ exhorts the human family to call on God as: "OUR Father who art in heaven."

In the parable of the prodigal son he represents the wicked sinner and ungodly man or woman as a disobedient child of the "Father," which however must be born again to be happy.

Though he joined himself to a citizen of that country, and may in one sense properly he said: "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do," nevertheless he is the son of the Father."

Paul says that the Father of Spirits cherisheth us, his children, for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. Heb. 12: 9, 10. He says, the redeemed, re-adopted child call him, "Abba, Father." (Rom. 8: 15).

Now, this Fatherhood is a spiritual fatherhood, and this childhood is a spiritual childhood. God is not the Father of our physical organism, our body, but He is the Father of our spirits, and the Creator of our bodies.—This spirit which is the essence of man, is not destroyed in death, but only leaves this earthly house to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven." 2 Cor. 5: 1-5.

God breathing this spirit or breath of life into man's nostrils, he thereby became a living soul,—a separate entity. It gave him personality and individuality, rendering him an accountable being—a being that choose for himself, right or wrong. He would otherwise have been as the brute creation.

Romans 2: 7 should be translated "incorruptibility." The same word occurs in the original in 1 Cor. 15: 42 50, 53, 54 and is translated "incorruption." Man shall seek "incorruptibility," or life in incorruptibility, because that is the complement of redemption. All they who patiently continue in well-doing, are sanctified in the Truth, shall have part in the first resurrection, where they are clothed with incorruptible bodies, and so shall not be hurt by the second death. Rev. 2: 11. For the second death has no power on them. Rev. 20: 6.

But all those who will not be clothed with incorruptibility, will fall under the power of the second death.
DANIEL BRIGHT.

THE CERTAINTY OF THE GOSPEL.

THE firmest thing in the universe is the cross on which the world's Redeemer was crucified. Though shadows and gloom gathered around that scene of suffering, yet the suffering has passed and all gloom and darkness have passed with it, and higher and brighter than the sun shines forth the transfigured face of our ascended Lord.

No eclipse will ever shadow this effulgent truth, "Whoso believeth in me shall have eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day."

We come to-day unto the cross of Christ, and lay our hands on his eternal strength.—Thousands before us have done it, and found rest.

Tremulous age has trusted here and lost its weakness. Patience has recorded here and found its confidence. Suffering has fled for help, and discovered its strength. Ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands, when passing through the prostration and mystery of death, have turned an eye and put forth a hand to the cross of him who was lifted up to draw all men unto him, and smiles of confidence have driven away the shadows of the grave.

Come to day and lay your hand upon the cross and say, "I know whom I have believed, and that he is able to keep that I have committed unto him against that day."

Stand by the cross, and leaning upon its strength, exclaim, "I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor things present nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord."

The Flavian Amphitheater at Rome, called the Coliseum, was erected by the Emperor Flavius Vespasian, after his return from the Jewish war, A. D. 72. Many thousand Jews who were made captives in this war were employed on the Coliseum. This colossal structure was oval in form, its length being five hundred and eighty feet, and its breadth four hundred and seventy. It was externally surrounded by three rows of arches, raised to the height of one hundred and fifty seven feet, and above these a row of pilasters. The whole was crowned with a heavy attic.—This immense building resisted for many centuries the ravages of time, and is now a dilapidated ruin, only because vandal hands despoiled it, and made it a quarry from which to obtain material for modern churches.

Correspondence.

Notes By the Way.

Through the kindness of Bro. S. C. Price, we were given a team and carriage to convey my family and self to Lanark. Left Mt. Morris on the morning of the 5th inst. at 7:30 A. M., and arrived at our sister's, within one and one-half miles of Lanark, at 11:30 A. M. Found all well. After dinner we went to Lanark. On reaching the city we were made to think of the time when we lived there. We always liked to live there. It is such a pleasant place. Various improvements have been made there this Summer. There are some nice buildings going up, some of which are finish ed.

After being in Lanark about two hours we started for our brother's, and arrived there at 4:30 P. M. Remained there over night.

Oct. 6. Started for the Love-feast at Arnold's Grove. Arrived in good time, and found a goodly number there. At 1 P. M. the meeting was opened by J. H. Moore. After prayer, D. M. Miller was the first to preach followed by J. H. Moore. We were not permitted to remain during examination services, we having taken wife and children out to her folks.) In the evening quite a large number gathered around the tables of the Lord to partake of the broken emblems and shed blood of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The meeting closed at 8:30 P. M., after which we went out to our father-in-law's to stay all night.

Oct. 7th. At the hour appointed, meeting was opened by Enoch Eby, who also led in prayer. D. B. Eby and D. M. Miller did the preaching. In the afternoon we went to my wife's sister's, and spent the rest of the day and night there.

Oct. 8. Came part way home. Staid at J. E. Rowland's for dinner. In the afternoon we went to Lanark again, and spent a few hours in the city. Staid all night at G. H. Rowland's, and had a pleasant visit there.

Oct. 9. Took dinner at my sister's. At 1 P. M. we started for home. On the way between Maryland Station and Mt. Morris, we saw smoke a piece from the road, and when we got closer we found that it was a house burning down. It belonged to Isaac Kaufman. It seems all the folks were away attending a funeral, and some one saw the fire, but when they got there they could save scarcely anything. Cause of the fire unknown to us.

Arrived at home at 5 P. M. Found all well. Taking everything into consideration, we had a pleasant visit, and it did us good to get out of the office awhile.

S. M. ESKELMAN.

Northern Missouri.

Last week brother P. E. Whitmer gave us a synopsis of the Northern Mo. D. M. Since then brother Evans sent a report. We glean the following additional news concerning this holy Brethren out there.—Ed.

"We formed a number of new acquaintances around Whitesville. Here we saw brother Henry Bashor, father of S. H. Bashor. We preached three discourses in the Whitesville church, and on the following Thursday we started for Honey Creek church, Nodaway Co.

We forgot to say that brother William Sall and C. C. Root were appointed evangelists to travel the coming Winter. To meet expenses, it was agreed that each member in the district contribute fifteen cts. True, a few may not be able to pay this, but others can contribute a little more, and thus the amount needed could be easily raised. Brother John Rosserman, of Polo, Caldwell Co., is our Treasurer. It was also agreed to meet expenses of sending a delegate to Annual Meeting; that each member pay twenty cents not only to meet the expenses of last delegate, but also to create a fund for similar purposes. We trust that our Brethren in the district will respond to the decision of the District Meeting not simply by contributing fifteen or twenty cents to the missionary work, but will feel it a privilege to do much more. How willingly we tax ourselves for use less gratifications. One brother informed us that his tobacco cost him $1500 a year. Will we not lay up some treasures in heaven?

Andrew county has advantages of timber and water above some other places. Corn is about half a crop. In our next we will say something about Nodaway."

Consolidation.

LETTER NO. V.

Inasmuch as brethren R. H. Miller and M. M. Eshelman have brought before our minds the consolidation of all church papers into one, (see No. 34 B. AT W.) we will give our view of it a matter as we have looked at it for a good while. We are decidedly in favor of a consolidation, but not such as has been heretofore made—by one editor buying out another, then the one who sells start another paper.

We think it is fast becoming, if not already a necessity for the union, peace, and harmony of the church, that Annual Meeting take charge of the press and control it by some plan, having but one office. We suggest, not to oppose brethren Miller and Eshelman, but because we think it would be good to have two papers instead of one; but both to be printed at the same office and by the same editors. We think one weekly devoted to church news and such matter as might be thought best; the other to be a monthly in pamphlet form of smaller pages, convenient for reference, and more suitable for binding when the covers are removed, and this paper to contain only such articles as are worth preserving; such as the writings of our able brethren, debates and doctrinal subjects that are clearly and ably handled, and other matter that the brethren would desire to retain for future reference. The pamphlet to have an alphabetical index at the close of each volume. We believe that a consolidation of this kind would be far better than the present condition of affairs. We feel quite sure that Annual Meeting must sooner or later take hold of this matter, and we believe the sooner the better.

J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

LETTER NO. VI.

Consolidation of our papers has been before the Brethren, and after some thought over the matter, we would give our views in short.

First, we think it has a tendency to bring too much labor upon our Annual Meeting to give it to the general satisfaction of the Brotherhood.

Second, it would make Annual Meeting responsible for all the errors committed by the managers of it, etc. Upon the whole, we think it best to have our papers as individual enterprises, and the editors to be responsible for the papers, and not Annual Meeting. But we feel to submit to our dear brethren and sisters.

K. HECKMAN.

The Love-feast in Linn County, Iowa.

This was held according to announcement on the 8th and 9th inst. Lately a number—nearly one-half—of the members withdrew from the church and adopted the Miami Valley resolutions.

The seceding party at once organized themselves into a church, and expect to hold a Communion meeting the 15th and 16th inst., with those who will subscribe to the "Old Order" as defined by their resolutions.

Of course the little band felt sad and much discouraged when their number was so rapidly diminished. However after the line was drawn those who were on the Lord's side collected together, and summoning all their energies, renew their vows to remain faithful until death. At the command of the Master, they march on,—appoint a Love-feast and extend a verbal invitation. Ten from Illinois, and representatives from Blackhawk, Cedar, Clinton, Benton, Muscatine, and Poweshiek counties responded, contributing what they could to dispense the gloom and gladden the hearts of the little band of saints in Linn Co., Iowa. The foreign ministers present were Enoch Eby, J. H. Moore, Isaac Barto John Zook, Paul Wetzel, Aschenbrenner of Der Bruderkette; Joshua Shultz, and S. C. Miller. The Word was preached with power and received with gladness.

It is to be regretted that few, if any, who withdrew from the church were present. To us their absence was very painful; for to some of them we have been bound by the strong ties of affection. How we longed to see their friendly faces, and grasp their hands in fraternal joy as brethren and sisters, the same as in by-gone days, the memory of which is still dear and cherished.

The night of the 8th, we spent with John Bonebrake and family. He and wife are among the number that has withdrawn. We did not talk with them concerning the action they had taken, except remarking when we were preparing to leave for Sunday morning services, that we would so much rather have them go with us the same as of old, that it seemed wrong not to see them with the rest. To this, friend (Oh, how much we would rather say brother!) Bonebrake replied in a very kind, though sorrowful, way: "It seemed we could not get along together. We hope it may go better now."

As to our treatment from this family, it was the same as it had always been,—the kindest and best. Angels could not have been more attentive to our wants. May God Almighty lead them safely through this wilderness of woe into Immanuel's land, where the weary are at rest and the wicked cease from troubling. The attendance at the meeting was good and the attention better than we ever saw at the place on a similar occasion.

The old elder, Abraham Stacy, remains with the flock, over which the Holy Ghost made him overseer. T. G. Snyder and J. C. Miller serve in the administration of the Word. Both are humble brethren, willing servants, and highly respected citizens. Samuel Bock and Daniel Albaugh, according to our informant and recollection, were the only deacons left with the church. Consequently on first day of the Feast another, James P. Wilson, was chosen and installed into said office.

Truly this congregation is having its pilgrimage through a "vale of tears." It has an experimental knowledge of "fightings within and without." In its infancy the Campbellites pounced down upon it like a wolf upon a sheep, but finding favor before the Lord the wolf was put to flight. The saints then enjoyed a brief season of peace in which their number was doubled. But soon the seeds of intolerance were sown, and fighting from within began. However the growth of the tree was slow until watered from the Beverdam and Miami Valley clouds. Since then, they have grown rapidly and produced copiously.

Truly this congregation should have the sympathies and prayers of the Brotherhood.

Trusting in the promise of our Father that all things work together for good to them that love the Lord, we close, begging remembrance at a throne of grace.

S. J. HARRISON.

Notes by the Way.

We left home on the 23rd of September to meet with the Brethren in the Indian Creek church, Story county. The Love-feast was held the 24th and 25th. It was well attended, and much respect manifested by all present. The church is active: all seem to have the cause of Christ at heart. Ministers present were brother Levi Kinsey, from Indiana, Joseph Trostle, State Center, S. Goughnour, John Mosta, — Matthews, Des Moines Valley church, Isaac Thomas, World's Grove church, Story county, brother Miller, Potosiwick county, and the writer. This church is presided over by D. E. Brubaker. His co-laborers are brethren C. Hillery, Henry Troop, the latter being advanced to the second degree of the ministry, and Bro Franklin Pike was elected deacon. . . . Returned home the 20th. Found all well. The 30th I started to attend a Feast in Cherokee county, Oct. 1st and 2nd. But owing to railroad misfortune I did not reach the place of meeting till Oct. 2nd. . . . The brethren in Cherokee have a fine country. When we arrived at Aurelia and our eyes glanced over the landscape, we surely thought there must be brethren there, for you always find brethren in a good country. We soon found we were not mistaken. Had a good meeting, and all enjoyed a good refreshing from the Lord. Ministers present were Wm. Ekeberry, from Waterloo, and the writer. Brother John Early presides over the flock there; it is actively engaged in the work. As assistants he has Elias Leonard, — Layman. Brother Early labors hard for the welfare of the church and for the benefit of his country.

Brethren going there with the object of looking up homes should call on him. His kind family will surely make you comfortably. . . . We spent the greater part of our time with our brother in-law; his wife being a sister, as well as her mother, who has her home there. We hope Jonas will not delay his coming to the Lord before it is too late. . . . We must also give a short account of the storm we had through here on the 29th, which did much damage. The passenger train on the D & F. D. road was blown from the track and seven persons were injured; some were badly hurt; houses and barns were torn to fragments, and persons badly hurt; wagons turned over; grain and hay stacks torn to pieces.

Boone, Iowa, Oct. 8th. JOHN DIEHL.

From C. D. Hylton. — Our Love-feast is among the things of the past. Happy to say, all the sisters had on their plain white caps. We wash feet by the double mode, simply because we don't care to change. H. P. Hylton officiated. Next day brethren J. B. Wrightsman, Wm. N. H., and Samuel Rothrock presided about 1,200 were in attendance. One baptized and Thursday before. — Hylton, Va., Oct. 3rd.

From John Metzger. — Myself and wife, and sister Catharine Breckenstaff and little daughter started on 7th inst. for Hudson, Ill., to attend the Communion there the 8th and 9th. . . . Had a very pleasant meeting, with the best of order. I like to visit the church at Hudson. Every member tries to do right. Brethren and sisters, let us all try to do likewise. . . . Was much pleased to meet brother M. M. Eshelman and brother Edmund Forney and their wives at the meeting. . . . Started for home the 10th. We stopped off at Normal, and visited the O'phane' Home. There are about 435 children there, and are all well cared for. We went through the building in order to see every department. They have good schools, with the best of teachers. Thus every effort is being made to train the children right. — Cerro Gordo, Ill., Oct. 11th.

From Thurston Miller. — I have the pleasure of reporting one more season of rejoicing among some of the saints of God, that of the Portage Communion, which took place on the evening of the 8th inst. Among the pleasant features of the meeting was a good representation of our home members and an unusual number from some of the adjoining churches. The ministry from abroad was not so largely represented, but an abundance of help was present. Brother Walter Clark, from Cass Co., Mich., officiated, and though young and inexperienced in that kind of labor, did his part quite well. The attendance of spectators was as large as was possible to accommodate, and it is said that many could not get inside the house. I am glad that I can say that the order and attention of the audience were the best I ever witnessed at this place. There was no word of reproach offered, and no occasion for it given. But the really good news to tell is of the addition, by baptism, of a brother, whose influence for good may be much. . . . Services next day. Attendance unusually large. Time improved by brother J. C. Cripe, of Cass Co., Mich. Thus another reason has passed; and one that will long be remembered with pleasure by many. And it is to be regretted if anything should have occurred to mar the peace and enjoyment of any present. — Warren Center, Ind.

From Jestina Miller. — We had our Love-feast Oct. 1st and 2nd. It was truly enjoyable by all participants. Four ministering brethren here from a distance who held forth the Word with power, causing saints to rejoice and sinners to tremble. . . . In the morning before preaching the voice of the church was taken in regard to choosing a minister. All were in favor of a choice. In the afternoon the votes were cast, and two brethren run a tie. The council of the church was again taken and all were in favor of accepting both brethren. Brethren Isaac Darabiz: r and H-wett Taylor were the chosen ones. They are both zealous in the Master's cause, and we wish them many blessings in their ministerial labors. Brother George H. Wood was forward in the second degree of the ministry. May God best his blessings upon all. Installation next morning before preaching by brother R. bert Badger. . . . Received three by baptism since the middle of July. — Deep River, Iowa.

From Emma Arnold. — On the 31st of September, accompanied by four sisters and two brethren, I left my home in Allen county en route for Parson church, Labette county. During our stay there we made our home at Bro. Garbers'; had a pleasant visit there. It rained most of the time during the meeting; but we held our meeting in a good tent. The meeting lasted from Friday night till Sunday night. Had good order and a good time. There were brethren and sisters there from different States. . . . Friday evening we listened to a sermon by brother E. Edgecomb, followed by J. Paxton and Wm. Edgecomb. . . . Saturday morning we met early at the tent, and listened to good singing by the brethren and sisters. Meeting opened at 10 o'clock; preaching by brother W. W. Reynolds, followed by S. Hodgen and Paxton. Evening meeting opened with usual exercises. Had a pleasant Communion. All was peace and harmony. We listened to addresses by S. Hodgen, W. W. Reynolds, and R. Edgecomb. . . . Sunday morning we attended the Brethren's Bible School. Brother S. Hodgen is Superintendent, Sister Emma Garber, Secretary. Addresses were made to the school by elders Reynolds, Edgecomb, and others. . . . Were made glad to meet brother Elder, of Ill., who was visiting his children located near Parson; also with many other brethren, sisters, and friends. . . . Sunday night we listened to a sermon by brother Kenhry, followed by brother Wm. Edgecomb. Were much renewed in spirit for having done our duty. — Elsinore, Allen Co., Kan., Oct. 11th.

A MOUNTAIN south of the south fork of the Clearwater, and about two by miles east of Mt. Idaho, and seventy-five from Lewistown, in Idaho Territory, has been in a state of eruption since the 9th inst. Columns of fire and smoke several hundred feet in height have issued forth, and rocks which fell several miles from the place of eruption have been belched forth.

Health and Temperance.

A. T. BOSSEMAN, - - - - - EDITOR

All communications for this department should be addressed to S. T. Bosserman, Dunkirk, Hardin Co., Ohio.

IMPORTANCE OF BATHING.

"For the life of flesh is in the blood."

ON the nature, composition, and quantity of the blood, depends the condition of the animal life.

If the texture of any muscle or organ be divided into minute particles, it will be found to consist wholly of vessels containing blood. Even those parts that do not appear to consist of vessels, such as the bony, cartilaginous and tendinous textures, will be found in the first state of their formation to have been similarly composed. Hence the blood is not only a treasury and storehouse from which the several members are supplied with material they call for; but it is the means by which every one is enabled to live a distinct life his or her own.

The states of the blood vary according to the states of the mind. Excite a pleasurable emotion and how quick to the cheek manifested with a blush. We use these expressions: "It froze my blood, it made my blood boil, my blood was up to fever heat," etc. We do boil with rage, freeze with horror, sicken with grief and fear. No, too, is the mind affected by the states and conditions of the blood; a fever causes delirium. The worn out, broken down globules of the blood should be expelled through the great sluice ways of the system, the lungs, bowels, kidneys and skin; and when not so expelled they poison and vitiate the purer blood, and this is now considered one of the most fruitful sources of insanity. A fluid of amazing complexity, holding in exquisite balance the constituents from which the whole being is elaborated, all delicacy of feeling and nicety of thought depend upon its purity. Mental perversions are caused by changes in the properties of the blood, and if the poisonous products of bodily waste are not constantly swept from the system, the cerebral changes are disturbed and the mind stop-fied.

Foods, drinks, and drugs affect specifically the passions and thoughts. To become exhausted and j-vous, man charges his blood with wine, to exalt the sensations he takes hashish, to abolish consciousness or pain he takes opium or breathes vapors of chloroform.

In every species of animal the blood differs, and it varies in every individual. "For the blood is the life; is a vital and spirituous fluid in immediate connection with the soul and with changes of its states, results are produced which affect the very thoughts and affections."

In various kinds of food we eat and drink are contained that which may be engaged by chemical action, for the nourishment of the blood, and this is mainly done in the stomach which process is termed chymification. From the stomach, that portion which has not been absorbed, is passed along to the duodenum where it needs the gall and farther on the pancreatic fluid, which converts it into chyle, when it is absorbed by the lacteal vessels, carried to the thoracic duct, from which it is poured into the venous blood. The lacteals and lymphatics extend over every part of the system, and are a part of the muscular net-work situated upon the true skin and mucus membranes, especially of the lungs. Those acting for the growth of the body, are the lacteals or absorbents, those which remove particles deposited are called lymphatics, and whenever there is an artery to deposit a living particle of matter, there, too, are lymphatics to remove it as soon as it shall have fulfilled its uses.

When they are more active than the nutrients, the limbs lose their plumpness, and it is not infrequent that wens and other tumors are removed by action of the lymphatics, and when little or no food is taken into the stomach they draw upon the fats stored away, and convey it into the blood; thus supporting life from the storehouses of the body. Attenuated limbs and muscles are thus produced, by what is termed interstitial absorption.

Cutaneous absorption relates to the skin, and here they are most numerous, being estimated high—3,528 to the square inch, the entire length of which is said to be twenty-eight or thirty miles. Accompanying them are the excretory ducts, also glands for keeping the surface in a smooth supple condition.

The absorbents here, as well as elsewhere, receive and take up whatever is applied to their mouths; convey it to the thoracic duct, from thence to the venous blood. Thirst may be quenched and hunger assuaged by bathing in liquids and nourishing soups. And why may not poisonous diseases be taken into the system the same way? Is it not easy to see how necessary it must be to keep the surface of the body constantly free from all impurities? Through the pores of the skin is eliminated carbon, thus assisting in the work peculiar to the lungs and kidneys, while through the absorbents the treasures of the atmosphere are imbibed; so that if these become inactive, if the excretory ducts are closed, and the filth is not removed, it is re-absorbed, vitiating the blood.

If, then, our entire organisms are constantly receiving something from air, food and water, and as constantly giving off unhealthy effluvia, we may see the reasons for bathing; for if the blood be vitiated, fevers, inflammations, coughs, and consumption are the result.

Stop your nose and mouth, and you die in a short time; cover your body with varnish, and it aches results. This is because you obstruct, preventing free action of oxygen on the blood; while twenty-eight miles of sewerage is also stopped, by which the impurities of the body are thrown off, by which, if retained, the blood is poisoned; what wonder the pulse is feeble and you feel languid?

Now the bath opens these million pores, poison is thrown out, oxygen imbibed, and this is one great life sustainer.

Most obstructions (not all) exist in the capillary blood vessels, and these are cleaned and freed by the bath, or in other words the blood globules are washed, purified, born again, and inspired with new life and vitality, are eager to be sent throughout the system, on their mission of life, and at once we are livelier in body, bricker in feeling, clearer in mind and altogether happier and better Christians.

C. L. P.

THE MANAGEMENT OF SICK CHILDREN.

THE vicissitudes necessarily incident to an out-door and primitive mode of life are never the first causes of any disease, though they may sometimes betray its presence. Bronchitis, nowadays perhaps the most frequent of all infantile diseases, makes no exception to this rule; a draught of cold air may reveal the latent progress of the disorder, but its cause is long confinement in a vitiated and overheated atmosphere, and its proper remedy ventilation and a mild, phlegm-loosening (saccharine) diet, warm sweet milk, sweet oatmeal-porridge, or honey-water. Select an airy bedroom and do not be afraid to open the windows; among the children of the Indian tribes who brave in open tents the terrible Winters of the Hudson Bay territory, bronchitis, croup, and diphtheria are wholly unknown; and what we call "taking cold" might often be more correctly described as taking hot; glowing stoves, and even open fires, in a night nursery, greatly aggravate the pernicious effects of an impure atmosphere. The first paroxysm of croup can be promptly relieved by very simple remedies: fresh air and a rapid forward-and-backward movement of the arms, combined in urgent cases with the application of a flesh-brush (or piece of flannel) to the neck and the upper part of the chest. Purgative and poppy-syrup stop the cough by lethargizing the irritability and thus preventing the discharge of the phlegm till its accumulation produces a second and far more dangerous paroxysm. These second attacks of croup (after the administration of palliatives) are generally the fatal ones. When the child is convalescing, let him beware of stimulating food and overheated rooms. Do not give aperient medicines; costiveness, as an after-effect of pleuritic affections, will soon yield to fresh air and a vegetable diet.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald, in Popular Science Monthly for October.

THE WAY TO HEALTH.

THE only true way to health is that which common sense dictates to man. Live within the bounds of reason. Eat moderately, drink temperately, sleep regularly, avoid excess in anything, and preserve a conscience void of offense. Some men eat themselves to death, some drink themselves to death, some wear out their lives by indolence, and some by over-exertion; others are killed by the doctors, while not a few sink into the grave under the effect of vicious and beastly practices. All the medicines in creation are not worth a farthing to a man who is constantly and habitually violating the laws of his nature. All the medical science in the world cannot save him from a premature grave. With suicidal course of conduct, he is planting the seed of decay in his own constitution, and accelerating the destruction of his own life.—Scientific American.

He that knows not when to be silent, knows not when to speak.

Every new luxury of mankind opens the way for scores of doctors.

GENERAL AGENTS FOR THE Brethren at Work, AND TRACT SOCIETY.

- S. T. Roseman, Franklin, Ohio; John Foreay, Abilene, Kan.; N. C. Key, Leola, Ill.; Daniel Vestman, Vicksburg, Miss.; C. A. Shearwright, Graham, Mo.; J. S. Ely, Leighton, Colo.; W. Lester, Mt. Morris, Ill.; John Metzger, Cairo, Mo.; J. S. Mohler, Corsville, Mo.; J. W. Woodwood, Mendenhall, Ind.; John Wise, Mulberry Grove, Ill.; D. Brewer, Malco, Oregon.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid, it serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan, '81," shows that the paper has been paid for up to that time. "1 Jan, '82" shows that the time will then expire.

If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Youth's Advance.

Circulation Nearly Four Thousand the First Year!

SINGLE COPY, - - 40 CENTS A YEAR

READ OUR PREMIUM-LIST.

- 1. PEN KNIFE & SCISSORS COMBINED. A dandy, two-bladed knife with a pair of scissors attached. Given for twenty subscribers and $8.00. Price of Knife alone $1 75
2. WINGED WONDERS—About wings and their wonders from birds to butterflies; for wide-awake boys and girls, who are always seeing more curious things in a day, than some folks do in a year. $1 75
3. IN THE MOUNTAINS—A book to open the eyes of boys and girls, so that they can see common things. 75cts
4. STORIES ABOUT WILD ANIMALS.—By Anna Burnham. One of the largest and handsomest of our gift-books for young people. 75cts
5. THE NATURAL HISTORY OF THE BIBLE.—In a neat volume of 168 pages. 75cts described as to interest the young, and also instruct those who are older. Bound in cloth, with gilt dies on back and sides, and illustrated by 36 good engravings, making a handsome and desirable addition to a young Bible student's library. 60cts

- 6. BOOK OF NATURAL HISTORY.—A picture book of Animals. 15cts
7. A FINE TWO-BLADED PEN-KNIFE Suitable for a boy. $4 00
8. A BEAUTIFUL TWO-BLADED PEN-KNIFE.—For a girl or lady. $3 20
9. A BLACK HANDLE TWO BLADED KNIFE.—For a girl or lady. $2 80
10. A FINE KEY RING.—Given for two subscribers and 80 cents.
11. ONE DOZEN LEAD-PENCILS, with rubber eraser on one end. $3 00
12. A FINE SATIN PURSE, good and strong, suitable for a little girl. $2.00
13. A GOOD STRONG PURSE, for a boy. $1.20
14. AN AUTOMATIC LEAD-PENCIL.—Cannot run out what you write with this pencil. $2.40
15. LADIES' POCKET-BOOK WITH HANDLE.—Fine leather and well made. $6.00
16. ELEGANT PIONEER WATCH.—For novelty subscribers and $28.00. $28.00
17. EXPANSION BALANCE WATCH.—For eighty subscribers and $32.00. $32.00
18. WATERBURY WATCH.—For forty subscribers and $16.00. $16.00
19. FINE LADIES WATCH.—For twenty subscribers and $28.00. $28.00
20. Go to work at once and secure one of these valuable and useful premiums. For ample copies and further information address: YOUTH'S ADVANCE, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Something New!

Yes, really something new. The Minutes of Annual Meeting since 1876 have been published in pamphlet form, so that it can be put in back part of book of Minutes for convenient reference. 60cts

Books, Etc., for Sale at this Office.

- 60cificates of Membership in Book-Term.—They are neatly printed on good paper, ready to fill out, with duplicate attached and all well bound together in a neat book some what after the style of blank note books. 50cts
No. 1, 60cts
No. 2, 75cts
HYMN BOOKS AND HYMNALS.
Brother's Hymn Book.—Manuscript, single copy, post paid, .50; per dozen, $5.50; by express, $6.00; Arabic, single copy, post paid, .50; per dozen, by express, $6.00; Sheep, single copy, post paid, $1.00; per dozen, $12.00; by express, $11.40
New Tune and Hymn Book.—Half leather, single copy, post paid, $1.25; per dozen, by express $12.00. Morocco single copy, post paid, $1.50 per dozen, by express $14.75.
Hive-bee Echos. Is designed for the service of song in the several departments of church service, and Sunday-school. $1.40
Single copy, postpaid, .25
One dozen, 2 75
Two " " 4 50
Single copy, postpaid, .25
One dozen, 2 75
Two " " 4 50
Any of the above sold post-paid on receipt of price by addressing: BRETHREN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Remember! Have Always as Low as the Lowest! I AM AN UNION DEPOT! SURE CONNECTIONS! MAGNIFICENT EQUIPMENTS! EVERY LINE OF ROAD connects the East with the West. Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

Tidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department.
Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Milford, Ind., Oct. 7, 1881.

The Bangs congregation held their Love-feast Oct. 5th. It was a pleasant meeting and five precious souls were added to the church by baptism. A choice was held for a deacon; the lot fell on Bro. Benjamin Moyer. May the Lord be his helper!
J. H. MILLER.

Panora, Iowa, Oct. 10, 1881.

The attendance at the Dallas Center Feast was fair; weather fine; order good; two baptized; ministers were present from the adjoining congregations. Recent difficulties here settled and all seem to be in harmony and love. Thanks to God, J. Dearborn, of Gettysburg, Pa., and W. Reynolds, of Paonora, (the passengers injured on the construction R. R. train) are both dead and also another of the hands, making six lives lost. The rest seem to be doing well. Several cases of typhoid fever in Paonora. No frost yet. J. D. H.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 11, 1881.

The tracts you send me, I distributed this afternoon at Waverly, Baltimore Co., Md., a place we held a meeting on March 8th, 1881. They never heard the Brethren before. Bro. Jacob Shamberger preached morning and night. Bro. Jacob F. Oiler will preach there soon. I put a tract in each house. If you have any more, send them along.
JAS. F. QUINLAN.

[Have sent more.—Ed.]

Nashville, Mich., Oct. 8, 1881.

Our Communion in the Woodland district, held Oct. 6th, was the largest ever held in Northern Michigan; 185 communicants. Best of order prevailed. Have received sixteen members by baptism; eight or ten by letter this Summer. The Lord has abundantly blessed us with crops and fruit. Plenty of rain now, and the earth clothed with verdure.
D. LANDIS.

Gilboa, O., Oct. 8th, 1881.

The interest of Zion is moving with quietness in the twenty-two congregations of North-western Ohio. The two unhappy extremes in the church are producing but little commotion among us. The new house of worship being erected within our colony of members in Henry Co., is enclosed and is in rapid process of completion.
I. J. ROSENBERGER.

Milford, Ind., Oct. 9, 1881.

I come with good tidings to-day; four more made the good confession and were baptized into Christ. Two of them belonged to the Union Center congregation. Oh, what rejoicing among God's children! More are serious y counting the cost. May God influence them for good.
J. H. MILLER.

Monnd City, Mo., Oct. 7, 1881.

Our Love-feast is among the things of the past. Had a pleasant feast and the best of order during services. About seventy five members commended. Brethren C. Forney and Wm. Forney, of Falls City, Neb., and Sawyer, of Wolf River, Kan., were with us. We realized that in the fulfillment of Christ's commands there is great happiness.
J. R. KELLER.

Mirabile, Mo., Oct. 8, 1881.

Our Love-feast is now with the thirteenth of the past, save the result of its labors and blessings which we hope will never pass away. Among the ten dear precious souls whom I had the joy and happy privilege to baptize in the last six weeks, five came forward at this meeting to confess Jesus. Three, too, we held a choice for a deacon, the lot falling on our dear young Bro. Joseph Green.

May the Lord bless him with grace to carry out the solemn duties of his office. By the time all the letters are handed in, we shall have an addi-tion of 16 to our number since Sept. 1st, for which we praise the Lord.
C. C. ROOR.

Warsaw, Ind., Oct. 9, 1881.

Our Love-feast held in the Oak Grove church, Oct. 6th and 7th, passed off pleasantly. Fair attendance. Brethren Wm. Cook and Burns of Marshall Co., Ind., and Bro. Murray of Huntington Co., did most of the preaching. Also brethren Rothenberger, Shively, Hammond and Workman were among the number present. How grateful we should feel to Almighty God for the blood-bought promise of eternal life!
N. B. HEETER.

Perru, Ind., Oct. 10, 1881.

I wish to caution all whom it may concern: Division has come; let us all be on our guard and meet the case calmly and with forethought. Let us not expell too soon; if the hand of God is in it, we cannot overthrow it. If it is of man it will come to naught, as with former departures. We believe in dealing kindly with them and should move slow and approach matters with prayerful hearts so that we will not find ourselves fighting against God.
J. P. WOLF.

Markham, Ontario, Can., Oct. 6, 1881.

We left New Dundee, on the 30th, ult. and have held four meetings, which were well attended.—Very good order and attention to the word preached. We are very kindly received by the people.—We visit through the day. preach at night. The country is delightful and very productive. The crops are good, except corn. The wheat in some parts is as high as 40 bushels per acre; so the farmers tell us. We are passing through the country prospecting. Expect to go over the ground again and then we can tell more of the result of our labors.
JOHN WISE.

Hudson, Ill., Oct. 11.

Our Fall Love-feast is now past, and as a refreshing feast will long be remembered by all.—The attendance was not as large as usual on account of inclement weather, but attention was good. Ministers M. M. Eshelman, J. Barobart, T. Robinson, J. Metzgar, and E. and M. Forney were with us and fed us richly from the Master's table. They'reads good impressions that will furnish us nourishment for many days. O how encouraged we feel after such a glorious season of worship. Were pleased to meet our beloved old sister Metzgar, and sister M. M. Eshelman. On Sunday at 10 o'clock we had children's meeting. Bro. M. M. Eshelman addressed them very appropriately, which was enjoyed by the old folks as well as the children. These meetings are good, and will result to good, if conducted properly. Little children should have the Word preached to them as well as us. It will not hurt them, but assist them to be obedient, and encourage them to do much good.
REBECCA SNAVELY.

Boone, Iowa, Oct. 8th, 1881.

To-day closed the feast in the Dallas Center church and we think was enjoyed by all present. The attendance was not as large as on former occasions. The church has had a cloud hanging over her for some time. But we believe the Sun of Righteousness has again arisen and made the pathway clear,—all seem to be in love and harmony.—Ministers present from adjoining churches were S. Goughnour, Jacob Haughtelie, Isaac Meyers, S. Badger, who held forth the Word with power.—Two were baptized that belong to the Coon River church.
J. B. DIEHL.

"Can a mother forget her child? Yes, she may forget; yet will I forget thee."

Matrimonial.

LICHTY—LICHTY.—At the residence of the bride's father, Sept. 20th, 1881, by the writer, Bro. V. J. Licthy and sister Anna S. Licthy, both of the South Waterloo church, Blackhawk Co., Iowa.
S. H. MILLER.

Fallen Asleep.

Slipped are the dead which do in the Lord.—Rev. 14: 14.

COGAN.—In the Hopewell church, Bedford Co., Pa., Aug. 18, 1881, Maggie, infant daughter of Bro. William and sister Leah Cogan, aged 1 year, 9 months and some days.
M. KELLER.

MARTIN.—In the State Center church, Marshall Co., Iowa, August 28, 1881, Nancy Martin, wife of David Martin, aged 47 years, 6 months and 10 days.

Sept. 4, Lemuel Martin, aged 18 years, 7 months and 3 days.

Sept. 8, Albert Martin, aged 20 years, 5 months and 9 days.

Sept. 21, Geo. Martin, aged 21 years and 10 months. All these died with diphtheria. And Amanda Martin died September 8th, 1880, just one year previous. Disease, typhoid fever. The above are children of David and Nancy Martin. Funeral services improved Oct. 2.

J. W. TROSTLE.

STONEROOK.—Near Clarence, Cedar Co., Iowa, John Calvio, son of Bro. Simon H., and sister Sarah Stonerook, aged 1 month and 15 days; was buried at Shaecon, Ill., Oct. 3. S. H. SPROGLE.

TOMBAUGH.—Near Olive Branch, Miami Co., Ind., Oct. 3rd, 1881, John Henry Tombaugh, aged 16 years, 8 months and 21 days.

Funeral discourses improved by Eld. David Neff from John 11: 23. JOSEPH JOY.

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

Oct. 21, Wood River church, Buffalo Co., Neb., at house of Bro. Y. Snavely, 5 1/2 miles north-east of Kearney.

Oct. 21, Mineral Creek church, Johnson Co., Mo. Oct. 22, at 10 A. M., Eagle Creek church, Hancock co., Ohio.

Oct. 27, at 10 A. M., Silver Creek, Ogle co., Ill.

Oct. 29, at 4 P. M., Swan Creek church, Fulton co., Ohio.

Oct. 29 and 30, Concord church, Adams co., Ill., 5 miles south of Clayton.

Oct. 29 and 30, Osawkie church, Jefferson co., Kan. Oct. 29 and 30, Beaver Run, Mine at co., W. Va.

Oct. 29 and 30, at 4 P. M., Salem, Marion co., Ill.

Oct. 30, Beaver Creek church, York Co., Neb., at the house Jacob Zern, 8 miles south and 8 miles west of the town of York. Meeting to commence on the 28th.

Nov. 1 and 2, Mill Creek church, near Liberty, Ill. Nov. 1, at 2 P. M., Bachelor Run church, Carroll Co., Ind. Those coming by R. R., should stop off at Flora.

Nov. 5, at 2 P. M., at Farragut, Fremont Co., Ia. Nov. 6, Millmine church, Platt co., I. I. Nov. 5 and 6, at 9 P. M., Big Creek congregation, Richard Co., Ill. Conveyance at Parkersburg, by informing J. M. Forney.

DISTRICT-MEETINGS.

Nov. 4, 5 and 6, in Knob Creek church, Tenn.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

$1.50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Oct. 23, 1881.

No. 41.

Editorial Items.

GODLINESS is profitable unto all things.

Two baptized in Ludlow church, Ohio, since Aug. 24th.

The address to our readers must lay over until next week.

Bno. I. D. Parker, of Ashland, is suffering from a sore ankle.

BROTHER MOORE and wife spent the 30th inst. in Mt. Morris.

TAKE a look at our premium list to subscribers on the 65th page.

Bno. B. F. Moomaw leaves home the 30th inst. to labor in W. Va.

Bno. Henry Worst, of Wayne Co., Ohio, died of cancer in the stomach.

You get an Almanac for 1882 free by subscribing for the BRETHREN AT WORK.

Oct. 23, 1881.

The address of David Zack is changed from Farmington, Ill., to Bushnell, same State.

BY-LAWS for the Orphan's Home at Cerro Gordo, were adopted at the late District Meeting.

NOAH ELY and B. F. Masterson were chosen deacons in Sugar Creek, Illinois, church the 13th.

FOR the satisfaction of inquirers we would say there is no Primary Department in Mt. Morris College.

The address of Bro. Madsen is changed from New Castle, England to Hjørring, Vestsjælland, Denmark.

The latest news from brother S. T. Wesserman and wife is that he is improving slowly, and that she is not so well.

WILL some brother in Tennessee send us a synoptical report of the District Meeting to be held at Keokuk Creek Nov. 5th?

The Pope of Rome is greatly troubled. The Free Masons are holding a meeting in Rome, and this troubles the Pope.

Bno. Jacob H. Spall of Crothersville, Ind., desires a situation as clerk, or a place on a farm where the labor is not too hard.

The Naplesville church had a very pleasant meeting for the young on the 14th inst. A sincere and sober feeling prevailed the assembly.

It is a sad reflection upon Christianity, for a believer to work well that he may appear good. Each professor should be good; this is the true motive.

AND NOW the owners of MUSEUMS are becoming crazy over GUILTY'S pield. One man has offered $1,000 for it. It ought to be thrown into the Atlantic ocean.

AGENTS should preserve this paper for reference as it contains terms to agents and to subscribers. Will our agents for B. AT W. please call on for the YOUTH'S ADVANCE? Sample copies sent on application.

Bno. Zellars is furnishing the WORK with "My Life on the Ocean Wave--My Home on the Rolling Deep" in poetical form. We appreciate these gifts to our souls.

We know a sister who saves all her papers and tracts, and when she takes a journey distributes them among the passengers on the cars. Reader, go and do likewise.

At the council meeting of this church the 20th inst., $125 were raised to build sheds at meeting-house for horses, and $30 appropriated for Missionary work by the District.

COLLECTOR Patton, of Toronto, Canada, seized a package of Voltaire's and Paine's works, and declared them immoral, indecent, and blasphemous. This will stir up the wrath of infidelity.

The good news of additions to the church continues to come. Many faithful ministers are at work for the Master. They seem to have no time to pull down the church, but plenty to build up.

THIRTY Indian students from the Hampton Normal School, who have finished their education, are to go to Dakota to teach their respective tribes. Their places in the school will be filled with new students.

IRELAND is greatly obscured. THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT has arrested Farnell and other leaders in the reformatory movement. 50,000 soldiers are scattered over the island to preserve peace, but war seems imminent.

The Beatrice, Neb., church has been divided, and the two districts are respectively known as North Beatrice and South Beatrice. Brother Archy Van Dyke was ordained in one, and brother Urias Shack in the other to assist elder Henry Brubaker.

MANY parents, we believe, have not yet read "Close Companion" by Lemuel West. It is a neatly printed book of 192 pages, and retails at 50 cts. We will send the book and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year for 75 cents. Get the book for yourself and the paper for your children.

The following was passed by Southern Illinois District Meeting: "Will the Southern District of Illinois petition Annual Meeting to grant the same liberty to sisters to vote on questions at Annual Meeting that brothers have?" Answer: Yes. Sent to Annual Meeting.

THE Gospel of Jesus Christ is a law of love and not a law of hatred. It tears down sin and puts joy and gladness in its place. It releases from bondage and brings a man into the glorious liberty of the Gospel. It makes a new man out of the old, and sets him down clean and white before God.

No news from Bro. Stein yet. We were frequently asked why he does not write, and we can no more answer that than our readers hundreds of miles from Mt. Morris. We are daily expecting letters from U. S. Casals at Vienna and Constantinople, whom we have solicited to ascertain his whereabouts.

BROTHER J. B. Brumbaugh, editor of Primitive Christian, accompanied by his wife, arrived the 19th and remained until the 21st, when they left for home. Brother John and wife have been visiting in Nebraska, and report a very pleasant time with friends and brethren. We were pleased to see them, and hope they will send this way again.

PLEASE read "How to Do Good" on page 655. Tract work is receiving a new impetus. By taking tracts in large quantities, so that the publishers need not hold them over for years, they can be sold very cheap. One brother takes 5,000 of the "House We Live In" by Daniel Webster, another 500, another 300, and several 1,000 each. Who comes next?

It is indeed discouraging to faithful ministers who build up with truth, to see deceitful workers tear down in a day what it took years to put together. It does not take one man long to pull down a house that required ten men many days to erect. "O but the truth must be tested!" cries one. Well, then, put Ingersoll's works, or some Mormon paper into your house to try your religion. "Never do" you say. So say we; then leave out all poison. The man who reads a fleshly sheet, will be fleshly minded.

BROTHER ministers, never apologize before an audience for your presence, but give us the Gospel. Let the strong love for the truth seize you, and then your feelings for the welfare of humanity will aid you to preach the Word with zeal and interest to the people. Make your subject plain so the children can understand, and then fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters will add affections of their own. You will fail to build up a strong church by striking at the emotions only. The heart and head must be changed.

Bno. Theodore Ross of Mendon, Ohio, is a cripple, and moves about in a little wagon. He writes: "I am writing out in the shed where I am at work. What! a man that cannot walk, at work? Yes, I work much of my time. I made the little wagon in which I travel. I make axe-handles and wheel-harrows when people want them and bring me the timber. I am working at a wheel-harrow to-day. I sit in my wagon and hew and shave and saw. We can do many things when it comes to the test." We presume brother Ross is as happy as many who can walk, and perhaps happier than some things. It is not so much what a man has as what he does that makes him happy.

Bno. Moore contemplates publishing a monthly paper to be called "The Family Companion" the first number of which will appear about the middle of November. It will contain departments on science, house-keeping, farming, bee-culture, poultry-raising, health, temperance, courtship, marriage, and general news. He intends to select the very best from other papers and furnish what he regards as the "cream" in short, he maintains that there will be no other paper like it in the world. He has had this kind of a paper in contemplation for more than three years, and thinks it will fill a long-felt want by the reading public. We wish him success in any good work, and hope he may realize his fondest anticipations in this his new venture. Price, 50 cents per annum. Address, J. H. Moore, Lenark, Ill.

25 CENTS WILL pay for the B. AT W. to Jan. 1, 1882 -- nine weeks. Read what a sister says: "If we possessed the means of some of our more favored brethren and sisters we would be pleased to use some of it to help extend the circulation of so good a paper. We have one dollar to devote to that purpose now. We send you four names." Send it to your friend!

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

A PRAYER.

BY G. G. WORK.

Almighty God! Thy hand has led us,
Safe from death and danger free,
On temporal blessings thou hast fed us;
With thankful hearts we trust in thee.

Forgive all evil we have wrought,
Contrary to thy holy will;
Help us to live more as we ought;
In mercy grant thy blessings still.

Give us health and strength to journey on Through life's dark and stormy way,
Till the trying ones of earth are gone,
Oh grant we never from thee stray.

Let not thy guardian care forsake us.
Remember those we love so well,
And when we die, oh grant to take us,
Evermore with thee to dwell.

For the Brethren at Work.

OUR DARLING BOYS.

BY LUCY HINCHMAN.

We had two little treasures that are now gone to heaven,

To praise our Redeemer in wandering years
In love they were given, in love they were taken
Ere they had tarried with us very long.

Their forms were like roses—they bloomed for a season,

Then withered and drooped to the ground.
Not so with their spirits; their life is eternal, Whose life, love and beauty never know any hood.

The first that departed was dear little Charley.
With his bright sunny face and ringlets of hair,
And with him to be parted we always had thought,
Was something we never could bear.

And since he departed one year has rolled round,
And brought with it sorrow we cannot evade;
Yes brought with it death which hath entered our dwelling.

And took from our arms our dear little babe.

Yes, Truman our baby boy, dear little pet.
Such a well-spring of pleasure we will never forget,
As fair as the morning and as bright as the skies.
We most thought him an angel; 'twas here in disguise.

Yes, dear little Truman, and Charlie are gone.
How can we their absence endure?
We loved them, we loved them, Ah! yes that we did;
But that cannot their presence procure.

But while we sigh for our treasures in grief without measure,
And our spirit's in anguish are riven,
We pause and consider the words of the Savior,
That "of such is the kingdom of heaven."

And we trust in a Father that's holy and just,
Who many good words of promise hath given,
And we expect soon to meet where joy is complete,

With our dear little treasures in heaven.

But that stern monster, death, never asks leave to come,

And no one can his visit withstand,
So relentless is his grasp that earth's choicest treasures blast

When his visit is made at our homes.
Elkhart, Ind.

For the Brethren at Work.

FEET-WASHING.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

"For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you."—John 13:
15

THAT Feet-washing is a commandment is too plain to be successfully contradicted, and nearly all persons will admit that it ought to be observed in some way; but prefer almost any way to the right way.

One class will say, the way to observe it is for all persons to wash their own feet, from motives of personal cleanliness, and as a proof refer to the case of Abraham and the angels, (Gen.
18: 4) and to Joseph and his brethren in Egypt.

There is not the least doubt in our mind but that all respectable persons have frequently washed their feet, from the same motives, in all ages of the world. We need no special command for this. Our own sense of decency teaches us the propriety of keeping our feet clean, as well as our hands and face and our bodies generally.

If Christ had no higher motive in view than mere personal cleanliness, he could not in that instance have given the disciples an example. An example means something new, something we were not familiar with; otherwise the example would lose its force. It would have been folly in Christ to have proposed an example of something with which the disciples had been perfectly familiar.

Again, Christ says to Peter, "What I do thou knowest not now." John 13:
7. If Feet-washing had been practiced by Christ from mere motives of cleanliness, it certainly would have been no mystery to Peter. Neither would Peter have objected to Christ washing his feet, as he did. Christ further says,
"but thou shalt know hereafter." Thus showing that a deep, spiritual signification is connected with the example of Feet-washing as introduced by Christ, which is not the case in ordinary Feet-washing.

The plea usually set up, that Palestine is a warm country, and the disciples wore sandals; therefore their feet became filthy, and needed washing, and that Christ washed their feet simply to remove the natural filth from them will not bear a moment's investigation.
That would argue, in the first place, that the disciples were very filthy in thus engaging in the service of the Lord. It cannot be admitted that the disciples would enter upon the duties of the Passover (as they thought) with all the filth of their journey still adhering to them till supper is prepared.
The Jews were especially required to be clean, and more so in their approach to the Lord in divine service. "Except they wash they eat not, neither is it reasonable to suppose they would prepare a meal."

In the next place it would argue that the disciples were too indolent to wash their own feet; hence Christ must do the work for them.

Another class of objectors say that to wash feet as instituted by Christ is to enforce the precept; and that does not ought to wash one another's feet. The word ought, in this connection, has the force of moral obligation. "Unus ophilete alleton niptein tuis podas."
"Ophilete" for "ought," means "one who is in any way bound, or under obligation to perform any duty towards another."—GREENFIELD. Besides this, it is contrary to the spirit of Christianity to enforce, in a compulsory manner, any precept of the Gospel. Christ does not compel us to be baptized, to commune, to wash one another's feet, but he invites us to do so; but if we neglect the invitation—the "OUGHT," such neglect will be punished with all the consequences of disobedience.

Others are ready to admit the validity of the precept, but not to be observed in a church capacity, but only in the family circle. From whence the authority is derived to confine the Feet-washing of Christ to the family circle, if this precept were confined to the family circle, it is clear that one-half, or more, in a very short time, would not even observe it there. We further believe that those who wish to confine it to the family circle do not observe it there themselves. This is an easy way to get rid of it altogether.

When Christ says, "I have given you an example that ye shall do as I have done to you," he means us all; and there is no other way so successful, for all to engage in this work, as to do it in a church capacity. The family circle will do in which to wash the filth of our feet; but to follow Christ's example we must observe it in a church capacity. And where, we ask in all candor, is the evil of observing it in a public assembly? We are inclined to believe that those who urge the family circle for its observance are ashamed to observe it in a public capacity, and to save mortification of the flesh, urge privacy.

Christ knew that opposition to this precept would be manifested, hence calls attention to his exalted character. "Ye call me Master and Lord and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet." John 13: 13, 14. As much as to say, "ye certainly ought not to be ashamed to stoop to one another to wash each other's feet; since I, who am far far your superior—~~as~~ whose ~~that~~ in them are, Lord of heaven and earth, have condescended to wash your feet." Christ means that his condescension to them is far greater than theirs would be to one another. Christ further says, for our instruction and safety, "The servant is not greater than he that sent him." All these admonitions go to show that Christ intended this precept to be perpetuated, and to humble our "self exaltation" repeatedly calls attention to his lordship and our comparative inferiority. Christ knew full well the proud disposition of the human heart. Christ also knew that Feet-washing would strike directly at the root of pride, hence a disposition to evade its observance, and for this reason gives us these careful instructions as quoted above.

Another class aims to get rid of Feet-washing, by trying to make it appear that Christ washed the disciples' feet at Bethany instead of Jerusalem. Suppose he had, would this invalidate the command? Are not Christ's words of as much importance, spoken at Bethany as at Jerusalem? It matters not where Christ speaks; whether at Bethany, Jerusalem, Dan, or Beer-sheba, his words are equally forcible and obligatory upon us. But we will offer a few arguments to show that the Feet-washing as instituted by Christ took place in Jerusalem.

ARG. 1st. Feet-washing was instituted in connection with a supper. "He rises from Supper, and laid aside his garments, and took a towel and girded himself." * * * "So after he had washed their feet and had taken his garments, and had set down again, he said, "Know ye what I have done to you?" John 13: 12. It is clear that Christ's sitting down again had reference to "sit down", and eat the prepared supper from which he had risen to wash the disciples' feet.

ARG. 2nd. The supper with which Feet-washing stands connected was not the supper made for Christ in Bethany; but it was that meal, or supper, the disciples had prepared, after Christ had sent them to prepare a place where they might eat the Passover, which was the first day of unleavened bread. The last account we have of Christ being in Bethany was two days before the feast. At the Bethany supper Martha served. The supper in Jerusalem was on the day the disciples served. ~~This is a marked distinction between the two suppers.~~

ARG. 3rd. At the supper with which Feet washing stands connected we have no account of any being present but the disciples, which makes this matter clear that it was the Jerusalem supper, and not at the Bethany supper where Mary and Martha, and many of the Jews were present. This is another marked distinction.

ARG. 4th. At the supper with which Feet-washing is connected, the traitor was revealed, as appears from the following: "And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon." John 13: 26. The sop here implies that they were eating the supper to which Christ sat down, after he had washed the disciples' feet. Further, "Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spoke this unto him." John 13: 28. Here again it is evident that they were at the table eating when the traitor was revealed.

ARG. 5th. The traitor was revealed and betrayed Christ in the night in which Feet-washing was instituted, and the supper in Jerusalem was eaten with his disciples. Paul says, "That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread." 1 Cor. 11:

23. And the same night in which he took bread, he ate a meal, called supper with his disciples; and the same night in which he ate supper with his disciples he first washed their feet.

(To be continued.)

For the Brethren at Work.

A SKETCH OF MY EXPERIENCE.

BY S. L. LAYTON.

NUMBER II.

ONE evening after retiring I went to praying in secret, and it seemed I could not stop; I prayed till near midnight. I thought my prayers had done him no good and his heart was hard as ever. But the thought struck me, if I could be taken out of the world it might soften his heart, and I felt ready to go if it would do any good. Then I prayed God to remove me out of this world. I felt too happy, I thought, for this world. And then I thought if God would see fit I wished to be removed before morning. I wanted my husband to know my mind, so I awoke him and told him if I should die before morning I wanted him to tell the people I had gone to glory. I could not keep from praising God aloud, as I was so very happy. But husband said he didn't think I would die. I then told him I had prayed God to remove me if it would do any good, for I felt willing to die. It touched his heart, and God saw fit not to take me, but change him. What a great relief it was for me to have him go with me, for he commenced to aid me in worship, and to lead a Christian life. He read the Bible almost day and night, and was convinced it taught we must go into the water to be baptized. I agreed with him, for so I understood it. Although my parents had me sprinkled when a child I never could see where it was taught, but, like many others, I thought I was baptized with their baptism. But I always said if I had not been baptized I would go into the water.

The Lutheran minister wanted my husband to join their church, and even said if he dared do it he would immerse him; but would be turned out of synod if he did. I think he would have joined them if he could have been baptized the way the Bible teaches. After their meeting was over, brother Elson, of De Kalb county, held a short meeting at the Lutheran church; but husband was away from home and returned just the evening before the meeting closed. I told him baptism was to be performed the next day. He said he was pretty much of a Dunkard, as he had been traveling among them; and that he found them to be an honest, obliging people, and much fewer among them that would take the advantage of a person than among any other church.

The next day we attended church, and husband asked brother Elson how they performed baptism, as he knew but little about their mode. He told him; and husband said that was the way he understood the Bible taught, but thought he didn't care about joining any church yet, but wanted to be baptized. The brother told him that was the door of the church, and couldn't baptize him unless he joined the church. So he joined; and then I didn't want to belong to one church and he another, and went and got my letter. But I heard so many things against the Brethren that I thought I could not join them. Was told by a professor they did not allow a woman to pray in public; thought if that was the case I could not join them. I thought I could pray well, but I felt it my duty to pray anywhere if called upon. But I found that many things that were told were falsehoods. I told my husband I didn't think he could find anywhere it said we must go under the water in baptism, and he pointed me to John 3: 5, which reads, "Except a man be born of the water and of the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." I could see from that they must go under the water in order to be born again. I was willing to take the commandments, and did not try to get out of them as many do now; for I have quoted that passage of Scripture to others and they can't see water in it; they think it means all spirit, just because Jesus didn't explain the water as he did the spirit. But I think that there is no one but can understand the water if they read it for the real truth, for it plainly speaks of both water and spirit, and in Col. 2: 12 it says: "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." Rom. 6: 4. I spoke of the latter to a Lutheran sister once, and she said "that meant spirit, and I couldn't make out that meant water." But I can't see where any one can make it spirit if they would just stop and consider what kind of a death Christ died. Surely he died a bodily death. But I rather am inclined to believe that they are honest in their opinion, for I know as long as I belonged to a church where they didn't obey the different commandments the Brethren do, they did not look near so obligatory to me as now. I believe that God will not advance any when he sees they are not willing to do those commands that most other churches think not necessary. They will tell us that Feet-washing is only an old Jewish custom, it's not for us. But my Bible teaches me that whatever Christ commanded his disciples to do is for me also.

I am aware there are some that say "that if the Brethren can get a candidate under the water they think that will save them." Let the person or persons that say that, bring up one necessity, and that will settle it.

It was several months before I made up my mind to join them, just because I was like many others, I thought conscience ought to dictate. But I found that would not do. Let me relate one little incident. A professor told me two years ago, that her conscience would not let her wear any flowers on her hat, and that it must be plain; but now she can wear a stylish hat. I sometimes wonder if her conscience changed in so short a time, and if it is safe for any of us to allow our conscience to guide us. There are others that are willing to take the death-bed scene of some friend for a guide. Christ says, in John 15: 10, "If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love." We know he kept his Father's commandments perfect. I fail to find anywhere in the Bible that any of the commandments that Christ taught are not necessary. But I do not object if any can get to heaven without obeying all; as for myself I can truly say I was afraid to try it. I very well know I could not take my friend, minister, or any other person on earth as a guide, for we are taught we must be judged by the Word; and all will certainly agree with me that the commands that are rejected by many denominations are not sinful. Therefore we surely are on safe grounds when we are willing to obey all. "But," says one, "there are people that belong to the Dunkard church that don't do any nearer right than some in other churches." I am well aware of that, but does that condemn the church? By no means; the Scriptures would not be fulfilled if all were perfect. Therefore in conclusion I would say, let us be wise and search the Word for the truth and not to pick flaws.

For the Brethren at Work

A FRIENDLY ADMONITION.

BY C. D. HYLTON.

SOME people complain of some of our ministers for holding meeting so long till the congregation becomes wearied and worn out, the benches get hard, the children begin to cry, and the people want to go home. Well, these are persons who will get tired of a short do not go to meeting to worship God, but for the gratification of some desire. We cannot ask the brethren to hasten through preaching for these characters; but still there can be a decided reformation in this respect with some ministers, and that to the glory of God. It is a sin to make the house of God a disagreeable and unpleasant place; it should be a desirable place—a place that one would feel sad to leave. Personal experience teaches us that there is too frequently room for complaining. We have been at preaching where there were four or five ministers present, and all wanted to speak a little. The congregation was slow gathering in, and although it was time to begin preaching, one minister would suggest to sing a song or two while the people were still coming in. Two or three songs would be sung, then a brother would get up to open the services, sing a song, then explain what the poet meant, then tell what the apostle said, "First of all prayer and supplication, * * * should be made," then exhort to prayer. Some brother would then pray a long, formal prayer, then another brother would begin by telling the Lord that he coincided with the prayers, (although he has already said amen to the prayers) and continue by telling the Lord that he was now going to do what he taught his disciples to do, (say "Our Father who art in heaven," etc.) By this time the people are almost ready to go home, for it is near 12 o'clock. Now a fresh brother gets up (after the deacon has read a chapter) and gives out a hymn, talks some on the hymn, and begins his sermon, and is followed by two and sometimes more. I have been at a meeting that continued from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M.; i. e., the meeting was appointed at 10 A. M. but the services did not begin until 11 A. M.

I do not offer these thoughts personally or critically, but if they should fall into the hands of any minister who is in the habit of doing the above, I beg you to give these things some thought; and let me suggest to you if you appoint preaching at 10 A. M., begin then, if half the congregation is at home, for then they will say "that preacher does what he says," and they will all be out next meeting punctually at 10 o'clock, for them that long, preaching will begin late. When you are ready to open services, do so—do what the apostles told you without telling what he said before you do it. And when you conclude prayer with the Lord's prayer, don't boast to the Lord that you expect to do as he said, that is like the proud Pharisee, but do it.

Hyton, Va.

For the Brethren at Work.

CHRISTIAN PANTHEISM.

BY C. H. BALSRAUGH.

WHILE many readers have been profoundly gratified with this article bearing this caption in No. 28, they are puzzled by the title. Good friends, why not allow the essay to give its proper definition? The caption means precisely what the essay imports. My definition I cannot give. If any one has a term more nicely expressive of the idea, I will be glad for it.

The etymology, compass, and intrinsic properties of the word, are good enough for Christian uses. It belongs to Christ and the saints, and will serve for proper mission in their employment. I believe in Theism; so does Rev. Stoppage A. Brooke, the author of that ravishing book, "Christ in Modern Life."

But his theism is to me atheism. He so completely puts law instead of God in all the processes and sequences of nature, that there is no more use in praying for daily bread, or for recovery from sickness, than in trying to whistle the Atlantic ocean to stop the tides. Thousands of professing Christians profess to believe in Theism and Monotheism, and yet exclude the personal agency of God as effectually out of nature as Tyndall, Huxley, and Haeckel. They never get beyond the idea of law in the management of the universe, as though law were endorsed with all the properties of Deity. There is a Divine immanence in nature which is fitly expressed by the prefix Pan, which is the Greek for the English All. Not that all is God, according to the mythologic idea, but that God "FILLETH all in all," Eph. 1: 23. There is nothing God but God. There is nothing without God. Omnipresence is a reality. It means omnipresence, and not a substitute in the form of law. There can Person represented. All Divine law is expressing perpetually the Divine mind and will. The Law does not express itself, or anything above itself; but God expresses this Personality through law. No one ever thinks of praying to Law for recovery from sickness. James 5: 15. We pray to God, but expect to get well by law. This is Christian, and reveals the Pan of our Theistic belief. In Him is Life, and in him only is the power that holds the atoms of my pen together. We call it the law of cohesion, but this law owns a Father, and this Father is not only All-owner, but All-supernatent. He is the Pan in the sense that all things are His, and He in all.

For the Brethren at Work.

DISOBEDIENCE.

BY P. BROWER.

WE find, through all ages, that where God's Word was disobeyed, he always had a penalty to follow the same. In our day we hear a great deal said in regard to disobeying God's Word; and we see the effect of the first disobedience in the Garden of Eden down to the present time. Let us notice ourselves, and see whether we disobey.

We find that some parts of God's Word are a little hard to understand, and to gain knowledge and give advice upon the same our good fathers in the church have met from year to year and placed the same upon record for our benefit. Now if we disobey this, the world and our children takes notice of it; and what right have we to ask them to obey even what we obey? We think our "actions speak louder than our words." Where will our church be in a few years? The apostle says: "Love the Brotherhood." And again, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." Can we not, for the love of the Brethren and the Gospel continue in well doing? Are we not received into the church with "Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth, shall be bound in heaven"?

We know the church has been prospering; and it will be much safer for us to follow in the same narrow path, and not give up certainties for uncertainties. We find that King Sanl tried that to his own destruction.

THE BROTHERS MAN OUR FATHERS (who was not a brother) that whenever the church gave up her peculiarities in regard to dress, etc., she could not prosper as she has in the past. So we see that the world takes notice to these things.

I would say to my young brethren and sisters, be firm, dig deep, and lay your foundation upon the rock; and if our older brethren become weak, try and hold up your hands that you may overcome the enemy. Let us search Word of God with prayerful hearts, for He says, "They are they which testify of me."

South English, Iowa.

NOTHING is ever done beautifully which is done in rivalry, nor nobly which is done in pride.

EVERY man we meet in this world, though we should never meet with him again, will meet with us at the day of judgment.

THE man who is the most certain of his strength in temptation, is often the first to fall when tempted to do wrong.

HE that trusteth in his own heart is a fool; but whose walketh wisely, he shall be delivered.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER IV.

COLOGNE stands on an elevation some fifty or sixty feet above the Rhine, upon a portion of the old Roman camping ground, where the soldiers of Agrippina, mother of Nero, rested after war's alarm, and watched the winding river at their feet. There is an old derrick, or crane, an iron arm fifty feet long, that has projected from one of the towers, which is one hundred and ninety feet high, for four hundred years. It is related of the originator of the plan of the cathedral, that in despair at not finding or being able to work out one to his satisfaction, while walking one day by the river, sketching with his stick upon the sand, he finally hit upon one and said, "This shall be the plan." "I will show you a better one," said a voice behind him, and pulled from his pocket a roll containing a plan of the present cathedral. The architect, amazed at its grandeur, asked an explanation of every part. As he knew that his soul was to be the price of it, he occupied himself while the devil was explaining, in committing its proportions to memory. Having done this, he remarked that the plan did not please, he would not take it. The devil seeing through his stratagem, said, "You may complete it," and the prediction seems likely to be verified. The interior is four hundred and thirty feet long, and one hundred and forty broad; the transept two hundred and thirty-four feet long, and the choir gallery one hundred and forty feet high. The part used for divine service occupies an area of seventy thousand feet. The Gothic arches, canopies, buttresses, and traceries, with statues of the apostles and saints, are bewildering in number and detail. In the treasury are rich collections of magnificent vestments for priests, bishops and other church officials. Among these was a frame work in which the consecrated wafer or host is held up to view before the congregation. It was of solid silver, weighing eight pounds, adorned with rubies and diamonds. Around it is a collar of turquoises, amethysts and sapphires, and hanging from it a superb cross of diamonds. There was another, much heavier, the gift of Pope Pius IX, and still a third, which outshone all the others in magnificence. It was a foot and a half high, and of solid gold, weighing ten pounds and two ounces, studded with jewels and beautifully enamelled. Its value is immense, and it is used only on great occasions and carried in procession once a year—the next Thursday after Trinity Sunday. There were two silver vessels for incense, weighing nine pounds each, a large crucifix of gold and polished ebony, a gold and enamelled flower, set in precious stone, a cross and ring worn by the archbishop at each pontifical service, a crozier of ivory and crystal, crosses, silver busts, carved ivory figures, and a silver shrine weighing one hundred and forty-nine pounds—a curious work of art made in the year 1635. Our priestly guide took great pleasure and pride, too, I think, displaying the costly treasures hidden away in the treasury, and gave us many items of interest that made our visit to the cathedral very pleasant.

From this rich storehouse of gold, silver and jewels, we passed out into the body of the cathedral, where ragged women and poverty-stricken men were telling their prayers, and who followed us into the street, asking for a few groschen, and passed out, to be solicited by a priest, rattling a money box, for a contribution towards the completion of the cathedral.

From this place we went to visit the church where were deposited the bones of the eleven thousand virgins, the walls of which are full of curious cells containing their bones—bones under you, bones above you, bones all around you. We did not care to listen to the history of them, nor did we believe all our guide told us in regard to the many curiosities exhibited, one of which was the veritable jar from which our Savior's first miracle was performed. It looked too modern for us to reverence it very highly; and, disgusted with the superstition of the priests, we made our way out as soon as possible, and gathering our garments around us, so as to take away as little of the dust of Cologne as possible, returned to our hotel.

The next morning we went on board the Rhine steamer, which was fuming and fussing at its landing place, eager to depart. I was glad when we were really in motion on the swift Rhine; and as we ascend, the shores betwixt the Drachenfels, or Dragon's Rock, with its castle perched eight hundred feet above the river, comes in sight as we turn a curve in the river. This is one of many castles which we shall see in our ascent of the Rhine, where the old robber chieftains of the mid ages established themselves, and from their strongholds issued on their free-booting expeditions, or watched the river for passing crafts, from which to exact tribute. The scenery grows milder and more lovely; the little villages on the banks, the vine-clad hills, little Gothic churches, the winding river, and the highlands swelling in the distance fill out a charming picture. We now pass a small island, which was once used by the nuns of St. Ursula, and is now used by the Sisters of Charity. Tribald of Roland, nephew of Charlemagne, took the veil here on hearing a false report of her husband's death, and on the left bank, high up, stands the Castle of Roland, who on his return from the war and hearing of his wife's vows built this castle, where he might look down and see the convent where his bride had hidden herself from the world. And here they spent their lives; she unconscious of her husband's return and nearness to her, and he zealously guarding her beautiful retreat. Half a mile further on is the crater of Nordersberg, seventy feet deep and four hundred yards in diameter, now extinct. On every hill and eminence we pass are ruins of castles and lofty watch towers, while in the valleys the old churches are built with watch towers instead of belltowers. We pass a village called Brohl, which is celebrated for its tuff-stone, of volcanic origin, which, when ground up into powder possesses the peculiar property of hardening under water, and is used by the Romans for the construction of the property of absorbing the moisture of the body.

This gave them the name of sarcophagi, or "flesh consumers."

We pass the town of Nienwien, in the palace of which, belonging to the Prince of Wied, are numerous relics dug up near the town, and supposed from their antique appearance to belong to the inhabitants of the colony of Victoria, which was destroyed in the tenth century. In one part of the town is a community of Moravian Brothers, numbering about four hundred. They have their own laws, which are administered by their elders. The unmarried brethren live in a separate building, carrying on different trades, the produce of which is devoted to the society. The woman dress in a peculiar manner, according to their station in life. The head-dress of a young girl is red; unmarried young women, pink; married, blue; and widows white. Further on we come to the ruins of a splendid old castle—formerly the residence of the electors of Treves, and during the French Revolution the residence of many of the Bourbon princes, the head-quarters of the exiles, whence all their plots were hatched by the recovery of France from the Republicans. And now we come to the "Gibraltar of the Rhine," the commanding rock of Ehrenbreitstein, "the broad stone of honor," capable of accommodating 100,000 men, and is defended by 500 cannon, while provisions for 8,000 men can be stored within its magazines for ten years in advance. Besides the cannons, there are 50,000 stand of arms—all needle guns.

From the Christian Cynosure.

PISTOLS.

TO DE WIT Talmage, though sensational as a preacher, has said many good things, and among them the following endorsement of the opinions of the Cynosure, respecting the abolition of the pistol, as by no means his worst: "Another practical use of this great national calamity is that it has disgusted more than ever people with this free use of firearms. On the frontier, or if it is your business as an officer of the law to make the arrest of a desperado, you had better be armed, but it is high time that all respectable citizens snuff in their sword-canes and unload their deadly weapons. If you move in respectable society in Brooklyn, or New York, or Washington, or London, you have no need of any more weapons than the two God gave you—two honest fists, and they are easily load d. If you fit the need of having a pistol in your pocket you are a miserable coward. If you are afraid to go down the street unarmed you had better get your grandmother with her knitting needles to go with you. A pistol is the meanest and most infernal weapon ever invented. It is the weapon of a sneak. I would as soon carry a load in my vest pocket."

THOMAS Carlyle once gave a young man, student in Edinburgh, the following good advice:

"The man without a purpose is like a ship without rudder; a waif, a nothing, a no-man. Have a purpose in life, if it is only to kill and divide and sell oxen well, but have a purpose and having it, throw such strength of mind and muscle into your work as God has given you."

Home and Family.

MARY G. NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN., - PITTSBURG

WAITING FOR THE GRIST.

"It is strange," said a gentleman who sat next to me in the car, and with whom I struck up an acquaintance, "what an influence a look, a word, or the little act of a perfect stranger will sometimes have upon a person." "Yes," said I, "more than any of us realize." "It was the simple act of a stranger that changed the whole course of my life."

"Indeed! How so?"

"When I was a boy, my father moved to the then far West—Ohio. It was before the days of steam, and no great mills thundered on her river banks, but occasionally there was a little grist-mill by the side of some small stream, and thither, whenever the water was up, the whole neighborhood flocked with their sacks of corn. 'First come, first served.' Sometimes we had to wait two or three days for our turn. I generally was the one sent from our house, for while I was too small to be of much account on the farm, I was as good as a man to carry a grist to mill. So I was not at all surprised one morning when my father said: 'Henry, you can get up old row and go to mill to day.'

"Saunders' mill was ten miles away; but I had no other alternative but to accompany an old mill than to any other building. I can see just how it looked, as it stood there under the eycrowns, with its huge wheel and rough clapboard sides.

"When I arrived, I found the North Branch and the Rocky Fork folks there ahead of me, and I knew there was no hope of getting home that day; but I was not at all sorry, for my basket was well filled with provisions, and Mr. Saunders always opened his big barn for us to sleep in; so it was no unpleasant time we had while waiting for our grist. This time there was an addition to the number that had been in the habit of gattering from time to time in the old Saunders barn—a young fellow about my age, probably a little older. His name was Charley Allen, and his father had bought a farm over on the Branch creek road. He was sociable and friendly, but I instinctively felt that he had 'more manners than the rest of us.' The evening was spent, as usual, in relating coarse jokes and playing cards. Although I was not accustomed to such things at home, I had become so used to it that it had long since ceased to shock me, and indeed, I was fast becoming a very interesting spectator.

"Well, boys, it is time for us fellows to go to roost," said Jim Finley, one of the greatest roughs on the Rocky Fork, as he threw down his pack of cards and began to undress. We all followed his example, although it was not much undressing we did to sleep on the hay-mow; but we were so busy with our own affairs that we did not notice Charley Allen until Jim exclaimed: 'Heyday! we've got a parson here, we have!' Charley was kneeling by the oats bin, praying. Jim Finley's first met with no response. The silence was only broken by the drowsy cattle below, and the twittering swallows overhead. More than one rough man wiped a tear from his eyes as he silently went to his bed on the hay. I had always been in the habit of praying at home, but I never thought of such a thing at Saunders' mill. As I lay awake that night in the old barn, thinking of Charley Allen's courage, and what an effort it had upon the men, I firmly resolved that in the future I would do right. I little thought how soon my courage would be tested. Just after dinner I got my grist, and started for home. When I arrived at Albright's gate, where I turned off to go home, I found the old squire waiting for me. I saw in a moment that something had gone wrong. I had always stood in the greatest awe of the old gentleman, because he was the rich man of the neighborhood, and now I felt my heart beginning to beat very fast. As soon as I came near he said, 'I'd you go through this gate yesterday?' I could easily have denied it, as it was before daylight when I went through, and I quite as often went the other way. Charley Allen kneeling in the barn came to my mind like a flash, and before I had time to listen to the tempter I said, 'Yes, sir, I did!'

"Are you sure you shut and pinned the gate?" he asked.

"This question staggered me. I remembered distinctly that I had not. I could pull the pin out without getting off my horse, but I could not put it in again; so I carelessly rode away, and left it open.

"Out with it; tell just what you did."

"I left it open," I said, abruptly.

"Well, you let the cattle in, and they have destroyed all my early potatoes—a terrible piece of business."

"I'm very sorry, I'd—"

"Talking won't help matters now, but remember, my boy, remember that sorrow don't make no t'oss."

"I felt badly about the matter, for I was really sorry that the old gentleman had lost his potatoes, and then I expected to be severely reprimanded at home; but I soon found that they knew nothing of the matter, and after several days had passed, I began to rest quite easy. Alas for human hopes, one rainy afternoon I saw the quire riding down the lane. I ran off to the barn, ashamed to face him, and afraid to meet my father. They sat on the porch and talked for a long time. At last my curiosity overcame my fear, and I stole back to the house, and went into my mother's room to see if I could hear what they were talking about. 'Why, the boy could be spared well enough, but he don't know anything about the business,' said my father. 'There is one thing he does know,' said the squire, 'he knows how to tell the truth.' He then related the circumstance which I so much dreaded to have my father hear. After he had gone, my father called me to him and told me that the squire was going to start a store in the village, and wanted a boy to help, and that I could go if I wanted to. I went, and remained in the store until it blossomed out into a city store; and people say that I got my start in life when I entered Albright's store; but I will always maintain that I got it while I was waiting for the grist. (N.)

HOLD ON BOYS.

HOLD on to your tongue when you are just ready to swear, lie, or speak harshly.

Hold on to your hand when you are about to punch, scratch, steal, or do any improper act.

Hold on to your foot when you are on the point of kicking, running off from study, or pursuing the path of error, shame, or crime.

Hold on to your temper when you are angry, excited, or imposed upon, or others are angry with you.

Hold on to your heart when evil associates seek your company, and invite you to join in their mirth, games, and revelry.

Hold on to your good name at all times, for it is of more value than gold, high places, or fashionable attire.

Hold on to the truth, for it will serve you well, and do you good throughout eternity.

Hold on to virtue—it is above all price to you at all times and places.

Hold on to your good character, for it is, and ever will be your best wealth. (N.)

THEY LOVE TO HAVE IT SO.

A MINISTER having charge of one of our largest city churches, made the astonishing statement that during the year that particular church had lost more members by the use of intoxicating liquors than by death. An aged missionary, returned from foreign lands, stated in a public meeting that, for eaching of the Gospel, many thanks were made by the importation of alcoholic liquors from Christian lands, by the sanction of Christian governments.

And then to think that this liquor traffic, the curse of curses, the "sum of all vices," is licensed in Connecticut with her hundreds of Christian churches, and thousands of church members! And how many of those church-members voted to have it so—to sanction this dreadful business? As Jeremiah says, "They set traps to catch men, and my people love to have it so." (N.)

Of all the poor excuses for using tobacco, the most shameless is that of the man who says that he left it off once or twice, but his wife urged him to take it again, because it made him "so nervous" to be without it; and the wife's added comment is that her husband was "really so ill-natured without his tobacco that there was no living in the house with him." It is bad enough for a poor working woman to be compelled to give "soothing syrup" to her crying baby, so that she can have a quiet time at her washing or sewing; but when a husband is beyond all hope of decency unless his ill-nature is kept within bounds by his being half-stupified by the fumes of tobacco, why—well, that tobacco fills its place a great deal better than the husband does his. (N.)

Think twice before you believe every evil story you hear, and think twenty times before you repeat it. Say to yourself, "This may not be true, or it may have been exaggerated. Persons sometimes tell falsehoods, they often make mistakes." (N.)

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

OCTOBER 25, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN,..... Editor.

J. H. MOORE,
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Each Elder, A. W. Hess, D. E. Brubaker,
James Evans, S. S. Melzer, L. J. Rosenberger, Daniel Vanaman, C. H. Hainforth, J. W. Southwood.

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not indulge in personalities and unchristian language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending eight names and $12.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the publisher.

Money sent by Postoffice Orders, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk.

Address all communications,
BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

JOYFUL SEASONS.

WITH pleasure we attended the Lovefeast at Hudson, Ill., the 8th and 9th inst. God's people at this place are noted for their zeal and Christian piety, humility and steadfastness. Peace is theirs. They cling to the same Lord, the same Gospel, the same ~~Scriptures~~ the same church that the apostles did; hence their joy. Bro. Thomas D. Lyon is their Elder; and a more tender-hearted, loving, long-suffering overseer could not be desired. He governs by love. No wonder love and peace prevail. Would that every local church were to follow the church at Hudson as it follows Christ!

Bro. John Metzger who is now three score and fourteen and who has been in the ministry forty-six years, was present, urging all to faithfulness with his accustomed and unabated zeal. He has lost none of his fire and activity. We wish he could be kept among us hundreds of years. Bro. Michael Forney who is seventy-one and has been in the ministry twenty-four years was there, too, and made us feel that Jesse is precious. And there is Bro. John Barnhart, the beloved in the Lord, who gave us comfort in the way of life. Bro. Edmund Forney of Ogle county told us many practical truths, and helped us all to look more to Jesus.

From Hudson to Shannon the 11th. This was also a grand season of worship and communion. There was a large attendance of ministerial laborers. God bless the church at Shannon! If the members there lose the crown of glory it will be their fault; for the means of happiness are given them freely.

Went to Naperville, Ill., the 15th and was pleased to meet Bro. Daniel Dierdorff and Bro.

Joseph Myers there. These brethren labored faithfully in the Lord, and sought to tell the story of Jesus in a plain, practical manner. The Love-feast was also full of joy to all present. We became strongly attached to the members of the Naperville church, and hope to meet them often in the future. One thing we cannot pass unnoticed, Christian Martin is overseer; and he has the deacons well-trained. Each takes his turn in reading the Scripture; and it is understood that the one who reads the Word must also close the meeting. The result is, the deacons are very active—can speak to edification—can pray fervently, and are diligent in business. This is as it should be. The deacons should be taught to do much of the work; and we think those at Naperville have been well taught. Space forbids us to notice some other excellent things noticed at these Lovefeasts. Brother Hiram Smith of Joliet was chosen to the ministry by a majority vote. We have been greatly built up in the faith, and feel to work more for the humble ways of the Lord.

TO OUR AGENTS.

THE season of your labors is again here. Another year has sped into the past. Many have come and gone since then; and power, have been broken by death. Some whom you visited last year to solicit to subscribe, have been laid in the tomb by kind hands and affectionate hearts. Others who were then in the world, reveling in its fashions, parades and vanities, have turned to the Lord Jesus, and are striving by grace for the unfading, imperishable crown. These you can visit and invite to join the band of BRETHERN AT WORK.

Before entering upon the duties of canvassing, go into your closet and pray God to bless you with a love for your work, and that he may give you a tender heart, a mind to overcome all opposition by loving kindness. You need God to help you. Your labor is such as not to make you ashamed. It is the work of evangelization, and the work of union and peace. Sinners are warned to flee the wrath to come in your paper. In it the unruly are warned, the feeble-minded comforted, the weak supported.—1 Thes. 5: 14. Be patient towards all men. Permit no rude remark—no unfair criticism,—no unjust comparison,—no fear or favor to deter you from your canvass. We desire that you treat competitors fairly and honorably. Worth wins, trickery fails. False policy is as the grave; honesty whimpers never. Principle walks erect; selfishness creeps. Right smiles and keeps cool; wrong fumes and is rash. Study your work, and defend, maintain and advocate the right. Remember 1 Cor. 13 in soliciting, and stick to the lesson.

On page fifteen we publish terms to agents. This is a small remuneration for your labor.

We wish we could do more; but it is the best we can do for you. By allowing you something as a premium you will be recompensed for any losses you may sustain; for some of you may find careless persons who fail to pay, and if you were not allowed something by way of premium you would sustain considerable loss. We hope none of our readers, however, will serve you thus in 1882.

We are pleased to be able to furnish each of our readers with an almanac for 1882. This almanac is printed by us in this office and is gotten up with care. It contains the ministerial list. Of course we cannot send the almanac until we receive the names, and as our readers will want it by Jan. 1—82, you should canvass early and send in the names in time to enable us to mail the almanac before Dec. 15th. Should our prospectus not have reached you, please inform us at once.

It is right that you persevere in your canvassing. You may be termed "heggars," but nick-naming is worldly work, and the world's work cannot affect God's work. We give value received, the same as any other man in legitimate business, and where this is done, it is not heggery. We feel that we give full value for you to feel that way too. Then trust in the Lord; look to him for grace and power. Write us your mind freely, and any further instruction sought will be cheerfully given. Pray for us!

TO OUR WRITERS.

GOD wrote on tables of stone, and commanded Moses to write. He learned the lesson promptly, and to this day men write and communicate thus one to the other. "Thill. Not all the happiness comes from mattock, shovel and plane; some comes by pen and ink. Therefore if you would find mines of wealth cease not to dig for truth, and having found it, give it to mankind. And this you will do if God permits.

Your noble aspirations—your divinely qualified minds—your sweet crumbs of counsel—your reports of God's work among his people, are monuments more lasting than marble and bronze. A name in the Lamb's book of life is worth more than a name written on stone or wood or iron. Who can measure the height of the good accomplished by your pens? Who can weigh the stupendous hills over which you have led weary souls to the Fountain filled with precious blood? God sees all, and will reward.

And now we come as heggars indeed. Here we have not wealth enough to repay. Crowns of glory, and homes of bliss, and palms of vic-they have we none to bestow; therefore we must beg. Will you continue to fill your BRETHREN AT WORK with the same precious gems? Will you dig deep into the Word for the truth and send it forth to the hungry through the B. A. W. P. Ah! methinks I hear every one say, "Yes we will—will! With you we most cheerfully join hands in telling the sweet old, old story of the cross, and shall come in God's strength to help fill the columns of our paper."

Thus far you have done worthily. Few indeed are the instances that the waste basket-galled your missives. You are learning to write in the spirit, because you are in the Spirit. Your defenses of the doctrine of Christ are firm. Your pleas for humility,—for brighter Christian life—for holiness and virtue are grander. Your concern for the principles and order of the church are greater. In fact, you have been with Christ and learned of him. Of this we have taken knowledge.

Some of you because of over-exertion cannot do as much in 1882 as in 1881, still you can do something. God will help. Others will come up who never before strake sail for Zion's port. Some will go to rest, and we shall hear no more from them. God's will be done. Come help us!

Our views on the value of the work, held by us cordially invited to continue with the work. Church news—news of an edifying character—is ever gratefully received. However, make your articles as short as possible; for the more contributors the better. We would like to hear from fifty each week, but unless each one studies briefly, not the half can be heard. There are some things we should remember. 1. To write only what is of general interest. 2. To keep God before us—to give him all the praise. It is not edifying to tell when you took the train, who carried you from house to house, the distance from place to place and who are related to you. Think about the thousands of readers and give only what is interesting to them. We think you will try to do this.

And then we must say something about your writing and putting up your articles. Do please write plainly and with black ink. Pencil writing is a strong temptation to cast into the waste basket. Do not tempt us to do that. Do not sew the pages together to make a long article. And please place the pages in regular order. Nine-tenths of the articles received at this office, have the last page on top and the first at the bottom. It takes time to arrange them in proper order. Do not ask us to do this but do it yourself. Give full names and address. We must have it as a guarantee.

Be not impatient if your essay fails to appear at once. Wheat in a good garner keeps for years; and makes just as good bread as if it were new wheat. Your articles on doctrine will not lose their savor by resting a few months. Keep our manuscript box full. The winter is a good time to fill it.

Again thanking you for your noble, Christian efforts and sympathies, and trusting you will find the same pleasure in continuing your excellent labor, we bid you an affectionate adieu for the present, pointing you to God for your great reward.

OUR REFLECTOR.

—That "Special Council Meeting" project needs to be handled with care. If the meeting is agreed to it should be called in such a way as to render it legal beyond question. There is an excellent class of members in Woodford Co., Ill., and there is no better place on earth to find genuine sympathy, but I think the place is a little too far to one side.

—I count forty-six items on your first page. I wonder how many of your readers can write that many items during odd moments in one week!

—We appreciate Bro. L. M. Eby's article; he writes just as he used to talk in our prayer-meetings. By the way we would like to see Bro. Lyman return to Leanak—he is needed here very much.

—Bro. Bright's article is proving interesting. His second paragraph is very cunningly worded—most readers will not likely digest it. I do not want Bro. Evans to think that I am in favor of voting, politically; that is something I have never done, but I would like him to explain how Christ and the apostles could have voted in the Roman Empire even if they had wanted to. I presume he can comprehend the logic there is behind this problem.

—I wish every member in our Brotherhood would resolve like sister S. L. Layton, to have the much-needed family prayer. But I must wait till her articles are finished.

—I think Bro. Sharp is mistaken in saying that a change of heart, or of the affections is based on repentance. The heart, or affections are changed by faith. Repentance is based on a change of conduct. Faith changes the heart, repentance the conduct, and baptism the relation. His idea about mushroom conversion ought to have been told long ago. I do not give much for conversion produced by telling death-bed stories, and there are hundreds brought into the church just in that way.

—I understand that editorial about "Papers and Schools" so well that I dare not say much about it, but I do hope that our Brethren will use proper caution in regard to their schools as well as their papers.

—Like you, I believe that the devil was the instigator of the President's death; yes he is the instigator of war, quarrels and every other evil going on in the world. It is unreasonable, as well as unbecomingly to attribute all our misdeeds and calamities to our Maker. A parent takes a thinly dressed little girl to a fashionable gathering, and thereby the little creature takes a severe cold which terminates in death from lung fever. The pious minister consoles the broken-hearted mother by saying that the little girl was too good for earth, and her Master thought good to call her up higher. That is a nice thing to think about, but candidly I do not believe there is a particle of truth in such doctrine. It is far more reasonable to suppose that the carelessness of that fashionable mother was the primary cause of the sad death. Let people realize these things more fully and then they will see cause to blame some one else for most of the mishaps that occur.

—It does my soul, and body too, good to handle Bro. Vaniman's "Chips from the Work-house." If what he writes is only the "chips" I would like to see some of the implements he is manufacturing. Certainly the St. Louis missionaries should call on the Mission Board for money to help the cause along in that place.

—Bro. Bright will have his hands and mind full if he makes that matter as plain as most of us like to see it. Man's immortality is a carefully studied subject.

—Your " Tidings from the Field" is becoming very interesting, more so now than the correspondence.

—Forty-nine baptisms reported in this No. Seventy-four last week, making in all 123.—J. H. MOORE.

BROTHER Paul preached Christ crucified as well as Christ glorified at Corinth. He persuaded men and women to believe on and accept the Lord Jesus, gave them commandment what to do; then departed unto other fields. While at Ephesus, sister Chloë wrote Paul from Corinth, informing him that the brethren and sisters there were at variance with each other—that there were contentions among them some having advanced some peculiar trait of Paul, others the work of Apollon, others that of Cephas, while a fourth party were clinging to Jesus. The estrangement of their feelings from each other was the result. Instead of one strong, compact, united body, having the same mind, speaking the same thing and expressing the one judgment, there was schism and separation.

THE Thursday evening meetings in the upper room in the college, are refreshing to the Christian soul. Praise, prayer, admonitions, exhortations and reading the Scripture—all make one happy.

A FALSE THEORY.

SOME people think that God cannot judge a man after he dies until the influence of the work of his life has ceased. Is it possible God must wait to the end of time to ascertain what the influence will be? Does he get wiser with passing ages? Oh, no! God is infinite in knowledge—perfect in wisdom.

But suppose it were a fact that God could not estimate the good or evil caused by the influence of the work of our life, where, in the Sacred Volume, do we read that man shall be judged, or give an account, for the works that follow them—the influence of what they have done? Christ says we shall be rewarded according to the deeds done, and that we shall give an account for our thoughts, the intents of our hearts—not one word about the influence that follows.

This theory is evidently erroneous. According to it, it would be impossible for one who had done evil the greater part of his life to be saved, e. g., a man of vast wealth spent all he had in the publication of books teaching infidelity. In the seventieth years of his life, six months before his death, he discovered his way was leading into "outer darkness." He seeks the company of holy men and women. They pray for him, and sing—

"While the lamp of life holds out to burn
The vilest sinner may return."

Christ speaks to him and says, "Come to me." Your labor is hard and your burden is heavy; take it upon you and your learn of me, and you shall find rest unto your soul." He don't say to him, "Go away from me. I can do nothing for you. The influence of the books you have put in circulation will, till the end of time, do far more against me than all you can now do for me. The harvest is too near past and the Summer too near ended for you to be saved." Oh, no! such is not the doctrine of our blessed Savior.

Again, it may be seen that this theory is a contradiction of the Scripture because it would pass corrupt, wicked and rebellious characters into the paradise of God. The theory would admit them in consideration of the fact that the influence of the work they had done accomplished more good than evil. The Word teaches us that nothing unclean can enter the city of our God.

Again, it may be observed that this theory makes us responsible for the use other make of our work. Errary thing used for a good purpose may also be used for an evil purpose. Consequently the salvation of an individual would not depend so much, or entirely, upon the deeds done in the body in connection with the thoughts and intents of the heart, but upon what use the people would make of their work. If this theory were true there would certainly be very little encouragement to try to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling; for even had we done all we could towards it, if others made a bad use of what we had done our doom would still be in the lake of fire.

It seems to us that all who do not have eyes at seeing they see not," says that "hearing they hear not," and that the absurdity of the theory, and need for further elucidation entirely unnecessary.

S. J. H.

For the Brethren at Work.

PROGRESSION.

BY J. W. S. LETHWOOD.

PROGRESSION means moving or going forward in space, growth, or knowledge, etc. But when we, remembering that "a tree is known by its fruit," take a view of the practical application some professed Christians make of the term we are forcibly driven to the conclusion that it means going over to the world; hence we see such going over to the world; some just starting, some further on, and many more nearly or quite over or back to the world; so much so that they look like the world, dress like the world, act like the world and go to the world's places of amusements; they love the world and desire and strive to be friends of the world. May God enable all such to see the error of their way and know.... that the friendship of the world is enmity with God, and that "whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is an enemy of God (see Jas. 4: 4)." And again, "Love not the world neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him, flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life is not of the Father, but of the world." 1 Jno. 2: 15: 16.

Although we believe that neither the word progress nor progression is in the Bible, yet we do not object to its use when properly applied to Christianity; such as a growth in grace or knowledge, but when progression is practically made to mean going over or back to the world we do most seriously object—retrogression would be a more appropriate word.

Such progressionists criticize Annual Meeting and call in question her authority to decide certain matters; preferring to be governed by the decisions made by carnal self rather than those made by the deliberative body of Christ. Such want everything labeled with "Thus saith the Lord," "in just so many words," yet they will contend earnestly, which is all right, for true immersion and even progression, and not found in the Bible in just so many words; yet both are undoubtedly there, nevertheless, in spirit and in truth. It is all right to thus contend; for we want to make use of the whole Gospel in word a d in spirit as applied to every thing; not being so "blinded by the god of this world" that we cannot or do not want to see either theoretically or practically the spirit as well as the Gospel when applied to dress and many other things in which carnality is seeking our destruction. When one becomes contaminated with the god of this world and unlearned in the spirit and principles of the Gospel, than the true Christian's course is to that one persecute; then some things are hard to be understood as we find recorded in 2 P 1: 3: 16, where P 1st, speaking of Paul, says, there "are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest (that is grossly pervert) as they do also the other Scriptures unto their own destruction."

Br-thren, "Ye therefore; beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also, being led away by the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness. But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." 2 P 1: 3: 17, 18.

Br-thren, let me say earnestly do not "be led away by the error of the wicked, do not fall from your own steadfastness," "But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." This is the kind of progression we want, a growth in grace and in a knowledge resting upon a living faith, willingly submitting to the spirit of the Gospel as liberated upon by the church, the body of Christ, and not set up carnal self against "a multitude of council in which there is safety,"—"the church of the Living God, the pillar and ground of the truth" (see 1 Tim 3: 15), and by so doing try to trouble the church. Paul says, Gal. 5: 12, "I would they even were cut off which trouble you."

Beloved brethren, let us say in the language of 1 Cor. 8: 9 in ~~the language of the apostle~~ forsaken; cast down but not destroyed; always bearing about the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our own body."

Monument City, Ind.

BROTHERS, is there not too much light-mindedness at our Council-meetings, sometimes bordering close on joking and jesting? Who ever saw Jesus trifle with sacred things? J. R. M.

We should not give way to fickleness and jostling. Our Council-meetings should be held in honor to God Love and sobriety should prevail. We are commanded to be sober; yet the command is too little heeded. Where love and kindness prevail, councils are pleasant; but where there is hardness of heart, and want of love, there religion is fast becoming a secrecy and foolishness and what worldly men call "smartness" takes its place. Let all councils be conducted soberly, decently and in order.

If any man will do his will he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself. The new version reads, If any man will that to do his will, he shall know of the teaching whether it be of God or whether I speak from myself. Doing is the condition of knowing God.—Golden Center.

Precisely! Does the Censer believe in doing John 13-4: 16? and Rom 16: 16? If not, does it know the will of God?

THE rose has its thorns; the diamonds its specks; the best man his failings.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, EDITOR

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Lakeside, Henry Co., Mo.

Will some one please explain 1 Cor. 14: 34-35? Why are women to keep silence in the church? Should they not sing or pray or what shall they do? A BROTHER.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations? C. D. H.

Please explain the difference between a good man and a righteous man. JOHN Y. SNAVELY.

Please give the true meaning of the word "closet." Matt. 6: 6. JOHN Y. SNAVELY.

Please explain Matt 21: 40, 41. It reads, "There shall be two in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left." Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, the other left. LYDIA ZARNER.

Will some one explain the last part of the 6th verse of the 8th chapter of John: "But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground," etc. How could he write on the ground, when he was in the temple? A SISTER.

Why did Simon want the honor as mentioned in those verses—to gain honor, fame, money, or what? PETER BROWN.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in towns? ELIAS HANBBER.

For the Brethren at Work.

QUERY ANSWERED.

What are the seven spirits of God? C. D. H. I WILL OFFER a few thoughts on the above—the Scriptures. In Matt. 18: 45, no man can bind himself seventh other spirits. Seven loaves. Luke 11: 26. "Then goeth he and taketh to him seven other spirits more evil than himself, and they enter in and dwell there." Rev. 1: 4, seven churches, seven lamps, seven stars, seven seals, seven churches and seven spirits of God.

Those all have a meaning, and Scriptures should interpret themselves. Those seven spirits are seven angels, which stand before God. Rev. 8: 2. Seven spirits which stand before his throne. Rev. 1: 4. Seven eyes which are the seven spirits of God, sent forth into all the earth. Rev. 5: 6. "And I heard a great voice out of the temple, saying to the seven angels: Go ye and pour out the vials of the wrath of God into the earth." Rev. 16: 1. Here we see that the seven spirits are the seven angels.

"And there came one of the seven angels." Rev. 17: 1. These I understand to be the angels as the spirit. The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches. Rev. 1: 20.

Now let us notice, in brief, the beginning of the first chapter of Revelations: "The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to shew unto his servants, even the things which must shortly come to pass. And he sent and signified it by his angel unto his servant John."

Now mark what John seen. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the spirit or angels saith unto the churches." Turning to Acts 8: 26-29, we read of the Lord speaking to Philip, saying, "Arise and go towards the South, unto the way that goeth down to Jerusalem. And the spirit said unto Philip: Go near, and join thyself to this chariot * * * The spirit of the Lord caught away Philip" Here we see that the angel and the spirit of the Lord are the same.

Next turn to H b. 1: 13, 14. "But to which of the angels said he at any time, 'Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy foot stool. Are they not all ministering spirits sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?'"

In Mark 8: 38 we read as follows: "When he cometh in the glory of his Father, with the holy angels," etc. Is not a holy angel, a holy spirit or a ministering spirit, the same?

Do we not read in Acts 8, that the angel of the Lord and the spirit of the Lord are the same? I would like to know the difference between the Holy Ghost, and Holy Spirit, and the spirit of the Lord, and the angel of the Lord.

HOW IS IT?

WHILE in Ohio, D. P. Saylor preached us a very good sermon in the Wolf Creek church, and said that Christ was born in a stable. I have been trying to find it, but have not yet found it so far. I can find where he was wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger. I do not know very much, but I would rather think from the reading of the 5th verse of the 8th chapter of Solomon's Song, that he was brought forth under an apple if you can find anything good in it, and do with it what seemeth best.

JULIA A. GILBERT.

New Lebanon, Ohio.

From the Inter Ocean.

VALLEY OF THE JORDAN.

By what people is the country adjacent to the river Jordan inhabited? What is their chief occupation? What kind of climate have they? How are their seasons divided? Would the country be productive if properly cultivated? What would be produced in it? When and how did Turkey acquire it? Are lands sold there as in the United States? W. R.

THE population of Palestine is about as easy to describe as the inhabitants of the country bordering the Jordan. The bulk of the inhabitants are a mixed race, says Dr. Hitchcock, descendants of the ancient Syrians and their Arab conquerors.

The Jewish population of Palestine is not great, and they dwell chiefly in the four sacred cities of Jerusalem, Safed, Tiberias, and Hebron.

To say anything intelligently of the valley of the Jordan, we advise the knowledge-seeker to take a map of Palestine and follow it while a few points are given.

Lake Huleh (called also the Waters of Merom) is the largest northern body of water, which contributes to the Jordan. This lake is triangular in shape, about six miles long and three and a half wide. On the north of the lake, whence spring several effluents of the Jordan, is an impenetrable jungle, the wallowing place of buffaloes. There is a marsh bordering the lake, which is about ten miles long, and which is covered with reeds and brush, but on the West there is a fine, fertile plain.

From Lake Huleh to the Sea of Galilee (the Lake of Gennesaret) the river first passes sluggishly over its bed for a short distance, then over a rocky bed, in a narrow volcanic valley, and then, thirteen miles or so below, it enters Gennesaret. This lake is surrounded by an almost continuous wall of hills, broken or receding occasionally, as at Tiberias, the plain of Gennesaret and at the Jordan. The hills are of limestone, basalt and volcanic rocks; hot springs abound, and earthquakes are frequent. This lake is pear-shaped; some six or seven miles long and four to five miles wide.

The river issues from the southern extremity of this lake, and enters a broad valley or depressed plain or track, between the mountains. During the Spring floods this "lower plain" is inundated; then it plunges over some twenty-seven formidable rapids, and then on to the Dead Sea.

The whole distance from the sources of the river to its mouth is not more than 136 miles in a straight line, and its whole descent is about 3,000 to the Dead Sea.

The cities which in Bible times stood on the lakes and in the valleys of the Jordan are generally ruins and only groups of equal hovel now occupy their sites. The inhabitants of these places are for the most part of a very degraded race. He said to have any fixed occupation.

In the Jordan Valley the heat of Summer is always great and sometimes exceedingly oppressive. There are two seasons, Summer and Winter; the former from April to November, rainless or nearly so; the latter from November to April, rainy.

Palestine was once very fertile, and might be so again. Generally speaking, the country has such products as pear, beson, wheat and barley, as well as grapes, figs, olives, apricots, lemons, oranges and dates.

In 1517 the Ottomans came in and made Palestine a part of the Turkish Empire. It was attached from the Sultan by Mohammed Ali in 1832, but Europe intervened, and in 1841 it was given back again. Lands are not sold there as in the United States.

The best part of one's life is the performance of one's daily duties. All higher motives, ideals, conceptions, sentiments, in a man are of no account if they do not come down and strengthen him for the better discharge of the duties which devolve upon him in the ordinary affairs of life.

It is difficult to conceive anything more beautiful than the reply given by one in affliction when he was asked how he bore it so well. "It lightens the stroke," said he, "to draw near to him who handles the rod." Christian pilgrims and fellow-travelers, do not forget the great Rock of our salvation.

Correspondence.

From Wm. Edgecomb.—Notwithstanding the fiery trial through which the church here has passed, two have been received by baptism, six by letter and one reclaimed. These had been waiting to see whether the church would stand by A. M., and it did so overwhelmingly. Our Love-feast Oct. 6th was well attended. It was held in a tent where all could be seated around the table to do as Christ commanded. Everything passed off pleasantly and in order.—Parsons, Kan., Oct. 17.

From John Weybright.—On the evening of the 26th ult., myself and wife, in company with D. P. Saylor and wife, arrived at Dayton, Ohio, where we attended several council meetings and Love-feasts. We have seen and heard the workings of the division of our Brotherhood in the Miami Valley. Out of a membership of 4,000 in the Southern district of Ohio 500 have gone out, while 220 are neutral. The leaders are no doubt disappointed as they expected more followers.—Double Pipe Creek, Md., Oct. 15th.

[We permit this to go in so that our readers may see how matters stand in the Miami Valley. Much might be published, but we doubt the propriety of noticing the errors of those who have gone out. They will stand or fall upon their own doings.—Ed.]

From J. Madsen.—I am always received regularly. I am sorry that I have not been able to find any interesting news for it, but I trust you will kindly excuse me.... I am going home at the end of this month.... I have a sample copy of Der Brudersbote. Will you be able to send me this paper instead of B. A. W. henceforth, that I may progress in the German language? I shall send the money before I leave for Denmark.... From a letter written by Sr. M. H., a missionary in Spain—in September this year—I got some information about the religious state of that people, which I shall briefly give here, hoping it may deserve some consideration, and perhaps his or her earnest prayers if no other aid. According to his letter it appears that a terrible dark cloud is hanging over that country, excluding the light from heaven; most of the people are Catholics, or nothing but men and women sunk down into profound misery. Even those few who get converted are so blinded that things as stealing and lying are common with them, not being looked upon as sins until they are taught by the missionaries or Bible to shun them. Persecutions await the true Christians everywhere, and if they can gather together a number of six or eight persons, for a meeting in towns like Leon, or distribute two tracts a day when going from house to house, it is very well done. They succeed in holding some children's meetings, and endeavor to untold in plain words the glad tidings from heaven for the little ones.... A lady of high position attended a meeting twice. Upon being invited to come again she answered: "No, I will not leave the mother and go to the son." Then she retired.... If some brother or sister should find too little to do at home, go and help that poor, dark nation, and take God's blessing with you.... I think if some of our young believers, who have a little time to spare, would take a number of tracts and go from house to house asking people to read them, they would be able to work for the Lord in that way, and at the same time gather blessings for themselves. Every one may not be fit for teaching a whole congregation or to fill a vacant pulpit, but many are strong enough to carry a dozen or two or three suitable papers and hand them to their fellow-men. Now I fancy I hear my young brethren saying within themselves: "There are many who like to command and advise, but who will go and attend to the work?".... I take Saturday afternoon when I have a few hours to spare; I go through a street of our town, starting at the one end and taking every house, rich or poor, till there are none left. The first time not one refused and a nice gentleman gave me a "Thank you, much obliged to you." I hope no one will misunderstand me here, as though I desire to be praised. If any good be done, let God have the glory.—New Castle, Eng., Oct. 5th.

From David Province.—A few items or crumbs, I thought, would be of interest to many readers of your valuable paper, which comes to us very regularly. Oh how eager we are for church news.... Our little church (Clear Creek) is about three miles north of Saline City, a little village on south bank of the Missouri river, for six miles south of Chicago & Altona R.R., and about nine miles below Glasgow.... Our Feast is past. No ministers from a distance except elder D. L. Williams, who held forth the Word with great boldness.... We number some twenty members, two ministers and two deacons. Brother James Evans, of De Witt, is with us holding forth the Word. He commenced meeting on the night of the 7th of this month, and expects to continue until the evening of the 13th. On Sunday the 9th four were immersed. Good order, large congregation of people; proof for a large ingathering of souls, of such, we hope, as may be saved. Our prayer is that brother Evans may live long upon the earth. God bless his labors for good.—Arrow Rock, Oct. 12th.

From Simon Mikesell.—In No. 39, Vol. 6th is an article entitled "Special Conference," in which the writer suggests that a Conference is necessary. We would say that if ever there was a time for a Conference it would be now, and we would suggest that it would be held in the Miami Valley. Were I to try and give all the reasons it would take too much space. Zion is blinding here in the Valley, and I hope the Brethren will make a move to do something.... We have a very large church-house. Open correspondence with elders Jacob Garver, John Smith, David Murray, Samuel Mohler, Joseph Kauffman.—Johnsville, Ohio.

From B. B. Whitmer.—District Meeting of Southern Illinois was held in Astoria church, Fulton county, Illinois, Oct. 4th and 5th. The meeting was characterized with a more than ordinary degree of harmony. This may perhaps be attributed to one great cause—that of the present distracted condition of our once united fraternity, the troubles afoot and the issues to be met and the firmness required in the minds of many as to where to stand during the present storm of the church. Severe trials seem to more firmly unite the hearts of God's children, and to more fully characterize among us that Christian forbearance, which is so essential to the promotion of peace, love, and harmony.... The meeting was not over-taxed with business, and hence could devote more attention to each item. There was a very marked decline in the number of queries. Many, no doubt, profited by having been present at our late Annual Meeting. This feature no doubt has been abused in the past, and we hope to see improvement in this direction in the future.... The Brethren's Orphan's Home, now permanently organized and located near Cerro Gordo, Illinois, received due attention. Its By-laws were affirmed, and five brethren were appointed as trustees, viz., John Metzger, David Kuna, Stephen Shively, Andrew Shively, and David Blickenstaff—all located in the immediate vicinity of the Home. We feel sorry that by mistake the names of these trustees did not appear in print in Minutes of D. M. The meeting elected, by vote, Daniel Vaniman and J. B. Gish delegates to Standing Committee for 1882, and John Wise and T. D. Lyon alternates.

From E. Miller.—Our Love-feast on 11th just past was not so large as on former occasions, yet we had quite a respectable audience, and good attention. Elder John Niggly, of Plymouth, Jesse Calvert, of Warsaw, and J. C. Murray did most of the preaching, and it was well done, too. If we over in this world needed sound preaching it is now. We, too, are in somewhat a suspense on account of the existing church trouble; but I don't think we will lose any members by the imprudent move, yet some of our neighboring churches are worried by it, though not near so extensively as was at first anticipated. In fact, only quite a few of the real sound in the faith, are willing to take the risky chances to make things worse to one to make things better, and I do hope and pray God to put it into the hearts of faithful watchmen over Zion to use double diligence in warning the people to flee the wrath to come.—Pierceton, Ind., Oct. 14.

From J. R. Miller.—Our Communion is past. Had a pleasant and profitable waiting before the Lord. Plenty of ministerial aid, and the doctrines of the Bible was plainly brought before the people. We are happy to say that the seed sown is already bearing fruit; for six have come out as free volunteers in the army of the Lord since then, and we hope and pray that more will soon follow their example.... The brethren and sisters of Yellow Creek District selected elder John Aoglemyer to take care of them and help them along in their trials. Am happy to say that some who had concluded to go out are already returning to the fold, of which Jesus Christ is the Shepherd, weeping over their mistake. May many more quickly see their error and make their return, being loyal to Jesus and the church of which He is the head, which no power on earth is able to overthrow.—Locke, Ind., Oct. 16.

From John Zook.—Our Love-feast at Free-spring is over. Brethren from a distance were James Quinter, of Huntington, Pa., brother George Myers, from Miami county, Kansas, John Gable, of Clinton county, Iowa, and C. Myers and Isaac Eby, from Perry county, Pa., and John R. Hanawalt, of Millin county, Pa. Brother Quinter opened the exercises, followed by G. Meyers. One was baptized. This makes the third one in two weeks.... The house was much crowded, but had rather good order. Next day preaching at 9 A. M. After services brother Solomon Kaufman was advanced to the second degree of the ministry.—Juniata Co., Pa., Oct. 13th.

From S. H. Baker.—Wife, younger daughter, and myself started Sept. 8th for the Chippewa Valley church to attend the Love-feast, Sept. 10th. On account of the muddy roads and being badly washed by the severe rains shortly before, our speed was slow. We arrived at brother Samuel Crist's, first evening, a distance of thirty miles. Next morning we resumed our journey, and when we arrived at the Chippewa river, we soon found that we could not cross on the ferry, so we had to drive thirty-five miles out of our way, via Eau Claire, yet we arrived in good time at place of meeting. On account of the inclemency of the weather the meeting was not so largely attended. My little daughter, my little daughter by baptism.... September 17th being the day for our council meeting at River Falls, we could not make as lengthy a visit at Chippewa as we desired. On arriving home sad intelligence came to us: that we were called to preach the funeral of brother R. A. and sister Libbie Patterson's infant son, aged 16 days. The funeral took place at 10 o'clock Sept. 17th. Subject or text, "Suffer little children to come unto me," etc.... Oct. 1st was the day for our Communion; were pleased to see our brother David Whetstone, from Lewistown, Minn., come to our assistance. The meeting passed off nicely.... On Sunday our joy was turned to mourning, learning that our aged brother A. Hodgeston was taken dangerously ill; disease, congestion of the lungs. It was supposed by all that he was dying, but at this date he still survives.... Three were received into the River Falls congregation by letter at our Communion.—River Falls, Wis., Oct. 9th.

From M. Lichty.—Concerning the consolidation of our papers I, for one, am not in favor, from the fact we cannot have too much good literature about us, just such as most of our papers are. Could I believe the papers are the cause of divisions in the church, I would immediately sanction the annihilation of all, without any exception; but as I believe intelligence is not the cause of church troubles, I favor as many church papers as can be supported, and each writer to be responsible for the effect of his productions.—Bell, Kan., Oct. 10th.

From William G. Brown.—Our Love-feast at Panther Creek, Woodford Co., Ill., is over. Had a good meeting and good order. About one hundred members communed; some from other churches were with us. There were five strange ministers present. They preached the Word with power, for which we thank God and take courage.... An election was held for a speaker. The lot fell on brother James W. Gish. May the Lord bless him in the work that is before him.... Four precious souls were made to see their lamentable condition, and came to work in the vineyard of the Lord. May God bless them. Sinners, how can you stand out in the cold world when you hear so many strong invitations?—Loansdale, Ill.

From A. D. Garber.—The Brethren of the Pleasant Valley congregation held their Love-feast Saturday Oct. 1st, with a large number of communicants.... Three young maidens were made willing to put on Christ, and were received into the fold by baptism in the forenoon, to partake of the Feast in the evening, which makes ten added to our number this Summer. The Lord be praised.... This congregation has three comfortable meeting-houses, in which the members meet every Lord's day for worship, and are still aiming to keep the good old ship sailing in the Gospel current.... General health good.... Drouth still continues.—Mt. Sydney, Va., Oct. 13th.

From a Brother.—The Coon River congregation is in union, and ever willing to stand by and maintain the honor of God through the Lord Jesus Christ, in trying to promulgate his will as he united as one unbroken chain—in the strongest ties of Gospel love and affection; for Brethren, after we have become enlightened in the old landmarks of the fathers of our fraternity, and bolt against them I fear we have but a faint conception of the steps we are taking. O let us be united in spirit and in love, and in heaven above surround his throne in love.—Dale City, Ia.

From Flora E. Tesgue.—Although our Communion is numbered among the things of the past, yet it will long be remembered as one of the happiest we have ever known. It is true we have met with trouble from those who favored the Miami Valley resolutions—nine having strayed away from us—but those who are loyal and true to the Brethren church are more closely united than ever. I think we all feel as if each one now had a very important part to perform, and that we will be drones and idlers no more. God grant that we may ever serve him faithfully and lovingly, and that we may ever stand firmly united.... One young sister was baptized the same day. May the peace which belongs to the saints ever be thine, is the prayer of your unworthy sister in Christ.—Covington, Ohio, Oct. 17th.

From J. S. Flory.—Our Love-feast is past and a glorious meeting we had. It cannot be otherwise where the spirit of the Lord is and love prevails. Ministers present were only those of our home congregations, five in number; each one willing to bear another's burdens, and thus fulfill the law of Christ. Our meeting was well attended; quite a number of the scattered members from some distance were present, and added to our enjoyment to meet with them around our Communion board and bow at the same mercy-seat to praise and adore our Great Redeemer, so when our meetings and partings are over we may meet in heaven.... There has been a number of additions by letter during the year, and the church seems to be prospering. We scarcely ever hear the muttering tone of dissension that is shaking the church in the East in some localities. God forbid that the dark pall of disunion or secession shall ever hang around our cloudless skies. May the Sun of Righteousness and the glittering stars of God's promises ever shine upon the little band of faithful followers here in this central West.—Longmont, Colo.

From Sarah A. Miller.—Our Love-feast of Oct. 6th is past. No ministerial aid. Had a good meeting. Splendid order. Just at the close of services next day, our dear old brother Houtsecker came to us and gave us four meetings; it revived us all as we have come to a dark period—there is a dark cloud hanging over us at present. We will cling closely to our good old Ship; it will bring us safely through; if we hold out faithful we need no other refuge.—Logan Creek, Logan county, Ohio.

Orphan Home.

The Home for Orphans at Cerro Gordo, Ill., under the auspices of Brethren, is now ready to receive orphans. All donations of money and clothing should be forwarded to Stephen Shively, Cerro Gordo, Ill. DAVID KUNS.

Cerro Gordo, Ill., Oct. 16th.
[THE BROTHERN AT WORK congratulates the Brethren of Southern Illinois in this their good work. God will prosper the labor of love. Here is an opportunity to show love by good works. We have gathered a little for the Home and will bring it to you in person.—Ed.]

Mountain Normal.

This is the name of a contemplated school which is to be built on top of the Blue Ridge in Floyd county, Virginia, 2500 feet above the sea level surrounded by a great many mountain sceneries, natural curiosities, etc. These, together with the healthful climate, good water, kind and welcome-hearted people ought to induce patronage from far and near especially from those countries where the water is bad and the air impure. The work is in the hands of nine trustees who will push the work forward as rapidly as possible. They will perhaps not be able to begin the school before Sept. 1st, 1892.

Brother John B. Wright, an of South Bend, Indiana, (who has been with us for the last month) has been chosen to take charge of the school.

Any one desiring any further information in regard to the school may address the undersigned, who will kindly respond.

C. D. HYLTON.

Hylton, Va.

STRIP UP THE GIT THAT IS IN THEE.

Health and Temperance.

S. T. BOSSERMAN, - - - - - EDITOR

All communications for this department should be addressed to S. T. Bosserman, Dunkirk, Hardin Co., Ohio.

FOOD AND MORALS.

IS it not a matter of surprise in this age of advanced thought, that Christian and moral reformers pay so little attention to the marked influence of food upon morals? It cannot be denied but what bodily condition exerts a strong influence upon the soul. Jesus, the greatest reformer that ever lived, in most emphatic terms recognized this fact, and taught that bad bodily condition had a debasing and detoning influence upon the spiritual man. The apostles taught the same solemn truths. Is it right for us to shut our eyes and go on blindly in our course? Can we ever expect any great progress in moral reformation or Christian prosperity, so long as we, as a nation, live on gross, unhealthy food? Appetite has become a perverted thing that instead of being governed by the laws of health, we are governed by sensual delight; the food that gives the most pleasure in passing the palate is most sought after, regardless of after consequences.

Premature death is the result of violated laws. God never intended to give life and then take it before maturity. Were it not that we ourselves or our ancestors violated nature's laws, we should live to a ripe old age, and drop this life into another as the fruit when ripened falls from the tree. There are but admonitions of warning to the living, but instead of taking them as such, we seek comfort by attributing all to the providence and mercy of God. It is true God's hand is in it, but only in carrying out the penalty of disregarded law. He is present to bind up the "broken hearted," and gather to his fold all that are his when death comes, but do not let us think early deaths are the result of an arbitrary edict from God, or act of His special providence, independent of law and order.

The law of nature as it relates to man and the law of grace, are in harmony. There is no antagonism between the carnal mind and the laws of God, but not between the laws of development in the body and spiritual growth in grace.

It is a universal law that "Like begets like." Every seed after its kind," is the law governing all created things. Men and women are not an exception to this rule. Blood is the life of all living animals. Blood will most surely tell in morals as well as in the bodily structure. Yes, "blood has power throughout the whole realm of life, whether it be in a human body, in society, or in the body of a horse on the race course. Bad blood gives bad health, bad temper, and develops bad, gross-grained people."

God's bill of fare to his people in ancient times excluded all gross food from their tables. With the Jews it was the design of God to bring them up to a high state of moral reform, and if gross food was a hindrance to the desired end at that age, why should we suppose it makes no difference in these days, when all admit true morals are essential to a true Christian or spiritual life.

Look at the bill of fare to be found on our tables to-day. Bread made from fine flour which by the process of bolting has been deprived of most of the phosphates and nitrates that exist in the wheat, these very elements that go largely to the making-up of nerves, bones, muscles and brains. The grossest kinds of meats, reeking with scrofulous elements, and often saturated and seasoned with fiery spices and alcoholic acids; and there are the many indigestible cakes, puddings, and the whole must be washed down by some kind of hot drink.

Is it any wonder we are a nation of dyspeptics, fiery blood, hot temper and devilish morals? Can we expect anything better so long as we offer a sacrifice three times a day to the god of a perverted appetite, and during the rest of the day roll a deadly narcotic in the mouth. Such a course of living, or rather of eating and breaking, vitiates the blood, and the bad qualities of human nature rise to the top as natural as scum upon a filthy, boiling water. Talk of the re-generative influence of the Holy Spirit in such a seething cauldron of carnality! Stenic evolutions are as natural as breathing—no marvel then that many seemingly good men fall. Gross food produces gross blood, and bad blood fires up any evil lust, so the little good that is in man is burned out, and he is consumed in the fires of iniquity. Temper the body according to the laws of nature. Eat to live, and bring both body and soul under the dominion of Christ's law, and moral and religion. Do fit not the temple of the Holy Ghost, and we may expect growth in grace, and true Christians may become a light to the world and a salt to the earth. Let ministers and reformers in general commence aright, if they would regenerate society and build up the waste places.

Will quote the following incident: "A father, by prayer and precept, and flogging, had done his best to reform his boy, whose staple diet was meat and sausage, pie and cake, at his meals, with lunch between. The family physician said to the father, 'If you will put a sech back of each of your boy's ears once a week for a month, you will do more to reform him than your preaching and punishing will do in a year.' The father asked for the philosophy of this prescription. 'Why,' said the doctor, 'your boy has bad blood, and too much of it; he must have badly, or he would burst.' 'Then,' said the father, 'I'll change his diet from gross meats and pies to hominy and milk.' In three months thereafter, a better boy for his age could not be found in the neighborhood."

Says a certain divine: "I hold that very much of the wickedness of mankind is the natural expression of physical heftiness, rather than the outflow of innate viciousness. A body made up largely of all manner of nerve-generating, passion-producing, anger-generating elements, such as are found in the gross animal dishes, with their belongings, just as surely draws the soul to sin as a tempest drives a feather before it."

Higienic as applied to the kind of food a man eats, and the manner of eating it, is as much a matter of morals as it is a question of medicine. We know there are men that will pool! at this idea, but nothing better can be expected of guilty culprits. Having assumed the responsibility to stand upon the ground of sound logic in the face of popular prejudices, we shall maintain our position though the heavens fall.—J. S. Flory, in Home Mirror.

DANGERS OF CANNED FRUIT.

THE exigencies of trade appear to be in continual conspiracy against the health of the human family. Some sharp man once found out that it was economical in the manufacture of tin plate to introduce into it a small quantity of lead, and now the cheaper grades of tin are all adulterated in this way. This discovery is fraught with mischief, for when acid fruits come in contact with this mixture of tin and lead, they are liable to become contaminated and produce lead poisoning in those who eat them. The canning of fruits in this country is now carried on to a much greater extent than ever, and cases are frequently brought before the public in the newspapers of injury done to families or individuals by eating fruit which has thus been preserved. For those who preserve their own fruit or vegetable, glass or earthen-ware vessels are absolutely safe, and much to be preferred to those made of metal.—American Rural Home.

THE FATAL HEEL.

THERE is possibly nothing sadder in the week of the young bride, who, before her honeymoon had well begun a flight of stairs and received such injuries that she died. The cause was a very simple one, viz. the use of the high and sharp heels that are worn by most ladies all over America. It is only a wonder that any young lady descends the stairs safely with them, and while the event calls for the strongest sympathy, it leaves a lesson behind which young ladies will do well to heed.—St. Francisco News Letter.

BEER drinkers had an opportunity of reading in the Herald, the other day, that the brewers use guano, bad malt, cigar butts, resin, soap, and leather scraps, besides cocculus indicus and other drugs that few men care to take into their systems unless by medical advice. The fiery furnace of King Nebuchadnezzar never had more incalculable material when Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego were used for fuel, than the stomach of the ordinary beer drinker contains when filled with this unlovely mixture. But then it isn't all in beer that these abominations are found. The grocers sell them in all sorts of disguises, and by no means least in that very suspicious stuff sold under the name of "coffee" and largely composed of cocca-nut shell roasted and ground. There was no market for this stuff till Satan showed some of his disciples how it could be roasted and ground into "coffee."

A CERTAIN doctor once remarked, "Show me a man that has a natural taste for tobacco, and I will show you a man whom God never created."

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR THE

Brethren at Work,
AND
TRACT SOCIETY.

S. T. Beersman, Dunkirk, Ohio. John Ferry, Alliance, Kan.
E. web Wby, Lena, Ill. Daniel Vaniman, Verona, Ill.
O. A. Shanberger, Graham, Mo. J. B. Perry, Leominster, Colo.
W. E. Lester, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Mosser, Goreville, Ill.
J. J. Mahan, Conestoga, Mo. J. W. Southwood, Montgomery, Ind.
John Wm. Mulberry Grove, Ill. D. Brewer, Salem, Oregon.

OUR PLEA.

THE BRETHERN AT WORK is an unaccepting advocate of Primitive Christianity in all its sacred purity. It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

And maintains that the sovereign, unmerited, uncalculated grace of God is the only source of power, and that the various inheritings and meritorious works of Christ are the only price of redemption.

That Faith, Repentance and Baptism are conditions of pardon, and means for the realization of sin.

That the Holy Sacrament, or dipping the candidate three times face-ward, is Christian Baptism.

That Fast-keeping, as taught in John 13, is a divine command to be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be eaten in the evening, at the close of the day.

That the Salvation of the Holy Kist, or Kist of Charity, is binding upon the church of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus.

That Non-Confession to the world in dress, customs, daily walk and conversation is essential to true holiness and Christian piety.

It maintains that in public worship, or religious exercises, Christians should appear as directed in 1 Cor. 11: 4, 5.

It also advocates the scriptural duty of assisting the sick with oil in the name of the Lord.

In short it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the Apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and errors of modern Christianity, to point out ground that all must concede as so faithfully and

It also maintains that the spirit will be allowed ten per cent. additional as will please retain and send us the balance. Money sent by Post Office Order, Registered Letter, and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk. Do not send checks, as they cannot be collected without checks. Address.

BRETHERN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a time for payment. Thus "1 Jan, '81," shows that the paper has been paid for up to that time. "1 Jan, '82," shows that the time will be expired.

If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from the date of payment, notify us at once.

Catalogue of Cass's Library for 30 Cents. Bro. Cassel spent his life, collecting rare works. This catalogue will show what he gathered. It is an interesting collection. Rules and regulations in catalogue. Address, D. L. Miller, Mt. Morris, Ill.

How to Do Good!

The Western Book Exchange has opened a new plan of tract work. They have on their shelves an excellent tract, entitled, "The House We Live In," by Daniel Vaniman. This tract they sell at 5cts and tell us they are losing money. But they are determined to do good with the tract system. Hence they are putting up a large edition of the tract, so that they can sell it cheap in large quantities. They have obtained subscriptions for several thousand already. Persons interested in tract work and spreading the seeds of truth, agree to take as many as each feels willing and distribute them. Those who cannot distribute them personally, can give them to a minister who will. They furnish the tract at $4.00 per thousand or 50cts per hundred.

It is a twelve page tract, setting forth the doctrine of our church in condensed form, and will do much good wherever distributed. Only think of it,—one thousand twelve page tracts for $4.00. What an amount of good might be done in this way! Now here is a grand chance for every one to help spread the Gospel. Send $4.00 for a thousand or 50cts for a hundred and put them to work.

Address: WESTERN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Terms to Agents.

- For $1 75 { BRETHREN AT WORK and YOUTH'S ADVANCE ONE YEAR.
- For $4 50 { Paper to three persons each one year and a copy of Class Communion by London West teacher.
- For $6 00 { Paper to four persons, each one year and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year to sender.
- For $9 00 { Paper to six persons, each 1 year and a copy of Family Instructor, an excellent work worth 75cts.
- For $12 00 { Paper to eight persons each one year and one copy free to the sender.
- For $15 00 { Paper to ten persons and a copy of Biblical Autiquities, by Nevins, to sender. Price of work alone, $1.50.
- For $18 00 { Paper to ten persons and a copy of Bible and Tracts, to sender. Price of book alone, $2.00.
- For $24 00 { Paper to 18 persons, 1 year and any $2.50 book found on Western Book Exchange Catalogue to sender.
- For $30 00 { Paper to 20 persons, each 1 year and a Dictionary of the Bible by Smith. Price of book alone $3.00.
- For $37 50 { Paper to twenty-five persons, each one year, and ten per cent off to sender, or $1.00 worth of books from catalogue.
- For $45 00 { Paper to thirty persons, each one year, and $5.00 to sender; or we shall put $5.00 into missionary fund for every thirty subscribers and $15.00.
- For $60 00 { Paper to forty persons, each one year, and a copy of Worcester's Standard Quarto Dictionary worth $10.00.

Terms to Subscribers!

FIRST OFFER.—For $3.00 we will send "The Problem of Human Life," and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year.

SECOND OFFER.—For $2.50 we will send the BRETHERN AT WORK and MICROSOBAM each one year, and a copy of "The Problem of Human Life."

THIRD OFFER.—For $2.30 we will send the BRETHERN AT WORK one year and a copy of the "Problem of Human Life."

FOURTH OFFER.—For 75 cents we will send you the MICROSOBAM and YOUTH'S ADVANCE each one year.

FIFTH OFFER.—For $2.00 we will send you "The Problem of Human Life," and MICROSOBAM one year, thus saving you 50 cents.

SIXTH OFFER.—For $3.50 we will send you BRETHERN AT WORK, YOUTH'S ADVANCE and LITERARY MICROSOBAM each one year, and a copy of "The Problem of Human Life," all post-paid.

Please read these terms carefully. We have closed our former liberal offers, and advanced prices on these clubs, because everything else has advanced.

Make all drafts and post-office orders payable to M. M. Eshelman.

Address all letters

BRETHERN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Brethren's Envelopes.—These are neat, white envelopes with the general principles of the Brethren church printed on the back. By using them, the doctrine of the church may be spread far and wide. Price, 15 cents for 25; or 40 cents per hundred. For sale at this office.

Mt Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending October 15.

Number Enrolled	183
Average Daily Attendance	143
Per Cent of Attendance	78
Number Tardies	7
Number Absent not Tardy	113
E. A. BERRY, Principal.

THE MAN
THE MAN OF THE YEAR
Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

Stands pre-eminent among the great Truck Lines of the West for being the most direct, quickest, and safest line connecting the great Metropolis, CHICAGO, with the EASTERN, NORTH EASTERN, SOUTHERN and SOUTH EASTERN Lines, which terminate, with HARPER CITY, LEAVENWORTH, ILLINOIS, CENTRAL MISSOURI and OMAHA, the commercial centers from which routes

EVERY LINE OF ROAD that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. The

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago owning track into Kansas, or which, by its own rail, quickens the people above named. No TRANSFER BY CARROLL. NO RAILROAD THROUGH CHANGES. No transfer of passengers or baggage cars, as every passenger car is carried in passing train and equipped coaches, upon East Kansas Route.

First class of superior transportation. Pullman PALACE OBSERVATION CARS, and our own world-renowned Dining CARS, upon which the best service of unsurpassed excellence, as the basis of our superiority. The only line with the finest food for breakfast, dinner and supper.

Through Cars between Chicago, Peoria, Milwaukee and Omaha, with sleeping and dining accommodations. Points of intermediate with other roads.

For rates and times of this service see low as elsewhere, by the routes and below a list of the country: Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Colorado, Oregon, Washington Territory, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

All freight arrangements regarding freights to any other line, and below a list of the country: Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Colorado, Oregon, Washington Territory, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN,
Vice President and Gen. Manager, Chicago. Gen. Tel. and Pass Agent, Chicago.

tidings from the field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department.
Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Greenland, W. Va., Oct. 12, 1881.

Our Love-feast at Knobly transported Oct. 8 and 7. Brethren D. B. Arnold, Geo. S. Arnold and N. Leschman were present. May we all strive to put to practice the good things we learned.

W. M. LYON.

Olathe, Kan., 6, 1881.

Love-feast in Douglas Co., passed off pleasantly and was well attended. There were 275 members and 20 ministers present. Brethren that desire homes in the West, and are faithful, should stop at Olathe, and take a look at the country.

Isaac H. CRIST.

Platt Valley church, Neb., Oct. 7.

Our Love feast is past. Truly it was a time of rejoicing. Though there were no additions, good impressions were made. The tent which was added to the meeting-house, was crowded, Joseph Brubaker of Fillmore Co., and John Suowmberger, of York Co., labored for us, J. P. MOOMAW.

Macksburg, Iowa.

The undersigned contemplates visiting the valley of Virginia, the coming Winter. Will start about the middle of November, passing over the C. B. & O. R. R. to Chicago, C. L. & C. R. R. to Cincinnati; thence B. & O. R. R. May possibly go to Baltimore before going into the valley of Va.—Any of the Brethren along the lines, above mentioned, desiring ministerial aid, should address me by postal.

M. MYERS.

Burr Oak, Kan., Oct. 16.

Our feast came of Sept. 24 and 25, and passed off very pleasantly. Bro. Lemuel Hillery was with us, and very ably held forth the 'Word of Life' ministry, and two chosen to the deacon's office.

A. W. AUSTIN.

South English, Iowa, Oct. 19, 1881.

Our Communion meeting is now in the past. A large number of members from adjoining churches were present. Bro. George S. Wine was elected and installed into the ministry.

PETER BROWER.

Wabash, Ind., Oct. 18th.

Had our Love-feast in the Wabash church Oct. 15 and 16. Brethren Baker and Tinkle from Marion, Bro. John P. Wolf, of Peru, and Bro. J. W. Southward were present and administered us in the way of the Lord. The church is in love and union.

N. F. ANNOLD.

Mexico, Ind., Oct. 17.

The Mexico church held its Communion meeting Oct. 8 and 9. Had a good and interesting meeting. Three received by baptism the week previous to meeting, two on the first day of meeting and three on the second day, and one since. During the past six months thirty-two have come out on the Lord's side and been added to the fold by baptism.

L. D. WITZER.

Arcasum, Ohio, Oct. 15.

The Communion of the Ludlow and Painter Creek church was held Oct. 12. A large concourse of people were present, and about three hundred members communed. Meeting next time to a large audience.

SILAS GILBERT.

Peabody, Kansas.

To the Churches of the Southern District of Kansas: This is to inform you that I have resigned the office of Treasurer of the Missionary Cause of the Southern District of Kansas. Hereafter all money for such purposes must be sent to J. H.

Bashore, Peabody, Marion County, Kansas, who is appointed in my stead and will report for all money received.

H. SHUMBER.

Mulberry Grove, Ill., Oct. 8th.

D. B. Sturgis and wife are visiting friends here. They just returned from District-meeting, where everything passed off pleasantly. Our series of meetings will commence on the evening of November 26th, and will be conducted by Martin McClure, of Morrisville, Ill. The Brethren here have decided to hold a Communion meeting in the Hurricane Creek church on the 28th. Plenty of rain now.

J. P. LILLIION.

Covington, Ohio, Oct. 17.

Our Communion closed this morning. It truly was a feast of love, and everything passed off in order. One soul united with the saints. Our dear brother and elder Mohler was prevented from being with us on account of sickness, but we are glad to know that he is better now. We hope the church will be aroused to doubling her diligence and finally overcome all trials.

A. S. ROSENBERGER.

Prairie City, Ill., Oct. 15.

Our Love-feast in Spring Run church is past. It was held in our new meeting-house. D. B. Gibson, Jacob Negly and other ministering brethren were present. One received by baptism. Expect to finish painting and to dedicate our meeting-house soon, and invite ministering brethren to be with us.

JOHN POOL.

Cerro Gordo, Ill., Oct. 14.

I collected $22.90 at our District-meeting in Fulton Co., to pay rent for a hall in St. Louis, for the Brethren to preach in. The Brethren at the Communion meeting in Hudson paid $4.60 to pay rent, making in all, $28.50. As we pay $12.50 a month, we have the Rest of $16.00.

JOHN METZGER.

Hepler, Ont., Can., Oct. 14.

I am well. Thank God for his mercy. I am still on the wing in Canada. I find the people very kind. Our meetings are well attended. Good attention, which, we hope, will result in much good. I am passing through the country, preaching wherever there is an opportunity. My colleague, Bro. D. Rupe, of Ind., took sick and went home. Thus I am alone, yet not alone—the Lord is with me. My address will be Scenery Hill, Pa., after November. Correspondents will address me there.

JOHN WIELE.

Matrimonial.

ATHERTON—MILLER.—At the residence of Bro. N. W. Miller, Oct. 8th, by the undersigned, Bro. John S. Atherton, of Pawnee Co., Neb., and sister Mary A. Miller, of Norton Co., Kan.

N. C. WORKMAN.

HAMILTON—CROLL.—At the residence of Bro. John Brubaker, Oct. 11, 1881, by the undersigned, Bro. Hiel Hamilton, of Howard Co., Ind., to sister Mary Croll, of Carroll Co., Ind.

DANIEL BOCK.

Fallen Asleep.

Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord.—REV. 14: 13.

HOUSEL.—Oct. 16, 1881, John K. House, of Le-ran township, Stephenson Co., Ill., aged 81 years, 6 months and 20 days.

S. MATTES.

HILL.—Near Dresden, Poweshiek Co., Iowa, Oct. 2nd, Isaac Hill, aged 73 years, 8 months and 23 days. Funeral occasion improved by Bro. S. P. Miller from the words. Prepare to meet thy God.

JESTINA MILLER.

DOW.—In the Bear Creek church, Christian Co., Ill., Louvena, daughter of Bro. and sister Dow, aged 6 years, 6 months and 4 days. Died Oct. 6, 1881, of typhoid fever.

Funeral services by M. J. McClure and A. S. Leet and B. B. Whitmer, from Mark 10: 14, to a large congregation of sympathizing friends.

W. H. MILLER.

FLORENCE.—Of diphtheria, in the Log Creek congregation, Mo., Sept. 12, 1881, Frisella Florence, twin-daughter of Eld. C. C. & S. A. Root, aged 3 years, less 18 days.

Z. HENRICKS.

SNIDER.—Of lung fever, March 21st, 1881, sister Nancy, wife of Bro. Joseph Snider, aged 70 years, 11 months and 16 days.

MACK.—In the Jonathan's Creek church, Ohio, of cancer in the face, Sept. 20th, Bro. Alexander Mack, aged 74 years, 5 months and 18 days.

He was a descendant of old Alexander Mack, the starter of our fraternity and a brother of Bro. Jacob Mack, the minister. He leaves but one child, a son, who is also in the church.

SWICK.—In the same church, Bro. James Swick, Oct. 4, aged 20 years, 2 months and 25 days.

W. A. NOLDT.

YODER.—Sept. 6, 1881, near Appanoose, Elkhardt Co., Ind., of Dropsy, Christian Yoder, aged 56 years, 7 months and 14 days.

He was a member of the Omaha church. Funeral by J. Smooke and writer.

JACKSON.—Also, Sept. 11, 1881, Birdie Clayton, son of friend John and Barbara Jackson, aged 1 year, 8 months and 21 days.

Bro. Geo. Coe, aged 32 years and 4 months. Funeral discourse by writer.

DANIEL WYKONO.

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

Oct. 29, at 10 A. M., Lafayette church, Allen Co., Pa.

Oct. 29, at 10 A. M., Swan Waterloo church, Iowa.
Oct. 29, at 4 P. M., South Creek church, Fulton co., Ohio.

Oct. 29 and 30, Concord church, Adams co., Ill., 5 miles south of Clayton.

Oct. 29 and 30, Osawkie church, Jefferson co., Kan.

Oct. 29 and 30, Beaver Run, Mineral co., W. Va.

Oct. 29 and 30, at 4 P. M., Salem, Marion co., Ill.

Oct. 30, Beaver Creek church, York Co., Neb., at the house Jacob Zern, 8 miles south and 5 miles west of the town of York. Meeting to commence on the 25th.

Nov. 1 and 2, Mill Creek church, near Liberty, Ill.

Nov. 1, at 2 P. M., Bachelor Run church, Carroll Co., Ind. Those coming by R. R., should stop off at Flora.

Nov. 6, at 2 P. M., at Farragut, Fremont Co., Ia.

Nov. 6, Milline church, Platt co., I.

Nov. 6 and 6, at 2 P. M., Neosho church, Neosho Co., Kan.

Nov. 5 and 6, at 2 P. M., Big Creek congregation, Richland Co., Ill. Conveyance at Parkersburg, by informing J. M. Forney.

Nov. 12, at 10 A. M., Mt. Edna church, Adams Co., Iowa.

DISTRICT-MEETINGS.

Nov. 4, 5 and 6, in Knob Creek church, Tenn.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

31 10
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6. Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Nov. 1, 1881.

No. 42.

Editorial Items.

Put away all bitterness and wrath.

FLEE from anger, and clamor, and malice and railing.

A good religious paper is a valuable education in the family.

Be kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another.

BROTHER, neglect not the gift that is in thee, but stir it up to the saving of souls.

OUR visitors were quite numerous last week. Well, they were welcomed and ever will be.

DAVID C. HARDMAN was recently chosen to the ministry in the Hamilton church, Missouri.

BRO. E. D. KINDIG, of Mt. Vernon, Va., reports in Primitive Christian twenty-two baptisms.

THERE is a difference between the "foolishness of preaching," and the preaching of foolishness.

READ the interesting letter from China found in this paper. Hope we may be treated to more such letters.

BRO. J. C. LUBMAN, of Franklin Grove, Ill., has gone to Pennsylvania to spend several weeks among friends.

BRO. SHARP went over to the Rock River church the 22nd of October and spent Sunday with the Brethren there.

THE Normal training class in the college, conducted by brother Sharp is one of the interesting things of the school.

TWO baptisms and one ordained in Turkey Creek church, Indiana. The Lord is richly blessing that church.

THE Savior was a great Emancipator. He liberated the whole world from sin, and gave every man perfect liberty!

THE editor of the B. AT W. expects to visit the Minnesota field the latter part of November. The Lord has a people there.

BRETHREN C. C. ROOT and W. B. SELL are out in the Northern Missouri missionary field, telling the people how to be saved.

FRATERS were held in all the congregations in Northern Illinois this Fall but two, and it rained more or less at nearly every meeting.

BRO. JOHN ANGLEMEYER has been chosen overseer of the Yellow Creek church, Indiana in place of his who went out from the rock.

THE Hopewell church, Pa., held a Love-feast on the 7th of October. One added by baptism. Alaburn Steel was chosen deacon.

MR. JOHN T. RAY, Superintendent of schools of this county, gave us a pleasant call the 25th. He held a public examination here that day.

THE Gospel condemns us when we turn to wit to drive away madness. We should learn that "Vital wits are sure to madness near allied,

And thin partitions do their bounds divide."

BRO. YOUNT, of Naperville was with us last Thursday night. He attended the Feast and seemed to enjoy himself among the saints here.

THE three boys who wrecked the train near Laporte, Iowa, for the purpose of robbing it, have been captured. They are all under twenty-one.

BRO. ENOCH EBY conducted the Chapel services at the College last Friday morning. He also attended the Feast and enjoyed the Christian associations.

HAVE you received a Prospectus? If not, and you desire to get up a club for the B. AT W., please send for one. An agent wanted in each church.

NOW that the evenings are growing longer, every one should arrange for himself a systematic course of reading. Winter is another name for success.

BRO. WM. HINKLE, of LeMars, called at the office last Thursday morning. He has been quite unwell for some months, but seems in good health just now.

DO not be afraid of the waste basket in our office; but send us your soul-inspiring contributions. You are sure to miss the basket if you write in the Lord.

THE following inscription may yet be seen upon the front of the house in which JOHN KNOX lived in Edinburgh: "Lafe God above all, and ye Nychtbour as yeif."

BRO. SHARP has found a good thing in the Cassel Library on Foot-washing. He is translating it from the German into English. It will be published in tract form.

IN the Eagle Creek, Ohio, church, October 22nd, A. J. BONGHAM and JOHN R. SPAETH were elected ministers, and JOHN TOMSHAW and JOHN DUSHONG were chosen deacons.

THE editor left on the morning of the 26th ult., for several days' sojourn in Central Illinois. He has gone after his wife who has been in Christian county the past three weeks.

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE, Secretary of State, has been requested to institute an inquiry for brother STEIN. It is hoped something may soon be received concerning him. We are extremely solicitous for his welfare.

IT commenced raining soon after the close of the exercises at our Feast, Thursday evening and continued all night, thus rendering the after-part of the meeting more unpleasant than what it otherwise would have been.

A CARD just received from Dunkirk, Ohio, informs us that BRO. S. T. BOSSMANN is improving so as to be able to sit up in bed and eat his meals. His appetite is also getting quite good. This will be good news to his many friends.

THERE is more danger of us, as a people, suffering on account of the love of money, of the world, and the waste of means in ways that do no good, than by liberal contributions to preach the Gospel and disseminate tracts and papers.

OUR Feast, last Thursday and Friday, was largely attended, these being members present from nearly all the congregations in Northern Illinois, rendering the meeting one of special rejoicing and edification. A more harmonious and lovely meeting we have seldom seen. The ministerial force was large, and the Word preached had a good impression. Brother Enoch Eby officiated.

BRO. M. V. SWARD now of Maysville, Colorado, in tends to spend the Winter in Pueblo, Colo., where his family will join him this Fall. He was for several years pressman of B. AT W. We wish him success in his search for silver.

BRO. JOHN WISE is still in Canada. He preached seven sermons at Hesper, and then journeyed to Fox-wich. Why not stay at one place until a church is built up, or the people turn you out? Ministers need sticking qualities in new fields.

BRO. BALHAUGH writes: "I am delighted with brother Moore's Weekly Reviews. There is not a department in your paper that requires closer working with Christ to fill it honestly and creditably. He occupies a part where all that is highest and best in him may find free scope."

A BROTHER writes as follows: "Change the paper from— to—. The cause is, some persons, we think, take the paper out of the office and do not deliver it, but keep it for their own use." Perhaps others might investigate in the same direction, and find the reason of the non-appearance of their papers.

BRETHREN having correspondence with Geo. Meyers, Wades Branch, Miami county, Kan., as Secretary of the Miami Board of the South— as, will please direct their letters to Jess— at Anderson county, Kansas, who will— of the place brother Myers while he is absent in the East.

IT is strange that an editor can strike at error all around so long as he misses some of the wrings of his contemporaries; but when he happens to point out an error in one of these, he is set down as quarrelsome. It is about time that the people shall ever, come from where it will; and accept truths even if it comes from Balsam's donkey.

BRO. B. F. MOONMAN writes. "We are having a fine series of Communion meetings, for two months, one every week within a day's travel on horseback. More harmony and love I have never seen in this district. Secession has not so much as been named in my hearing. We have no need of the Miami Valley elders to enlighten us. May the Lord grant that peace and union among us may abound more and more."

WE do not wish to be understood in our address to our readers as disparaging in the least any of our periodicals. We appreciate the talent, the wisdom, the ability and the discrimination of our fellow-workers in the field of periodical literature. The amount of work to be done—the extent of the field to be cultivated—the momentous themes of heaven, are too vast and important to permit us to be drawn aside to vain jangling. The B. AT W. must press on towards the mark of the price of the high calling.

ON motion of brother Joseph Fitzwater, a very cordial invitation to take part in the subsequent sessions, was extended to all Sunday-school workers.— Primitive Christian.

THIS motion was made at the S. S. Convention held with the Brethren at Green Tree, Pa., Aug. 21. It is doubted by many whether S. S. Conventions are profitable to the cause, and if those out of the Brethren are to be taken into the meetings and given license to shape the work, then there can be no doubt as to their utility as aids to Sunday-school work. It is to be hoped our brethren will exercise wisdom in their efforts to study methods of teaching.

ON motion of brother Joseph Fitzwater, a very cordial invitation to take part in the subsequent sessions, was extended to all Sunday-school workers.— Primitive Christian.

THIS motion was made at the S. S. Convention held with the Brethren at Green Tree, Pa., Aug. 21. It is doubted by many whether S. S. Conventions are profitable to the cause, and if those out of the Brethren are to be taken into the meetings and given license to shape the work, then there can be no doubt as to their utility as aids to Sunday-school work. It is to be hoped our brethren will exercise wisdom in their efforts to study methods of teaching.

ON motion of brother Joseph Fitzwater, a very cordial invitation to take part in the subsequent sessions, was extended to all Sunday-school workers.— Primitive Christian.

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

"MY LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE —MY HOME ON THE ROLL- ING DEEP."

BY GEO. D. ZOLLERS.

NUMBER I.

In the prime of my life I wandered from home
About eighteen years ago,
To sail on the sea where the proud waves foam,
And the winds in their fury blow,
And soon I was ploughing the wide-rolling deep,
Perchance to return never more.
I tell you my friends it will make a boy weep,
In his last lingering look at the shore.
The golden sun set 'neath the far-welling tide,
And the dark shades of night soon came on While the billows kept beating the ship on her side,
And I kept a thinking of home.
And a landsman at best is awkward at sea
When the vessel is driven and tossed,
A surge from the windward will send him to lee,
And he's ever afraid he'll be lost.
Our lesson on ropes was a study so new,
And nautical phrases are strange.
Our articulations to the learned of the crew
Would doubtless admit of some change.
My ascension at first to the top of the mast;
How 't was 't the rope-ladder with care!
How deep sadness o'er my visage
As I tremblingly rose in the air.
In sorrow I sat on the fair ryal-yard;
My physical courage was low.
I thought, sure a mariner's life is hard;
'Tis a life of peril and woe,
Still onward we floated across the gulf-stream,
And steered toward the African shore,
While the beauties of homo on my vision did gleam,
As I pondered them o'er and o'er,
The scenes most terrific were down at Cape
Horn,
A point which all mariners dread—
Where ships have been wrecked 'mid the ravage of storm,
And the mighty waves roll o'er the dead.
Thirty-six lone days we were driven and tossed,
And baffled by tempest and wave.
Our peril was great and we feared we'd be lost
And interred in that watery grave.
One night on my watch in deep wonder I stood
'Mid the sweep of the tempest's wild roar,
When a huge foaming billow submerged like a flood,
The ship and myself sweeping o'er,
But the dreadful commotion abated at last,
And the sails were unfurled to the breeze,
And impressed with the hardships and woes
of the past,
We sailed from the confluent seas.
On the mighty Pacific we glided with ease,
And steered for a Chilian port.
The Oriole spread her white wings to the breeze,
No head-winds her progress to thwart.

For the Brethren at Work.

FEET-WASHING.

BY J. S. MOHLER.

NUMBER II.

"For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you."—John 13: 15.

THE arguments summed up are as follows:

1st. Christ commanded us to wash one another's feet as he had done.

2nd. He gave the example, as well as the precept.

3rd. The example of Feet-washing was given in Jerusalem, at night, in connection with a meal called supper. Deipnon.

4. This supper is distinguished from the Bethany supper (a) from the fact that it was observed on the first day of unleavened bread, while the Bethany supper was held previously, and (b) from the fact that there were none present at the "feet-washing supper," save the disciples, while at the Bethany supper numbers of others were present, and (c) from the fact that at this supper the disciples served—made ready, while at the Bethany supper, Martha served.

6. The traitor was revealed at the same supper at which Feet washing was instituted. "Ye are clean but not all," here Judas is meant.

7h. At the "Feet washing supper" Christ took bread, and blessed, and brake. Likewise also the cup, and thus instituted the communion, "Koinomia," thus forming a connected chain of the following links:

Link first. The disciples prepared a supper in an upper room at Jerusalem, around which Christ and the disciples were seated.

Link second. Christ arose from this supper, girded himself with a towel, washed and wiped the disciples' feet.

Link third. After washing the disciples' feet and sitting down again the traitor was revealed, by giving the sop, who immediately went out and thus did not commune.

Link fourth. As they were eating supper Christ took bread and brake, &c., &c., the communion.

Link fifth. "I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you." John 13: 15.

Link sixth. "If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them." John 13: 17.

Link seventh. "Blessed are they that do this commandment that they may have a right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city." Rev. 22: 14.

Another class of objectors say, "What good can Feet-washing do?" As much as to say "Thou shalt never wash my feet." We might with the same propriety say, "What good can baptism do? or a little wine in the communion?" It is not our duty to inquire, "Why has God required this or that at our hands?" In fact, it is wicked so to do. Our first enquiry ought to be "What wilt thou have me to do?" Then, as dear children, readily obey the form of doctrine delivered unto us, and we need not fear the consequences.

Still another class of objectors will say that Feet-washing was introduced to give us an idea of humility. Having gotten the idea, we need the precept that imparted the idea no longer. Upon the same hypothesis we might say that baptism imparts the idea of the burial of the old man of sin and the resurrection of the new man in Christ Jesus. The bread and wine in the communion imparts the idea of the sufferings and death of Christ. Having gotten the idea of these things we need baptism and the emblems of communion no longer; and thus we could discard every precept of the Gospel, and would have nothing left but ideas. The truth is, it is not the idea of humility we need so much as humility itself. A person may have his head full of ideas of humility, and be as proud as ever at heart. It is heart humility we need, and not head humility.

Another class says, "If our church would practice Feet-washing we would practice it, too." This argues that such persons respect their churches more than they do Christ; thus making flesh their arm—loving the praise of men more than the praise of God. It is the duty of every true child of God, when he cannot obey all the precepts of the Gospel in the church he belongs to, to leave such church, and unite with a church that practices all the precepts of Christ. This shows honesty, and a firm resolve to follow Christ through evil as well as good report.

While we may not be able to fully comprehend the design of feet-washing, yet we can see through the glass darkly, and in this life experience some of the good results flowing from obedience to this precept.

Feet washing is symbolical in its meaning. It symbolically means a spiritual cleansing. Christ said after he had washed the disciples' feet, "Ye are clean but not all; for he knew who should betray him." John 13: 10, 11. If this cleansing had been natural then the fault of not all being clean would have fallen upon Christ as he washed all their feet; but being symbolical of spiritual cleansing, and Judas having already betrayed Christ, feet-washing did not have the effect of spiritual cleansing upon his heart, as it would have had, had he been faithful to his Lord and Master. It is thus with all the precepts of the Gospel; they must be observed from proper motives, or they will only tend to our condemnation.

The idea of cleansing, as connected with Feet-washing, is a beautiful one. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. The members of the natural body do, in some sense, represent the members of the spiritual body; and the feet naturally being those members of our natural body that constantly come in contact with this earth, hence become defiled more than any other member of our body, and in this represent the spiritual body coming in contact with the ungodliness of this world; hence the cleansing of the feet or rather washing according to the precept of Jesus, well represents the cleansing of the spiritual body.

Feet-washing, also, has a tendency to humble us in the presence of each other and to produce a unanimity of sentiment, and brotherly and sisterly feeling among us. It unites us in fraternal feeling as members of the body of Christ. The rich condescend to wash and wipe the feet of their poorer brethren, and thus are humbled, while the poor feel honored in being thus served, and thus all distinction, so far as wealth or position is concerned, is removed, and all the members feel towards each other, as brethren and sisters in Christ; the brethren washing each other's feet and the sisters likewise; thus observing order in the house of the Lord, for God is a God of order.

While Feet washing has a tendency to humble us in the presence of each other, it also strengthens the ties of fraternal feeling; our attachment for each other is stronger in thus obeying the precepts of Jesus. It was not in vain that Christ said: "If ye know these things, HAPPY ARE YE IF YE DO THEM." No person can realize this happiness save those who obey Christ in all things. It is promised to no other.

Since we all desire happiness, and real happiness is based upon our obedience to Christ in all things, why not obey Christ in Feet washing, also, that our happiness in him might be complete? Peter felt unhappy when he saw that his refusal to have his feet washed would sever his relation to Christ. He instantly repented, and would even submit, not only to have his feet washed, but also his hands and head. Peter then experienced a degree of happiness in having his feet washed, that he could not have experienced otherwise. Peter's experience is our experience. If Peter was unhappy in disobedience, so are we. If Peter was happy when he obeyed so will we be. But the truth is, we have too many Peters who are saying by their actions, if not by words, "Thou shalt never wash my feet." That being the case, such need not expect to fare any better than Peter would, in case he had continued disobedient. Either of the other apostles would have met with the same reproof had they manifested the same spirit, and what is true of them is equally true of us. What was required to constitute a true follower of Christ in the days of our Savior is required now; for Christ says, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." The words of Jesus will remain firm to the end of the Christian dispensation.

May God give us all good, obedient hearts, willing minds, and Christian courage, so as not to be ashamed of Jesus or his words; that Jesus may confess us before the Father and the holy angels and not be ashamed of us.

Clinton, Henry Co., Mo.

For the Brethren at Work.

NOBLE WORK.

BY D. A. NOSHORS.

WE have just bid our beloved brethren J. W. Metzger and Daniel Bock farewell. They arrived at our place — 22nd and remained with us till the morning of the 30th. Preached eight discourses, and left many of their hearers thinking, no doubt, and that seriously on that all-important subject of the Christian religion. Some would-be Christians received many unwelcome reminders to their guilty conscience for not attending with a heart of love to the all things that God has commanded.

The attendance was reasonably good, and a majority seemed anxious to hear lessons of instructions from our Great Teacher, and listened attentively to the words spoken by our brethren. I am pleased to say that their preaching was of "the true metal having the right ring." The doctrine and commandment of men were, never mentioned. Their mission seemed to be far above the human isms of these times, and their whole theme was on the teachings of our Savior and the holy apostles of the Lamb.

The object of their labors was to instruct their hearers what to believe and how live in order to gain a happy admittance into that rest prepared for the people of God.

There were no accessions to the church during our meetings, but we have reason to believe that the seed of the kingdom (the Word of God) has been sown into some good and honest hearts, and ere long will bring forth fruit to the honor and glory of God's great name. O that God would help as a brotherhood to imbibe more largely the good spirit and disposition of Christ our Redeemer, that we may be able, by his grace, to live in the discharge of every known duty and restrain ourselves from evil, sinful and excessive speaking and be led gently along the pathway of eternal life, and finally obtain that rest which is in reservation for God's dear children.

It matters not what we say about our humbleness and happy experience, we can never prove to the world that we have Christ in our hearts, unless we talk, act, and walk in harmony with his blessed teachings. Then dear brethren and sisters in these last days and perilous times, let us provoke and be provoked unto love and good works, for that is no true love which can be separated from good works. O may God help us to use all Gospel means to excite one another to love—yea love—for it is the spring and fountain of all good works.

Now a few words to those who resist the offered mercies of God, who will not accept the Gospel of grace which has been so kindly offered to you in all its fullness, but continue to trample God's holy law under your feet and crush out every holy principle and desire implanted in your mind, and force your way downward through the prayers and entreaties of your fathers, mothers and best friends on earth; but when that hopeless day shall close upon you and the shades of a dark and never ending night shall gather around you and as you stand trembling before God awaiting to hear him utter the awful words, "Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity, I never knew you." You can then with sorrow look back and think of the many Gospel warnings and invitations of mercy which you passed by unheeded and neglected, but now the door of mercy is closed upon you. No one to blame but yourself. Jesus died for you. He was ever ready to bring your case before the Father and have it adjusted, if you would only have placed it into his hands, but this you refused to do, and rejected Christ your best friend, and accepted Satan your vilest enemy and now you must abide the result; "having sown to the wind you must reap the fierceness of the whirlwind, having sown to the flesh your harvest must be corruption." Dear sinner, Satan promises you nothing in this life, and will pay you for your labors in eternal ruin in the life to come.

In conclusion will tender our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the brethren and sisters of the Southern District of Indiana for the love and kindness that you have shown towards us in sending missionaries to labor with us, for we always meet them with joy and gladness, and feel built up and strengthened in the Master's cause by their good counsel and holy admonitions; but it fills our hearts with sorrow when the time comes for us to bid them farewell.

Shoals, Ind.

For the Brethren at Work:

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

BY JAMES EVANS.

IN our last we made a few notes of our visit to Whitesville, Andrew county, Mo., to attend the D. M. We forgot to say that two young persons, a brother and sister, were added to the church while we were there. We feel interested in such, and trust that they have fully given their hearts to the Lord who has bought them and who is now their Lord and Master.

After preaching three discourses at Whitesville, we proceeded to Honey Creek, Nodaway county, to attend their Love-feast. We rode through a prairie country destitute of trees except along the windings of Platte river and other streams. These extensive prairies are nearly all occupied and enclosed with wire fences. The soil is fertile, and in course of time this will be a rich country as far as we could see.

We reached brother Fishers', Thursday evening, the 15th, and found brethren and sisters from Gentry, Holt, and Harrison counties. We found them an affectionate, devoted class of people. We saw few things among them to disapprove of. We saw only two sisters who inhaled the smoke of the abominable weed, but these did not belong to Honey Creek. We would here say a word to the brethren and sisters who smoke the weed: if necessity or lust compel you to use it, why compel us, who are sickened by it, to inhale what you eject from your mouth. We are sometimes forced to retire from the room where a brother or sister is smoking in order to avoid the stifling, sickening odor of the weed. If such brethren or sisters must smoke, do not poison the pure air we love so well.

We enjoyed the Feast much. There we again met old brother John Forney, and for two evenings we enjoyed his company. We listened to the rich recitals of his experience as a minister of the Gospel. He has a happy way of making an opponent confess the truth. Honey Creek enjoys the presence and labors of Bro. Wm. Sell, an earnest, intelligent minister of the Word. The church there deserves his labors. They have given substantial proof that they want a zealous minister to settle among them. How many churches lose the labors of an intelligent minister just because they are unwilling to aid him a little to remain among them. But the loss of some is the gain of others; so it has proved at Honey Creek. A few years ago sister Fisher was alone here, but her large heart yearned for others, and so she labored to bring the Gospel to her neighbors. Her own example was constant preaching. When the brethren came to preach, they visited the poor as well as the rich, and soon a goodly number became obedient to the faith. Two years ago she was rewarded by seeing her husband accept the ancient Gospel. To his praise be it said, from the beginning he was kind and courteous to the Brethren.

The Love-feast was held under a tent in brother Fisher's yard. The day was cold, still when the tent was packed we were not uncomfortable. We had good order, good speaking, and the Lord was with us. We saw everything in order. During the whole series of meetings, from Thursday to Sunday evening, we saw every sister, young as well as old, wear the plain cap.

We had snow on Friday which covered the ground.

Had good audiences from Saturday till Sunday. The preaching brethren left on Saturday, and so the labor fell on us. Our efficiency to speak was much impaired by a severe cold. Sunday forenoon we discoursed on the Commission, in which we examined the evidences, witnesses pro and con for the three-fold action of baptism. We trust good was done. We may some time present our readers with the substance of our discourse.

We left this kind people with regret; but hope to see them again. There is work there for another minister, as Brother Sell has to visit four congregations in three different counties. The Brethren in Gentry county need a resident minister among them.

We returned homeward with brother Daniel Glick of Andrew Co. Next day we rode forty miles with brother John Orr, brother of our zealous brother E. A. Orr, who is a good preacher and teacher of the youth. We there learned for the first time of the sudden death of sister Lulu Shoemaker, whose death has saddened so many hearts. But we trust she sleeps in Jesus. Blessed sleep! She is not dead, but sleeps, and will be raised up at the last day.

For the Brethren at Work.

FROM CHINA.

[We take the following from a letter written to brother Moore by a sister of J. W. Stein, a missionary in China.—Ed.]

BUT now I want to tell you something about the women and my work among them, with the hope that my letter may not prove altogether uninteresting. But my heart is sad whenever I think of the poor, perishing women of China. Most of them are very ignorant, and we cannot wonder that they are superstitious. Oh! that the light of the Gospel of God's dear son could shine in their hearts leading them in the way of truth! We do all we can to teach them, but there are so few of us and so many of them that the work moves on slowly, yet we rejoice that we do see some of the fruits of our labor. The women can only be reached by visiting their homes. When we do this for the purpose of reading and talking to them of our dear Savior, they generally receive us kindly and often say that it is good to hear, but frequently we find it hard to get them to believe that for them Christ died. They sometimes say that He is the foreigners' God, not theirs. But how our hearts rejoice when one grasps the idea that for her the Savior suffered, and giving up idol worship, trusts her all to Him! Some of our church members seem to live very near the cross, and feast upon heavenly things. This fact is very encouraging to us. It is impossible to witness the worship of the heathens without many heart pangs. I have seen a poor woman, evidently in great distress, stand fronting an idol, and after placing her hands together in front of her, make three bows, and then falling prostrate strike her head three times on the earth. She went through with this three different times and then left still uncomfortable, of course, and seemingly almost heart-broken. How my heart yearned to tell her of the dear Jesus and of his ability to help, but I could not even speak to her then!

Of course the heathen know nothing of our Sabbath. They carry on their work from day to day never thinking of a holy day of rest. As we pass along the narrow streets on Sunday on our way to our chapel, we find them thronged with burden bearers, and the shops are all open and every kind of trade going on. Though I witness it so often, each time I am grieved to think of the day of rest being thus violated. But when we get to our chapel, we find a goodly number of old men and women, young men and women, and small children assembled for a Sunday-school, to be taught God's Word. After the school, there is always a sermon. Sometimes our congregations are large. I think that one of the surest ways of doing good here is through our day schools. We have in Canton three schools for girls, one of them in my charge. They are taught by Christian women, and we do all in our power to win pupils to Christ. Many of the Chinese girls are remarkably intelligent, and I find my school very interesting. But I must now close.

S. E. STEIN.

Hong Kong, Sept. 8th.

For the Brethren at Work.

PREPARE THYSELF.

BY SUE L. THOMASSON.

"But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." Rom. 10: 14.

IN all the writings of the apostle Paul, he has evident proof of sound judgment and a talent for good reasoning, and has given us directions how we should receive the weak, and not to judge one another in respect to things doubtful and indifferent; but to consider their relation and accountableness to Christ, and to be cautious in dealing with one another. Remember charity, humility, and self-denial. "Speak not evil one of another brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. There is one lawgiver, who is able to save and destroy: who art thou that judgest another?" James 4: 11, 12. It would be very imprudent for a man to quit his station as a subject of God and usurp the authority as a lawgiver and judge, and determine what ought to be commanded and prescribe to men their rules and pass sentence on all that did not obey, as if they were the competitors of Christ, and denounce sentence against their brethren according to their own judgment; for it is written, "As I live saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me and every tongue shall confess to God;" so every one shall give an account of himself to God. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace and things wherewith one may edify another. I think Christians should enlarge their candor beyond such narrow limits, and then schisms could not come in and disgrace the church where, in her best friends are made to grieve, and sinners rejoice. Always keep in Gospel bounds, and strive together in prayer for one another and for Christ's sake, and try to keep the unity of the spirit in the bonds of peace, laying aside prejudices and disputes, and receiving one another as brethren, not regarding the distinction of Jew or Gentile.

Though our best desires are often met with hindrances and many prayers unanswered, yet we should not be discouraged. We should consider the shortness of this life, and the never-ending eternity that is before us. How dreadful it will be to meet our heart-searching Judge if we are unprepared. 2 Pet. 3: 10-13 gives us a brief sketch of that awful day which will suddenly come upon us when not expected, and which will be the most surprising and destructive to those unprepared at the most important event. The heavens and earth and all the inhabitants therein will pass away with a great noise; thunderings and earthquakes and all convulsions of nature, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, and all the earth shall constitute one vast conflagration. Then what manner of persons ought we to be!—all holy conversation and godliness. Surely Christians should not lay up treasures on earth or set their affections on things below; but be prepared for that catastrophe, and lay aside all envy, malice, wrath and strife. Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves. Do all things without murmurings and disputings, that ye may be blameless sons of God.

PATSONS, KAN.

God made the world to be trampled upon. Let us seek to keep it where he put it, beneath our feet.

It is as easy to be trusted as to be false, and it is far more satisfactory. A deceitful life is a perpetual disappointment.

TRUTH is ever forbearing, courting inquiry, while error is never forbearing and intolerant of investigation.

How narrow our soul becomes when absorbed in any present good or ill. It is only the thought of the future that makes them great.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER V.

WE now pass Coblenz, a city dating back nine years B. C., and surrounded by powerful fortifications. Its situation is most lovely, being at the confluence of two rivers, the Rhine and Moselle. It is here that the sparkling Moselle and Hock wines are made. The mountain sides are covered with vineyards, terrace rising above terrace, where we see men and women pruning and cultivating the vines, which are kept low and trained to the stake. Little steps are cut in the rock, leading from terrace to terrace, by which the vine-growers pass up and down the steep mountain sides. Remains of ancient walls, old ruined castles, old churches, are passed, all of which have a history that, should I stop to write of, would exceed the limits allowed me, and I only mention some particular ones, which have either a more commanding view or romantic history.

We come to the convent of Bernhoben, above which stand the ruins of two castles, once inhabited by the brothers Conrad and Heinrich von Boppard, who both loved a foster-sister, Hildegarde. Heinrich, with generous impulse, departed on the crusade, to leave his brother in possession of the beautiful foster-sister. Conrad, hearing of the brave exploits of his brother, pined to join him, and became cold and incontinent to his sister. He soon left for the wars, leaving Hildegarde to brood and pine over the loss of her lover; but he soon returned with a young and beautiful Grecian bride. Hildegarde shot herself up in one of the loneliest chambers of the castle. Late one night a stranger-knight craved shelter, who proved to be Heinrich, and after hearing of the wrongs of his sister, challenged his brother to mortal combat. Hildegarde insisted on a reconciliation; and soon after, Conrad's wife proving unfaithful, the two brothers retired to these two castles, spending their lives in harmony and in doing good to those around them. Soon after passing these old castles we come to a high bluff, or rock on each side of the river, called Lorelei, four hundred and fifty feet high. There is an old romance connected with these rocks. A siren, who dwelt on the top, used to lure fishermen and sailors to her abode, then dash them down headlong to destruction. The echo here is wonderful, being repeated several times. The officers of the steamer fired several cannons, that we might hear the reverberations, which were very fine. Ruin after ruin is passed, now of the castles, now of monasteries and churches, until we grow weary of so much sight-seeing, and leave the remainder of the castles and ruins until we shall come again. We sit very quietly until we reach "Bingen, fair Bingen on the Rhine."

Here our enthusiasm bursts out again, and all are on their feet, promending the deck or looking over the rail, drinking in the wonderful beauty of fair Bingen. It is situated at the confluence of the Nahe and the Rhine, and contains about 7,000 inhabitants. On a hill above Bingen is situated the chapel of St. Roch, where, on the 16th of August, large numbers of pilgrims offer up their devotions. Above the chapel are ruins of an ancient castle, which lends a charming aspect to the city, as seen from the steamer, as we come in sight. Passing on, we come to the celebrated castle of Johannisberg, celebrated for its wines and owned by Prince Metternich. The grounds are covered with vineyards and the wines command a high price—from two to ten dollars per bottle. The extent of this vineyard is thirty-eight acres, and the proceeds amount to $40,000 dollars a year. There is a rival vineyard owned by the Duke of Nassau, and the product of these two vineyards, or the wine made, is sold at auction every year. After passing these vineyards, we settled down again very quietly and wait very patiently for the boat to land at Baebrich, where we shall take carriage for Wiesbaden, one of the Sratogas of Germany.

Wiesbaden is most delightfully situated in the midst of garden and orchards, and is a place of fashionable resort. The springs are of a high temperature. The principal one issues from the earth at a temperature of 155° Fahrenheit. It is an alkaline spring and not at all disagreeable in drinking. There is not much of interest to be seen, but the situation is lovely and the crowds of visitors so gay and pleasant, that we felt charmed as well as rested during our stay.

Our next visit was made to Frankfort on the Main, and one of the ancient cities of Germany. Charlemagne had a palace here, and a century later it became the commercial capital of Germany. It is the native place of the Rothschild family. We visited the locality where the great banker was born, where he commenced his business, and also one of his great banking houses. We went to the great cathedral, where all the emperors of Germany have been crowned, from Conrad I to Francis II, also to the house where Goethe was born, over the door of which is his father's coat of arms—three lyes. There is a fine statue of him in one of the squares, and a magnificent statue of Schiller, in bronze; and before the theatre stands a monumental statue, the subjects of which are in bas-relief and taken from the works of Goethe. On the Rose market is a monument to Gutenberg. The central figure, with the types in his left hand, is Gutenberg, on his left Faust, and on his right Schoeffer, and the figures are likenesses of celebrated printers. In the four niches are arms of the four towns, Venice, Mayence, Frankfort and Strasburg—where printing was first practiced.

We visited the Jewish quarter, and saw the old walls where formerly they were obliged to be locked in after sunset each night. Had we not known that we were to visit this quarter of the city, we should have known directly where we were by the peculiar physiognomy of the people on the streets. There is something about a Jew that marks him from other people. The chief characteristics are in their high cheek bones, prominent nose and thin, compressed lips, which, in the men particularly, gives a peculiarly miserly expression, that is unmistakable. No matter how different their faces, there is a family character that runs through the whole of them, women and children as well as men, and it seems in passing through these quarters as though we had suddenly entered another quarter of the globe. In our drives and walks we manage to economize time and strength, and therefore have an intelligent guide who takes us to every place of interest and explains its history or any traditions that may be attached to any locality or house that we care to visit. We were shown the house of Luther and the window from which he preached to the people. In going to it from the Jews' quarter, we passed through streets without any sidewalks, the houses six and seven stories high, and every story projecting out over the other, so that those living in the upper stories might reach out and shake hands with each other over the street below. At the corners of the houses are figures of men holding up the stories above them, making hideous faces at the weight, while the lower windows have iron gratings extending a foot or more into the street. Many of these buildings have a local history which our guide now and then would relate, of secret chambers and staircases, that inclined us strongly to enter and see; but our time was too short, and we were hurried off to the train that was to take us to Heidelberg, where we spent the Sabbath.

From the Religion Herald.

FOR MINISTERS ONLY.

SOME ministers, anxious to use great plainness of speech, suppose it must be done by scolding the people. An apostle recommends "speaking the truth in love," but these men overlook the words "in love" when they read the text. One of these ministers, after preaching a flagellating sermon, was approached by a brother and requested to preach from the text, "Lord, thou knowest all things: thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, 'Beat my sheep.'" "No, no!" said the pastor, "You are mistaken, my brother. He said, 'Feed my sheep.'" "Ah, did he?" said the old man, with a searching look into the pastor's face, "I thought maybe you read it, 'Beat my sheep!'" The pastor saw the point and reformed his practice. If the Sabbath congregation is small, it is just the way to keep it so, to berate those who come to the sanctuary. If only a few come to the prayer meeting, to lash them for the delinquency of the absentees, will effectually alienate them. It is better to throw the cudgel away, and feed well the sheep who come.

CHINESE MAXIMS.

LET every man sweep the snow before his own door, and not busy himself about the frost on his neighbor's tiles.

Great wealth comes by destiny; moderate wealth by industry.

The ripest fruit will not fall into your mouth.

The pleasure of doing good is the only one that does not wear out.

Dig a well before you are thirsty.

Water does not remain in the mountains, nor vengeance in a great mind.

An upright judge has more regard for justice than for men.

Home and Family.

MARY C. NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN. - EDITRESS

HOME RELIGION.

WE do not feel that we have the ability to bring forth all that is contained in the subject now before us. But perhaps in our weakness, by the help of God our Father, we may be able to present a few thoughts which may be of interest and also prove a blessing to some precious soul who, like myself, is seeking for all the light possible upon the "one thing needful," and which is the one thing neglected, in many homes of our land. O! could we wake up those who are asleep in regard to this great work which the Master has assigned to them to perform; we would gladly do so, even if we should be called to forfeit our life. A true home must be made, and it remains, dear reader, on your part, to make your home happy; and to do this you need religion, which is the very heart of home.

A true home cannot exist without religion, no more than a man can exist without a heart. But, you ask, What do you mean by religion? I will answer.

I mean by religion, not a system of opinions, nor a set of ceremonies; but an humble conviction of our ruined state of sin, the application of the soul to Christ as an all-sufficient Savior, and sincere endeavor to oppose sin and live into holiness. This is religion which the Holy Spirit teacheth and which the disciples of Jesus possessed. Again, it is for the mind to be enlightened so as to discover the holy character of God, to see our own deformity in the glass of his holy law, to receive Jesus as our teacher, our Lord, and to give up ourselves to be his forever.

This religion is Scriptural, it is rational, it is experimental, it is practical, it makes us holy and happy, reforms the manners and secures eternal bliss. Thus by a strict attendance to these several duties at home, all the inmates will grow up into that which everybody acknowledges to be genuine religion. It certainly is as necessary to cultivate as to sow. It is our privilege to bless the world by our influence; and in doing this we will bring joy to our own heart.

Parents should make straight paths for the feet of their children through shadow as well sunshine, and in order to do this should often go to their Savior with prayer, asking, "O! Lord teach us how we shall order the child and what we shall do unto him." After you have done this let your practice be in harmony with what you have asked for, and whatsoever God through his wisdom has revealed to you. Thus you will receive farther light and knowledge as you will have need. Remember and do not forget this "one thing," that it is only when we seek in our own lives to follow the teachings of Christ, that we can hope to form the character of our children after the Divine Pattern.

Fashion and custom exert a strong power over the young, and if the heads of families fail in their duty to instruct, counsel and restrain their children, they will accept the evil and turn from the good. It is the design of God that parents enter upon their work with energy and courage and great zeal, and prosecute it with fidelity. God will certainly give you wisdom and strength to accomplish whatever he has made it your duty to do. It is a fact that nothing but the power of God combined with human effort, can accomplish the work of ennobling and uplifting our race.

How necessary, then, that proper steps be taken at home to fortify the young heart with good principles. This important work certainly is sadly neglected because it requires labor and self-denial. But, we ask, will not the result compensate for the sacrifice made? It certainly will. Thus will you open a fountain whose streams shall be blessedness to the world, and secure to yourself a home where Jesus dwells.

M. C. N.

GEORGE MOORE OF LONDON.

IF you were to go to London, you would hear very much about George Moore, the great merchant-philanthropist, now dead. When he was very small, he hired himself out to the farmers, that he might earn some pocket-money. He got twelve cents a day at first, and when he was ten, he earned thirty-six cents a day. When he was thirteen he determined to go away from home and earn his own living. He was apprenticed for four years to a dry-goods dealer, and at the end of this time he had saved up $150.

Then he went to London, and for a whole week went from shop to shop, to as many as thirty a day, asking for a situation, and never once getting disheartened. At length he got a place for $50 a year, and began to attend night schools after his hard day's work was done.

After years of struggle, he was made a partner in a small shop. Here he worked sixteen hours a day for twelve years, and was up two nights a week. When he was thirty-four, he married the daughter of his first employer, a lady whom he had loved for years. He used to say: "I never could have surmounted hardships which I had to encounter but for the thought of her."

He became very rich, and devoted all his wealth to doing good. He helped the ragged school, established mothers' meetings for the poor, lectures for workmen, meetings for omnibus drivers at his own house, and was everywhere the friend of the poor and of all noble causes. He educated himself, so that he was welcomed into the best society. Work, and a fixed purpose to be somebody, made the poor little boy who earned only twelve cents a day an honored and famous man, heard of the world over.

(N.)

DO IT YOURSELF.

DO not ask the teacher or some classmate to solve that hard problem. Do it yourself. You had better let them eat your dinner than "do your sums" for you. It is in studying as in eating; he that does it, gets the benefit, not the one who sees it done. In almost every school, I would give more for what the teacher teaches, than for what the best scholar learns, simply because the teacher is compelled to solve all the hard problems and answer the questions of the lazy boys. Do not ask him to parse the difficult words and translate the hard sentences in Latin. Do it yourself. Never mind, though they look as dark as Egypt. Don't ask even a hint from anybody. Try again. Every trial increases your ability, and you will finally succeed by dint of the very wisdom and strength gained in the effort, even though at first the problem was beyond your skill.

It is the study, and not the answer, that rewards your pains. Look at that boy who has just succeeded after six hours of hard study, perhaps; how his large eye is lit up with a proud joy, as he marches to his class. He treads like a conqueror, and well he may. Last night, his lamp burned late, and this morning he waked at dawn. Once or twice he nearly gave up. He had tried his best thought; but a new thought strikes him, as he ponders over the last process. He tries once more, and succeeds; and now mark the air of conscious strength with which he pronounces his demonstration. His poor, weak school-mate who gave up that same problem after the first faint trial, now looks up to him with something of wonder, as to a superior being. And he is his superior. That problem lies there, a great gulf between those boys who yesterday stood side by side. They will never stand together as equals again. The boy that did it for himself has taken a stride upward, and, what is better still, has gained strength to take other and greater ones. The boy who waited to see others do it, has lost both strength and courage, and is already looking for some good excuse to give up school and study forever. The one is on the highway to a noble and masterly manhood; the other has already entered upon a life of defeat, disappointment and disgrace.—Selected.

THE TURNING POINT.

A YOUNG man Saturday night, having received his wages, found himself in possession of five dollars and twenty cents. He started down town to buy some food for his family, and on his way drifted into the dram-shop, where he was too frequent a visitor. One drink made him generous, and he was prepared to treat all hands, and an hour passed swiftly in the rough hilarity which graces (?) such places of resort. At length he, late in the evening, bethought himself it was time to go and called for his reckoning. The dramseller figured up the account and it was just five dollars and twenty cents. The young man handed out the five dollar note, saying to the landlord, "You'll have to trust me for the twenty cents;" and started for the market. Entering there he said to the market-man:

"What have you got that you can sell me for twenty cents? It's all the money I have, and I want to buy something for my family."

Avoid strife, especially in a church. If the cause cannot prosper in quietude, it certainly will not in an uproar. Tares are a trouble, but the rooting of them up may make worse trouble. Courage is a virtue, but a pugilistic tendency is not.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

NOVEMBER 1, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE, }
S. J. HARRISON. } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Brook Elgin, A. W. Bess, D. E. Bevilaker,
James Evans, S. S. Moring, J. J. Rosenberger,
David Vainman, C. H. Dunnington, J. W. Stowbrock.

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors. In order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not indulge in personalities and un courteous language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending eight names and $12.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send on the balance.

Money sent by Post-Office Orders, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be an our rate.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

ADDRESS TO OUR READERS.

HOW swiftly time wings its flight! Another year almost completed! Who can know your joys, your sorrows, your heart-burnings and tender-kindnesses since last we addressed you in particular? God knows them all! Nothing has been hid from him—yes nothing! No evil thought—no dishonorable act—no unkind word escaped his notice. O, what a mighty God is over us! On the other hand not a tear for Jesus, not a prayer for more grace, and greater humility, and closer walk with God has been unnoticed by our heavenly Father. For all this, let us praise God.

Doubtless during the year the BRETHREN AT WORK has carried to you some things that were not so edifying—some things that should have gone into the waste basket; but we feel that these things crept in rather through infirmities than by our desire to do wrong. The responsibilities of an editor are great. Few know the vast amount of labor connected with a printing office. Many hours, yea even nights, are spent in mental toil to bring out good things for you. As the farmer most toil hard, early and late, if he would secure good crops, so must the editor labor if he would produce a good paper. But alas! as the weeds creep up among the corn even in the best cultivated fields, so do they spring up in the best conducted papers; therefore please do not look for absolute perfection in the B. AT W.

We beseech you to deal gently with your agents. Next to the editors they bear a heavy burden. Often they will trust you and pay your paper in advance. Sometimes they must wait for years for their money. This is all wrong; and that which is wrong cannot be right. Think of this and have the $1.50 ready when the agent calls.

We do not feel to make any promises for 1882. Our past, with the errors out, we do not regret. Our position on the doctrine held forth by the church is well-known to you. Our love for the principle and order of the church, has not abated one jot or tittle. Though there be confusion in places, and members are being tried—severely tried; and though attempts are being made to draw away many on unfair and unfounded declarations, yet we feel to cling to the church we joined—the same organization—the same people, that hold forth the same ordinances, and walk in the same humble ways of the Lord.

It is desirable that the B. AT W. defend the Gospel. Of this we are not ashamed. But as determined as we are to defend the Gospel, just so determined are we to respect the exponents of the Gospel. To do this, we do not wish to be called upon to defame any brother's character—nor to belittle and destroy the members because they differ in their opinions. It is one thing to build up the church, and quite another thing to pull down. God forbid that we should in any manner help destroy the habitation of God's spirit—the church!

The correction of abuses in the "one body" belongs to the church. These abuses and disorders may be remedied by the local church, and if this fails to bring about union between members, an appeal may be had to all the churches—the Brotherhood. There can be no better system to bring about justice, if this system be kept out of the hands of cunning and scheming men. The B. AT W., is for the kind of government that grants the fairest trials to the accused and elevates Christian virtues. And it is not aversive to the discussion of the best methods of government, and how to remedy evils; but such discussions must be free from personal abuse and defamation of character. Our fraternity cannot adopt the manner of rabid and inconsiderate politicians and remain an undivided, compact body.

We want the year 1882 to be a year of good growth among the Brethren. We want to see them growing in love, in piety, in goodness, in benevolence, in charity, in righteousness. There are many ways this development may be sought. Love must run through all of them; therefore love, and loving, forbear.

"Let those love new who never loved before, Let those that always loved now love the more."

THE BRETHREN AT WORK does not contain the cuttings or clippings of other papers in the Brotherhood. It aims at originality; and its able, active and efficient corps of contributors keeps it fresh and edifying.

Owing to the increase in the cost of labor, material and other things which enter into our work, as well as to comply with the desire of many of our readers, the B. AT W., will be changed to the octavo form.

Each of you shall be given an almanac free. We feel that this is due you. You patiently bore with us when we moved to this place, and gave up one paper for our convenience. As it now is, we can give you only fifty numbers to complete this volume, and we feel that you are entitled to an almanac. We think you will appreciate this gift, and remember that we are willing to labor night and day to give you value for your money.

But there is a higher motive than the mere getting money. Money is a means to do good. With it men may accomplish much for truth and enlightenment. It is a desirable thing to have in order to do good with; and if we know ourselves as we should, this is our only desire.

God forbid that we should ask your money that it might be spent foolishly, and for the purchasing of that which is only for vain show. We feel that God is being honored by your paper. But unless God continues his grace, we can accomplish nothing for him. Then let your prayers in our behalf go up to God. Let your best wishes, your kind words, your sympathies, your hearty co-operation be given us, and then your paper will go forth laden with precious gems to gladden the hearts of God's redeemed and blood-washed children. Let us all pull together.—pray together, and love each other fervently, and then you will prosper, and joy will fill your hearts and the hearts of your children and friends.

We kindly and affectionately solicit each of you to remain a reader of the B. AT W., during 1882.

"A generous friendship no cold medium knows Burns with one love, with one resolute glow."

WHAT IS DOCTRINE?

Paul says, "All Scripture is given by inspiration and is profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, instruction," etc. Now what part is doctrine and what is not doctrine? I would like an explanation on this in B. AT W. I think there are a great many doctrinal sermons preached, but the texts are not found in the doctrine part of Scripture. I have tried to have some of what we call "wise men" to preach on this subject; but so far, have failed,

S. S. CRESSWELL.

Onbury, Pa.

DOCTRINE is something to be believed; a system of facts, commands and promises. Doctrine is a body of principles set forth for the government of those who believe it. Christ says, "If any man will do his (the Father's) will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—John 7: 17. Christ evidently meant that he who believeth the Gospel, obeys its commands, hopes for the promises, has the doctrine. A man must imitate principles; believe doctrine; obey precepts. Doctrine is the name of the thing as a whole; principles and command are only parts of the whole.

But doctrine is even more than principle and precept; it is also manner. "He taught them many things by parables and said unto them in his doctrine' Mark 4: 2. When he taught them by parable he taught them doctrine; for doctrine is not only what is taught, but also how it is taught. Therefore all Scripture is profitable for doctrine—that is, profitable both for teaching and for believing.

The entire Gospel is doctrine; for all of it is given to make a man wise unto salvation. The whole of it is profitable for reproof, for what part does not teach us of our helplessness without Jesus? It is profitable for correction; for what part aims not to make us straight? It is profitable for instruction in righteousness, for what can we know of true righteousness without it?

But sometimes man speaks of the doctrinal part. By that is meant, more particularly, the duties, the works we are to perform. The commands, precepts and examples of Christ which are required of his children, are sometimes called doctrine in a qualified sense. A man preaches a doctrinal sermon: what is meant by it? Is it not that he has declared some leading principles—some fundamental truths which it is to be grasped and imbibed? Christ came into the world. This is a fact to be believed. He died and arose—two facts to be believed. This is historical in character, and causes men to begin to believe in Christ. All this is doctrinal. Next, Christ gives commands; these are to be believed and obeyed. These commands are promises to be enjoyed or hoped for. These, too, are doctrine. Hence when a man preaches the facts to be believed, the commands to be obeyed, and the promises that are to be enjoyed, he preaches doctrine. And when he preaches these, he preaches the whole counsel of God.

OUR REFLECTOR.

Bro. J. S. Mohler's "Feet-washing" is as good as it well could be as far as yet published. It is needless for feet-washing quibblers to parody over the meaning of "ought." Paul says, "So ought men to love their wives." Eph. 5: 28. Now, if "ought" is not binding then a man can do as he pleases, about loving his wife. If our opponents do not want to accept this consequence then let them cease saying that "ought" is not binding. We shall watch the remainder of Bro. Mohler's article with considerable interest.

—Sister S. L. Layton's experience is told in a very straight-forward way; she has the gift of telling what she means without any polish whatever; but candidly, I am not much of a believer in dreams, nor do I think we ought to pray the Lord to take us out of the world. The good Master placed us here to work; let us therefore pray the Lord to spare our lives that we may do much good while living. The case terminated very happily with the praying sister and her husband, however.

—Bro. C. D. Hylton's "Friendly Admonition" is about the best thing in the paper. There are places where that thing ought to be read to the preachers and congregation. I wish every preacher in the Brotherhood would read it and then take the admonition to heart. Some ministers will appoint meeting for ten and then get to the place of meeting a half an hour late, and commence meeting about eleven. Now if this is not telling a "preacher falsehood" I confess I do not know how to tell one. Tell the people when you are going to commence meeting, and then be prompt to the minute. Promptness on the part of a minister will make the people prompt. The way meetings are sometimes conducted is an outrage on the cause. A long tedious exhortation before prayer; a long tedious prayer, telling the Lord things that he has no need of hearing; a long tedious sermon, prefaced with a long tedious apology; two or three tedious exhortations, and the sleepy congregation is glad the end has come at last. Now, why cannot ministers learn to make their meetings interesting and to the edification of the members especially? They can if they will.

—I get much refined food from many of Bro. Balsebaugh's articles; but his "Christian Pantheism" is as mysterious to me as some of the works of the Creator. There is something in the article for the lover of "deep things."

—The import of Bro. P. Brower's "Disobedience" is that our fathers and others should live up to them.

—Turning to the editorial page I learn that Bro. E., attended the feast at Hudson, Ill., Shannon and Naperville. I think it would be a little more interesting if he would tell, in a brief way, how he reaches places. This he can do without telling where he ate dinner, slept, etc., etc., etc., as many correspondents do. But you see he wants to teach those who write notes of travels to be brief and goes to the extreme in order to do it. Come Bro. E., be a little more Apostolic—Acts—and tell a little more about your getting from place to place; your readers will appreciate it.

—Bro. Harrison's "False Theory" exposes an error that is a little too common. I once believed and preached this theory, but finding it not according to the written Word was compelled to dismiss it. The theory is generally based on 1 Tim. 5: 24, 25, but this Scripture evidently refers to laying "hands suddenly on man." Vers 22.

—Bro. J. W. Southwood has a correct idea of "Progression" from a truly Bible stand-point; but the line of conduct to which the term is now being applied renders it very repulsive to sincere, consistent Bible students.

—Forty baptisms are reported in this number. Previously reported 123, making 163.—J. H. MOORE.

BUSINESS.

1. How many new subscribers must an agent obtain to get Problem of Human Life? JOHN DUNLAP.

Six new ones or eight old ones.

2. Do you allow commission on B. AT W. and Y. A., together ($1.75)? A. K.

Com. 1 mission, 10 per cent, allowed on B. AT W., at $1 50. Price on Y. A., 25 cts, so low we can allow no commission on that. See premiums to workers for Y. A., in No. 40, BROTHERN AT WORK.

2. Will those who subscribe after Jan. 1st, get an almanac? J. O.

Yes. Those who want the almanac before that time must subscribe before then. Almanac sent on receipt of name.

On another page of this issue a communication from Bro. Ely may be found. It sets forth the result of murmuring and complaining. It is very dangerous to be continually finding fault with the church. For a number of years in papers, and in Annual Meeting, there has been a spirit of murmuring—fault-finding with the advice and decisions of the Brotherhood; and it has come, to pass that this spirit has broken out, and causing much unhappiness. To drink of the spirit that murmurs will make murmurers and complainers. To drink of the spirit that defames character, and abuses the church, will make abusers and haters of the good and the pure. It is important what you think and read. O how many desire that all clamor, and malice, and evil speaking, and vain jangling shall be put away, and that brotherly love, kindness, long-suffering and gentle forbearance rule instead! Brother Ely weeps over the sad state of some churches; and hopes and prays that those who seem to be hasty in leaving the Brethren church, may consider what they are doing, and come to the wise conclusion to return to the fold. Brethren, pray for peace and love, and more, act peaceably and lovingly, and then God will be honored, and souls saved.

A LITTLE SERMON.—Sometimes I compare the trouble we have to undergo in the course of a year to a great bundle of fagots, far too large for us to lift. But God does not require us to carry the whole at once. He mercifully unties the bundles, and gives us one stick, which we are able to carry to-day, and then another which we are able to carry to-morrow, and so on. This we might easily manage if we would only take the burden appointed for us each day; but we choose to increase our trouble by carrying yesterday's stick over again to-day, and adding to-morrow's burden to our load before we are required to bear it.

EXPLANATION.

BY ENOCH PBY.

WE deem an explanation in order, yet not on that which some desire. That will be attended to at the proper time and place if the Lord will, viz: at the next Annual Meeting. We shall try to patiently hear all the unchristianous and unchristian language and epithets that are being or may be used against us by those whom we love and with whom we often worshipped and took sweet counsel, and for whom we shall continue to pray. Knowing that each one is not only accountable to God how he performs any part of church work, but also for the motive that prompts his labors, we act conscientiously in what we do, and fear not what man can say or do.

The attention of the reader is called to another feature of church work. A number of elders in conjunction with the Dry Creek Church, Linn county, Ia., at a church-meeting during the Summer were compelled to consider the conduct of several officials. Those officials were relieved of their offices by the church, and they then went with the Miami Valley Brethren. While these officials were deposed, one Jacob Metzger of Indiana, and Samuel Muselman of Iowa, went among them and organized them, with some other members who had gone out with them, into a separate body and they continue to hold meetings as before and tell the people they constitute the Brethren church. They thus misled some members and the people who do not know the church. I hope, however, they do not mislead intentionally. In view of this fact the elders present and the church thought it prudent that at some public meeting the people should be informed of the correct state of things—that those from whom fellowship has been withdrawn, have no authority to preach, baptize nor marry in the name of the Brethren or German Baptist church; and that as they have rejected the General Conference of the Brotherhood, they have no right neither by law nor the Gospel to the church property. I hope those who have rejected the counsel of the Annual Meeting or Brotherhood will think of this and make no more trouble.

From the Free Methodist.

CROSSED THE LINE.

THE hostile Indians in Arizona that have given the soldiers so much trouble, vibrate between Mexico and the United States, making it very difficult to punish them without crossing the boundary line. Their conduct reminds us of certain disorderly persons who create much disturbance in the kingdom of Christ. When you think they are fairly under your influence where you can manage them and do them good, suddenly you are surprised to find they have crossed the line into another government. "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal," so we cannot "whip the devil with his own instruments;" but must wait patiently until they "return for supplies." Such cases are very trying, but the will of the Lord is that we "resist not evil, but rather give place unto wrath." The judge of the whole earth has said, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay." Under such circumstances the words of Jesus are often helpful: "In your patience possess ye your souls."

For the Brethren at Work.

OUR DEAD.

BY D. E. CRIFE.

"Death is a short dark passage to a land of light."
"It is appointed unto man once to die."

ALL know that sooner or later death will be our lot, and yet when those we loved and cherished are called away, when all we held most dear, lies cold and senseless before us—a wreck of earthly life and hope—and the tender affections which had twined around the heart are rudely torn away, leaving it sore and bleeding, we are stricken with grief, and almost paralyzed with sorrow. The shadow of this great sorrow darkens the very light of day, so whose melancholy glare the joys and the hopes of this life seem but a bitter mockery, and existence a galling load along the long and lonely journey of life. However bright our hope may be, though we may feel confident that we will meet our loved and lost beyond the river, we know that in all the days that ever may dawn upon us, we must lead a separate existence, exiled from their society, unsoled by their friendship, unprotected by their love, and life never be what it has been.

We are not forbidden to weep. It is a consolation to know that our Savior wept at the grave of a friend; but we believe that he did not weep so much for his departed friend, whom he was about to raise to life again, as he wept for poor humanity; for the universal sorrow and anguish death brings to all mankind. He has not only tasted death for every man; but there is not a shade of sorrow, not a bitter pang, but what our Savior has tasted for us, and fully sympathizes with our every grief. We are not forsaken; but we are commanded not to "weep as those who have no hope;" but we should patiently bear our loss, nor exhibit such frantic sorrow that the world will believe our religious hope to be a sham.

Why should we weep as those who have no hope? It is a great consolation to believe and to know that after death we may enter a region of eternal rest—the rest that remaineth for the people of God—where the weary laborer who has toiled all his days, borne and suffered long; where the mother who amid annoying household cares, with tears and discouragements has labored early and late; where all the pious weary ones of earth, may find unending and unintermitting rest, and every bliss for which the soul so often yearns be there enjoyed to the full. But better still is the hope that on that Sabbath shore we may be re-united to those we long have mourned, forever with them to enjoy all the bliss of heaven, where there shall be no more weeping, pain and anguish, and where God shall wipe all tears from our eyes. Surely this hope is the blessing of all blessings.

At the death of a friend we still remember that what God does is well done, yet we may feel that He has cruelly bereft us, and when we are called upon to bow in prayer to give thanks to his adorable name, we can hardly see why we should thank him for such an affliction. Yea in our deepest sorrow we have as much to be thankful for as at any other time. We should be thankful that our lot was cast in a land of liberty and a time of peace, that the last hours of departed ones were cheered by that love which follows to the portals of the tomb, and that they may die without mocking tormentors around them, as our Savior died upon the cross, as many of his disciples have sealed their faith with their blood. We should be thankful that we are still in the land of the living; for no matter how dark and dreary life may seem, it is still infinitely better than the everlasting despair of the lost, where "the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched," which might be our doom; but while there is life, the door of mercy is yet open. And we should be very thankful for the plan of salvation which has given us the hope of meeting our loved and lost beyond this vale of tears, without which, life would be a torture and hope a delusion. The hope of immortality; to bereaved mourners, is a richer gem than all the wealth of kings could buy. Surely this is something for which we should be very grateful, and the more we are bereaved the more grateful we should be.

No sea is so wide, no desert so drear and no mountain so high, but man will traverse them in search of that glittering bauble—gold, when there is a treasure far richer than every gem and every metal that ever slumbered in earth's bosom, a treasure that is free to all, that will bless you in this life and in the life to come. Hasten, all ye, who have ever mourned for the dead, who have ever shuddered at the thought of death, come and possess yourselves of this treasure—salvation, the hope of heaven. It will brighten all your days, it will lighten all your sorrows, it will give peace to your dying hour. Then God's grace will be sufficient for you in every day and trial. In every affliction, in every bereavement, in every calamity, His grace will sustain you. The Lord has promised to be with his children in six trials, and in the seventh he would not forsake them. Glorify yourself!

North Manchester, Ind.

SLEEPERS.

Is there any way for keeping people from sleeping during religious services? Will those in the habit of sleeping give a remedy?

A GOOD minister that will preach the Gospel and not grant, is the best remedy I can think of. From a SISTER.

Those who sleep were to answer. Do you sleep during meeting, dear sister? If so, how do you know that any one grants?

It is well to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints; but we must not wrestle with flesh and blood, nor fight the Lord's battles with the devil's weapons. "The wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God."

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER. EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Leaden, Henry Co., Mo.

Will some one please explain 1. Cor. 14: 34, 35? Why are women to keep silence in the church?— Shall they not sing or pray or what shall they do? A BROTHER.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations? C. D. H.

Please explain the difference between a good man and a righteous man. JOHN Y. SNAVELLY.

Please give the true meaning of the word "closet." Matt. 6: 6. JOHN Y. SNAVELLY.

Please explain Matt. 24: 40, 41. It reads, "There shall be two in the field; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, the other left." LYDIA ZADNER.

Will some one explain the last part of the 6th verse of the 8th chapter of John: "But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground," etc. How could he write on the ground, when he was in the temple? A SISTER.

Why did Simon want the honor as mentioned in those verses—to gain honor, fame, money, or what? PETER BROWN.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in towns? ELIAS HANNISH.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE FIRST APPEARANCE OF THE NAZARENE.

RABBI NATHAN was a teacher in the synagogue of Gennesaret, situated on the western shore of Lake Tiberias or Sea of Galilee. Nicodemus had a princely mansion there. No part of Palestine was more fruitful and lovely than the vale of Gennesaret.

Now Rabbi Nathan was beloved by all. At this period religion was at a low ebb. The moral law was eclipsed by the ceremonial.

It was the custom of Nathan to assemble the congregation and read a portion of the Scripture, followed by prayer. The closing service was a hymn sung by the whole assembly in praise of the expected Savior,—coming of the Messiah was the great theme of conversation.

Rabbi Nathan had appointed a meeting in the season of the year, when the flowers bloom and the fields are clothed in grain, the congregation of the village of Gennesaret moved along the beautiful lake.

The morning was bright and lovely. After the reading, a hymn was sung and then the sacred music rose upon the air and its dying sound lingered among the valleys.

At this moment a stranger unknown, entered the circle. Though at all he was no intruder, for he belonged to a class of men who were expounders of the law, and they were all eager to hear him.

The stranger requested them to make known their views of the coming Messiah. Nathan read the Prophets: "Who is this that cometh from Edom with dyed garments? From Bozrah traveling in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness to save. Every valley shall be exalted and every mountain shall be made low and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain and the Gentiles shall come to thy light and kings to the brightness of thy rising."

"And now," added Rabbi Nathan, "do not the prophets warrant all that we have said and song of the Messiah?" "Do the prophets give you no other view of his character?" said the stranger.

Then he took the parchment, and in tones, which riveted the attention of all, read as follows: "Who hath believed our report and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? He shall grow up as a tender plant and as a root out of dry ground? He hath no form or comeliness and when we shall see him; there is no beauty that we should desire him; surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows. Yet was he stricken, smitten and afflicted."

He then laid down the parchment and disappeared.

It was reported that a new teacher was preaching and baptizing in Judea, called John the Baptist; that he was uttering words of astounding import, that he was telling of the day of judgment and the future world, and that he warned to flee from the wrath to come. He said that he was only the herald of one, who would be the Judge of the world.

Now John the Baptist had appointed a meeting on the banks of the river Jordan. Rabbi Nathan was very eager to hear him.

The morning appointed for the preaching and baptizing of John the Baptist arrived.—The neighboring villages poured forth their population toward the river Jordan. The western side of the river Jordan gently sloped to the water, and here the vast multitude was rapidly assembling.

The Hebrew villagers were there in great numbers on foot, some rode on camels from a distance; and a few of the noble and priesthood took their horses and chariote, and they came even from Jerusalem.

The occasion was everywhere regarded as momentous. Early in the morning Rabbi Nathan's chariot was at the door and they proceeded southward towards the place appointed. The morning was bright, the soft breezes were filled with the odor of flowers, the fields were clothed with grain, the murmuring and purring streams were glittering along the road, the birds filled the air with music.

The conversation was active and diversified, and they finally found themselves at their journey's end. John the Baptist was attended by his disciples and appeared in the common dress of the wilderness; he sat on a rude platform. Near by lingered the little party from Gennesaret.

As he arose, the solemn voice of the Baptist rising over the hushed and awe-struck multitude, was heard, "Repent ye, for the kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

He then proceeded to unfold the nature of the true worship of God and the necessity of a holy life. He demanded of them fruits meet for repentance, assuring them that the ax was now laid at the root of the tree, and that every tree, which did not bear good fruit must be cut down and cast into the fire.

The Baptist then declared himself to be the prophet spoken of by Isaiah the prophet and that he was sent to preach the doctrine of repentance to the guilty and to warn them to flee the wrath to come.

At the close of his address he prepared to administer the ordinance of baptism. The persons to be baptized were arranged and as the Baptist descended into the river, they followed and were baptized. A great multitude witnessed the baptism.

The solemn ceremony was about to be closed when a new incident arose and crowned its glory. The stranger that had appeared to Rabbi Nathan descended into the stream and approached the Baptist, and asked of him to be baptized. A feeling of unutterable astonishment pervaded the assembly when they saw John kneeling at the feet of the stranger, and saying, "I have need of thee to be baptized, and comest thou to me?"

Then Jesus said, "Suffer it to be so now; for it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness."

John said: "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world."

After he was baptized, he arose and the vast expanse of heaven became suddenly illuminated with glory ineffably brilliant, and yet sweetly attempted to mortal vision, and they saw the spirit of God descending on him, and a voice from heaven was heard, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

Now, brethren and sisters, what a pity if you neglect so great a salvation as not to hear and obey the Savior, and, like the foolish virgins are found wanting, and your sentence will be, "Depart, ye cursed into everlasting fire, where the worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched." N. C. BOKLER.

From the latter Canon.

THE ISRAELITES IN EGYPT.

How long were the Israelites in Egypt, and how long were they in bondage? J. S.

DR. PHILIP SCHAF says they were 400 years in Egypt, first under the favor, and then under the oppressive tyranny of the Pharaohs.

Another authority says: "How long they remained in the house of bondage (for the Hebrews were not the only slaves in Egypt) cannot be determined, there being Scriptural testimony for 430 as well as for about 210 years."

Professor Felix Adler says: "Four hundred and thirty years they served their pitiless taskmasters, according to Ex. 9: 40. Gen. 15: 13 gives the somewhat lower estimate of 400 years, while from Ex. 6: 16 it would appear that only three generations, Levi, Kohath and Amram, the father of Moses, had passed between the first settlement of the Israelites in Goshen and their final deliverance."

A CERTAIN amount of opposition is a great help to a man. Kites rise against and not with the wind.

Correspondence.

From S. J. Harrison.—On Sunday last, (Oct. 23rd) Bro. Geo. D. Zollars, of Hickory Grove, was with us, and preached two very acceptable sermons. Bro. Z. has a pleasant face, is slender, and of average height. In poetic ease and finish, he speaks fluently—almost perfect English. We did not observe a single grammatical error in either of the sermons. It may be we were so enrapt with the sacred words that flowed in Heaven's eloquence from the man of God that errors did not attract our attention; but of what we saw not, we say not. Bro. Z. is so easy and graceful in manner, so sincere and tender in his appeals that few, if any, could withhold from him their love. He is also very meek and humble. He will be ashamed when he reads these commendatory words. He would say, "go and tell no one." But God says, "he that humbly himself shall be exalted," and Bro. Z.'s case is only an example of this. What a pleasant world this would be if all were so kind and gentle as he appeared, and as we presume he is. Long may he live for the comfort of his dear family, and as a bright example to the world of Christianity.—Lanark, Ill., Oct. 24th.

From E. A. Meek.—There is a band of eight members living on this mountain, and a few more living five or six miles distant. There is no organized church here, yet I feel that the Lord has a people, and I think there might be much good done if some of our ministering brethren would come over and help us. One year ago the brethren held a meeting here and some were almost persuaded to be Christians. The people seem quite anxious to hear the brethren preach. Many I think would come into the fold, if we were an organized church. The harvest truly is great but the laborers are few.—Washington Co., Ark., Oct. 16th.

From Eleazer Bosserman.—Our Feast at Eagle Creek church is now in the past, and truly we had an enjoyable season. On the morning of the 22nd, the day appointed for the Feast, the weather was calm, the sun shone forth in its glory and beauty, and by 10:30 there were a goodly number of brethren and sisters assembled of the home church with a fair representation of brethren and sisters of the adjoining churches. The meeting was then opened by Eld. John Krabill. Eld. Conrad Kahler led in prayer, after which he preached a very interesting sermon from the text, 1 Cor. 6:20. Eld. I. J. Rosenberger closed the services by way of exhortation, singing and prayer. After dinner the brethren of Eagle Creek proceeded to elect officers, and the result was as follows: Bro. A. J. Baughman and Bro. J. R. Spacht were chosen to the ministry, and Bro. John Bushong and Bro. John Tombaugh were chosen deacons. These brethren were all installed on the 23rd, at the close of the 10 o'clock services. I hope these brethren may be full of the Holy Ghost that they may become examples to the flock and may be enabled to fully discharge their several duties. While I can say I enjoyed this communion season very much, we were also made to feel sorry at the thought that our esteemed Bro. S. T. Bosserman and his companion could not be with us, as they are passing through a severe trial of affliction. Bro. B. has been improving for the last six days but is not able to be up yet. His dear companion is at this time in a very critical condition. We hope the church in general will remember our brother and sister in their prayers. May the Lord speedily restore them to health. May the will of the Lord be done. In addition to the above named ministers that were with us, were, Brethren Edward Rosenberger, Samuel Lindwer and Jacob Heistand.—Dunkirk, Ohio, Oct. 24th.

From Sarah E. Brooks.—We are having wet and cool weather.... Have had no preaching here for several weeks, on account of our ministers being away attending Communion meetings in adjoining churches. Hope we can soon have our regular preaching again. The B. A. W. is making its weekly visits to our home, and it is a welcome visitor. And oh! what a comfort it is to us that we can hear from the brethren and sisters all over the Brotherhood, and to read their many good and wise instructions that they are giving us! Dear young brethren and sisters, let us receive them with thankfulness, and let us all try to live a little nearer the kingdom of Christ, so that when the church falls into our hands we may be fit subjects to carry the work on in the plain and humble way our blessed Savior has laid down.... We are glad to hear that souls are turning from the evils of this world and starting to follow their blessed Master; and I would say to those that have lately started, go on; you have begun. May many more come to the feet of great mercy while it is yet called to-day.—Fairmount, Neb., Oct. 16th.

From S. J. Peck.—The Falls City church had a council meeting on the 18th of September. Things looked troublesome to hold a Feast, but after hard labor, we can say, like the Lanark church, "There is peace." Had a Love-feast on the 8th of October. Very large crowd of people there. Brother Honberger from Missouri officiated. He is a very zealous brother, and does much labor in the West. I said there was peace. Yes, there were members that had not communed for three years came forward and communed. I was glad that the broken-hearted were healed, and the downcast were lifted up.... On Sunday morning following the Feast, a large crowd assembled, and were ably addressed by brother Bauman, from Brown county, Kansas. Text, "What most I do to be saved?" We went home with great joy and love. There were no additions during the meeting, but there were a good many during the year.—Falls City, Neb., Oct. 18th.

From F. C. Myers.—Last Saturday, 15th, was the time appointed for brother Metzger to come here to preach for us. According to appointment, the dear old brother made his way once more among us to give us good instructions. The same day, to our greatest surprise, brother Shamber from Pesbody, Kan., came to my house; he preached that night for us. He intends to live here for a while. What a blessing it is to know that we have a prayer-answering God. It seems that the Lord has instructed this brother to come over into Macedonia and help us. He is a good speaker and well thought of by this little flock. The Lord knoweth us even in time of need. The church here would not have prospered much longer without having regular preaching every Lord's day. But the Lord who knoweth all things saw this and sent this brother here to live among us. He is a young man and young in the ministry, but the Word of God is a lamp to his feet, and the eyes of the Lord are upon him. Dear brethren and sisters, you see that although we are a little and weak flock here in the vast city of corruption, the Lord of Lords had compassion on us—that when he saw that we were about to be scattered as sheep having no shepherd, he sent this dear brother here to help bind us closer together.... We expect another happy meeting before many days have elapsed, when sister Shamber will make this her home. We greatly desire that some zealous brethren and sisters would come here to live and to help build up the cause of our Master.... On Sunday morning our dear brother Metzger preached an interesting sermon; that night our brother Shamber gave us a good spiritual supper.... On Monday night our dear old brother preached his farewell sermon to us. How sad we were to know that the time is near that he will have to give us the parting hand in death. We behold his face and tremble at the thought of having to part with so good a friend. But we know that there is a promise to those that hold out faithful.... On Tuesday brother Saamber conducted the meeting. What a comfort it is to know that there is one left among us to take charge of this work. I know not how to praise God enough for this great manifestation of his goodness in answering our prayers by sending this dear brother to live among us and help fight the enemy.—St. Louis, Mo.

From Thos. G. Snyder.—The Dry Creek church held their Love-feast on the 8th and 9th of October. Had a pleasant Feast; and will long be remembered. About one hundred communed.... The Word was preached in spirit and truth. Ministers present from Illinois were J. H. Moore, E. Eby, S. J. Harrison; from Iowa, I. Barto, J. Shultz, John Zuck, P. Wetzel, P. Forney, L. G. Aschenbrenner, and Miller, of Brooklyn, Iowa. Thanks to our dear brethren for their love manifested to us.... Held an election for one deacon. The lot fell on brother James Wilson. May he ever prove faithful.... On the 10th the church met in council. Brethren Barto, Shultz, Eby, and Zuck were with us, and were under the sorrowful duty, with the church of withdrawing fellowship from seven officers, three ministers, and upwards of thirty of the laity. Hope and pray the Lord may excuse all of them to see their error and come back again to the fold.—Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

From J. C. Lahman.—To-day brother Sharp visited us for the first time, and preached an acceptable sermon to an appreciative audience. The first chapter of Ezekiel was read, from which the brother selected his text. He directed attention to the great central thought, God's power unlimited, the fact which science, philosophy, the great first cause and the Bible teach. He also drew a lesson from the vision of Ezekiel, as represented by the wheel and the creatures. The eyes of the Lord are represented in that wheel as being in the outer surface, penetrating every-where. Every wheel has a center, and most wheels have spokes. We occupy a place somewhere along the spokes. If we get too far out, we are liable to be thrown off by the motion as in a natural wheel. Better stay near the center—God's love—and by its centripetal motion cling to God and one another, having the angels of God as ministering spirits to bear us up. Before services today one brother, a husband, was reclaimed, and immediately after preaching we repaired to the water where a sister, the wife of the reclaimed brother, was baptized into Christ. Now the twin can walk together serving the Lord.—Franklin Grove, Ill., Oct. 23rd.

From Enoch Eby.—I was present at seven Communion meetings in Northern Ill. and two in Iowa, in Linn and Cedar counties this Fall; and I think I never saw better order and attention to the Word preached, and more life, and zeal, and brotherly love among the members generally. Several were not so largely attended on account of rain. Very few added, perhaps none that I remember. In Rock Creek district, brethren J. Myers and Ferguson were both advanced to the second degree of the ministry. In Yellow Creek district the church elected brother Ezra Boyer to the office of deacon. In Pine Creek district the church elected brother Titus to the ministry; we hope those brethren will all fill their different offices in honor to God, and to the edification of the church. I feel, dear brethren and sisters, that we have much to feel thankful for, and nothing to complain of here in the north-west, compared with many other places. Let us take courage and spend the long Winter evenings, in provoking one another to love and good works; and preaching the Word to our neighbors and friends as we have opportunity.—Lena, Ill.

From Catharine Gooch.—Dear Brethren and Sisters.—Out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh. Truly our Love-feast was a feast to our souls. The Lord was with us. It was the first Love-feast that ever was held in this part of Kan., and the people seemed to be anxious to see, and to hear the gospel preached. Oh how we all labored to get ready for our meeting so that everything would be done in order. Our meeting was held in a shed at our residence. Some of the brethren and some of our neighbors came together and my husband and they soon erected the shed. It was finished on Friday eve, and the next morning the sun rose in all her beauty, and we were favored with a lovely day. About 11 o'clock the people assembled. At 2 o'clock our meeting commenced, and I was made to think of the 'good news of God, to me and mine, in giving us health and strength to make preparation for this meeting. I prayed for this, and I believe the Lord did give me strength. Dear brethren and sisters when we get our spiritual strength renewed we often forget our bodily infirmities. We are much built up and encouraged since our dear brother Lemuel Hilery and family have settled among us. Oh let the whole Brotherhood pray for them that their labors may be blessed in this part of God's moral vineyard, and that they may live long here in our community, that many souls may be added unto the church by their faithfulness to God. We are but few in number and scattered over a wide territory; but we feel thankful to say that the same God that rules and watches over the large congregations east, watches over our small number here. He has told us where two or three are met together in his name there he would be in their midst. The ministering brethren from afar were brother Landis from Osborn County, brother Switzer from White Rock, brother Deeter from Gravel Co., and brother Hoover from Nebraska; these brethren preached the word in its purity. We expect, if the Lord will, to appoint an elder over us at our next council meeting, as we are organized into a church now. We want an elder. Our church will be known as the Belleville church. We live nearer that town than any other; it is the county-seat of our county. When you travel and preach don't go where there are so many ministering brethren, but come where there are a few and some places none. I have had some of the members tell me they have not heard a brother preach for two years. Oh it nukes my heart ache for them! You that have enough of this world's goods and some to spare, do come and see our beautiful country, and preach for us and encourage us on our way to heaven.—Belleville, Kan., Oct. 16th.

From Geo. Long.—The Love-feast in Thornapple church Oct. 1st, was a pleasant meeting. Speakers from other churches were Benjamin Leer, from Indiana, who officiated, Isaac Ruirigh and A. C. Price from Woodland church, Barry county, and our home ministers. One added to the church by baptism. Church is in union and peace. Health is good among us. On the 13th ult., Sam. Ritter and wife, self and wife boarded the train at Lowell, en route for Black River church, Van Buren Co., Mich. Had a good Communion, though much rain fell during the night of the 14th when the Feast was. But the members enjoyed themselves very well. Had to move the meeting in the house instead of the barn, being too damp for children. One was added by baptism. The church is prospering.—Oct. 25th.

In the Field Again.

For the benefit of our missionary alternates, I will say that I entered the North Missouri Home Mission on the morning of the 22nd of October. Had services that morning in Kingston at 8 o'clock, after which two young sisters were ready to go "go down into the water and be buried with Christ in baptism." From thence I went to the Hamilton congregation (where our dear brother resided and presided while in Missouri). Here the brethren met at 1 o'clock P. M. for council, and a choice for a brother to the ministry. Here also elder D. H. Sell, of Piattsburg, met with us, and having myself the oversight of this church we at once led in the work of the desired choice. The lot fell on the beloved brother David C. Hardman, who as we all feel confident will loudly preach Christ in works as well as in Word.

From here I go to Bancroft congregation, where I expect to meet my companion in this work of evangelism, namely Wm. B. Sell.
Oct. 23rd, '81. C. C. Root.

At Home Once More.

Home! How dear the name! We only learn to know how sacred the home circle is, when we are deprived of its enjoyment. The writer has been made to fully realize the above to be true because of much absence from that hallowed spot.

We have recently had the pleasure of enjoying a season of sweet communion with the dear brethren and sisters. 1st. At the Antich church in Saline county, Mo., where we enjoyed that which is known only to the disciples of Jesus. This congregation is known as the Blackwater church, and is under the eldership of D. L. Williams. Two precious souls came out on the Lord's side and were baptized into the body of Christ. Brother James Evans did most of the preaching. We will again say to our brethren in the East, do not forget to visit that part of the Lord's vineyard. Give them a call and locate among them if it suits you.

This congregation is not far from the celebrated Sweet Springs, where the invalid has a chance to have his body healed, and take a new lease of his life.

The second Feast was at our own place at Centerville, where we had another season of rejoicing in the Lord. The rain fell fast, but we were comfortably situated in the church where the Father's children could hold sweet communion together, notwithstanding the inclement weather. We enjoyed the ministry of S. S. Mohler, and D. L. Williams. They gave to us the Bread of Life in plain terms. Two young sisters were baptized by brother Witmore about a week before our Feast. Thus the work goes steadily on.

The third Feast was in the Mineral Creek church, Oct. 21st. This Feast followed immediately after our District Meeting. At this meeting more members communed than we have ever seen in Missouri at one meeting.

Our District Meeting passed off very pleasantly. We never saw brethren labor together more pleasantly than at this meeting.

This morning (Oct. 24th) I will set sail for the land of my birth, where I once spent sweet fellowship with the Father's children among the hills of W. Virginia. The prime object of this trip is to be company for my dear widowed mother to the place she calls her earthly home. She has spent the Summer with her children in the West; and now as Autumn indicates the near approach of Winter, she wishes to return to her native land. She is alone, and we feel it a duty to bear her company as she is not willing to travel alone. And since we will visit our native country, I will stop with the brethren in the following counties: Fayette and Monroe in W. Va., and Montgomery, Roanoke, and Botetourt in Virginia. May stop in Ohio on my return, with the Brethren at Corington. Will be at Bonacks in Roanoke county, Virginia about the last of November. Any one wishing to write to me will address me at this place. A. HUTCHISON.

Centerville, Mo.

From the Chicago Daily News.

THE BALLOON.

Prof. King's Air-Ship "A. J. Nutting" Accomplishes One of the Most Extraordinary Voyages Recorded.

Five Hundred Miles Continuous Flight —Desperate Position of the Voyagers.

Lost in the Swamps of the Wisconsin Prairies—The Landing on Flambeau River.

Mr. Hashagen's Thrilling Story of His Experiences—Without Food for Five Days and Nights.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT.

CHIFFEWA FALLS, Wis., Oct. 21.—The voyagers who took such hasty flight last Thursday from civilization feel no such disposition to-day. If you should see us now, dragged, torn, water-soaked, and exposed, and our appetites—what a wonderful thing they are—you would surely say we loved civilization, and more especially the good table.

THE FIRST NIGHT OUT.

Before five minutes after leaving terra firma we reached an altitude of 4,000 feet, moving south-west. A few minutes later we reached an upper current moving slowly westward, so slowly that we barely moved, but what a prospect beneath us! Chicago, which at best is barely endurable to the down-easter, was now a "thing of beauty," but not a "joy forever," for we were soon shot out by night, and had nothing but its myriads of lights twinkling in the distance.

SWINGING IN A CIRCLE.

We remained there suspended, neither rising nor falling, for several hours, but at last a puff of air sent us south-west, changing before morning to west and north-west. While going south-west we remained about becalmed three hours swinging in a circle over a small city that, from its location, I judged to be Peoria, Ill. After getting tired of the earthy stars we turned in, that is, took "cat-naps."

SHOT AT BY A NATIVE.

At 5:15 on Friday we passed over Spring Valley, Wis., starting the natives by dragging our drag-rope over their roofs, and one ambitious fellow, probably thinking we were "Old Nick" with his legends, sent a shot after us.

OVER THE PLATTE MOUNDS.

Afterwards we passed over the Platte mounds at 7:15 A. M. These mounds are 1,281 feet above the sea level. They are of various colors and fantastic forms, which by the bright colors surrounding the foliage, gives a picturesque appearance to the surface unequalled by anything but a most vivid imagination. The balloon circulated along these mounds as though drawn by force of inspiration, and as we gradually lurch to part company. They kept us just one-half hour dancing in this circular attendance, when we were compelled to use our ballast, to escape this apparent attraction. Of course there was nothing but currents of cold air circulating in the valleys, which it was necessary to rise above to escape.

OUT INTO SPACE.

At 8 A. M. we passed over Tomah. At 9:50 we arose among the clouds and lost sight of Mother Earth for a few hours. The wind increasing, carried us at a rapid rate, probably forty or fifty miles per hour, and not being able to discern stationary objects, could not tell where we were or what course we were pursuing.

GRABBING A SOUVENIR.

In passing Little Falls, Monroe county, Wisconsin, we came so near the ground that we came in contact with the trees and were compelled to take a large portion of one along as a souvenir. When we neared the ground we were greeted with a beautiful view of the verdure in every variety of form. Children were hushed, dogs called off, horses whipped up, and old country matrons stood in their doors with arms akimbo and in the most surprising and comical attitude. If we had had an artist along he could have made his fortune out of their figures.

BURIED IN "MILK."

As though dissatisfied with her late action, and wishing to give us a heavenly view, our balloon took an upward turn, carrying us 4,000 feet above the strata of clouds and literally burying us in "milk" for an hour.

THROUGH A BAINSTORM.

Meanwhile the rain poured in torrents. Collecting on the outside of the balloon it poured down the mouth of the bag into the basket in a steady stream, compelling me to put away my instruments. But it was useless, there was not a dry pin head among them. At 12:45 the highest known elevation was reached, being 9,600 feet.

THE LANDING.

From the last person spoken we found we were forty miles from St. Paul, and when we descended, at 2:30 P. M., on the west bank of the river, one-half mile inland, we concluded we were in the State of Minnesota, probably forty miles north of St. Paul, on the Mississippi river. With this supposition in mind, we stepped out of our car into about eighteen inches of ice-water, found we were in a cranberry bog, and had to get out.

LOST IN THE SWAMP.

To recite our experience after that, for the succeeding five days, is too horrible. How we walked five days up to our knees through boggy swamps, without food, except a half pint of berries; how the wolves and bears snarled around us at night; how we slept on the wet ground at night, through heavy frosts, only to start again in the morning, through the swamps, with its ice-water, and falling over muddy logs at every step, I cannot put in words.

As a last resort we built a raft, expecting to go over St. Anthony's Falls. Of our subsequent disappointment and our subsequent tramp with blistered feet and torn shoes I will tell Mr. Finn when I see him to-night.

SAFE AT LAST.

But oh! my joy when, at 4 o'clock in the evening of the 5th day, we reached Flambeau river, and were carried across by Cleramero

Bertrand and Michael Miner, woodmen; and here we are, enjoying the good things before us.
(Signed) J. GEORGE HASHAGEN.

PETRIFIED.

WE clip the following from the Democrat of this place.

"Mr. David Rine procured the services of sexton Higer last Thursday for the purpose of removing the bodies of deceased friends from the old to the new cemetery. Upon opening the grave of his mother buried about six years ago, the coffin was found to be so heavy that it required the whole efforts of four strong men to lift it out of the ground. This unusual weight induced them to open the coffin when it was found that the body had turned to stone, the state of petrification having been almost wholly completed. The outline of the form were perfect, except in a partial disfiguration of the features and of the hands. The deceased had been buried in a black silk dress and this had shrunk so as to closely fit the body, indeed having become a portion of the petrification. The ground in the old cemetery is of a wet nature and is slightly mixed with sand. During rainy seasons many graves are no doubt filled with water, this being true of the case in question. There are good grounds to believe that in future removals other cases of a similar nature will be found."

NOVEL IDEA.

A FARMER in Iowa sends the following novel proposition respecting telephone facilities to the Iowa State Register: "Will not some of those smart patent-right men invent us a cheap insulator? Then we can utilize our wire fences for telephones, and have the whole country connected and in speaking distance of each other. At the road crossings insulated cables can be run under ground, or regular poles can be planted to raise the wires above travel. In riding around I notice we have a continuous wire on the fences already. All we need is an insulator, costing a small sum and which is so arranged that the wire can be tightened and held firmly and securely, and we shall have the line already strung that will do away with a telegraph monopoly (if there is one). Then make each post-office a telephone exchange, and business for farmers will be expedited, saving many trips to town to order parts of machinery, or to learn if some important letter has arrived. Visiting friends can notify us of their arrival on the train; busy trips for medical assistance may be done away with, and many other things not now thought of."

THE Gospel in All Lands estimates that 100,000 Jews have been converted to Christianity during this century and that about 1,000 embrace the Gospel every year. Of those about one-fourth become connected with Protestant churches. The rest go into the Greek and Roman communions.

THE Mormons are reported to be gaining large recruits from the wretched poor of the East end of London.

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR THE
Brethren at Work,
AND
TRACT SOCIETY.

S. T. Bowerman, Dunkirk, Ohio. John Forney, Abilene, Kan.
Reed Byr, Leas, Ill. Daniel Vaniman, Vandalia, Mo.
A. A. Shambertson, Graham, Mo. J. F. Flory, Leosport, Mo.
W. O. Tesner, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Metzger, Cairo, Geo. Ill.
J. B. Mason, Corvallis, Mo. J. W. Bonchawitz, Newbury, Ind.
John Wier, Mulberry Grove, Ill. D. Brewer, Salem, Oregon.

OUR PLEA.

THE BRETHERN AT WORK is an uncompromising advocate of Fraternal Christianity to all its sacred party. It recognizes the New Testament as the only inflexible rule of faith and practice.

And maintains that the sovereign, unmerited, unqualified grace of God is the only source of pardon, and that the victorious sufferings and meritorious works of Christ are the only price of redemption.

That Faith, Baptism and Baptism are conditions of pardon, and hence for the remission of sins.

That Trino Washing, or dipping the candidate three times face-forward, is Christian Baptism.

That Foot-Washing, as taught in John 13, is a divine command to be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening, at the close of the day.

That the Salvation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That a Non-Confession to the world in dress, ornaments, daily walk, and conversation is essential to true holiness and Christian piety.

It maintains that in public worship, or religious exercises, Christians should appear as directed in 1 Cor. 11: 5.

It also approves the scriptural duty of assisting the sick with all the means of the Lord.

In short it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the Apostles have enjoined upon us, and since, until the conflicting theories and dogmas of modern Christendom, no point out proved that all must concede to be inflexibly safe.

Single subscriptions $1.00 in advance. Those sending three or more and $12.00, will receive an extra copy free. For each additional year the agent will be allowed an extra copy free, which amount he will retain and send to the laborer. Money sent by Post-Office Order, Registered Letters, and Drafts, properly addressed, will be at our risk. Do not send checks, as they cannot be collected without charge. Address, BRETHERN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan. '81," shows that the paper has been paid for up to that time. "1 Jan. '82," shows that the time will then expire. If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

The "Popular Science Monthly" for November contains an interesting Biographic Sketch of George Jarvis Brush, the inventor of the Brush Electric Light. Dr. Felix Oswald discusses "Physical Education," and utters some valuable truths on "Hygienic Precautions." Dr. J. Mortimer Granville has an able article on "Worry." Every fretful person should read it. Francis Birgham takes hold of Organic Remains and Meteoric Stones," and handles his subject with learned ability. Single number 50 cents. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

A Howl from the Scalpers.

[Sunday News, Toledo, Oct. 16, 1891.]

The following item appeared in the daily papers of this city last Thursday:

"There are now in the offices of the different scalpers in the cities between Chicago, St. Louis and Boston, a large number of counterfeit tickets of the different railways east and west, and in order to protect their business, the different railway companies have found it necessary to issue instructions to conductors not to receive for passage any tickets that have passed through the hands of scalpers. Therefore we present these facts to the public, cautioning all against purchasing tickets of any kind from offices not publicly known and recognized as regular ticket offices of the companies, over which transportation is desired."

We have given this matter a little investigation, and as a result of the same are prepared to state that a large number of counterfeit tickets have been put upon the public, that these tickets came through the hands of scalpers, and that the proof is overwhelming that certain scalpers are in league with the counterfeiters. We do not say, nor even hint that all scalpers are in this nefarious business, but we consider ticket-scalping a profession that does not place a man above suspicion. That the trusting public are imposed upon by scalpers cannot be denied. The victims usually are strangers, often emigrants. We know whereof we write for we have been victimized ourselves by the professional scalper. We have no criticism to offer on whatever defense these gentlemen see fit to make, if they feel that the eyes of the public are directed to them; but when they claim that there are no bogus tickets afloat, and that some one is endeavoring to injure them, and that conductors have not been instructed to retoss certain tickets, they make a mistake, and when they try to make a defense for the whole scalping fraternity, to make use of a homely expression, they "bite off more than they can chew."

Tablets! Tablets!

Six tablets for 50 cents, — one for ink or pencil, the other five for pencil only.

Address: BRETHERN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

Terms to Agents.

- For $1 75 { BRETHERN AT WORK and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year.
- For $4 50 { Paper to three persons each one year and a copy of Close Communication by London West to sender.
- For $6 00 { Paper to four persons, each one year and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year to sender.
- For $9 00 { Paper to six persons, each 1 year, and a copy of Family Instructor, — an excellent work worth 75cts.
- For $12 00 { Paper to eight persons each one year, and one copy free to the sender.
- For $15 00 { Paper to ten persons and a copy of Biblical Antiquities, by Nelson, to sender. Price of work alone, $1.50.
- For $18 00 { Paper to 12 persons and a copy of Signs and Ray Debate in cloth to sender. Price of book alone, $2.00.
- For $24 00 { Paper to 18 persons, 1 year and any $2 50 book found on Western Book Exchange Catalogue to sender.
- For $30 00 { Paper to 30 persons, each 1 year and a Dictionary of the Bible by Smith. Price of book alone $3.00.

For $37 50

For 45 00

For $60 00

{ Paper to twenty-five persons, each one year, and ten per cent. off to sender, or $4.00 worth of books from catalogue.

{ Paper to thirty persons, each one year, and $5.00 to sender; or we shall pay $5.00 into missionary fund for every thirty subscribers and $45.00.

{ Paper to forty persons, each one year, and a copy of Worcester's Standard Quarto Dictionary worth $10.00.

Brethren's Envelopes.—These are neat, white envelopes with the general principles of the Brethren church printed on the back. By using them, the doctrine of the church may be spread far and wide. Price, 15 cents for 25; or 40 cents per hundred. For sale at this office.

Mt. Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - - October 22.

Number Enrolled.....	151
Average Daily Attendance.....	154
Per Cent. of Attendances.....	94
Number Tardinesses.....	6
Neither Absent nor Tardy.....	102

E. A. BERRY, Principal.

All About Kansas. THE WEEKLY CAPITAL is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county, — $1.00 per year. — SAMPLE COPY FREE! —

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE!

MAGNIFICENT EQUIPMENTS! SURE CONNECTIONS! UNION DEPOSITS!

"Great Rock Island Route!"

Stands pre-eminent among the great trunk lines of the West for being the most direct, quickest and safest line connecting the great Metropolis, CHICAGO, with the EASTERN, NORTH-EASTERN, SOUTHERN and SOUTHWESTERN STATES, which terminate there, with KANSAS CITY, LEAVENWORTH, ATCHISON, CENTRAL CITY, WAVERLY and OMAHA, the COMMERCIAL CENTERS FROM WHICH THE

EVERY LINE OF ROAD that traverses the Continent FROM the MISSOURI RIVER to the Pacific Slopes. The

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago avoiding truck line to Kansas, or which, by its own road, reaches the Pacific shore DIRECT. NO TRANSFER BY CAROLINA. NO MISERABLE CONNECTION! NO AVOIDING INCONVENIENCE OR UNPLEASANT CAR, or every passenger is carried in promptly, clean and commodious coaches, upon Fast Express Trains.

DAY CARS of superior specification, FOR ALLEN PARK & SHARPLESS CARS, and our own world famous Dining Cars, upon which meals are served in the most improved style, as the best of any FIRST-CLASS CARS in America, with ample time for business and pleasure. THROUGH CARS between Chicago, Keosauqua, Leavenworth, Atchison, Central City, Waverly, and Omaha, and Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Arkansas, Black River, and the Territory of Colorado, Nebraska and New Mexico. Special attention regarding baggage on any day. The mail cars of this line are the best equipped, most comfortable and the most convenient, with baggage and a horse of the finest quality. The Rock Island and Pacific at principal depot offices in the States, Indian and Canada.

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN,
Vice Pres. and Gen. Manager, Chicago, Ill. Gen. Trk. and Freight Agent, Omaha, Neb.

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

tidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department.
Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 18, 1881.

Our Communion-meeting is in the past. Brethren T. D. Lyon and D. B. Gibson were with us, and held forth the Word of Life in an able manner. The weather was very inclement, but the attendance was good and attention excellent. Good seed was sown, and I think many are seriously counting the cost of life eternal. We have been edified and encouraged, and may heaven's choicest blessings rest on our beloved brethren, Lyon, Atchison, Fitz and Gibson, and with all his children.
H. C. LUGAS.
Ozawkie, Kan.

I wish to correct a mistake made by our Committee brethren in their report in B. AT W. No. 27, in regard to the dividing of district of Northern Kansas and Southern Nebraska, in announcing place of District Meeting for 1882, in North-eastern district, should read Ozawkie church, instead of Valley Falls church.
J. A. ROOT.

Milford, Ind. Oct. 19, 1881.

This evening we have our first feast. We have had an abundance of rain; corn was trow down by the fly fresher, and some that lays on the ground is sprouting. Some sprouts are four and five inches long. It is so wet, we can scarcely get in with our teams, to gather the corn. The fly has about taken our wheat. Some grapes are bearing the second crop: some pear trees are in bloom. Apples are rotting on account of wet weather. The different elements in the church have no had effect on us. Among the trouble that exists, we have baptised more lately, than in the forepart of the year.
J. H. MILLER.

Kearney, Neb., Oct. 23.

Our Love-feast is among the things of the past. Had a pleasant feast and the best of order during services. Nineteen members communed. Bro. David Beechtelheimer preached for us. Received two by baptism and one by letter.

MICHAEL SNAVELY.

Fordwich, Ont., Oct. 21.

I am now in Fordwich. I closed my meetings on the 19th, inst., at Hespeler. Had very good meetings. Seven appointments and very good attention. Our Bro. N. P. Cober and wife are the only members in this part of Canada. I feel confident, that if we had an organisation in this place, we could build up a congregation here. The people seemed to enjoy the meeting very much. Bro. and sister Cober seems to be much built up and encouraged. May God bless his cause in these parts. My health is good. The people are very kind.
JOHN WISE.

Mulberry Grove, Ill., Oct. 25.

There is a probability that Bro. D. B. Sturgis will preach for us on his return from Ma. At the council in the Hurricane Creek church, Oct. 15, twenty-two members withdrew from the church, claiming the Miami resolutions as their platform.
N. E. L.

Milford, Ind., Oct. 23.

Oh! what joy! To-day we had preaching at our church (Gravelton). Bro. D. Wyson discoursed from Matt. 13. The subject was, "The Hidden Treasure in a Field." Two were willing to search after it and came out and confessed Jesus, and finally were buried beneath the liquid wave to walk in newness of life. At the water side many faces were bathed in tears. The scene indeed was a solemn one. Truly the waters are troubled, and many are counting the cost.
J. H. MILLER.

Harlan, Iowa, Oct. 22.

The rain has descended in torrents all afternoon and it is still raining. Every ravine is filled, and the roads are very muddy.
L. M. EAY.

Ervin, Ind.

Our Communion in the Howard church, passed off pleasantly. It was a feast to the soul, and many were made to feel that it was good to be here. Brethren present were J. H. Caylor, J. W. Metzger, Isaac Cripe, Benj. Neff and J. Eikenberry, who ably defended the Master's cause, and many good and we hope lasting impressions were made.
DANIEL BOCK.

Monument City, Ind., Oct. 21.

L'ft home last Saturday to attend Wabash Love-feast. Arrived at Bro. Hamsher's in time for dinner. After being delayed a while on account of rain, we started, in company with Bro. Hamsher, wife and daughter. We reached the place in time for services, but not in time to entirely escape the rain. Had a very pleasant meeting, though it rained much during the meeting. Among the several ministers present were Elders John Wolfe, Wm. Minnie, John Baker, and Jacob Tinkle. The forewilled remarks of the Brethren were truly encouraging and no doubt many went away, feeling that it was good to be there. By earnest request Bro. Jacob Tinkle will hold meeting here a little while longer.

LATER.—Our Love feast is past; had a good meeting. The weather was favorable in the afternoon, though it rained some at night and next morning. Ministers present from other local districts were Dan. P. Shively and Jas. Shipley, of Pipe Creek and Abraham Leedy, of North Manchester. One reclaimed. We are having plenty of rain at present. May the Lord enable us all to feel truly thankful to him.
J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

Marla, Pa., Oct. 22.

We held our Love-feast in the Woodbury church on the 11th of October. The ministering brethren from abroad were Bro. Joseph Sherkey, of Gettysburg, Pa. J. W. Brumbaugh, Thoma; Mackard of Clover Creek, Pa., and others. Bro. Shery officiated. We had a good meeting,—one long to be remembered by many. One precious soul was added to the fold.
LOTTIE KETRING.

Matrimonial.

HAMILTON-MEYERS.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Oct. 20, 1881, by Bro. M. Kimmel, Bro. William T. Hamilton and sister Mary Meyers, both of Carroll Co., Ill.

MORRIS SCHMUCKER.

Fallen Asleep.

Blurred are the dead which die in the Lord.—Rev. 14: 12.

RITCHEY.—In the Hopewell church, Bedford Co., Pa., Oct. 12, 1881, Jacob, son of Bro. Henry and sister Dilla Ritchey, aged 14 years, 1 month and 11 days.

Funeral discourse by the Brethren from 1st Peter 1: 24. The subject of this notice left his home in good health, and started for a neighbor's house, and was found dead on the way. Thus in the midst of life, death may come.

MICHAEL KELLER.

HALLER.—At the Belvidere House, Boulder City, Boulder Co., Col., Sept. 21, of typhoid fever, Elias Emery Haller, of Greenwood, Cass Co., Neb., aged 21 years, 8 months, and 8 days.

Decesed was a grandson of Elias A. Muamba, of Grand Detour, Ogle Co., Ill., and leaves a widowed mother, two brothers, two sisters and a large circle of friends to mourn his death.

MARY C. HARDNOCK.

JACOB.—Sept. 13, 1881, near Noulac, Hancock Co., O. Susanna, wife of Oliver Jacob and daughter of Bro. John and sister Margaret Tiffin, aged 44 years, 4 months and 24 days.
D. W. C. ROW

THOMAS.—In the World's Grove church, Story Co., Iowa, Dora Ida, daughter of Bro. Isaac and Rebecca Thomas, aged 5 years, 2 months and 21 days.
J. W. TROSTLE.

CORNISH.—In the Mulberry Grove church Bond Co., Ohio, Oct. 18, Nora L., daughter of Bro. John and sister L. Cornish, aged 9 years, 6 months and five days. Sermon by Eld. John Goodman.
N. E. L.

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

Nov. 5, at 2 P. M., at Farragut, Fremont Co., Ia. Nov. 5th, Neesho church, at house of Bro. David Clumb, two miles north of Galesburg, Kan.

Nov. 5, Milline church, Platt Co., I. I. Nov. 5 and 6, at 2 P. M., Neesho church, Neesho Co., Kan.

Nov. 5 and 6, at 2 P. M., Big Creek congregation, Richland Co., Ill. Conveyance at Parkersburg, by informing J. M. Forney.

Nov. 12, at 10 A. M., Mt. Edna church, Adams Co., Iowa.

Dec. 2, at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill chnreh, near Virden, Macoupin Co., Ill.

DISTRICT-MEETINGS.

Nov. 4, 5 and 6, in Knob Creek church, Tenn.

You run no risk by pouring oil out of a can into your stove if you have no fire in it. Another safe way is to have no oil in the can.

HONEYAY needs no mask, and having no use for a cloak, 'twas laid aside; stolen by FRAUD, and has been used to the detriment of virtuous people ever since.

Mr. Moody tells of a blind beggar, sitting by the sidewalk on a dark night with a bright lantern by his side; whereat a passer-by was so puzzled that he had to turn back with,

"What is the world do you keep a lantern burning for? You can't see!"

"So't folks won't stumble over me," was the reply.

We should keep our lights brightly burning for others' good, as well as for the being "in the light ourselves."

THE Roumanian presents have been subjected to horrible treatment in the district of Dambrovlita, to compel them to confess a theft of which they were suspected, but of whom in fact they were innocent. They were first submitted to a severe bastinado, and then stripped and beaten with nettles. Next by the order of the sub-prefect duca quills were forced between their finger-nails and teeth. These tortures being without the desired effect, the wretched men were subjected to indescribable outrages, and finally suspended by their feet till half dead, when they acknowledged themselves guilty, and were sent for trial. Their innocence was clearly established before the court, and they were acquitted.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6. Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1881. No. 43.

Editorial Items.

Be sure that your liberty is not a stumbling-block.

A "Pew Questioner" from Enoch Day will appear in this issue.

You are free distribution furnished missionaries on your terms.

Geo. George W. Cripe and wife of Indiana are at Ashland, Ohio.

The Mission Board of Southern Kansas is about to begin its labors for the Winter.

Number 43 of the Primitive Christian contains an address at sermon by brother Hope.

Bro. Geo. W. Thomas, of Cuba, Kansas, will soon enter the mission field in that State.

Stinson, Indiana, has been visited by a disastrous fire. Loss, $20,000. No particulars.

From the Preacher we learn that several new students have recently arrived at Ashland College.

The contest is between Ben Franklin, dead, and S. R. Bush, living. See editorial page. Poor Ben!

Bro. Flory has improved the Home Mirror. It now comes out as an illustrated paper, stitched and trimmed.

It will be no new movement if you make drafts, post-office orders and registered letters payable to M. M. Estlin, D. C.

On Oct. 28th the thermometer was 19° below zero in the Northern part of Russia. A heavy snow fell at the same time.

A request for consolidating the papers in the Brotherhood goes to next Annual Meeting from Southern Missouri.

Bro. Chick's communication relative to the late District Meeting in Southern Missouri received too late for this paper.

The President will fulfill the design of the late President Garfield by taking steps to stamp out the crime of polygamy in Utah.

A LITTLE more good health--more spiritual life, in many places would redound to the glory of God, and the peace of the church.

THE Sunday-school in the College is becoming very interesting. It is growing in numbers as well as in the direction of efficient work.

THE District Meeting of Southern Missouri, Oct. 20th, was very harmonious, and may be set down as solid for the Brotherhood in the event of its day.

Bro. Solomon Beckadow visited the Dunning Creek Church, Pa., not long since, and preached a series of discourses on doctrine. Several added to the one body.

SEVERAL FUNerals to be on the increase in Chicago. There were forty-six deaths there recently in one day. Dr. De Wolf conducted the funeral congregation at St. Paul's church the 29th ult., and Dr. Green performed a similar work at the St. Stanislaus church.

ISAAC H. BUSH, Peabody, Kansas, is Treasurer of Southern Mission Board, instead of Henry Shouder, who has located in St. Louis, Mo.

Bro. M. V. Swood has come down from among the mountians in Colorado and located in Pueblo where he will remain until Spring. His family has joined him there.

SOME correspondence must go over to next issue. Bro. Hays' article arrived just in time to find room among correspondence, and being important, we give it space faithfully.

THE Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railway have placed a fast train on their road. Passengers are carried in Pullman cars from Chicago to New York in twenty-six hours.

Bro. Ely's "Inconsistency" as found on editorial pages, opens a field for reflection. Let some sanctified heads and hearts take hold of the matter, and point out a remedy.

Just before going to press we received a letter from the U. S. Consul-General at Vienna concerning brother Stein. Nothing definite. Shall publish the letter next week.

THE WORK pays its agents and workers. This is one of the reasons of its success. As it grows older, it shall endeavor to increase its ability to reward those who labor for it.

Bro. S. T. Hoeserman and wife continue to improve, and it is hoped they soon may be able to be about. We bless God that they are spared to work a little while longer in the Lord's vineyard.

Bro. Jacob R. Keller in his "Disappointments" on page 682 is mistaken in regard to the circulation of B. at W. With it were as he says. What will the readers do towards reaching 10,000?

JOHN P. BROOKS, a minister of the M. E. Church, in the Central Missouri Conference, and editor of the Banner of Holiness, has been expelled for going into the bounds of other ministers to preach.

SIXTY in your subscriptions for the Mirror, 50 cents for the paper one year, or $1.75 for it and B. at W. one year. The November number is better than ever, solid and attractive. It contains an interesting editorial reviewing Issue Error that had criticised Willford on his sound theory.

No. 40 of the B. at W. stated that Bro. David Frantz was in favor of special Conference, and favored Woodford Co., Ill., as a suitable place to hold it. The work misunderstood him. He meant that the Brethren in Illinois should meet there for counsel. We cheerfully make this correction.

THE first and second chapters of Clark Braden's "Angerful Unmanned" is upon our table. He deals some terrible blows at the great idol, and lays bare his blasphemous work. The book complete will cost $1.50. Address, Clark Braden, Coleman House, Broadway, New York.

NOTWITHSTANDING perfidions and false products generally have a rising price and are bringing much more than they did last year, some have the heart to ask us to give them the B. at W. for less than $1.50. Really we ought to have $1.75; but we will try to get along with the present price. Please let us live also.

Bro. Moore in his "Reflector" lays hold of last week's ballroom in a manner that causes our compatriots to raise the question whether he is in order in criticising their work. True, it had a big head. Well, it was a big thing, and sailed over a big country and landed in a big swamp. Therefore the head was appropriate.

WHEN you are inclined to insist on a "thus saith the Lord," and then say you are for plianness because it is taught in the Bible, your next effort should be to find the word "plianness" in the Bible. Plianness is taught, but not by the words "plianness." The principle is presented by the words "molded," "not conformed," "separate," and "holy."

OUR more implied in the Lambton church, Ohio, since the last report. That church seems to be specially blessed since the Miami Meeting was held there. Withdrawing from it does not affect its progress. Bro. Tobias Cramer has been ordained, and brother Silas Gilbert chosen to the ministry, Abraham Munich and Jacob Eskew being elected deacons.

One who is not a member of our fraternity writes: "I paid twelve out of the fourteen subscribers I sent you. I mean business. If you want any free distributions made by agents, send me my part to do. I have put my shoulder to the wheel and will start at the crack of the whip. I feel good at my success; and from present indications will send in another club soon. I wanted to get up a big club for the paper."

THE readers of the B. at W. no doubt enjoyed Bro. Zolner's "Life On the Ocean." Bro. Z. is a poet, preacher, and plasterer. He plasters buildings to make them warm, writes poetry to edify the soul, and preaches the Gospel to save men. His three years' experience on the Pacific ocean after whales is rich with sufferings for Christ. We hope he will give us more of his ocean life in poetical form.

Bro. Balsbaugh writes: "God sustain you in your noble work. You are living, laboring, dying and developing in the sphere of John 11: 25, 26. No man knows how to live, or what the incarnation means, till death is mastered, and becomes ours. 1 Cor. 3: 22, 23 and 15: 55. A whole inheritance of God makes us the great and good and strong and industrial in the swallowing up of death in life. By daily crucifixion, death is kept at bay, and the more we die the longer we live. To lose life is to find it, and only fellowship with Christ on the cross lets us into the secret of life eternal."

In last week's issue R was stated that Secretary of State (Blaine) had been requested to institute inquiries for brother Stein. The following letter from Mr. Blaine explains itself:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, }
WASHINGTON, Oct. 31, '81 }

D. L. MILLED,
Sec'y of Mt. Morris College--
Mt. Morris, Ill.

SIR:--
Your letter of the 27th inst., concerning the President of your College, (Mr. J. W. Stein) who when heard from in July last, was in Vienna intending to leave for Constantinople, has been received. You express grave fears for Mr. Stein's safety. Pursuant to your request I shall have pleasure in presenting the matter to the Minister of the United States at Constantinople. Mr. W. Allison, who will be instructed to report for your information such facts as he may be able to ascertain respecting Mr. Stein.

I am, Sir, your Obedient Servant,
JAMES G. BLAINE.

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

"MY LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE —MY HOME ON THE ROLL- ING DEEP."

BY GEO. D. ZOLLENS.

NUMBER II.

Onward we floated, propelled by the wind,
Along the Peruvian shore,
Anon the mountains were left far behind,
Too remote for our eyes to explore.
Toward Cruise's Island our course was given,
And we steered through the trackless deep,
With sails all bent our batque was driven,
As we toiled and our watch did keep.
I had read of Cruise's lonely life,
On that island in the sea,
How he rescued Friday in the strife,
And set the doomed man free.
Whether false or true, we've no warrant for you,
But my feet roamed o'er the land,
By the mountain slopes their forms to view
And down by the ocean strand,
I saw the goats climb o'er the steep,
I entered the rocky caves
Where many a seaman his mem'ry keeps,
Who his name on the rock engraves,
Two ship-mates there deserted the ship,
To hide in the mountains wild,
Whatever their fate on that daring trip
Has never been revealed.
Soon we have the anchor up again,
And spread the sails to the breeze,
And soon were plowing the rolling main
To the islands in the sea,
Now fell the genial eubems down
Now blew the gentle gale.
Then sable clouds with angry frown
The sun and stars you'd yell,
And thus 'mid seasons bright, and dear,
Our labors were achieved,
'Mid hard exposure, peril, fear,
And plans and hopes deceived.
Marquees's Islands next we gained Down in the Terrible Zone,
Where human hearts are ever trained
To worship wood and stone.
We compassed the huge mountain base,
Then opened to our view
A fertile vale with a tattooed race
Ranged on the beach at Whiteho.
We furl'd the sails and the anchor dropped
On the bay at Whiteho;
Our floating barque had scarcely stopped
Came each in his rude canoe,
With wild untutored whoops and yells,
With strange and savage mien,
Whose actions cultured sense repels
And weeds o'er-fallen man.
Their hair was long, and black, and straight,
Their bodies almost nude,
Step elastic, nimble gait,
And manners low and rude.
I wandered o'er the mountains wild,
Sat 'neath the ocean's shade,
And ate the fruits of the savage child
Who of our blood is made.
One day I sat on the shore of the sea,

Where the surges break and die,
When the natives came and circled me,
And watched with curious eyes,
I was eagerly searching the Sacred Page,
To find a solace for me;
For I was the object of Satan's rage,
Far out on the troubled sea.
I pointed to God in the azure sky,
As the Being who lives, and saves,
And then to the ocean high,
Where rolled the foaming waves.
O that dead audience on the beach!
With grave and earnest look!
When I with gestures tried to preach
While holding the Sacred Book.
No elocution was required
In that peculiar hour,
The heavens and sea their hearts inspired,
'T was self-evident power.

For the Brethren at Work:

THE MYSTERY OF MYSTERIES.

BY C. H. BALSAUGH.

To Dr. Andrew W. Flowers:—

DEAR Brother:—Your letter has a ringing, decisive snap, like the shutting of a new jack-knife. It means sober earnest. You write as one having not only authority, but experience and the wisdom which experience brings. You wield your two-edged weapon with the dexterity and vigor and glitter of an old veteran. No wonder that doors and hearts and purses are shut against you in many quarters. Such a philosophy is too high, too spiritual, too remote from the stomach and palate and gross sensuality, to be popular, even in Christendom. You are a millennium ahead of the age, as distasteful truth always is. Jesus was "despised and rejected of men" because he was the embodiment of eternal truth. All truth is God's. The curriculum of the university of Jehovah omits no branch nor item of knowledge. The Gospel of Hygiene is the Gospel of God. There tobacco is forbidden as positively as the sin of onanism. Both are forms of self-pollution, although not equally criminal. One is essentially so, while the other is not. But there is no escape from the penalty of either. No one ever tasted tobacco in any form without violating the physical instincts, even if he regarded it morally as a duty, which is the case in those instances where it is used as a medicine in obedience to professional advice. But no doctor, be he ever so wise, can break up the antagonism between a poison and vitality. The majority of our distinguished scientists are only educated into deeper ignorance and inveterate prejudice. To administer to the sick with a purpose to cure what tends to make the well sick, is the consumption of folly and stupidity. The physical and moral-laws have been so divorced in the religious conception of the church, that to preach hygiene to the Brotherhood is like recommending swine's flesh to the Jews, or monogamy to the Mormons. But a very few have any idea of the moral significance of 1 Cor. 10: 31. One of the urgent demands of the day is physiological preaching, the revelation of God's will in the organic laws. No wonder that church-doors are slammed in your face when you preach that tobacco and pork and half-seasoned food, and many other immemorial customs and life-long habits are violations of God's law in the human constitution, and indirect allies of the devil. Many disciples will turn back and walk no more with such an evangelist, saying, this is a hard Gospel, who can hear it? But truth is truth, and will so remain as long as God is what he is. The sin that is committed in the church in the abuse of the generative function, and the physical and moral injury entailed thereby on offspring, is simply awful. Of all that man does, nothing is so solemn, so far-reaching, so vitally knit with eternal consequences, as the act of propagation. And yet with how few has it the character and aim of a sacrament. How thoroughly is it under the dominion of lust with thousands who name the Name of Jesus! Religion is emphatically to exhibit its power where God came into abiding contact with human nature. All perverted sense-functions are debasing. Where flesh triumphs over spirit, body and soul are debauched. The law of solidarity has for many generations been active on the side of our lower nature, and has made the predominance of sense-life so natural; and apparently so necessary, that it is next to impossible to lift even the church out of the rut of carnality. You have undertaken a stupendous and arduous mission in the Brotherhood. To the majority your Gospel of organic law will be as new and incredible and Paul's annunciation of God in the flesh was to the sensuous Athenians. Acts 17: 18-20. It requires profound humility, sanctified wisdom, and the very patience and forbearance of Emmanuel, to make your efforts productive of good. Ignorance and prejudice and superstition are a mighty trinity in opposition to the truth. Everything that belongs to human weal centres in the one, sublime, everlasting mystery—God incarnate. This puts human nature into right conditions and relations at all points. This makes the mouth the very gate of heaven, the generative ordinance the symbol of the incarnation, and dress a sacerdotal investiture, and life itself, in its essence and outcome, the inbeing and manifestation of God. This is “the high calling of God in Christ Jesus:” too high for most, but not too high for our capacity, not too high for the possibilities of beauty and glory and bliss which are ours by virtue of our primitive constitution, and the infleshing of Jehovah.

For the Brethren at Work

WARNING FOR THE YOUNG.

BY EMMETT ESHELMAN.

WHILE reading the 34th chapter of Isaiah the thought of what a place awaiting the ungodly was very forcibly impressed upon my mind; when the streams shall be turned into pitch, the dust to brimstone, and the land to burning pitch, and the smoke of the torment (Rev. 14: 14) ascendeth forever and ever, and they have no rest day or night who worship the beast and its image. Oh! shall this be the fate of these dear young friends of mine? Will they have to be cast into this unquenchable flame? Oh that they might see their awful doom before it will be for ver too late. Listen to him who is knocking at the door of your heart. Will you not let him in? He longs to do you good. Let us hear his voice to-day. To-morrow we may be in the icy arms of death, and as death overtakes us, so judgment will find us.

Astoria, Ill.

For the Brethren at Work.

A PROSPECTIVE LIFE TERMINATED.

B. F. FITZNER.

JACOB Marion Dearnorff, son of brother Ephraim Dearnorff of the Marsh Creek church, Adams Co., Pa., on the 31st day of March last, left the parental hearth, in the most sanguine spirits, to visit friends and see some of the advantages enjoyed by the people of the great West and return home by the 10th of October. He spent several months of the Summer with brother Levi Trostle, of Franklin Grove, Ill.

About the middle of August he started farther West to visit friends in Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska. Having finished his visits in these States, on the morning of the 26th ult. he boarded a construction train at Panora, Iowa, (this is a new road, which, when completed, will connect with other principal lines), expecting soon to join his sister at Franklin Grove, Ill., ere long to unite with the dear ones at home. But alas! when only fifteen miles from Panora the train was wrecked with about ninety passengers, consisting mostly of railroad hands, with a few tourists, killing three and wounding perhaps thirty persons. The poor sufferers were immediately taken back to Panora, where all possible help was given to alleviate pain and misery.

At 5 o'clock of same day, the startling news of the accident was communicated to the parents: “Jacob is hurt—cannot live!” This sad message came like a thunderbolt, and created intense consternation in the family and community. And now imagine the dreadful suspense and anxiety! Several other telegrams followed, which only added grief to the already stricken hearts, till at length the conflict ended: “Jacob died at 2: 40 P. M.” This was on the 28th. On the morning of the 29th, Mr. C. M. Young, an acquaintance of the deceased and a prominent citizen of Panora, took charge of the remains to convey them to the home of the distressed family, where they arrived on Saturday night, Oct. 1st.

On Sunday at 9 A. M., a large circle of friends and relatives convened to pay the last tribute of respect to the departed, and were met by brother E. W. Stoner of Maryland, who with words of sympathy and condolence addressed the sorrowing, after which he addressed the God of all consolation, as only he could assuage our grief if we could confidently trust in him.

The funeral procession consisted of over one hundred carriages, and a great many joined the concourse at the place of interment. Brother Stoner spoke in the most touching terms, from the words, “For what is your life!” Brother C. L. Pfoutz also spoke briefly. Thus closed the career of one with whom the writer was intimately acquainted from the years of his early boyhood. His manners and deportment in life won for him the admiration and respect of all who knew him, and was such as to endear him to his many associates. Through his own personal efforts he acquired and enjoyed a good education, and bid fair for a life of usefulness.—but how transient, how brief. Oh may we all heed the oft recurring admonition, “Be ye also ready,” etc. The deceased was twenty-five years, one month, and twenty-six days old.

For the Brethren at Work

GOING DOWN.

BY MARY C. NORMAN.

“LET them go down,” is the cry of one who seems to be on the side of right. Coaxing the devil to support the Gospel is a modern device. The primitive church knew nothing of it. When Paul was collecting funds to aid poor saints at Jerusalem, he used no fairs, festivals, “mum sociables,” kissing games, or other sacriligious snares, to accomplish his object. The Christians paid their own bills and did not expect Satan to pay for the weapon which they used in warfare against him.

When the devil does support a church, he does so in his own interest. He carries on his operations with a full knowledge of the fact that, “a kingdom divided against itself cannot stand.” For every dollar paid out of his coffers to the church he receives full value. Church partnership with the evil one never benefits the former, but always the latter. Untold harm comes to the church by the use of even unquestionable measures to raise money for the support of God's work. It creates the impression on the minds of the world that the church is a kind of parasite, dependent for its existence on the community; that it is a sort of genteel beggar which it is proper and fashionable to support; that it is an object of curiosity or even pity and contempt, which is grateful for the tolerance of the people that let it live. The ungodly regard such churches as engaged in seeking money rather than souls. To stand before the world in this light is humiliating and degrading beyond expression. Such churches ought to be cleansed or closed, cured or killed.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE WORLD VERSUS THE CHURCH.

BY WILLIAM M. LYON.

ALL who believe the teachings of divine revelations must admit that there is a difference between the church of Christ and the world. The term world, in this sense, means all creation; and the church is the people belonging to the heavenly kingdom. Were it not that the Christian must live differently from the people of the world, there need not have been any divine law for man's guide and redemption, and if the world were to become universally Christianized before the end of time (as some erroneously suppose) then there would be no need of a civil law. But since it is admitted that there must be a division between the church and world, the great problem of mankind is, to mark out the line of separation, to discriminate between church and world, God's will and man's way, godliness and worldliness, Christianity and popularity. Whenever this line can be fully determined and established between the church and world, rendering satisfaction to the subjects of each kingdom, then there would be no confusion and blending of the doctrine of Christ with the traditions of men, religion with pomp and pride, the holy commands of God with the carnal and corrupt teaching of men.

Our legislative bodies in making their code of laws try to base their acts on the divine law, and to a great extent they are analogous in their nature. Yet the former allows many things forbidden in the latter. Civil government must needs be for the "punishment of evil-doers and the praise of them that do well."

The line of demarcation is as evident between the laws of God and man, as is the contrast between the customs of the church and world. Hence we see a striking contrast, as well as a close resemblance in some respects between that which is of Divine authority, and that which originated with man and is practiced by the world.

If the laws, manners, customs, and liberties of man, were in perfect harmony with the order of heaven, there would be no distinction between the acts and deeds of humanity and the wise ordination and arrangements of the beneficent Creator.

But through the creature's inferiority to the Creator, we have a perfect law given us by which the way is made plain for them that seek to follow after the ways of the Most High. Our Great and Living Head—the Divine Law-giver, has marked out the new and living way, and the line can never be effaced till time shall merge into eternity. God's chosen people must be characterized with the plain principles laid down in the Gospel, and whenever the church can no longer be distinguished from the world, then, according to Scripture, the time will soon come when God shall wipe the present universe out of existence. But when Christ shall again appear, He will find "faith on the earth," for "As it were in the days of Noah, so shall it also be in the days of the coming of the Son of Man."

Christ, in his sermon on the Mount hath said, "Enter ye in by the narrow gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that enter in thereby." "For narrow is the gate and straight is the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Consequently, we see that there are but two general classes of mankind; one traveling the broad way, the other the narrow way.

On the broad way is the most travel, because it is wide enough to admit of anything and everything that is desired by the world, or craved by the sordid, sensual mind of man. The travel on the narrow way is very limited, because it admits of nothing but that which Jesus hath commanded.

God's will in Christ Jesus, and man's way according to the flesh and nature, are perfectly antipodal. The world and the church are antagonistic, one with the other. Their antagonism will not allow reconciliation.

The church of Christ and the world can never be united. The former must be the same in faith and practice, but it must refrain from the latter in ALL things; because the Lord said, "Come ye out from among them, and be ye separate," etc. 2 Cor. 6: 17. The church must be characterized by total abstinence from the things that belong to the customs that have been instituted by the subjects of the worldly kingdom. We are to be subjects TO the "powers that be," but not subjects OF them. We are to walk honestly toward them that are without. 1 Thes. 4: 12. Therefore, we should be examples to them, instead of following their examples.

Let not then your good be evil spoken of. Rom. 14: 16. Do not give the world cause to speak evil of your good by professing to be a follower of Christ, and at the same time possessing the chief elements of a child of Satan. Be ye not transformed into an "angel of light," by profession, and by practice and appearance prove to the world that you are ensouled in darkness, but live as you profess, practice what you teach and preach, and live as lights to the world, instead of a stumblingblock to both church and world.

"Be not fashioned according to the world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind. It is impossible to live and be a true child of God and at the same time love the world or the things that are in the world. "Ye cannot love God and mammon. "He that loveth the world, hath not the love of the Father, that perfect love that casteth out fear." That love is the fulfilling of the law; but the love of the world is the condemnation of the very soul.

Beloved, we are now living in an epoch when it requires the greatest Christian vigilance, to keep ourselves unspotted from the world. Yea, I fear there are many spots that would soon stain and tarnish the spotless purity of our holy religion, were the church to heed the uncalled for callings of many that are to-day trying to unite the world with the church. I mean, brethren, those that are contending in the church for things that have ever been opposed by the old brethren that have established and advocated the order of our Brotherhood after the manner of the apostolic church. Whenever these worldly notions, customs and fashions are admitted in the church; whenever the church tolerates these things introduced and advocated by worldly-minded professors, then will our beloved fraternity receive a blow that will prove detrimental to the union that should bind together the people of God in one common body.

"United we stand, divided we fall." Mark them which are causing the divisive divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned; and avoid them. Rom. 16: 17.

Beloved, ye who are of the household of faith, and "earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the saints," if there ever was a time that we should stand firm in faith, and unshaken in doctrine, and unchangeable in practice, it is now. Because we have not only the world to contend with, but "certain men have crept in privily," ungodly men, turning the grace of God into lasciviousness, and denying our only Master and Lord Jesus Christ; these are trying to contaminate the sacred order of heaven with pride and vainglory, and doting about questionings and disputes of words, whereof cometh strife, envy, railings, evil-surmisings, wranglings of men corrupted in mind, and bereft of the truth.

Brethren, if we would preserve the primitive principles of Christianity, as instituted by our Savior, and practiced by the apostles; if we would maintain that prime pillar of truth, the perfect plan of salvation; if we would save our organized church on earth from downfall and ruin, we must love the Brotherhood, love the truth, love the peculiarities of God's church, and love, to do the commands and keep the ordinances as they were delivered unto us. On the other hand, we must turn away from all those evil characters that Paul in second letter to Timothy, 3rd chapter, describes as being persons that will stain and corrupt the fundamental features that constitute pure and undefiled religion. The time has surely come when men cannot endure sound doctrine. Our popular professors of Christianity preach universal Christianization before the end of time, but God's Word tells us "except there be a falling away" the end shall never come." We are surely now living in the last era of time; grievous wolves have already entered the fold and are scattering the sheep to the right and left. Brethren, what are we doing to save our beloved Brotherhood from corruption and pollution? If we would keep the enemy from invading the camp of Israel and bringing havoc and destruction to its peaceful inmates who are trying to "hold the fort" we must stand firm by our Leader, Captain, and Great Commander, and obey every single order that he has given. What though the foes are pressing hard to battle, and the very sound of victory seems to echo and reverberate throughout the mighty hosts as they are advancing in battle array, amid the lashing of their arms of rebellion; what though defeat and destruction threaten us on every side, if we are faithful, valiant, and obedient soldiers of the cross, how can we lose the victory? It is sure to the faithful and the brave though forsaken and deserted on every side. If God be for us who can be against us? O! what love, what humility, what courage, what faithfulness, what prudence, what zeal, what patience, what deadness to the world, should we have that we might be able to stand the fiery trial of faith, and survive the blows of the adversary. O! may the God of all grace be with us in all these trying times, unite us all as one body in Christ, supply us with all Christian qualifications, and save us as his children in eternity.

Greenland, W. V.

For the Brethren at Work.

OUR RETURN UNTO GOD.

BY MARTHA PIKE.

HERE is a turning point in the history of every soul that is saved—a time of being converted to God. There may not be the rising from the same depth of misery, but there arises the same desire of returning to God. In time of health and plenty we may forget God, but let sorrow and affliction come upon us and how soon we feel the need of that strong arm. It is very ungrateful that this should be so, that we should forget God in prosperity and seek him in time of trouble; but so it was with the prodigal son: when in distress he remembered, he reflected, and came to himself. He thought of home, and the resolve arose in his heart: "I will arise and go to my father." Oh! may many who are yet in sin, resolve like this poor way-faring soul, that they will no longer stray away from the fold, but return while there is time and opportunity given them. The prodigal's father might possibly have changed, but our Father in heaven never changed. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life." John 3: 16. Thus we may depend on the love of God; for it is a never-failing love. The poor prodigal counted on his father's love, and was not disappointed. When he returned, his father saw him, and had compassion and fell on his neck and kissed him. All the past was forgiven and forgotten in the joy of the present. And so it is when a sinner returns to God; his transgressions and sins are never named to him and he may enter at once into the joy and peace of the family of God. For there is more joy over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine just persons who need no repentance. For us who return to God, there is a joyous reception. We have an elder brother there, not only rejoicing to receive sinners, but it is through his work and intercessions that the way is made open for our return to the Father's house. Christ our elder Brother appears at the right hand of God, and through him every blessing and favor from God is bestowed on the pardoned soul.

Ah! then with all the invitations and promises and encouragements of the Gospel, let the resolution arise in your hearts, to arise and go to the Father. In any time of darkness, of difficulty, of doubt, of fear, learn to resort unto God. When your own wisdom and understanding are at fault, and when earthly counsellors and friends cannot help you, then is the time to resolve: "I will arise and go to my Father." He is the Father of light, the fountain of truth, the source of wisdom. When in danger or distress, and human help and relief are unavailing, remember there is one who is waiting to be gracious, ready to help, almighty to save; and when friends fail or the physicians give no help, or whenever an earthly father or mother forsake you, let the resolution come into your mind, "I will arise and go to my Father." Your heavenly Father who has taught that if earthly parents give good things to their children, how much more shall he not give his holy spirit to them that ask him. Whether then in danger and you want safety, in trouble and you want peace, in darkness and you want light, in misery and you want your soul fed with something better than this world's vanities; whatever your condition let your resolution be, "I will arise and go to my Father." That Father is almighty, He is infinite in love and pity. Having then come unto Him by faith through life, at death he will receive you joyfully into the mansions of eternal glory.

Lucas, Marshall Co., Ill.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER VI.

THERE was so much to be seen in Heidelberg that we hardly knew where to begin. It is reported to occupy one of the most beautiful localities in Germany. It is situated in the valley of the Neckar, which runs close to the city, and is overlooked by well-wooded hills, while on the opposite side of the river the rising ground is covered by rich vineyards as far as the eye can reach. At a great height above the town stands the castle of Heidelberg, which once combined the double character of palace and fortress. It is a solid, square building, with towers at each end, one low and round, the other high and octagonal shape. A wall with a moat surrounds it. The cellars are extensive, and contain tuns, or fass, which were used to store wine. One of them has a capacity of 500 hogsheads. In front of it stands a wooden statue of a court fool, who never went to bed sober, and never drank less than fifteen or eighteen bottles daily. There are two paths or roads leading from the castle down to the city. Great linden, oak and beech trees shadow the road, and in little nooks limpid streams of water gush and trickle along, until caught in stone basins where we could sit and quench our thirst, and at the same time drink in through the eye beautiful visions, caught now and then, of the city in the valley, of the peaceful Neckar gliding by, and the vineyards on the hill-sides. In a curve of the road is a handsome pavilion surrounded with shrubbery and flowers and fountains, where all classes meet together and listen to the music or take their ices. This, with the scenery around them, leaves nothing wanting for their present enjoyment. The Germans enjoy life under all circumstances, and in this way they make themselves far happier than we who have greater means of doing so.

BADEN BADEN.

We go by rail through the Grand Duchy of Baden, which is entirely agricultural, passing large vineyards and numerous orchards, and at last find our stopping place nestling in a lovely valley, inclosed by the lower heights of the Black Forest. It is the annual resort of pleasure seekers and invalids from all parts of the world. Its springs have been long and favorably known, even in the time of the Romans, and the palace now belonging to the Duke occupies the site of a Roman villa and baths. The springs have a temperature of 153 degrees Fahrenheit. The taste is saltish, and the water has a disagreeable smell. There are thirteen hot springs, from one of which the water is conveyed to the Trinkhalle in pipes. The front of the hall is ornamented with frescoes representing legends of the Black Forest. Between six and eight A. M., a band discourses beautiful music, and the visitors drink or promenade, or both. The great rendezvous is at the Conversationhaus, which is said to be the finest one in the world. In front stands a Chinese pagoda which cost $70,000, and is used for a music stand. The building has a Corinthian portico, and includes an immense assembly room, reading room, with a great choice of newspapers, coffee and billiard rooms, open all the year, a theatre and a suit of rooms, for assembly and hall purposes. We attended an open air concert, and our tickets admitted us to the inner apartments. It was not assembly or ball night, and no part was lighted except the reading room, which was richly carpeted with heavy velvet to prevent the sound of footsteps as people pass in and out. And no one was permitted to speak aloud while in the room devoted to reading. An usher, learning that we were Americans, offered to take candles and show us the ball and assembly rooms. Of course we accepted the offer and entered the ball-room, which had a vaulted ceiling, handsomely frescoed, and from the center hung an immense chandelier. The walls were lined with mirrors extending from the ceiling to the floor, which was of marble. The mirrors were framed in the walls and finished with heavy gilt mouldings. The drawing rooms are finished in the same manner and furnished with gilded furniture, upholstered in heavy silk damask, each room furnished in different colors. The rooms are perfectly gorgeous in the dark, and when well lighted, with the music from the organ floating through them, the gaily-dressed ladies gliding about from room to room, I can imagine the scene to be bewilderingly beautiful.

Above the town is the new Schloss, or palace of the Grand Duke, in which his ancestors have lived for the last 400 years, and above this stands an old Schloss, or castle where the ancient Dukes resided previous to the fifteenth century. It is now in ruins, and the castellan exhibited to us many curious vaults and mysterious dungeons. I think there were but two or three of the party who went up to the highest battlements, all being satisfied with the wonderful view from the second highest. On one hand, as far as the eye can reach, lay the Black Forest, on the other, the valley of the Rhine, while at our feet nestled the beautiful little town, partly hidden by the trees. Our drive up the hills, winding round like the letter S, with the trees on either hand so thick as to screen us as if the shadows of night were falling; the climbing of the old stone stairs in the earth, the view from the battlements and the ride back to the hotel, form a picture in my mind that can never be erased while mind lasts.

There are many pleasant things connected with an excursion like ours, and some unpleasant ones—one, the fact that as soon as we begin to know something of a place and think how delightful it would be to spend a week at least, comes a request from the conductor that we must be ready to leave on the next train or diligence. It was of no avail to even wish that we might stay, so we obeyed the summons and took our departure for Schaffhausen and the falls of the Rhine.

For the Brethren at Work.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BY ENOCH EBY.

I SEE in B. at W., No. 40, page 534 reference made to the property of the Mission board furnishing some means to hire a hall in St. Louis for the Brethren to preach in. I for one favor the idea, and in answer to an appeal for help, some time ago, from Bro. Myers of St. Louis, I referred him to Bro. Quinter, with the encouragement that he would perhaps obtain something; but this is only my view as one of the members.

And I would further remark that I feel sorry, and often a little ashamed, that we, as a little body, have been and are doing so little in the cause of spreading the truth, especially when liberal hearts have filled the treasury; but I hope when our dear brethren will stop and consider a few moments they will not fail to see at least two (among the many) good reasons for inactivity or seeming indifference on the part of the board. The members of the board live so distant from each other; hence it is difficult to consult on important points; and to meet often incurs considerable expense. Hope the Brethren generally will consider this matter, and at next A. M. be prepared to make some profitable change. Another prominent reason I allude to, is the unsettled state of the church. This should not interfere; but by experience I learn it does in place to a considerable extent. I am well aware, however, if all the time and talent spent in criticizing the present condition of the church and the causes that produced the unhappy state were given to spreading the truth in the world, in a meek and quiet spirit, there would soon be a better state of things among us.

I hope in these times of trial the Brethren, generally, will try to exhibit as much as possible a spirit of meekness, humility and forbearance in their conversation, preaching and editing—not judging rashly or speaking harshly; not speaking lightly or with a degree of indifference about our brethren who are making the mistake, and the lamentable state of our beloved Zion, such as, "well, they are lopping off in a number of places," and "let them go, we have no use for such!" and similar expressions made with an air of rejoicing rather than lamentation and weeping. Such expressions are more befitting a political than a religious body.

Perhaps never in the history of the church in America did the language of the hymn apply more appropriately than now.

Well may thy servants mourn, my God,

The church's desolation;

The state of Zion calls aloud!

For grief and lamentation.

Once she was all alive to thee,

And thousands were converted;

But now a sad reverse we see—

Her glory is departed.

That the Lord seemingly has left us to ourselves for awhile and the enemy availing himself of the opportunity to work, is a fact that cannot be denied; but we still hope in the promise, that "all things shall work together for good to them that love the Lord." Then let us try to be of that number; and the clouds so large and threatening will break in blessings on our heads, and Zion shall go forth clear as the sun, fair as the moon and terrible as an army with banners. May the Lord grant it! Amen.

Leta, Ill.

[The last line of the stanza quoted by our brother needs a little looking after. The Lord says to his people, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." Heb. 13: 5. We do not think the glory of the church—its high reputation before God, is gone. Nor can we believe the Lord has left us to ourselves. If he has, then we can do nothing in the Lord. God is still with his people, and will lead them on to eternal glory. Let us trust him. Ed.]

Home and Family.

MARY G. NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN. - EDITRESS

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

As a general rule, for living neatly and saving time, it is better to keep clean than to make clean. If you are careful not to drop crumbs of cake and bread on the carpet, and take similar precautions, you will escape an untidy room and the trouble of cleaning it. In working, if you make a practice of putting all the ends of your thread into a division of the workbox made for the purpose, and never let it fall on the floor, the room will look very different at the end of a day from what it does when not attended to.

A house is kept far cleaner when all the members of the family are taught to wipe their feet thoroughly on coming from out of doors than it can be where this is neglected. There are a thousand ways of keeping clean and saving labor and time which it is well worth while to learn and practice.

A judicious wife is always slipping off from her husband's moral nature little twigs that are growing in wrong directions. She keeps him in shape by continual pruning. If you say anything silly, she will affectionately tell you so, if you declare that you will do some absurd thing, she will find some means of preventing you from doing it. By far the chief part of all the common sense that is in the world belongs unquestionably to woman. The wisest things a man commonly does, are those which his wife counsels him to do. A wife is a grand wielder of the moral pruning knife. The wife's advice is like the ballast that keeps the ship steady. (N)

CHILDREN, RECEIVE INSTRUCTION.

HEAR, ye children, the instruction of a father, and attend to know understanding; for I give you good doctrine, forsake not my law; for I was my father's son, tender and only beloved in the sight of my mother. He taught me also, and said unto me, Let thine heart retain my words: keep my commandments, and live. Prov. 4: 1-4.

Solomon, in the character of a father, details the instruction that he had received from his own parents. Solomon was a wise son; for he hearkened unto the instructions of his parents. Thus we see the fruits of righteous instructions by parents to their children. Well could Solomon say, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Solomon not only spoke from observation, but also by experience. He had been brought up in the path of righteousness; hence he was inclined to walk there. We are not only taught in divine Revelation to teach; but also to train. There is quite a difference between those two words—teaching and training.

Parents, begin in your children's youth to teach them true principles and train them up in the practice of their duty, and you will have great reason to hope they will form habits of religion and good morals, from which they will not become easily diverted.

Parents, perform your duties in the spirit of holiness. Make it your first and great concern to bring up your children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. In early life, they must be restrained from the indulgences of self-will, and taught to submit to authority; for this is the very foundation of good education. They should be kept as much as possible from such companions and books as pollute the imagination and inflame the passions. Be solicitous and assiduous in your endeavor to inculcate upon the youthful mind the great things of the Gospel; lead them to where the whole is plainly taught; and when at home enforce true principles which form the Christian character. Those you will share the blessings of a true home, and the result will be good, obedient children, who will in their hearts retain your words and keep your commandments and live.

PAID IN ONE'S OWN COIN.

PETER's mother died. After that he was sent to his grandmother's, for he had a quarrelsome, fretful temper, and his aunt could not manage him with the other children. His grandmother dealt kindly and patiently with him, to improve.

Peter now had a new mother, and his father had sent for him to come home. But he did not want to go; he felt sure he should not like his new mother and that she would not like him.

"That depends upon yourself, Peter," said grandmother. "Carry love and kindness in your pocket and you'll find no difficulty."

The idea struck the boy favorably. He wished he could, he said.

"And the best of it is," said grandmother, "if you once begin paying it out, your pockets will never be empty, for you'll be paid in your own coin. Be kind and you'll be treated kindly; love and you'll be loved."

"I wish I could," said Peter.

All the way home he thought more or less of it. He did not know about his welcome home, or what his father or new mother said to him. The next morning he rose early, as he used to do at grandmother's, and came down stairs, where everything being new, he felt very strange and lonely.

"I know I shan't be contented here," he said to himself: "I know I shan't; I'm afraid there's not a bit of love in my pocket."

However, in a little while his new mother came down, when Peter went up to her and said:

"Mother, what can I do to help you?"

"My dear boy," said she, kissing him on the forehead, "how thoughtful you are. I thank you for your kind offer; and what can I do for you, for I'm afraid you will be lonely here at first, coming from your dear, good grandmother."

What a kiss was that! It made him so happy.

"That's paying me in more than my own coin," thought Peter.

Then he knew he should like his new mother; and from that good hour Peter's pockets began to fill with the beautiful, bright coin of kindness, which is the best "small change" in the world. Keep your pockets full of it and you will never be unhappy. (N)

"THOU GOD SEEST ME."

ONE day a pious man heard a carter-boy swearing in a most shocking manner. The lad was on his team, and was just setting out for Manchester. So the good man stepped up to the cart, and said to the boy kindly:—"My lad, if thou wilt swear, stop till thou shalt get through the turnpike gate, on the road, and then swear where no one but God and thyself can hear." And so saying he bid him good morning.

The boy cracked his whip and drove off. But somehow the man's words seemed to cling to him, and he could not forget them.

The next time the man met the carter-boy, he appeared so serious and changed that the man asked him what the matter was.

"Ah, sir," said the boy, "do you remember the morning you spoke to me about swearing? Well, I went along the road through the turnpike, and when I got to the moor I remembered your words, and I was thunder-struck. Though I was alone, I knew God was with me, and I trembled to think he had been with me all my life, and seen all my sins. And I feared he would strike me dead." But, sir, I thank God now that you roused me to think of these things, and to seek after salvation and forgiveness for my poor soul."

There are four words which have a mighty meaning in them. They have a wonderful power over our conduct. When we do right we like to think of them, but when we do wrong we cannot bear to think of them. Here they are, and who will recollect them? "Thou God seest me." (N)

"GOOD MORNING."

DON'T forget to say "Good morning!" Say it to your parents, your brothers and sisters, your schoolmates, your teachers—and with a smile; it will do you good, and do your friends good: "There's a kind of inspiration in every 'good morning,' heartily spoken, that helps to make boys fresher and work lighter. It seems really to make the morning good, and to be a prophecy of a good day to come after it. And if this be true of the 'good morning,' it is also of kind, heartwarming greetings; they cheer the discouraged, rouse the tired one, somehow make the wheels of life run more smoothly. Be liberal with them, then, and let no morning pass, however dark and gloomy it may be, that you do not help at least to brighten by your smiles and cheerful words."

One class (foreigners), being only one-fifth of the entire population, furnishes four-fifths of the liquor-selling. This being true, sixteen times as large a proportion of foreign-born citizens are engaged in this misery-breeding business as of native-born Americans. There can certainly be no merit in being born on American soil; still we in a rightfully look for good moral results from governmental seeds planted by men of faith and profound religious convictions at Plymouth and in the colony of Penn.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

NOVEMBER 8, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE, }
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Ernest Eby,	A. W. Howe,	D. E. Broshier,
James Ryan,	S. J. Mohler,	J. J. Hornsby,
Daniel Vanaman,	C. H. Batschung,	J. W. Southwood.

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the location of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please send in originals and pronouncements and unimportant language, but present their views "with grace associated with salt." Those sending eight names and $12.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the publisher.

Money sent by Express-Orders, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

A PLEASANT VISIT.

IN the last number of the BRETHREN AT WORK brother Moore pinches the editor concerning his accounts of travel. Perhaps we do lean over a little to one side on this subject, and trim our news too closely. We just here confess it tries us to spin out a long thin thread from such a small amount of wool "Brevity," says Jean Paul Richter, "is the body and soul of wit; because redundancy produces no distinctions." It is not our desire to be witty; but we shall continue to study brevity whether it be related to wit or not.

On the 27th ult., left for Christian county, Ill., by way of Chicago. Bro. P. Fahrney came into the Wabash depot, and together we spent an hour very pleasantly. The Doctor is still vigorously pushing his "Vitalizer"—a medicine said to possess rare virtues. Left the city at 9 A. M., and at 5:30 P. M., reached Morrisville, Ill. Here resides Bro. Abram Leer, a fellow-worker in the Lord. We did not see him; but were pleased to learn that his eyes are again good and strong. Bro. J. J. Cart took us in and lodged us, and on the morning, 28th, sent us on our journey on horseback, our destination being the home of Bro. B. B. Whitmer, eleven miles distant. On the way passed the home of friend Clins where years ago under the shade of the trees in the yard, our heart was made tender by the preaching of Daniel Vasiman, Abram Leer, and other faithful servants.

Saturday night, met in the L. A. Joro School-house for public worship. This was a joyful meeting with old neighbors, friends and brethren. On Sunday the 30th met at 11 A. M. for preaching. Large audience and much interest. After meeting went to the water and immersed Emma Harsh, a tender lamb of twelve summers. In the evening assembled for worship. Every seat was densely crowded and many had to stand during services. Bro. B. B. Whitmer is the elder in charge of Clear Creek church, and the only preacher. He needs assistance, and we hope some one may soon be found to aid him the Lord's work.

Bro. Whitmer is in the hearts of the people here. He has lived among them for sixteen years, having been the first member in this part of the country. He preaches all he can, and works hard on his farm to support himself and family. He has no idea of hiring out to preach the gospel, and lives as he preaches.

We are pleased with the people. They are plain, sensible and accommodating. The members know the truth, love it, and live it. All who attended the meeting were orderly and respectful. Truly we regretted to separate from them. It was in this country, under the preaching of Bro. David Kimmel, Daniel Vaniman, C. C. Gibson and others, that our feet were formed to the testimony of the Lord. We believed the testimony—could not have believed without it. Without egotism we may be permitted to say that we were the first person baptized in that country. It was on the 11th of June—a clear and beautiful day. A multitude assembled to witness what was to them, a new order—a new thing. With the little flock, which was then a branch of the Sugar Creek church, we remained several months and then moved to Lanark.

There are not in this church any men claiming fraternity because it suits their purpose, and yet are at sea, without chart or compass, refusing to accept the Jerusalem church as a model. It seems to be the desire of God's people to reflect the original church upon settled principles. They keep the faith once delivered unto the saints, and are determined not to barter it for the old flesh-pots, nor permit it to be stolen from them by the world. We hope they will cling to the faith, and keep on defending it until the King of glory comes with his angels.

On Monday, the 31st, we bade adieu to old scenes and loving friends, and came to Cerro Gordo, where dwell many who have been with Jesus. Here lives brother John Metzger, one of the elders of the church. Forty and six years he has been a standard bearer in the army of the Lord. He is still vigorous, persevering, long-suffering and kind. He finds no time to fret and worry over what he cannot help; but God-like turns his time and talent in persuading men and women to flee from sin and lay hold of righteousness.

Preached to a large audience in Cerro Gordo in the evening. The Brethren here have a good house, neat, plain and substantial. It was built by Bro. John Metzger and donated to the church. This is a monument that will endure for many years. Here met Bro. D. Frantz, D. B. Gibson, David Troxel and others of like precious faith. The membership is large, and the devotion to the church strong and firm. Numbers add strength, only when pious, holiness and devotion are added. And the better way to show strength by good example. So far as we could be the church at Cerro Gordo are lovers of good examples, and strive to imitate that which comes from the Lord. Bro. A. B. Snider, minister of Jesus Christ, took us to his home and cared for us. His wife is somewhat afflicted and could not attend meeting. It pleased the Lord to help us to talk and pray together in her room. God is with her, and in patience she bears all her afflictions. Sister Mest took us in during the night, and ministered to our wants. We would have been glad to meet Bro. Metzger, but he was in Iowa, laboring in the Master's vineyard. The evening of the night passenger near Decatur, delayed us two hours so that we could not leave at 10 A. M. At that time our company—fifteen—went on cheerfully, reflecting over the faithful meetings we had among the saints. In the midst of these pleasant thoughts, the train stopped on the prairie. A freight train had been thrown from the track, so we again delayed. Reached Chicago at 6 P. M. and left for home 9:30 P. M., arriving Wednesday morning Nov. 2nd. Our friends had gathered in at our home Tuesday evening, expecting to surprise us with a supper and their presence, but alas for poor mortal calculation, six weeks along the road prevented our being with them at the table.

OUR REFLECTOR.

—I FIND the items of first page very interesting this week. To me that is the most interesting part of the paper.

—Bro. George Zollers' "Life on the Ocean" will prove interesting to his many friends. I know it will be greatly appreciated by brother Addison Harper, another old sailor. There is something charming about ocean stories; every body loves to read them. They also open a wide field for thought.

—There is a very serious mistake in brother Mohler's "Foot-washing," this week, first paragraph, second column. It reads "Blessed are they that do this commandment." The sentiment is all right as applied to foot-washing but it does not read that way in Rev. 22:3. "Blessed are they that do his commandments embracing all the commands given by Jesus. Likely the proof-reader did not notice the paragraph closely. By the way, some of our contributors have no idea what a help a proof-reader is to their articles. Bro. Mohsays: that feet-washing tends to humble us, the rich washing the feet of the poor is calculated to produce the brotherly feeling so much needed among the people of God. That is wholesome doctrine; but how is it where there are so many who do not wash feet? I have attended feasts where a dozen ministers were present and not one of them stooped to wash the feet of his brother. Now if washing feet is calculated to produce humility then let us practice in a way that will bring all of us into the harness.

—Bro. D. A. Norcross, with but one arm, has had a hard fight of it and I think the heading of his article just fits his case.

—While Bro. Evans is "Among the churches" it seems that he cannot get need to the tobacco smoke. I wonder if some of these good saints will smoke when they shall be permitted to see Christ coming in the clouds of heaven! Will they then say that it is so hard for them to quit?

—After reading the letter "From China," written by Miss S. E. Stein, every woman ought to thank God that she lives in an enlightened country where she is not required to submit to such treatment. Miss Stein is brother J. W. Stein's only sister. She is a young lady of talent and education, and has volunteered to help elevate the degraded people of China. Her task is a difficult one, and attended with many hardships and privations.

—The article about "George Moore of London" contains a grand lesson for every young man and woman. There is always plenty of room in the world for energetic persons to do good and accumulate that which is useful. We want to be active, keep ourselves constantly employed in something useful and profitable and then make a good use of that which may fall into our hands.

—Bro. Ebelmann's "Address To Our Readers" contains his usual way of putting warmth into his business enterprises. The man works hard—too hard for his good—and is not getting rich either. As a rule, editors know not the value of wealth.

—"What is Doctrine?" should form a considerable part of every minister's study. Paul told Timothy that he should give attention to reading and doctrine, and this is just what we should do. Reading and doctrine is where the power comes from in preaching, yet there are many ministers who read very little and study doctrine still less. They give no attention in their preaching to doctrine, hence disregard the very thing that Paul required of Timothy.

—I would like to say a good deal about Bro. Enoch Eby's "Explanation," but perhaps it would be considered out of place. I do not think the matter he refers to has been explained enough. In conversation he has told me all about it, and that too in a very satisfactory

LITERARY THEFT.

IN 1873 Benjamin Franklin, Editor of American Christian Review—a man who stood next to Alexander Campbell in boldness and argumentative powers, published a book entitled "The Gospel Preacher" in two volumes. Five years afterwards or in 1878 S. H. Bashor published a work entitled "The Gospel Hammer." It is somewhat remarkable that Benjamin Franklin should copy (?) so profusely from the "Gospel Hammer," and it is to be regretted that he cannot be called up from his grave and questioned concerning the using (?) of Bashor's arguments without quotation points or in any manner giving credit to the "Hammer." That the readers may see this in its true light we place selections from the "Hammer" and "Preacher" in parallel columns.

From Bashor's Gospel Hammer.

What then are we going to do with the infants? some ask. Simply do nothing till they can know the Lord. Till they can believe, nothing can be done for them, for they have no personal sins; are not accountable; need no church, no confession or repentance and having no actual sin, they need nothing only the resurrection to save them. Just what my saint needs. Hence Jesus said of them, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." He did not style them "sinners," but to men he said, "Except ye repent and become as little children ye cannot enter the kingdom of heaven." You need not fear your children will grow up into heathenism. . . . To believe, repent and turn to God is a personal matter, and a personal responsibility is involved in it.—Page 38.

If you take that covenant, you find that both we and our children are forever excluded, because neither of us belong to the classes described as being in it. If you leave that covenant, you find neither infants nor circumcision. In either case your argument is ruined, and your theory entirely destroyed.—Page 35.

But in the new covenant, the one, founded on better promises, they are not in it by virtue of a natural or birth of the flesh, but by being born again, "of water and of the Spirit," not of corruptible seed, but of seed incorruptible; of the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever. Not a fleshly relation, but a spiritual relation to God. Not by being purchased with money, but by being born again.—Page 36.

The first chapter in "Gospel Hammer," and Sermon 8 in Franklin's "Preacher," are so much alike that one is almost forced to conclude that the same hand wrote both. How Benjamin Franklin could copy (?) from Bashor wrote his book, is a problem we leave for Bashor to solve. Probably he can explain it.

way, but it has not yet been told to the readers of the B. at W. Bro. Eby and others have been severely censured for doing as they did at Berlin, but if impartial parties could hear the other side of the case they would likely see things quite differently.

—"The Balloon" article has too much head for the body. It reminds me of the worldly big hats. It is not written in a very instructive manner. The incidents are too much disconnected.

—Forty baptisms reported this week. Previously reported 163, making in all 203.—J. H. MOORE.

INCONSISTENCY.

A BROTHER is allowed to write sentiments and feelings and have them published by the press to thousands, in the name of the Brethren: yet even use his own press—the

From Franklin's Gospel Preacher.

"What, then, will you do with infants?" says a man. Nothing, till they can know the Lord. Till they can believe, nothing can be done for them, nor do they need anything: Till they can know the Lord and believe, they are not subjects of religion, not accountable. They need no faith, repentance, confession nor membership in the church. . . . They are not personal or actual sin. Hence Jesus said unto them, "Of such is the kingdom of God," and of persons of the years of accountability he said "Except you repent and become as little children, you cannot enter the kingdom of God." This shows that he did not style them little sinners. . . . No one need begin now to think or talk of children growing up in heathenism. . . . It is now seen that to hear, believe, repent turn to God, and become a member of the church, is a personal thing. It is a personal act, and a personal responsibility is involved in it.—Page 220.

If you go to that covenant, you find that we are excluded by the description of the only two classes in it; that we were not, and our children were not born in Abraham's family, nor purchased with his money. If you abandon that covenant you find no infants, nor circumcision. In either case, you are completely defeated and your argument ruined.—Page 205.

Under the new covenant, the best covenant founded on better promises, they are not in it by virtue of the first, or natural birth, but by being born again; . . . not on the ground of flesh or blood relation to man, but spiritual relation to God; . . . not of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of the will of God; not of corruptible seed, but the incorruptible seed.—Page 212.

meet powerful influence in the world, which he is a novice or one of experience; but a brother is allowed to open his mouth to express his feelings or sentiments as a teacher the name of the Brethren, without authority from the church, even to a congregation one hundred. Is it any wonder our beloved and once united Brotherhood, has become divided and one party blaming the other for the evil work?

It is an old maxim: "Like priest, like people." With the same propriety we can say: Like paper, like reader. I have thought if a "Progressive" brethren would read the "Vindicator," and some of our old brethren have went out from us would read the "Conservative" papers they would be better balanced and more Scriptural than those, just where the church is and always did stand.

ENOCH EBY.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

THIS being a rainy, dismal day, I concluded to spend a few hours in writing, and a part of it to B. AT W. I have been a reader of the paper for about three years, and during this time it has made several changes, some for the better and some for the worse.

There is an old adage, "Many men of many minds," etc. Very true, we have many opinions and ideas; also our tastes are very different. What one admires another abhors, what one discards another desires, and what is pleasing to the eye of one, another would turn his back to. We find this the case upon our farms, in making improvements,—our tastes differ from some others.

So it is in editing a paper. The editors think they can make an improvement; sometimes their improvements may be just the reverse. I wish to give a few thoughts on the improvements of the paper. There have been some complaints concerning unfulfilled promises. We were promised a stitched and trimmed paper, this we appreciated while it lasted; but came too often not stitched; also we were promised letters from Bro. J. W. Stein, which we have failed to receive. Nevertheless, we know, dear brethren, that your labors are great; and truly it is the best paper I have seen. Now I hope, dear brethren, that our paper will be stitched hereafter.

Now, I ask, (as one subscriber out of nearly ten thousand) as an improvement, hereafter, that you place on the first or last page of the paper a table of contents with the names of the writers. This would be quite an improvement. I, with many others, sometimes wish to refer back to hunt up certain articles, and am compelled to examine every page; but with a table of contents, would need but to refer to that. Realizing that you are engaged in a great and grand work—spreading the Gospel, earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, we pray that the blessings of God may rest upon you.

JACOB R. KELLER.

SOME REMARKS.

Thank you, brother, for the kind spirit, and Christian love. In regard to improvements of B. AT W. WORK, the readers must be the judges. The large number of letters on file here, if published, would be very interesting. Some are intensely eulogistic, some worded in strong commendatory language, while others have a vein of complaint running through them. In regard to stitching the paper, we feel that for some of the failures we were to blame, and for some we were not. Occasionally the machine broke as we were stitching, and of course this put it beyond our power to stitch the remainder of that issue. For this we were not to blame. On the other hand, quite a number kept pleading not to stitch the paper, and heeding them, we did not stitch several numbers. For this we were to blame. We should have gone on as usual. As to brother Stein's letters, no one is more disappointed than we are. The day before he left, he came up to our office and entered into a written agreement to furnish B. AT W., all his correspondence, and we confidently relied on the fulfillment of this obligation; Why, he never wrote us, we cannot say. However, we have learned a lesson that will be useful to us hereafter. Our readers will get the "fat things" without any promises on our part.

The index would no doubt be convenient, but it is so near the close of this volume, that we think it not best to begin now. Permit us to suggest a method of indexing superior to that in a paper. Procure a small blank, index book. When you read an article in a book or paper, write the name of the article in your blank book under the appropriate letter, and opposite the name, the title of the book, and the page where it may be found; or if in a paper, write name of the paper, volume and No. In this way you can soon find what you want, and it will always be at hand. Commending you to the grace of God and the Word of his power, we remain yours in Gospel bonds.—ED.

For the Brethren at Work.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

IT will not pay to stint and pinch in order to glitter a few hours before a thoughtless crowd.

Never follow the example of those mothers who will peckly feed and clothe their own children in order to load their tables with luxuries for strangers.

We should seek the comforts of home and home first for those who dwell there, and when their friends come they will best enjoy those comforts with them without additional display.

Few people, out of our own families, know or care how we live; you can probably neither surprise nor please them by opening fine parlors, kept only for special occasions and the reception of strangers.

Therefore, let our homes, whether large or small, be arranged principally for the comfort and enjoyment of those who dwell there. Warmth, light, and plenty of pure air in our rooms are far better than costly furniture, and good beds better than costly bedsteads. The more healthful, tasteful, comfortable and enjoyable our homes are to those who dwell there, the more agreeable and enjoyable it will be to our friends who come to share them with us.

Mere show and display degrade the mind.

From Star and Crescent.

SCARED INTO REPENTANCE.

ROBERT Collyer says, referring to the assassination of President Garfield, "This is not a land of peace; it is a nation of armed men. The farmer has a revolver in his bedroom, and the merest boy on the slightest provocation pulls out his pistol. Two hundred years have proved that in civil life, at least, the Quaker is right, no Quaker ever shoots, and no Quaker is ever shot. There should be general disarmament, and we should guard the sale of pistols as we would guard the sale of popguns. It is the brutality that comes from the possession of weapons that does the harm." An exchange adds, "Brother Collyer is not far from right." And the "downward" practice of carrying shooting irons is "increasing daily. It is as common as ever in this State, where we now have such a vigorous law against it. A remedy Collyer does not suggest, probably for the very reason that he knows of none that will prove effectual. His remarks on the subject were brought about by a reference to the shooting of President Garfield, and he further said, 'If Guiteau had carried out his intent, I know just what would have happened. Ministers would have gone to him and told him that if he accepted their plan of salvation he would go straight to heaven, and it would have gone out to the world that he was walking in paradise; white his face was blackening on the scaffold.' Such proceedings are a libel on religion and common sense. As a man sooths so shall he reap. That is good Scripture and I believe it. A universal preaching of such doctrine as this, would, we think, prove as much of a preventative of murders as any one thing. As a man sooths so shall he reap.' The man to whom such doctrine is preached will not go gunning for his neighbor. There is something wrong in the Christianity that drops the unprepared victim into the orthodox hell and gives the brute who does the slaughtering a chance to get scared into repentance and a reserved seat among the pure and elect."

The Catholic Standard wants to know of us why, in view of James' direction, "Protestants never have recourse to anointing in the case of themselves or their friends when sick." We will tell it. It is because of the progress of science (science! yes, science—hateful word!) since the days of James. Medical science has shown a better treatment than with oil. The medical profession has been created by Christianity. We now pray with and for the sick and call the doctor. That is the plain truth.—Independent.

Does the Independent hold that what James says by the Holy Ghost, has been supplanted by science? So medical science has shown a better treatment! No wonder Christianity becomes confused in the hands of such as deny the Law of God. James 5: 14, 15, is God's decree. Evidently the Independent has not learned the Lord's lesson on anointing the sick with oil.

HAPPINESS is like manna. It is to be gathered in the grain and enjoyed every day; it will not keep; it cannot be accumulated; nor need we go out of ourselves nor into remote places to gather it, since it has rained down from Heaven, at our very doors, or rather within them.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Ladue, Henry Co., Mo.

Will some one please explain 1. Cor. 14: 34, 35? Why are women to keep silence in the church?—Shall they not sing or pray or what shall they do? A BROTHER.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations? C. D. H.

Please explain the difference between a good man and a righteous man. JOHN Y. SNAVELY.

Please give the true meaning of the word "cleast." Matt. 6:6. JOHN Y. SNAVELY.

Please explain Matt. 24: 40, 41. It reads, "There shall be two in the field; the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, the other left." LYDIA ZARNER.

Will some one explain the last part of the 6th verse of the 8th chapter of John: "But Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground," etc. How could he write on the ground, when he was in the temple? A SISTER.

Why did Simon want the honor as mentioned in those verses—to gain honor, fame, money, or what? PETER BROWN.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in towns? ELIAS HARNISH.

For the Brethren at Work.

A COMPARISON.

TAKE three half-dollars or three pieces of any size, so that they are of equal size; place the three in a straight row, touching each other with the side of the row towards you; then, without moving the outside two, draw the inside one towards you, until your opinion or your judgment by the eye tells you that the distance between the piece that you moved and the other two (inside or nearer place) is equal to the distance between the outside or furthest of the other two.

We believe that God is a merciful God, and popular opinion tells us that God will not be so unmerciful as to allow any of his creatures to go to everlasting punishment; if they have a good conscience and are sincere in believing, that they are Christians and are sure of Heaven, because they obey the important commands that are essential unto salvation; they are zealous in love and forgiveness and they live honestly; and with regard to the many little commands, that we will gain nothing by doing, and lose nothing by not doing them; even baptism is not essential, or, a few drops of water is sufficient; and we have a clear good conscience and feel sure of going to heaven.

Now take a pencil and make a mark where your opinion told you to stop when you was moving the piece of money. Then take a rule for measuring distance and measure from outside to outside of the two pieces not moved.—Then compare that distance with the distance the one piece is from the other two, (inside edges) then move the one piece until the rule shows you to stop. Then from your pencil mark you can see how much your honest opinion is liable to vary from correct measurement by the rule.

Popular opinion tells us that many of the commands of the New Testament are non-essentials,—not necessary for us of the present day to observe them.

Peter's opinion was, that it was not necessary for Christ to wash his feet; but Christ did not tell him. Peter you are a very good man; I will take you along anyway, but Christ said, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." Peter was immediately willing to abandon his opinion for Christ's rule.

A portion of the Gospel rule for us to measure ourselves by, may be found in Matt. 28: 19, 20, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.—Amen."

JOHN S. SAUNDERS.

Independence, Kan.

GOING TO MEETING.

WHAT a contrast is this between 1741 and 1881. One hundred and forty years have gone by since our fathers went to the meeting-house as represented in the picture.—They trudged along on foot, dressed in homespun, with a Bible under the arm, and with smiling, cheerful faces, talking about God,—his Word—his grace, goodness and mercy.

Now people go to church, instead of the meeting-house, in fine carriages, drawn by sleek horses, wearing substantial harness.

The conversation usually runs on grain, hogs, hounds, oxen, land, or neighbor's faults. Not all so "run," but too many do.

You will notice that the children are with their parents going to meeting. This was a notable feature in the early history of our church in America, and we should see that this noble custom is maintained. Children should be taken to meeting every Sunday, and the meeting, or at least part of the services should be conducted for their special benefit. Ministers should talk to them, and be assured what you say to them, will be good for parents also. Study to increase the love between parents and children.

Our picture represents the old men with canes in their hands. These old fathers now rest in their graves, awaiting the trump of God. The house is built of logs—plain, cheap, yet comfortable. Inside you will find plain seats, and a little stand where the preacher declares the Gospel in simplicity. The flowers near the door are God's refreshing emblems, and show his wisdom and power. The tall pines denote the rural surroundings, and declare that the country is a new one to the settlers. We hope you may draw many useful lessons from the picture.

One thing we wish you to remember. Those who thus worshipped were happy and loved each other. In fact their happiness was the result of love; and may each of us learn the lesson well.

For the Brethren at Work.

WHY IS IT?

WHY do many of our brethren stigmatize the counsel and advice given by the brethren in their general conference, as being the work of men and not the tradition of the elders, etc., when all know that it is simply the interpretation of Scripture made by a multitude of counselors?

If that is the work of man, is an individual interpretation more likely to be the work of God, progressive brethren themselves being the judges? I accept the former as being the safest. Call it what you may,—the church is the habitation of God through the spirit.

E. EAST.

Lena, Ill.

REST OR RUST.

SOBERLY, it is not hard to decide the relative value. But lazy men and women are never sicker. There is a disorganization and decay in idleness; there is death in moral inaction.

We need only open our eyes to see the verification. Nature comes to our aid in both fact and analogies. If water rests, it is to stagnate, and if the tree rests, it is in death. If the eye rests, it is consumed in darkness; if the arm rests, it is in feebleness; and if the heart rests, we grow pulseless. It is too often the case that when young men have the opportunity of stepping into their father's business, they wish to crowd him out; they seem to think they know more than he does, and can do it better than he does, and much better than he, because they have greater energy, and often wish him away, so that they can have it all their own way, not remembering that his very life depends upon his usual active habits.

We once knew an earnest preacher, who occupied the same pulpit for over thirty years, feel it very keenly when the young people wished to crowd him out entirely from the pulpit when he still loved the work of preaching the gospel of Christ.

Ceasing from labor we soon cease to live.—Inaction is death. Christian men and women ought, like spinning tops, keep themselves up in their motion. Love well directed, is immortality. Let us work and be happy!—Religious Herald.

Correspondence.

From Jas. A. Larkins.—I feel that our church papers ought to be sent out to the world, and am willing to aid all I can. May the good Lord bless you all in your great work of saving souls.... Our Love-feast will be on the 29th of October, in our new church, near the factory in Madison county, Virginia. We extend an invitation to all to come.... My mind is to visit you this Winter, should the good Lord spare me to do so. Also expect to visit the Primitiv.... Anything that I can do for you here in any way will be cheerfully done for the advancement of the great work of the Master.... When you call your family around the family altar, remember us here. Ask the good Lord to give us strength to serve him, and that we may be faithful to the church while we live. We know a rest remains for us beyond the River; and there will be no night there. We shall sit down with Abraham and Isaac, and all those who have passed and gone before.—Larkins' Factory, Va., Oct. 9th.

From Allen Boyer.—Left Lena, Illinois, the last day of June, (accompanied by my wife) for the West. Traveled by private conveyance. On our way we stopped at Adel, Iowa, and remained there about nine days, visiting our daughter, and brethren and sisters and friends.... On the 18th of July we again resumed our journey. After passing through various places, we reached Sabetha, Kansas, July 24th. Visited members and friends, and our daughter and non-in-law, Samuel Kreitzer. On the 22nd of August we started for Washington, Kansas, and arrived there on the 24th. Took up our abode at brother Samuel M. Merkey's; looking up the members here, making arrangements for a Love-feast and having a few meetings here. Left on the 29th for Diller, Nebraska, where brother John Fritz resides. Here we had a pleasant evening meeting.... Next morning again repaired to Washington, and arrived Sept. 9th.... On the 12th took wife to Hanover to take the train for Sabetha, (where our daughter lives) I remaining with the Brethren, accompanied by a brother. We looked up all the members we could find in the county.... On the 24th we had the first council meeting ever held here. On investigation we found that there had been nineteen members, but one of them, a sister, has gone to the Advants; one brother and sister declined coming to the meetings, having no certificate, and saying they did not know where to write for one. Sixteen were considered in good standing. One dear old brother that has been here twelve years and not been to meeting all that time, seems to be greatly revived, and wants to continue to hold to the old landmarks. Most of the members came from Swatara, Berks Co., Pa., and speak the German language.... At their council the following resolutions were unanimously passed: 1st. That when this body is organized, it shall be known as the Washington church. 2nd. That we will maintain the general order of the Brotherhood, as handed to us by our fore-fathers, and respect the council of the Annual Meeting. 3. That we will practice the so-called doubtful mode of Feet-washing. 4. That we will use the fresh expressed juice of the grape for communion at our first Love-feast. 5th. That brother John Ganby is to take charge of all the papers of the church till the proper officers shall be established. This was a very agreeable council meeting; everything passed off harmoniously.... On the 1st and 2nd of October attended Love-feast at brother S. M. Merkey's. Sixteen communed. Brother John Forney, from Abilene, and brother Samuel Hornberger, from Missouri, were present. During this meeting brethren John Ganby and Jacob Merkey were elected deacons. Brother Ganby was properly installed; brother Merkey being absent to Pennsylvania, will be installed when he returns.... This was an excellent meeting, and was enjoyed by all present.... On the 6th, I left Washington for Diller. Attended an evening meeting. Found brother Fritz quite sick in bed.... On the 8th and 9th we attended the Beatrice Feast. This meeting was a large one. Elder John Forney and John Snowberger did the preaching. This congregation was proper to divide in two, and to ordain two elders; brother Archy Van Dyke was ordained to take charge of the north, and brother Uriah Shick to assist brother Henry Brubaker in the southern division. Had an excellent meeting. After meeting I started for Sabetha.... Expect to reach home in about a month.... We feel very thankful for the favors shown us by the members and friends with whom we met on our mission.

From J. H. Miller.—Met with the Brethren in Esel River congregation Oct. 28th, to attend their Love-feast. Met brother D. B. Gibson of Illinois, and many other ministers of the adjoining churches. This church has had a dark cloud hanging over it for some time, but all present were made to feel they had the pleasantest Communion they have had for a long time. Brother Gibson officiated.... The next evening had preaching. Brother Jesse Meyers, of Rona, Indiana, addressed the audience, and gave a historical account of the planting and growth of the church. Brother Myers came to Wabash county some forty-six years ago, and helped the government, for three weeks, to survey land. He said he helped to survey the land where the Esel River church house now stands. At that time there were but three members between Loganport and Turkey Creek prairie near Leesburg, Cass county, Indiana. Now there are some eight or ten churches, with several thousand members.... Brother Meyers is seventy-three years old, and has done much for the church in an early day.... Next in order brother Funderburg called our attention to steadfastness and perseverance; and lastly brother Gibson gave a short history of the church in the West, and the perseverance of the old standard bearers. He remembers when there were but few members in Illinois, and now they number some fifty churches, with a strong missionary force. And how much good has been done in the West. A short experience of his travels in Missouri was interesting—how he would swim streams on horseback, and would be absent from home for weeks, all for Christ's sake. May the Lord bless such noble workers.... Brother G.'s arguments were strong and demonstrative. His strong appeal to the church for love and union was commendable. Brethren J. Right, D. Krider, and others, engaged in the services. Truly it was good to be there. Saints were made to rejoice, sinners, to fear and tremble, and God's name was glorified.—Miford, Ind., Oct. 30th.

From David Brower.—My wife is still suffering very much with a sore affliction; the most singular disease ever come under my notice. It has baffled the skill of the physicians. So far, all medicines have failed to remove the disease. What the result will be, the Lord only knows. She is so nervous she cannot bear any noise in or about the house. Otherwise the health here is good.... Had a very pleasant Summer. Crops were good. Apples were not as plenty as usual.... Last week the weather was quite cold for the time of year in this climate—27° above zero.... On the third Sunday in September we re-organized our Sunday-school. Brother C. Wine was appointed Superintendent. We are having a very good Sunday-school.... On last Saturday we had a pleasant council meeting. All seemed to be in love and union. There were eight members added by letter at said meeting; two of them were deacons. They arrived here from Kansas the 12th inst.—Salem, Oregon, Oct. 21.

From I. J. Rosenberger.—October 22nd and 23rd were the days appointed for the Feast at Eagle Creek. The meeting was not as large as some previous meetings held there, but the meeting was such that all felt that we enjoyed a feast of love together. But a feeling of gloom seemed to pervade the heart of all, occasioned by the illness in brother S. T. Besseman's family. Brother Sammie however was reported convalescent, but the nurses gave but little encouragement from sister Besseman's bedside. It looks to us that the church at Eagle Creek could not at this time very well spare their services. Our humble prayer is that it may be the Lord's will for brother B. and his humble companion to yet continue their labors with the dear saints at Eagle Creek.... The church felt in need of help in their official body. An election was therefore held, resulting in brother A. J. Baughman and J. R. Spacht to the ministry; also two brethren to the office of deacon. Not having any notes, am not certain of their names, but were all promising young brethren. They cheerfully consented to aid in supporting the plant principles and order of the church. May the Lord keep them humble and thus make them useful, in our prayer.... At the above meeting we were happy to meet and once more sit under the warm and feeling words of our dear brother Conrad Kahler of Eastern Ohio. He feels much concerned about the present pending events in the church.—Gilboa, Ohio.

From John Knisley.—We are, at present, at friend C. B. Boyer's. His wife is a member of the church and he is a well-wisher to the cause.... We arrived here on the 29th. Had meeting on the 23rd inst. As there has been much rain and the roads bad, we could not have meeting at night. Will have meeting on the evening of the 25th, and will continue till the 30th. We next go to the Paulton Creek church, where we expect to stay one week, and from there to the Panora church, Guthrie Co. Iowa, where we expect to stay a week, during which time our address will be Panora, Iowa. From there to Harlan, Shelby Co., Iowa, where we expect to stay several weeks, if the Lord will. From Shelby county we expect to go to Marshall county,—brother John Murray's church, and from there we go to Northern Illinois. . . . Had a card from brother Sharp, wishing us to visit him, which we think we will do, if we live. We hope the brethren in Illinois will let us know where to stop, as we wish to visit a good many churches. Pray for us on our mission. I will try, by the help of God, to keep the churches united, and not sow discord, as discord is one of the things God hates.—Dallas Centre, Iowa, Oct. 24th.

From Jesse Stutzman.—Our Love-feast of the 12th inst. is among the past events, and one that the beloved members present will long remember. The meeting was largely attended. Bro. Samuel Baker of Kau. spoke on the "New Birth" at 10 A. M., with power and demonstration. Preaching at 3 P. M.; evening services at 5 P. M. A number of ministers were present from adjoining districts disseminating heavenly truths with good effect. A Paul planted, an Apollus watered, now may the Lord give the increase, and abundantly bless the labors. At the close of the meeting a choice was held for officials. A large percentage of our members were present and in the fear of the Lord proceeded to vote for one minister and two deacons; the lot by nearly a unanimous vote fell on our beloved brother Silas Gilbert for minister and brethren Abraham Minnich and Jacob Ikenberry, deacons. Our beloved brother Tobias Kridler was forwarded to the eldership. The brethren with their companions were then installed in the usual manner; this was an affecting and solemn occasion. May the Lord bless the labors of the day. . . . We are happy to say that the church is in a good working condition; we have recently received three members by baptism. We have now one elder, one minister in the second degree and one in the first; five deacons and about three hundred members, seemingly firmly united in the unity of the spirit and the bonds of peace, earnestly contending for the faith delivered unto the saints. Ministering brethren of like precious faith will be kindly received.—Arcanum, Ohio, Oct. 31.

Among the Churches.

Accompanied by our companion and two children, we crossed the Missouri river into Saline county, to attend a Love-feast, where Bro. D. L. Williams lives. We arrived there on Thursday the 29th of September, and found a good many brethren and sisters, some of whom came from the newly organized church of Clear Creek. We were gratified to meet with our earnest and faithful brother Andrew Hutchison of Centerville. He preached the first good discourse to attentive audiences. The Feast was held in the Baptist church at Antioch, six miles from Brownsville. We remained two evenings after brother H. left, and preached three discourses. Two were baptized, a son and daughter-in-law of brother Williams.

We hope that they will be loyal to their solemn profession, to renounce sin in all its forms and to walk in newness of life. We love to see young men and women range themselves on the side of truth.

We admire the young brother in St. Louis who threw away the filthy weed. Indeed it is a sad sight to see a man or woman descend into the water and make such solemn promises and then come out and fill their mouths with the vile stuff or its smoke. Our hearts are made sad to see it. On the whole we had a good meeting, and trust good was done. We ought to labor to elevate the standard of holiness among us as a people. We found kind friends there who are not members of the church, but who are in sympathy with the doctrine of the Brethren. We visited some of these, and if the members of the church will live out in their lives the doctrine they preach, these sympathizers will soon seek for fellowship with the Brethren. Let the members be at peace one with another, and be devoted, self-denying followers of Christ, and soon others will be won to the truth.

We visited the sweet, sulphur, and salt springs in Brownsville. These waters have a great reputation for benefitting the sick, especially the sweet water. A large number of visitors are expected next Summer, and there is a splendid opening for an institution there, conducted on hygienic principles. Last Summer it was thought brother J. H. Moore would locate there and lay the foundation of such an institution. Many citizens here greatly desire that our Brethren would take hold of the matter and found a home there where the sick, seeking health, could be cared for in the sense of proper food, etc. It could be connected with the waters and baths of the springs, and would repay those who embarked in the enterprise.

We liked the site of Brownsville. It is built on an elevated piece of ground and the scenery is pleasant. We hope that some brother will take hold of the matter and let us have a home for health seekers where common sense rules, and drug medication is ignored.

From there we went to Clear Creek, where a young church of twenty members was founded a year ago by brother Williams. Brother Provinces is a minister in the second degree and a good speaker. He lived there alone for thirteen years, but as soon as he heard of Brethren he united with them and resumed his office. Brother Wallace who for many years was a United Brethren preacher, is in the first degree and is said to be a fine preacher. We held six meetings while there, and four were baptized. Two of these were of the Campbellite order, but who learned the way of the Lord more perfectly. There is a prospect for others to come soon. We hope that this infant church will strictly guard against all leaven working among them. We hope they will not tolerate the use of whiskey by the members. They had to disown one already for drunkenness. If they will all follow holiness, self-denial, and purity of life and be living examples of humble walk and life, there is an opening for the truth there. Brethren and sisters put away every form of evil from your midst, and though your beginning be small your latter end will greatly increase.

We are now at home teaching school, and will not travel any till about the first of March, if the Lord will. But our pen shall be employed for the B. at W., and we hope to speak to you often. God bless you all. Amen.

JAMES EVANS.

Church Order and Special Conference.

"These things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee shortly: But if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." 1 Tim. 3: 14, 15.

It is said that "in the multitude of counsel there is safety." But where counsel is no longer regarded, there is no utility nor safety in it. Paul's instructions to Timothy were such that, whether he were absent for a longer or shorter period, he might know how to behave himself in the house of God. Paul's instructions to Titus are of similar import: "For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldst set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city." Titus 1: 5. Now from this we learn that there is a church—the house of God—and we are to behave ourselves in it, that there is a church order, and things that are wanting must be set in that order, and that elders were to be ordained in every city, evidently to keep things in order. In the arrangement of God in all ages, the aged set in counsel, and the younger carried it out by active service in the field. John recognizes three grades of experience or attainments, in the church—"fathers," "young men" and "little children." Jno. 2: 13. The "fathers" for counsel, "young men" for service and "little children" for instruction. With the Scriptures before us, then, the instruction of Paul, the counsel of our aged brethren, and the experience of all ages, let the elders in every church "rule well," and with diligence; let the younger be active in service, and the little children ready to learn; then our council meetings will be pleasant, and our General Conference, once a year will be found enough as in days gone by. Let each church District see that it keeps strictly in order, and not contemplate troubles at a distance. "Traveling evangelists," going at random from one District to another, have carried disorder with them, "whose mouths must be stopped, who subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake." Titus 1: 11.

Hence I hold that we need no special Conference, but that we should carry out the order as we already have it. Let the council of June 1881 be respected, and the work of her committee be diligently guarded (the Berlin committee included) and where justice has not been rendered, let the matter be brought up in order for reconsideration at next General Conference. A local church has no right to set at naught the decision of a committee sent by A. M. It is anarchy and ruin. The work of such committee should be respected by the local church and the party involved, till next A. M. when another committee may be granted upon a proper course of procedure, and when considered necessary. "Let all things be done decently and in order." 1 Cor. 14: 40.

DANIEL HAYS.

Moore's Store, Va.

Health and Temperance.

G. T. BOSSERMAN, - - - - - EDITOR.

All communications for this department should be addressed to G. T. Bosserman, Dunkirk, Hardin Co., Ohio.

BROTHER Bosserman, the editor of this department has been prostrated with sickness for several weeks, and is still confined to his bed. In view of his inability to supply this department, we take the liberty to appeal to the friends of health and temperance to come to our aid and fill this page with the choicest truths. Brother Bosserman has performed his part well, and we greatly regret his sickness. May grace abound to the restoration of health to our dear brother and his loving companion. —Ed.

CHEERFULNESS and temperance are better medicines than ever came from the drug-store.

"POLITENESS," says Witherspoon, "is real kindness kindly expressed"—an admirable definition, and so brief that all may easily remember it. This is the sum and substance of all true politeness. Put it in practice, and all will be charmed with your manners.

How many young men are carried away by a fine, musical, charming voice—a pretty, light-footed, reeling ball-room dancer—a lazy, lounging, street-yarning flirt—an oily-tongued, hollow-hearted, deceptive piano-pounder, and regret their folly when, alas! too late.

We commend the answer of a Kharpoot convert to the people who argue that because God made grain, it is right to drink whiskey. A wine drinker said to him, "Didn't God make grapes?" He replied: "God made dogs; go eat some dog carcass! He made poisons, too; go eat them and kill yourself!"

THE REV. HOSER Bailou once truly said: Is it a drunken husband, father, son, or brother that feels all the keen torments of the drunkard's home? No! it is the wife, the mother, the sister and daughter. The intemperate man drinks the cop but the dregs at the bottom are left for the woman.

WHISKEY is good in its own place. There is nothing like whiskey in this world for preserving a man when he is dead. But it is one of the worst things in the world for preserving a man when he is living. If you want to keep a dead man, put him in whiskey; if you want to kill a living man, put whiskey into him.

READY-MADE clothing for men and women 10 c cheap at the larger establishments in New York as to excite the wonderment of purchasers. Once in a while we get a glimpse of the secret of the low prices. Thus the pay for work taken home to be done on one's own machine is 65 cents a dozen for making up striped shirts, 45 cents a dozen for laborers' shirts, 50 cents a dozen for men's drawers, and 25 cents a piece for boys' jackets. By working fourteen hours a day at the machine a woman can earn about five dollars a week, which is $260 a year with no vacation. It is dreadful to think of.

MILK heated to much above 100 degrees Fahrenheit loses for the time a degree of its sweetness and its density. No one who, fatigued by over-exertion of body or mind, has ever experienced the reviving influence of a tumbler of this beverage, heated as hot as it can be sipped, will willingly forego a resort to it because of its having been rendered somewhat less acceptable to the palate. The promptness with which its cordial influence is felt is indeed surprising. Some portion of it seems to be digested and appropriated almost immediately; and many who fancy that they need alcoholic stimulants when exhausted by fatigue, will find in this simple draught an equivalent that shall be abundantly satisfying and more enduring in its effects.

For the Brethren at Work.

HAR-ROOM INFLUENCES.

BY G. NEVINGER.

J. CUNNINGHAM and S. F. Watson were sent to the penitentiary, a short time ago, for stealing horses. The former had been in prison for a like offense before, and when asked where he first met the latter, replied he met him in the saloon in Indianapolis, and after gaming a few days, persuaded him to engage in stealing; something he had never done, and for which he is now suffering the punishment in the State prison. Watson is guilty of stealing as well as Cunningham, yet if he had not placed himself in the way of the tempter, perhaps he never would have run to such excess in crime. Young men, beware! One sin leads to another, and besides this, bar-room associates are made up mostly of horse thieves, gamblers and loafers in general. "Well," you may ask, "what of these professors of religion who frequent those places for an occasional dram?" I answer, that no Christian can associate with such ungodly men and retain their sainthood; besides their evil influence, on the rising generation. If a disciple of Christ is seen emerging from such holes of Satan, the young will say that "if deacon Jones or some other church goer resorts to the saloon once in a while, it will not hurt me." O dear reader, are you dragging precious young souls into the bottomless gulf of woe, by your frequent calls on the vender of poison?

Had I the pen of a Paul or the eloquence of an Apollos to lift the veil that hangs over a once happy household and expose to view the dark picture that sadly moves under its timeworn roof—the once-happy husband and fond father rejoicing in the sunshine of his own home, may be seen spending his time and means at the saloon or reeling along the streets, a spectacle too sad for the sight of angels or men or perhaps, with blood-shot eyes and distorted countenance, threatening the very life of his innocent child as I driving the choice of his bosom into the midnight's biting blast; thus causing her once happy and contented spirit to writhe and groan in the prison-house of pain, just because some one influenced the victim of bad example, to enter the heaven-cursed bar-room. Though this sad picture, from my pen, is repeated time and again over this fair land, yet where is the man that will say he ceased all of this woe—that he induced the youth to drain the poisoned bowl? Echo answers, where? Let us ask ourselves, was it I? Mulberry Grove, Ill.

THE LONGEVITY OF THE ANCIENTS.

MAN man reach and pass the age of a hundred years? is a question concerning which physiologists have different opinions. Buffon was the first one in France to raise the question of the extreme limit of human life. In his opinion, man, becoming adult at sixteen, ought to live to six times that age, or to ninety-six years. Having been called upon to account for the phenomenal ages attributed by the Bible to the patriarchs, he risked the following as an explanation: "Before the flood, the earth was less solid, less compact, than it is now. The law of gravitation had acted for only a little time; the productions of the globe had less consistency, and the body of man, being more supple, was more susceptible of extension. Being able to grow for a longer time, it should, in consequence, live for a longer time than now."

The German, Hoeler has suggested on the same point that the ancients did not divide time as we do. Previous to the age of Abraham, the year, among some people of the East, was only three months, or a season; so that they had a year of spring, one of summer, one of fall, and one of winter. The year was extended so as to consist of eight months after Abraham, and of twelve months after Joseph. Voltaire rejected the longevity assigned to the patriarchs of the Bible, but accepted without question the stories of the great ages attained by some men in India, where, he says, "it is not rare to see old men of one hundred and twenty years." The eminent French physiologist, Flourens, fixing the complete development of man at twenty years, teaches that he should live five times as long as it takes him to become an adult. According to this author, the moment of a completed development may be recognized by the fact of the junction of the bones with their apophyses. This junction takes place in horses at five years, and the horse does not live beyond twenty-five years; with the ox, at four years, and it does not live over twenty years, with a cat at eighteen months and that animal rarely lives over ten years. With man, it is effected at twenty years, and he only exceptionally lives beyond one hundred years. The same physiologist admits, however, that human life may be exceptionally prolonged under certain conditions of comfort, sobriety, freedom from care, regularity of habits, and observance of the rules of hygiene; and he terminates his interesting study of the last point ("De la Longevité humaine") with the aphorism, "Man kills himself rather than dies." —M. DE SOLAVILLE, in Popular Science Monthly for November.

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR THE
Brethren at Work,
AND
TRACT SOCIETY.

E. T. Bowerman, Desharks, Ohio. John Finney, Abilene, Kan.
S. D. Bly, Lees, Ill. Daniel Vanorman, Vicksburg, Miss.
A. A. Campbell, Graham, Mo. F. A. Perry, Annapolis, Md.
W. C. Deane, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Metzger, Cairo, Ga.
J. S. Kohler, Corning, Mo. J. W. Whitcomb, Merriam, Ind.
John Wiles, Mulberry Grove, Ill. B. Brewer, Balcon, Oregon.

OUR PLEA.

THE BRETHREN AT WORK is an unassuming advocate of Primitive Christianity in all its essential features. It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

And maintains that the scriptures, unadorned, unmediated, agree, and that the only source of pardon, and that the precious writings and sacrifices of Christ are the only basis of redemption.

That Faith, Repentance and Baptism are conditions of pardon, and hence for the remission of sins.

That True Communion, or dipping the disciples three times into water, is Christian Baptism.

That Foot-Washing, as taught in John 13, is a rite, common to be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper is a full meal, not, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening, or at the close of the day.

That the sacraments of the Holy Scriptures, or Rites of Christ, by holding up the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and underlying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That a Non-Confession to the world to dress, customs, daily walk, and conversation is essential to true holiness and Christian piety.

It maintains that in public worship, no religious observance, Christians should appear as directed in 1 Cor. 14: 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

In short it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the Apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and diverse opinions of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be the will of the Lord.

Single subscriptions $1.00 in advance. Those sending eight copies and $10.00, will receive an extra copy free. For each additional volume the agent will allow you ten per cent. which amount he will retain and send as the balance.

Orders must be accompanied by cash, or by Postal Note, Registered Letters, and Drafts, properly addressed, will be at our risk. Do not send checks, as they cannot be collected without charge. Address

BRETHREN AT WORK,

Mt. Morris, Ill.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan. '81" shows that the paper has been paid for up to that time. "1 Jan. '82" shows that the time will then expire.

NOTE: If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Something New!

Yes, really something new. The Minutes of Annual Meeting since 1876 have been published in pamphlet form, so that it can be put in back part of book of Minutes for convenient reference. In this way all the Minutes up to this time may be found within the same lid—that is, if you send 25 cents, and get them. Five copies for one dollar. Only 1000 printed. First orders filed first. If you want one, order soon.

BRETHREN AT WORK,

Mt. Morris, Ill.

Tablets! Tablets!

Six tablets for 50 cents, — one for ink or pencil, the other five for pencil only.

Address: BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Terms to Subscribers!

FIRST OFFER.—For $2.00 we will send "The Problem of Human Life," and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year.

SECOND OFFER.—For $2.50 we will send the BATHURN AT WORK and MICROSCOP one year, and a copy of "The Problem of Human Life."

THIRD OFFER.—For $2.50 we will send the BATHURN AT WORK one year and a copy of the "Problem of Human Life."

FOURTH OFFER.—For 75 cents we will send you the MICROSCOP and YOUTH'S ADVANCE each one year.

FIFTH OFFER.—For $2.00 we will send you "The Problem of Human Life," and MICROSCOP one year, thus saving you 50 cents.

SIXTH OFFER.—For $3.50 we will send you BRETHREN AT WORK, YOUTH'S ADVANCE and LITERARY MICROSCOP each one year, and a copy of "The Problem of Human Life," all post-paid.

Please read these terms carefully. We have closed our former liberal offers, and advanced prices on these clubs, because everything else has advanced.

Make all drafts and post-office orders payable to M. M. Eshelman.

Address all letters

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Terms to Agents.

For $1 75 { BRETHREN AT WORK and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year.

For $4 50 { Paper to three persons each one year and a copy of Close Communion by Landen West tender.

For $6 00 { Paper to four persons, each one year and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year to sender.

For $9 00 { Paper to six persons, each 1 year, and a copy of Family Instructor,—an excellent work worth 75cts.

For $12 00 { Paper to eight persons each one year and one copy free to the sender.

For $15 00 { Paper to ten persons and a copy of Biblical Antiquities, by Nevin, to sender. Price of work alone, $1.50.

For $18 00 { Paper to 12 persons and a copy of Stein and Ray Debate in cloth to sender. Price of book alone, $2.00.

For $24 00 { Paper to 18 persons, 1 year and only $2.50 book found on Western Book Exchange Catalogue to sender.

For $30 00 { Paper to 20 persons, each 1 year, and a Dictionary of the Bible by Smith. Price of book alone $3.00.

For $37 50 { Paper to twenty-five persons, each one year, and ten per cent. off to sender, or $4.00 worth of books from catalogue.

For 45 00 { Paper to thirty persons, each one year, and $5.00 to sender; or we shall put $5.00 into missionary fund for every thirty subscribers and $45.00.

For $60 00 { Paper to forty persons, each one year, and a copy of Worcester's Standard Quarto Dictionary worth $10.00.

Brethren's Envelopes.—These are neat, white envelopes with the general principles of the Brethren church printed on the back. By using them, the doctrine of the church may be spread far and wide. Price, 15 cents for 25; or 40 cents per hundred. For sale at this office.

Mt. Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - - October 28.

Number Enrolled.....186

Average Daily Attendance.....161

Per Cent. of Attendance.....94

Number Tardinesses.....11

Neither Absent nor Tardy.....104

E. A. BERRY, Principal.

All About Kansas.

THE WEEKLY CAPITAL is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county. $1.00 per year. — SAMPLE COPY FREE. —

IA MAN

"Great Rock Island Route!"

Stands pre-eminent among the great Trans-Continent Lines of the West for being the most direct, quickest, and safest line connecting the great METROPOLIS, CHICAGO, and the EASTERN, NORTH-EASTERN, SOUTHWEST and SOUTHEASTERN LINES, which terminate there, with KANSAS CITY, LEAVENWORTH, ATTOLESON, CHANDLER, BUFFALO and OMAHA, the COMMERCIAL CENTERS from which radiate:

EVERY LINE OF ROAD that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean. The

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago crossing track into Kansas, or thence by its own road, reaches the Rockies above named. No transfers by railroads. No possible misdirection. No loading or unloading of baggage or claim cars, as every passenger is carried to ground, stop and final destination, upon the same train.

DAY CARs of improved construction, PULLMAN PALACE Sleeping Cars, and our own world-renowned Dining Cars, upon which meals are served of the highest quality, at the low rate of 50 CENTS PER DAY, make this route the best for business travelers.

Through Car between Chicago, Forts, Milwaukee and Mineral Point, and also between Chicago and points of interest with other roads. We have the only direct route to every place of importance in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington Territory, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

An honest arrangement regarding baggage as compared with other roads, and a low rate of compensation for loss and injury to baggage. We have the only direct route to every place of importance in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington Territory, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

R. R. CABLE, The Trust and Guar. Agency, Chicago, Ill. E. ST. JOHN, One, Two and Third Aves., Chicago, Ill.

MAGNIFICENT EQUIPMENTS! SURE CONNECTIONS! UNION DEPOTS!

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

Announcements.

LOVE-FAEST NOTICES.

N. V. 13, at 10 A. M., Mt. Edna church, Adams Co., Iowa.

Dec. 2, at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill church, near Vir- den, Macoupin Co., Ill.

Fallen Asleep.

Entered on this day which claim the Lord.—Nov. 14 '11.

BINKLY.—Oct. 23, infant son of Calvin G. and S. Binkly, of Maryland Station, Ogle Co., Ill., William Harvey, aged 2 years, 11 months and 18 days. S. V. B.

RODABAUGH.—Near Williamstown, Ohio, July 2nd, Henry, son of Bro. James and sister Alice Rodabaugh, aged 7 months and 20 days.

Funeral services in the Brethren's church by the writer from Matt. 18: 14 to a large and sympathetic audience in behalf of the grief-stricken parents in the loss of their only child.

S. T. BOSSERMAN.

ROTHENBERGER.—Oct. 30, near Milford, Ind., Bro. George Philip Rothenberger, aged 79 years, 2 months and 10 days.

Bro. Rothenberger came to this country many years ago, from Germany. He was well acquainted with Henry Kertz and F. P. Loehr, who all came from the same country. He leaves a companion who is old and feeble and two sons, Daniel and Jacob. Dautel is a minister of the Brethren church. Bro. Philip was a bishop for many years, though unable to do much for several years.

J. H. MILLER.

Tidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Prairie City, Ill., Nov. 1.

The Brethren of the Spring Run church expect to hold their quarterly council-meeting on Saturday, Nov. 26, and to dedicate their meeting-house on the 27th. Bro. D. B. Gibson is expected to be with us at that time, and hold a series of meetings.

Woodstock, Wis.

In the Camp Creek church one more precious soul has become tired of feeding upon the dry husks this world can afford, and returned to his Father's house where there is bread enough and to spare. Three were united with the church, Oct. 30, for which the angels may rejoice in heaven.—May the Lord enable others to find Jesus precious to their souls, and thus be ready for that solemn event that awaits each one of us.

C. H. BROWN.

Brownsville, Mo., Oct. 20.

The District-meeting of Southern Missouri, on the 20th of October, passed off exceedingly smooth, and the very best of feelings prevailed.—In general not very much business; got through in one day. The churches, twenty in all, were pretty well represented by delegates. S. S. Mohler was chosen on Standing Committee.

The time of our D. M. was changed to Spring; so we will have another one before A. M., and may send an assistant delegate. Our D. M. was held with the Mineral Creek church, and closed with a feast; about 200 communed. Meeting very interesting. Three sisters were baptized. The meetings were still continued after I left, and good interest was manifested. The churches of our district are daily increasing.

DAVID L. WILLIAMS.

Williamsport, W. Va., Oct. 29.

Please give notice through your paper that I wish to forward subscriptions to B. AT W., by November 15th. All those wishing to renew their subscription can do so by giving me their names and subscription at once and receive the Brethren's Almanac free. I hope all old subscribers will renew and also help procure new names.

WM. M. LYON.

Reston, Md., Oct. 27.

The Lord is at work in this Eastern Maryland session. Have had over a week's meeting and seven have already been baptized, three more to be, and others near the kingdom. One of them is a Methodist minister, aged about 40 years. He is a talented man. Had been a missionary. All the rest, excepting a few, were members of that church. Nearly all are heads of families. A good work may be expected. Tracts received. Thanks, J. T. MEYERS.

Reistville, Pa., Oct. 30.

Had council-meeting yesterday. Had very little work to do. All in peace and harmony. The gloom which hung over our farmers is past. We had rain, and the fall wheat looks promising.—God's promise of seed-time and harvest will not fail and this should teach us that if his earthly blessings are so sure, much more will judgment be passed when this earthly tabernacle will be changed, either to eternal life or misery. Let us work and pray.

CYRUS BUCKER.

Quarry Is., Nov. 2.

I am thankful for the various improvements made in the B. AT W. from time to time. It is truly a welcome visitor and gets better every week. Our second Communion for this year passed off pleasantly on the 25th of October. We came together at half-past 4 o'clock. The first services were on self-examination, and had no cooking, eating and feeding, but only the 'supper in the evening as instituted by Christ. None of the members were deprived of the Communion on account of labor and cooking, and the expenses not one fourth.

JOHN MURRAY.

Roann, Ind.

On the 23th I had the pleasure of attending a Love-feast with the Brethren in the Eel River church. The meeting was well attended considering the weather. Most of the preaching was done by D. B. Gibson, J. H. Miller, John Wright, and David Kridler. D. B. Gibson officiated. The services closed at about 8 o'clock P. M. On the 24th attended a meeting in the Spring Creek church, where we heard Bro. Caylor, of Ohio, deliver a splendid sermon from Isaiah 55: 1. Services again at place of feast at 10 A. M. and 3 P. M., on Sunday the 30th. Good order prevailed throughout the meeting. Many were the remarks made of the enjoyable season.

JAS. M. NEPE.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31.

At 7:30 P. M., wife and I, with others, entered Sturgeon Market Hall, North Market and Broadway streets, for a season of worship. Found that two of the members, recently baptized in St. Louis, have left for other parts,—one for Colorado, the other for north-western Missouri. But we found in their place Bro. Henry Shomber and wife, of Peabody, Kansas, who at present are making their home here. Bro. Henry is a doctor and a minister. He is attending medical lectures, and agrees to preach twice each Lord's day through the Winter.

We also met here Bro. Alexander Ambrose, formerly of Altoona, Penn., and Superintendent of the Sunday-school at that place. He is working here at steam and gas-fitting and expects his family soon, when they expect to make this their home for the future. The above four members have all letters of recommendation and expect to become members here, when a church is organized. Having been workers in the church for some time, their help is much needed and appreciated. An organization was intended at this time, but as Bro. Metzger failed to meet us here, it is now postponed to Nov. 28. Met again next day at 10:30 and 3 P. M. Congregations large and order excellent.

DANIEL VANMAN.

Walkerton, Ind.

The Communion in the Pine Creek district is among the things of the past. It was a pleasant and enjoyable one. The heavenly union which seemingly existed among the large number of brethren and sisters, made it a glorious communion, attended with the blessings of God. About three hundred and fifty members communed. Bro. John Metzler served us in the Communion services, while a number of brethren whose names are too many to mention, did effectual and soul-reviving preaching.

Before the evening services six precious souls asked for admittance into the church, feeling tired of all and the vain pleasures of the world, seeking an interest in the blood of Jesus. After complying with the requirements of the Gospel, they were led into the baptismal waters, expressing faith in the Son of God, and a willingness to renounce all the sinful pleasures of this world, coveneanting with God in Christ Jesus to live faithful until death. Saturday, the 23th, morning worship; preaching at 10 A. M. by Abram Neff and D. Wyson. After preaching another one baptized.—Preaching in the evening: Sunday and Sunday evening, by the above-named brethren to large and attentive audiences. J. HILDEBRAND.

South English, Iowa, Oct. 29.

Since our Communion, two precious souls made the good confession and were baptized into Christ. Oh, what rejoicing among God's dear children!—More are counting the cost, and we hope God may still operate on their hearts. We are having very wet weather now; fields soft for corn gathering.—Corn about half a crop. PETER BROWN.

New Dundee, Ont., Oct. 27.

I am now at this place, holding some meetings and visiting among the people. Our meetings are not very largely attended. The lion is stirred in his lair, the sects fear, I may make an inroad among them, and they keep out of danger by staying away. Well, let "Ephraim alone, for he is joined unto his idols." My health continues good. Thank God for his mercy! JOHN WISE.

Bristol, Minn., Oct. 25.

We are having a great deal of rain. The health good, for which we thank the Lord. It is drawing near the time when the ground will be covered with snow and the beautiful flowers and green leaves will be withered and gone. So is the time coming, when we, too, shall be cut down as the flowers. So let us be ever ready. May the Lord bless every faithful effort to advance his cause.

SARAH BROTHERLY.

Peabody, Kan., Oct. 30.

Bro. Henry Shomber, a young minister of practice, has gone from here to St. Louis, to take lectures in medicine. He will preach for the Brethren there. We shall miss him much. God bless him and the Brethren where he has gone.

GEO. W. THOMAS.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

81.40
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Nov. 15, 1881.

No. 44.

Editorial Items.

Is your heart set against all iniquity?

THANKSGIVING by order of the President 24th inst.

Bro. Martin Meyers, of Carroll Co., Illinois, has gone to Kansas on business.

The address of J. F. Neher is changed from Clayton, Ill., to New Sharon, Iowa.

A COPY of the BRETHREN AT WORK now goes regularly to Hong Kong, China.

FIRST snow of the season here on the night of the 10th. It was followed by rain.

ADDRESS of E. Horn changed from Helena, Ohio, to Swanton, Fulton Co., same State.

SMALL-POX almost epidemic in parts of Elkhart Co., Indiana. Schools and meetings closed.

Bro. Southwood's poem on page 690 is a valuable acquisition to poetry. Please read it carefully.

ON page 672 of No. 42, brother J. H. Miller was made to say first fast Sept. 28th instead of first frost.

Bro. J. M. Mohler and Jacob Conner were sent as missionaries to Lackawanna, Pa.--a new field. Two baptized.

Bro. Edward Mason of the Preacher writes: "All quiet here. School doing finely. Students coming in yet scatteringly."

Bro. W. C. Teeter and wife are at Dunkirk, Ohio, with Bro. S. T. Boserman. They will remain until Bro. B. is better.

EIGHT three-cent stamps will pay for Minutes of Annual Meeting, from 1877 to 1881, in pamphlet form. Send on your stamps.

THE BRETHREN AT WORK Almanac contains ministerial list. Each subscriber, whether for one or ten years, gets an Almanac free.

Bro. Wood, of Lynch, Va., will soon move to Pittsylvania county in that State, where he will continue to sound out the Gospel.

Do not send us checks on your home bank as it costs from twenty to fifty cents to collect them. Send drafts on Chicago or New York.

COMMUNICATIONS from John Kinsey and A. W. Reese too late for this paper. Some other correspondence must also pass over to next issue.

THE fifty-second Love-feast in the Mill Creek church, Illinois was held the 1st and 2nd inst. This is where old brother Geo. Wolfe used to reside.

Bro. Geo. W. Cripe turned a sermending party into a prayer meeting at Maple Grove, Ohio, the 31st ult. That is the way to turn the enemy's guns against himself.

SOME of our pages were hand-stitched last week. This was owing to a break in machinery. All right now, and everything moving along smoothly.

THE BRETHREN AT WORK does not aim to walk before the church nor behind it, but beside it. It is neither a captain nor a sapper, but a servant.

Bro. J. H. Peck and family, of Lanark, Ill., have moved to Emporia, Kansas, where brother John will attend the State Normal school this Winter.

THE time of holding District Meeting in Southern Missouri is changed from Fall to Spring. The meeting will be held on Thursday three weeks before Pentecost.

THE church at Waynesboro, Pa., has received eleven by baptism during the year, and others to be received. That church is prospering after going through the fire.

Bro. P. S. Meyers, of Spring Run church, Pa., has been ordained to the historic Reuben T. Meyers by same church chosen to the ministry. Two baptized Oct. 15th.

WE have been unwell ever since our return from Cerro Gordo. Our lungs have been very sore, and at times quite painful, but as we go to press we feel some better.

CAN you read "The Morgan Murder" on page 691 and still adhere to Free Masonry? Ought not love for man turn you from a society that is so darkened with a crime?

THE address of A. F. Deeter changed from Burr Oak, Kan., to Washington, same State. Brother Deeter is going into a new field to make known the riches of God's grace.

IT is no use to send us an article with the injunction, "If you do not publish it, stop sending the paper to me." Such a request always turns the article into the waste basket.

A CORRESPONDENT in the Miami Valley, (Ohio) reports the Love-feasts there as being largely attended, and brotherly love and good order prevailing. This is indeed cheering news.

SAMUEL Kinsey says he was not in Indiana as represented in No. 40 B. at W. We are glad he was not, and cheerfully make the correction. It is not our desire to misrepresent any one.

TO Bro. A. F. Deubaker: Brother Metzger sent us a report of your good meeting, so we withhold your account, as our columns are pressed with news. Accept our thanks for your letter.

THE Brethren in Virginia have united Lynchburg, Va., with the Gospel of Jesus Christ. They began the 13th inst. They are workers in the vineyard, and not loafers of what they are.

BRETHREN J. M. Mohler and D. F. Stouffer are at work in Frederick City, Md. They are doers and not sayers only. The Lord loves such, for they thus make full proof of their ministry.

WE have printed Minutes this year for Northern Indiana, Kansas and Nebraska, Southern Missouri, Northern Illinois, and North-western Ohio. District Clerks should give us a trinit before contacting elsewhere.

Bro John Metzger suggests a good plan to his brethren in Southern Illinois in regard to putting the Orphan's Home on a good basis financially. Of course donations from any one in the Brotherhood will be acceptable; and we believe a great and good work can be done by the Brethren at Cerro Gordo for homeless children.

SOUTHERN Missouri District Meeting decided that where no Gospel principle is violated, the call of rulers of the land to assemble to worship should be regarded.

THE Shaker Manifesto published at Shakers, N. Y., contains the account of the Brethren's work in St. Louis as given by the Globe-Democrat. We regret to hear that the publication of the Manifesto is to be discontinued.

BRETHREN J. T. Meyers and Hertler have been blessed of the Lord in their labors in Eastern Maryland. They were armed with several hundred tracts which they gave as crumbs for the people to use at home. Ten baptized.

Bro. J. T. Meyers who distributed 400 tracts in his field of labor in Eastern Maryland writes: "The tracts did good service. Wish we had thousands of good tracts on the doctrine of the Brethren church for free distribution."

FROM since the second year of its existence, have the prospects of the B. at W. been so good. It seems its friends are all active and energetic in their efforts to increase its circulation and make it a bold and uncompromising advocate of primitive Christianity.

THE Progressive is begging one cent from each of its subscribers to pay for B. at W. We will take all it gets for that purpose and agree to turn it over to Danish Mission. The B. at W. goes to Progressive Christian each week, and will continue to go there without money.

THE late District Meeting of Southern Illinois decided that each congregation in its jurisdiction should organize a missionary board and fill calls. In case a church cannot fill calls, then it shall solicit help from adjoining congregations. Cerro Gordo church has organized and is ready to work.

WE hope our readers will bear with us for indulging on them the good words for B. at W. on page 704. There are samples of many letters on file in this office. We think it good to let our friends know that the rays of kindness often shine into our office. We shall endeavor to remember 1 Cor. 13: 4 and Rom. 12: 13 when we receive such letters.

THERE is a murmuring spirit running through the Vindicator. The Holy Spirit says: "Do all things without murmurings."--Phil. 2: 14. Wm. Cassel also numbers his people--a thing which the Vindicator heretofore persistently condemned. It no more walks where it used to walk, and confusion is the result. We have only words of pity for its fillings.

OUR special correspondent at Dunkirk, Ohio, under date of 10th inst., writes: "Brother S. T. Boserman is slowly improving--temperature 99°, normal; pulse 90°, 2° lower than yesterday morning. He feels hopeful and thinks he will get well again. His wife is cheerful and seems sure of getting well. Brother Teeter preaches Sunday morning and evening in the new church here in town."

A COPY of the Family Companion by J. H. Moore is upon our table. It is a handsome quarto-monthly, full of valuable information. It is one of the cheap papers containing much that will be useful to families. It contains over three hundred items and articles. Eleven thousand copies of the first number have been printed--all of which will be sent out in the various parts of this great country. If any of our readers desire it, we will send it and the B. at W. one year for $1.00.

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE DEVIL ON THE SLY, OR THE DEVIL'S WARDROBE.

BY J. W. SOUTHWOOD.

Will you walk into my wardrobe, said the devil on the sly;
 'Tis the prettiest little wardrobe that ever you did spy.
 The way into my wardrobe is beautiful and fair,
 And I have many pretty things to show when you are there.
 Oh no, no, NO, said the Christian, to ask me is in vain,
 For who into your wardrobe goes scarce e'er comes out again.
 I'm sure you must be weary with living up so high,
 Will you rest upon my bed of ease? said the devil on the sly;
 There are pretty curtains drawn around, the sheets are fine and thin,
 And if you'd like to rest awhile, I gladly take you in.
 Oh no, no, NO, said the Christian, for I've often heard it said,
 They scarcely e'er wake again, who sleep upon your bed.
 Said the cunning devil to this one, dear friend, what shall I do
 To prove the warm (?) affection I always felt for you?
 I have within my wardrobe good store of all that's nice;
 I'm sure you're very welcome; will you please call and price?
 Oh no, no, NO! said the Christian, no sir, that cannot be;
 I've heard what's in your wardrobe, and I do not wish to see.
 Sweet creature!, said the devil, you're witty and you're wise;
 How handsome are your features, how beautiful your eyes!
 I have a little looking-glass upon my wardrobe shelf,
 If you'll step in one moment, dear, you can behold yourself.
 I thank you, cunning sir, she said, for what you're pleased to say,
 And taking her departure now, perchance to call another day.
 The devil turned him round about and went into his den,
 For well he knew this silly one would soon be back again,
 So he set a subtle snare in a little corner sly,
 And held himself in readiness as soon as she came nigh;
 Then he went out again with his flattering subtle snare,
 Come hither, hither pretty one, you're beautiful and fair;
 Your robes are quite too homely, there are niceness on my shelf,
 I'm sure they're more becoming, and you can help yourself.

Alas! alas how very soon this thoughtless carnal one Hearing his wily flattering words came slowly gliding on,
 With beautiful form she stood aloof, then near and nearer drew,
 Thinking only of her handsome form and face of healthful hue,
 Thinking only of her beauty rare—poor foolish thing! At last
 Up jumped the cunning adversary and fiercely held her fast;
 He dragged her in his wardrobe fair, then in his dismal den
 He made a slave of her and she ne'er came out again.
 And now, my dear young friends, you who this poem read,
 To idle, silly, flattering words, I pray you, ne'er give heed.
 Unto fashion's evil counselor, close heart and ear and eye,
 And a warning from this poem take ere you are called to die.

For the Brethren at Work.

SIN AND ITS ISSUES.

BY C. E. BALSINAUGH.

To Mary C. Norman, of Sharon, Minn.—

YOUR letter is terribly true. It made me shudder. Sin is indeed sin—a God dishonoring, God-hated and God-accursed thing. It is snaky and wily and twisty and devilish all through. It can cloak itself with the very linen of heaven, and simulate the glorious robe of Deity. The very elect must be all eye, all ear, if they would escape the snares of Apollyon. Sin originated in Heaven. It needed no objective temptation, save Goodness and Beauty and Perfection itself. All moral being contains the possibility of sin independent of evil apart from the transgressor. One half of the extraneous condition of the sin of Adam and Eve, lay in the Divine arrangement. God had first to say "thou shalt not eat of the tree in the midst of the garden," before the serpent could say, thou mayest. Had there been no prohibition, there could have been no infringement. With us there is more than possibility. We are conceived in sin, and born in iniquity, steeped in embryo in a quality of life whose tendency is carnal. This is the great curse of humanity, the great fight of every soul, the great confusion and perplexity of the church. The devil still comes with his guises, his pleas, his falsehoods, his whitewashed abominations, his heaven colored delusions, his flowery, hell hiding witcher-ies, his flesh-pleasing piety, filling [the church with lust and pride and selfishness and manifold forms of uncleanness and idolatry in the name of Christ Jesus. So effectual is the witchcraft of the Red Dragon that some of our most gifted, astute, influential members second the soul blasting logic of the prince of darkness with all the craft and earnestness and ingenuity of grey-bearded barristers. And on all this they essay to imprint the broad seal of Emmanuel. But the cross is not in it, and the cloven foot, and the fig leaf are clearly visible.

Sin must be watched. It is a native element, and easily assumes religious disguise. It glides into our very prayers. It riots on our tables, and makes a very vestibule of hell of our stomachs, and turns our appetites and passions into chains that fetter body and soul for the blackness of darkness forever. It steps into the water and makes baptism a laver of perdition, and sits to the sacred table and converts the flesh and blood of Jesus into elements of damnation. It drops its poison into the fountain of life, and pollutes the blood of being with the grossest animalism. The august function of human creatorship is dragged by sin into the low plane and fitful atmosphere of carnal gratification, where all the high, God-like instincts and affinities are obliterated. Sin rules much more widely and radically and debasingly and fatally in Christendom than the majority are ready to concede. If we could but exclude it more effectually from our own fraternity and from our individual selves. Self-preference in some form is the dead weight of the church, and has been in all ages. If this were properly considered and resisted and subjugated, each one for himself, how laughably little, and glaringly carnal, would appear many of the devil-toys that are now held up before the public as tokens of Christian progress. Sin drags down, and keeps down, and even if it is not always in a spirit and form that drags to hell, it dwarfs the soul, robs God, cheats the world of the light of the Gospel, and makes the Bride of the Lamb freckled and scabby and repulsive with the foul blood of the mother of harlots. Let us get out of the first matrix, and share Emmanuel's virgin-generation, in which every atom of flesh is moulded and wielded by the Holy Ghost. "Not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." Is there any room here for dress, or aught else, save as the product of the Divine inbeing? Was any part of Christ built by man, independent of the inworking and control of the Holy Spirit? I trow not. Neither is it in the origination and manifestation of anything truly Christian. What is Christian is all of Christ, and what is not of Christ is of the flesh, and tainted with sin.

From the Christian Cynosure.

THE MORGAN MURDER.

A Remarkable Confession By One Who Took Part.

(NEVER BEFORE PUBLISHED.)

Editor Cynosure:—

HAVING reflected much on the subject of writing out the revelation made by one who confessed to me his complicity in that horrid affair, the murder of Morgan, I have come to the conclusion that I would do so, and commit it to you, and leave it entirely to your discretion about giving it to the public through the medium of the Cynosure. I have hesitated of late, as I have seen confessions, said to have been made by those engaged in all diabolical act. They do not agree in that regard, nor with that which I am about to relate; but I think the apparent discrepancies may be accounted for, as the persons engaged in the act were, according to the following relation made to me, entirely unknown to each other, and had no communication with each other before the murder, and immediately separated to their homes. They probably relate the circumstances, as they appeared to them, at the time, and the lapse of time intervening might make some difference in their statements.

As near as my memory serves me, some thirty years ago, in the course of my labors in the ministry; I held a meeting in Monroe county, Michigan, and organized a church. Among the converts in that meeting was an old man (at that time seventy years old) who appeared deeply affected and interested; and well do I remember seeing the tears roll down his aged face as he told of his sinful life, and the hope that he was now permitted to entertain, that his sins were forgiven and that he was reconciled to God through Christ Jesus our Lord. In short, he professed to be converted, and expressed his desire to be baptized and to unite with the church. With many others at the same time, I baptized him and received him into the fold of Christ, and have no reason to think but that he lived the rest of his days a Christian life.

Some time after he came to my house, and in the course of conversation gave me to understand that he wished to make some communication to me privately. We walked out into a corn-field and sat down. He then said, "Brother, I want to tell you a secret, but I want you to give me your solemn promise not to reveal it while I live."

I laid my hand upon his knee and said, "Brother, keep your secret; I don't want it. While you keep it yourself it is safe."

"But," said he, "I want to tell you and to ask your advice."

I replied, "That alters the question. If you wish to tell me and think my advice necessary, I am ready to give you the assurance you require."

"But," said he, "I want to ask you a question first. Do you think that a man can be a Christian and a Mason?"

After a moment's hesitation I replied, "I cannot answer for others, but I could not."

He then said, "I thought you would say so. Now I have been a Mason since I was twenty-one. For many years I have not been among them at all, and don't know whether they know anything about me now. You have heard of the Morgan murder?"

I replied that I had.

He then said, "The secret I wish to tell you is this: I was one of the six that was detailed from as many different lodges to assassinate Morgan. There was great excitement among the Masons. A special meeting of our lodge was called; a man was to be selected for some special duty. We know not what it was for, but supposed it in some way to relate to Morgan, as he had been abducted. I happened to be the one selected. I received my instructions from the officers of our lodge: I was told to repair to an old fort (Niagara) on such a night, at such an hour without fail; I would meet there five other men; that we were not in any way to recognize or speak to one another; that a man would come out from the fort, give us the signs, etc., so that we would know it was all right; that we were to follow him and obey him implicitly. I went, for it was as much as my life was worth to refuse; and sure enough there were six of us looking at one another; not a word passed. We had not to wait long, till a man came out of the fort. He walked straight to us; gave us the passwords and signs, and told us to follow him. We did so; he led us into a magazine, and there we found Morgan—and oh! brother, if ever you saw a miserable looking being he was the one. They had his tongue cut out then, and he looked more like a dead man than a living one. The man who had taken charge of us directed us what to do. There were chains provided like log chains; we wound the chains around Morgan, beginning at his hips, till we reached his arms, fastening them so that they could not come loose. Then the officer told us to take Morgan up and follow him. We did so; he led us to the bank of the river where we found a boat with a plank laid across the gun-whales, one end tied down with a heavy cord. The officer then caused us to draw lots to see who was to cut that string [and here the old man's face brightened as he said it]; I was always glad that it did not fall to my lot to cut that string. We placed Morgan on the plank that extended over the water; then we rowed out until we got to the middle of the river when we were told to hold on. The officer then gave the word to the man who had the knife in his hand; he cut the cord, and Morgan went to the bottom. We rowed to the land and immediately separated. There was great excitement on both sides of the river. They had the river dragged, but the body was not recovered. Now brother, until lately I have thought that this was all right; it was the fate Morgan brought on himself by his own oath. He had published a book and revealed the secrets of the order, and met his fate. But since I have experienced religion I think it is all wrong and am satisfied that a man cannot be a Christian and be a Mason. Now, brother, I want your advice. What shall I do about it?"

After a moment's reflection, I answered, "Brother, do nothing. Do nothing. Let the secret die with you. Let no one else know of this, as you would render yourself liable to process of law, or death by the hands of the Masons. I have heard you tell with tears streaming down your cheeks that God had pardoned your sins, and when he pardons he does not do it by halves, and when he justifies, who is he that condemneth? 'It is Christ that died, yea, rather, that is risen again,' and he is risen for our justification.'

The old gentleman took my advice, as I never heard any more about it from him. This with other things convinced me that Masonry is of the devil.

B.

For the Brethren at Work.

A SPECIAL CONFERENCE.

BY ENOCH EBY.

THIS subject is at present engaging the minds of many, and written upon to some extent in our periodicals and also in private correspondence. Shall we call a special meeting or shall we not, is the great question. Some say, call one, but it must be done legally; others say, no, it will not render satisfaction; besides the expense incurred, and no good would result from it; and some think the relation I sustained to our last Conference requires me to move in the matter, hence these lines. And while musing over the matter, and the propriety of writing to obtain the views of all the members of the Standing Committee, I in the meantime ascertained the views indirectly of several of the most experienced members of that body, and as they were all opposed to it, I abandoned the idea of writing to any.

My mind is, it would be lawful to call such a meeting, but not expedient. Lawful because we have two precedents, (see Minutes, page 116 and 130) one in Washington Co., Tenn., Sept. 4, 1840, the other in Carroll Co., Ind., Sept. 23, 1848. Not expedient from the fact it would not render general satisfaction, it not being a parallel in all points; those meetings having been called and decided upon as to time and place by Conference. Hence the legality of such a meeting would doubtless be strongly questioned and its work disregarded. If our last Conference would have given the matter more thought before such a hasty dismissal, I believe she would have, and I think should have, appointed one, with time and place, then I would be one to labor all I could for the good of the cause of Christ and the reconciliation of the different elements now disturbing the peace of our beloved Brotherhood; for many hearts are bleeding and anxiously looking and waiting for Annual Meeting to give them relief, and we hope, by the grace and wisdom of God she will be able to do it. (In the meantime, we should all be very humble and diligent in prayer and searching the Scriptures). But for the present I as one have decided to do nothing in the matter, unless urged upon by my older and more experienced brethren and a majority of Standing Committee.

I would further remark for our encouragement, if the Brethren thirty-five years ago, when the church was perhaps not half as large as at present, and the speakers in Conference fifty if not seventy-five per cent. less, could not get through, but called a special meeting, why should we despair, taking into consideration the increase of membership and a proportionate increase of business.

Another thought for consideration: Let Conference decide to finish all the work prepared, without so much respect to time, and calmly deliberate on all important points, at least. And should it take two weeks and many could not stay, let them be satisfied with the work done by those who remain. Too much of our Annual Meeting work is done too hasty, with the idea it must be done in time to get home the same week of Conference; consequently decisions must subsequently be changed or repealed, which often might be avoided by having a little more time. In the meantime, let all the districts try their utmost to send nothing there, especially next Spring, as there is a good deal of unfinished business to consider.

O how often have I thought, could I be permitted once in my lifetime to attend an Annual Meeting where no perplexing questions would be presented, and we could be together to build each other up more, confess our faults, and admonish one another to steadfastness in the faith and to greater zeal in saving perishing souls, and be more diligent in living up to what we already have, both in the Scriptures and in the Minutes, (for we have an answer to most every query we could imagine) and then separate with tears, as we often do, and corresponding resolutions to live and die for each other as well as for Jesus. But when I ask, will I ever see it?, Hope smiles and turns away with a blush, and leaves me to weep o'er the unhappy state of Zion, and with an unutterable groan say, "Labor and afflictions abide me."

A PEEP INTO THE BEE-HIVE.

A BUSY, active, wide-awake society may be compared to a bee-hive. The Brethren's Bible School in the Chapel at this place is a live society. One is reminded of busy bees while looking over the large audience, and beholding the activity of teachers and pupils.

Class 1. S. Z. Sharp, teacher. This class consists of young persons, most of whom are members. The lessons are made interesting by the teacher's apt way of calling out thought. It is an excellent place to spend an hour.

Class 2. M. P. Lichty, teacher. The class is composed of young men, who seem to want to know the truth. Bro. Lichty goes into the work prepared, and believes in the labor that is so full of richness. One never tires here.

Class 3. D. L. Miller, teacher. This is a class of young men and women, whom Bro. Miller delights in leading into the investigation of the Word of Life. It is a delightful place to be during the hour.

Class 4. L. H. Eby, of Lena, Illinois, teacher. Brother Eby is a son of brother Enoch Eby, and has been at College since its inauguration. He seems to be one of the pillars of the school. He teaches a class of young ladies, and seems to do it with modesty and becoming religious reverence. It is a good place to spend an hour.

Class 5. Levi Andes, recently from Lincoln, Pa., teacher. Brother Levi has a class of young ladies, and is doing a good work in showing them the way to be happy. He is an humble, devoted brother, zealous of good works. We would like to be one of his scholars.

Class 6. A. W. Vaniman, teacher. Brother Vaniman is a son of Bro. Daniel Vaniman, of Virden, Ill.—he who gathers chips from God's workshop. Brother Albert, as he is familiarly known, has a class of young ladies. The doctrine of the cross will not suffer in his hands, and one can spend an hour in his class to profit.

Class 7. Augie Yarger of Stephenson Co., Ill., teacher. This class is made up of youths of both sexes. Sister Angie, not only by word, but by deed also, impresses lessons of goodness upon the hearts of her scholars. The work has been committed to good hands.

Class 8. Lovina Tombaugh, of Newtonia, Mo., teacher. She instructs a number of boys and girls, and they certainly will not be taught error by one so well calculated to lead in the right.

Class 9. Mary Kindell, of Covington, Ohio, teacher. Sister Mary has charge of the infant class—the most difficult class in school. She is, however, at home among the little folks, and is the right person in the right place.

Class 10. E. S. Young, of New Berlin, Stark Co., O., teacher. This class is composed of young ladies, who are doubtless being instructed in the holy ways of the Lord by brother Young. It will pay to spend an hour each Lord's day in this class.

Class 11. I. H. Miller, of Avery, Iowa, Teacher. Brother Miller is training a number of young men, and it is a good place to learn Bible truth. Bro. Miller has been at school since it first opened under the auspices of its present management, and appears as an old soldier in the institution.

There is an excellent corps of teachers. This accounts for the increased interest. Brother J. E. Young is Superintendent, and brother L. H. Eby assists. Sister Maggie Barkley is Secretary, and sister Sadie Price, Assistant. Sister Katie Price and M. P. Lichty are Choristers. It will thus be seen that all the officers and teachers are members of the church; and we are glad to notice the work is done in simplicity. It is to be desired that it may always be conducted in harmony with the principles of the Gospel.

NAM. LEHSE.

For the Brethren at Work.

FIRMNESS OF PURPOSE.

BY CHARLOTTE T. BOND.

THOSE that begin a Christian life without a firm determination to persevere to the end may be classed with those that are called unstable in their ways. We may naturally expect that there will be many trials and conflicts to be encountered. Nothing is more worthy of our loftiest ambition and purest motives than to be able to stand firm when truth is assailed and to defend it, though it may cost us many sore trials and conflicts. To be a martyr would only insure a crown of glory. We all, at times, resolve to walk closer to God; but sometimes these resolutions pass away as the morning wind, and are forgotten.

We sometimes see frail beings that seem beset by trials and temptations, and borne down by heavy burdens, yet meeting them manfully and surmounting every difficulty, we have felt that such a one will gain the victorious crown. A firmness of purpose to persevere in every good work will become the leading characteristic of the advocate of truth.

Men make life a failure simply because they want decision to choose the right course and to pursue it faithfully. Those of feeble talents and few opportunities become great by doing faithfully the work the Master gives them to do. To stand firm at the post of duty will insure success. The one that lives thus is giving a lesson by the purity of his own life; he is encouraging those around him to follow in his footsteps and though temptations assail, afflictions beat upon him to cast him down, he still stands firm in his integrity, trusting in God, and feels as the Psalmist did when he said, "I will sing praise to my God while I have my being."

For the Brethren at Work.

HAPPINESS.

BY REBECCA SNAVELY.

TO-DAY the weather is too inclement to allow us to attend church, which causes each member of our family to wear a disappointed countenance; but we have the Book of book for good company, and the B. AT W. and P. C. step in to help us and give us good advice, encouragement, and much pleasure.

While we have been enjoying sweet fellowship with Jesus through the blessed pages of this sacred Book, we have to pause, and in wonder view the amazing goodness of God and the condescending love of Jesus—Blessed Jesus! Ah! he meets us at home as well as at church; he can quench our thirst and appease our hunger at home as well as at church; he can at all times and under all circumstances give us all we need, if we will only permit him to do so. He never fails to comply with his promises. We sometimes have to exclaim, Really true Friend!—lovely Jesus!

In meditating over the terrible sufferings and marvellous love of Jesus, one soon becomes lost in wonder and amazement. Language fails to find words with power sufficient to express such wonderful and great love.

And while we enjoy sweet converse with many brethren and sisters through our papers, do we stop and think that this has cost some one's labor and study to prepare this food for us, which we so much enjoy? While we receive so much pleasure and benefit every week gleaned over these pages, let us not forget that in order to fill these pages with proper and wholesome food, some one has labored and toiled, some one has lost sleep, and perhaps let other duties pass that we may be fed with nutritious and substantial food—food that will benefit and strengthen us through this life. With these thoughts in view, let us all kindly remember our dear editors, as well as contributors, remembering they often discommode their pleasures for ours, and knowing they have many perplexities in their labors, let us especially remember them at a throne of grace. May we all feel satisfied with our station in life; that is, be happy. Yet let us grasp more and more after that knowledge that will make us happy in this life and in that life yet to come.

Hudson, Ill.

THE heart has reasons that reason does not understand.

COMMON failings are the strongest lessons of mutual forbearance.

THE best engineering—building a bridge of faith over the river of death.

IT was not the nails that held thee to the cross, dear Jesus, it was thy love.

HE who is false to present duty breaks a thread in the loom and will find the flaw when he may have forgotten the cause.

LIFE is a casket, not precious in itself, but valuable in proportion to what fortune, or industry, or virtue has placed within it.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER VI.

WE took an early morning train, riding all day through the agricultural districts of Germany. Here, as in Belgium, the land is cultivated and sown in irregular pieces; for instance, a narrow strip of grass or clover, followed by one of wheat or rye, then potatoes, then again grass, grain and potatoes, then would follow perhaps a square of ground alternated in the same way, or perhaps a curved or somewhat triangular piece of ground, and as the wheat or rye was ripening, the oats a bright green; the clover in bloom, as also the potatoes, and through all the fields of grass or grain, the scarlet poppy blooming profusely, the effect was most charming. Occasionally a piece of grass would be cut and the men and women employed in drawing it away with a team, consisting of two cows yoked together, or a cow and a horse. The women seem to keep pace with the men in their field labors, and all have a weather-beaten countenance, with hard lines written all over their faces, making me think of walking machines made of leather. We ride mile after mile without seeing a farm house or building of any kind, the people evidently living in villages, which we pass now and then. There are no fences, the ground being cultivated close to the wagon track, and nothing insightfully meets the eye. We miss the familiar school-house, which so often is seen at home; we miss the homes of the laboring people, such as we saw in England, or the low-thatched roofs of the Scottish peasant; and yet our eyes never grow weary of the ever-changing panorama which seemed to be passing before us. We expected to have stopped at Appenweir, and visited Strassburg, but a change in the time table had been made, and we missed the connection. We saw, however, the beautiful tower of the cathedral—the spire of which is the highest in the world—standing 465 feet above the level of the cathedral floor. It is at Strassburg, or its vicinity, where geese are fattened until their livers grow to an unnatural size, sometimes weighing two or three pounds, and are considered a great delicacy when made into pies. On and on we go, through Liege, Basle and other less important places, until we reach our destination, Schaffhausen.

"Who first beheld the Alps, that mighty chain
Of mountains stretching on from east to west,
So massive, yet so shadowy, so ethereal,
As to belong rather to heaven than earth,
But instantly receives into his soul
A sense a feeling that he loves not,
A something that informs him 'tis a moment
Whence he may date henceforward and forever."

Our landlord at the Rhine Falls had ordered the dinner tables to be laid in the portico of the hotel, overlooking the falls, and after taking our seats we accidentally saw something looming up in the distance, and on inquiry found that we were looking out upon the Alps, as well as the roaring, dashing waters of the Rhine. There they were, the cloud-capped mountains, and one, more dazzling than its companions, showing as its banks of unmelting snow, even Mount Blanc. For a long while we sat silent and motionless, again forgetting hunger, thirst and the weariness of a long day's travel, 1,500 feet below us the waters of the Rhine swept over their rocky bed, and away in the distance swept the Alps. We ate our dinner at last in silence, and then went down by finely graveled and winding paths to the railroad bridge, which crosses just above the falls, and crossing, went to the castle and grounds, which overlooks the falls on the opposite side from our hotel. There is a wooden balcony which overhangs the falls, and from which a good view can be had of the river in its descent above the falls, and the river below. The actual fall is only about eighty feet, and is divided into three shoots by two pillars of rock, in the center, and reminds one of Niagara, though but a miniature in comparison; yet the general landscape is superior to that of Niagara.

Our next visit was made to Zurich, beautifully situated on Lake Zurich. The city is noted for being the place where the Reformation broke out in Switzerland, and also for two fierce and bloody battles fought in its vicinity, towards the close of the last century, between the French and Austrians, and between the French and Russians. It is now said to be one of the most flourishing towns in the republic, there being 10,000 silk looms alone in the canton. It was formerly surrounded by ramparts, but they have been changed into charming promenades and drives, and from which, overlooking the city and lake, the scene is most enchanting. Our guide said there were no theatres or concerts in Zurich, and that if one wished to give a private ball, permission must be asked of the authorities. In the old arsenal are many curious relics, and among them the bow which William Tell used when he shot the apple from off his son's head. There is a fine university, Polytechnic school, a deaf and dumb institution, and also one for the blind, and a noted institution for medicine and surgery. There seemed to be more spirit and enterprise here than in any city we had yet visited on the continent.

Having seen Zurich, we go to Locerue, on Lake Lucerne, or the River Reuss. It is surrounded on its land-side by an old wall, with watch towers at intervals, being the first walled city we had seen. The river is crossed by four bridges, which form a peculiar feature of the town. The principal bridge is open at the sides, but ceiled overhead, and on the ceiling are numerous pictures taken from the life of the patron saint. One of the others is ornamented with thirty-six pictures representing the Dance of Death, by Holbein. There is in the middle of the river a watch tower which was used as a light-house, and from which the city took its name. It is now used as a receptacle for the archives of the town. In the evening an organ concert was tendered us. The first piece was Mendelssohn's Wedding march. There was the full band, with hautboy, flute, clarinet and trumpet accompaniment, introducing solos, and closing with a full grand sweep of melody, in which the strains of each were perfect, pure and faultless, and made the vaulted arches of the old cathedral ring as if every nook and corner was filled with exultant melody. Then came one of Beethoven's sonatas, followed by a representation of a thunderstorm among the Alps, which commenced with a pastoral introduction, and was succeeded by the muttering of distant thunder, the whistling of the wind, the rattling of the raindrops, which was so perfect as to cause many of our party to look up at the windows, expecting to see the rain dashing against the panes, and almost meditate a return to the hotel, remembering they had come to the cathedral without wraps or overhoses. Mountain streams could be heard, the matter of the thunder increased, and finally the tempest seemed to shake the walls of the cathedral. The winds howled and shrieked, the rain beat faster and harder, and finally came down in torrents. Peal after peal of thunder reverberated among the arches, awaking the clumbering echoes, and one of those sharp rattles that betokens a falling bolt made the ladies involuntarily shudder. Finally the thunder peals grew less and less frequent, and rolled slowly away among the mountains with heavy reverberations, between which the rush of the mountain streams and the ripple of the brooks were heard, and the peals died entirely away. Then amid the subsiding of the tempest, the notes of a little organ, which had been heard at intervals, became more clear and distinct. It seemed to come from some distant convent or chapel, and then arose a chant, so sweet, so pure, so clear, so heavenly, as to seem hardly of earth—a chant of nuns; then it increased in volume, as if tenor, and even the full bass of a monkish chant joined in the chorus, and the whole choir burst into a glorious hymn of praise. It was a wonderful performance, and the concert closed by a fine rendering of the "Star Spangled Banner," as a compliment to the American party.

For the Brethren at Work.

EARNESTNESS.

BY C. DARNHART.

FOR here we have no confining city; but we seek one to come. What noble sentiments are these to the Christian. Our rest and our hope are not in the present, but in the future. You remember when our Savior was here on earth, he told the disciples he was going to prepare a place for them, that where he was, there they might be also.

If all were as eager to seek a heavenly home as they are a temporal one, what a combined effort there would be on the part of intelligent humanity. When we contemplate the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death, should we not, in obedience to the command of the Savior, seek first the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness, and all other necessary things for our comfort will be added. If we seek first an earthly mansion, and our natural life is cut off from the earth, all is lost; but if we make religion the first motive and object in life; then we, with the apostle can say: for we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved we have a building of God—a house not built with hands, eternal in the heavens. "Let us press on with vigor, with a determination to obtain the crown of life, that fadeth not away. And finally, may we all meet in that celestial city where trials never come.

Home and Family.

MARY G. NORMAN, LE SEUEUR, MINN., - EDITRESS

PERSECUTION.

PERSECUTION is an evil which the people of God are exposed; and persecution in some form and in some degree, must always be expected by those who will live godly in Christ Jesus.

It is certainly grievous, that men should be abused for righteousness' sake; yet it has been, and according to divine Word, must, and will be to the end. There will be hatred and opposition against those who are born after the Spirit, as long as there are men born after the flesh; nevertheless, God never leaves his people destitute of comfort; He has promised to deliver his children from the hands of ungodly men.

Therefore, dear brethren and sisters, honor God by trusting his Word; for not one thing will fail of all the good things which the Lord your God hath spoken concerning you, all shall come to pass unto you and not one thing fail thereof.

O! why should doubts and fears arise?

Why trifling sorrows drown our eyes?

Slowly, ah! our mind receives

The comfort that our Maker gives.

Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take;

The clouds ye so much dread,

Are big with mercy, and shall break

With blessings on your head.

M. C. N.

HOW TO BE CHARMING.

EVERY young girl cannot be beautiful, for to every one God has not given a comely face nor a graceful figure. But every one can be attractive. Indeed, health and cleanliness go far in giving those bright eyes, blooming cheeks and clear skins which conduce to good looks, though some have plain and irregular features, and can easily see, by the testimony of the truth-telling mirror, that they are not remarkable for external graces. Let them comfort themselves by the thought that they may make very beautiful old ladies, if they cultivate sweetness of disposition and contentedness of mind, and trust in God's goodness and love.

How can the homely be charming? Well, true self-forgetfulness for the happiness of others is always winning. The vain, selfish beauty cannot compete with the homely maiden who is popular because she is so very lovable. Her father confides in her. Her mother leans on her. Her friends go to her for help and advice. The little girls bring her their broken toys, and the boys come for aid when the lessons are hard. By and by a marvelous thing happens. She is spoken of everywhere as "the interesting Miss Parker," or "the agreeable Miss Dornell," or the "captivating Miss St. Mark." She has grown interesting, agreeable, and captivating, and each quality is far more valuable to a woman than the possession of mere beauty, without other winning personal characteristics.

The power to converse well is a very great charm. You think anybody can talk? How mistaken you are! Anybody can chatter. Anybody can exchange idle gossip. Anybody can recapitulate the troubles of the kitchen, the cost of the last new dress, and the probable doings of the neighbors. But to talk wisely, wittily, instructively, freshly, and delightfully, is an immense accomplishment. It implies exertion, observation, study of books and of people, and receptivity of impressions. No young girl can hope to shine in conversation as her mother does, but every girl can begin to acquire that graceful art which will draw intelligent men and women to her side, and enable her to retain them, because they are pleasantly entertained. (N.)

THINK BEFORE YOU SPEND

DO you really need the articles? It is probably a pretty article in dress, or in furniture; but what solid benefit will it be to you? Or is it some luxury for the table that you can as well do without?

Think, therefore, before you spend your money. You need a new carpet, or a new bedstead, or you are tempted to buy something a little handsomer than you have had to ornament your body—such as a fine hat, a stylish sash, or some costly material for a dress with gay trimmings, and while you are hesitating, the dealer, who is cunning and sharp in trading, says to you, "It's only a trifle more and see how much prettier it is!" Thus persuading you to buy in order to get your money. But before you purchase, stop to think! Will you be better off for having squandered your money for such folly in order to gratify the lust of the eye, which is carnality? Certainly you will not.

Therefore be wise and lay up something for a rainy day; all these luxuries gratify you only for the moment; their only permanent effect is to consume your means. It is by such extravagance that the great majority of families are kept comparatively poor. They must keep up with the fashions of the day which change as oft as the moon—let come what will—yet they have the money to pay for what they get, all right, if not, it must be had whether they ever pay for it or not. This is one cause of so many paupers throughout the land. Those who follow such a course, follow it to ruin and not to success.

Gentle reader, the first lesson to learn is to deny yourself useless expenses; and the first step toward learning this lesson is to stop and think before you spend your money. M. C. N.

TAKE YOUR HANDS OUT OF YOUR POCKETS, YOUNG MAN.

NO begin with, it does not look well, when a young man crosses his arms and thrusts his hands into his pockets, making a figure sight of himself, and then stands up against the sunny side of the house, like a rooster in December. How would the girls look, all turned into sights and leaning against the wall? How would your mother look in that posture? Catch her doing it! You don't find her hands in her pockets. Your mother's hands! While you are leaning, they are the hands that sew, and bake, and stew, and fry, and sweep, and darn, and nurse; but she does not sink them in her pockets, and then loll against the building.

Are your hands cold? Swing the hammer; drive the plane; flourish the axe. There is untold esloric about a spade, a trowel, a wrench.

Besides, pocket-heat is not probable. Have you money there, though? Are your pockets the safes in which you have hidden treasure, and are your hands the bolts that secure the safe doors? Money may be there to-day, but it won't be a guest to-morrow night. An idler's money is apt to leap out of his pocket. It is likely to go for a pipe, a cigar, a tobacco plug, a mug of ale. There is no money in pocket-warming.

Take your hands out of your pockets, young man! You are losing time. Time is valuable. People feel at the other end of the line, when death is near and eternity is pressing them into each small quarter, for the work of this life craves hours, days, weeks, years. If those at this end of the line of youth with its abundance of resources would only feel that time was precious! Time is a quarry. Every hour may be a nugget of gold. It is time in whose invaluable moments we build our bridges, spike the iron rails to the sleepers, launch our ships, dig our canals, run our factories. You might have planted twenty hills of potatoes while I have been talking to you, young man. Take your hands out of your pockets.

The world wants those hands. The world is not dead, asleep under the pyramid, a mummy by the Nile. The world is alive, wide awake, pushing, struggling, going ahead. The world wants those hands. You need not take them out of America. They can find a market here at home. The country wants those hands, selling dry goods in New York, cradling wheat in Minnesota, raising cotton in Alabama, weaving cloth in Lowell, picking oranges in Florida, digging silver in Colorado, catching mackerels from the deck of a down-east fishing smack. Take your hands out of your pockets!

And what a laudable thing it is to meet the wants of society and do your best! When you are an old man what an honorable thing your hand will be!

You are willing to work, you say, but can't find anything to do! Nothing to do? Do the first thing that comes along; but don't let your hands loaf in your pockets.

A good example of what can be done by a young man who takes and keeps his hands out of his pockets, was set by one who graduated a few years ago at the Harvard university. He determined to be a cotton manufacturer. Instead of relying upon his general education, and waiting for an opening, as many of his class-mates did, he began at once to prepare specially for the business he had chosen, by entering a machine shop as a workman—making full hours and acquainting himself with every part of the machinery of a cotton mill. From the machine shop he went into a cotton mill, and by hard work and close attention rapidly acquired a thorough knowledge of all the processes of cotton manufacture. He rose step by step, until he is to-day in charge of one of the largest cotton mills in New England, with ample salary, and what is better, discharging the duties of his position with great satisfaction to the company he serves.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

NOVEMBER 15, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE, }
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Ernest Ely, A. W. Rems, D. E. Brubaker,
James Evans, E. W. Hilder, J. J. Rosenberry,
Daniel Vasmataz, C. H. Bushong, J. W. Southwood.

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every statement of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please send in originals in person or by mail, and present their views with grace seasoned with salt.

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending eight names and $12.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the balance.

Money sent by Postal-Order, Registered Letters and Bank property addressed, will be at our risk.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

THE REAL ISSUE.

Congregationalism against Union.

SOME years ago the question of the right of a State usurping the rights of the United States was the great issue in the government, and it finally terminated in a conflict of arms. The result was, the rights of the Union were maintained and the principles of the federal government more firmly established than ever, liberty, freedom and justice receiving no heights from the triumph.

This issue under the form of congregationalism is now brought forward in the Brethren's church as the plea of State's rights was; and it assumes various phases under different circumstances, yet all based on the same principle. As the federal government was forced to meet the issue, so is the church; not with arms, but with the Bible—the sword of the Spirit.

The celebrated case of H. R. Holsinger is the pivotal upon which the issue hinges. If his course is sustained, then congregationalism or the demands of a local church against the union of churches, will receive a victory and the union will be dissolved. If on the other hand he is not sustained, then the just rights of local churches, and the rights of the union or Brotherhood will remain unimpaired and unbroken, and on the same basis as heretofore. This is the real issue; and all the people should prepare to meet it. Already a faction has denied the power of the union of churches, and gone out on the congregational plea. And as the Brotherhood cannot coerce any, it must perform its high mission of maintaining truth and preaching the Gospel in love, leaving those who depart from the union to themselves. Whether the Brotherhood or union shall be made subservient to a local church, or a few local churches, will be more clearly tested in the case of H. R. Holsinger. Had this doctrine prevailed in the late conflict between the federal government and a few of the States, then any State at any time could defy the United States, and instead of peace and prosperity, confusion and anarchy would prevail.

The local churches have rights which the Brotherhood must respect; and the Brotherhood has rights that local churches must not ignore. A local church desires to ask all the churches or Brotherhood a question, and the only way to do it is to have a meeting of all the churches. What this meeting says should be respected. If a local church ignores the work of this meeting, it rebels against its sister churches, and produces confusion and disorder. It breaks the union.

The editor of the Progressive Christian transgressed against the Brotherhood or union of churches through his paper. The Brotherhood in its council-meeting took cognizance of the trespass and sent him a committee—the representatives of the union of churches. For the Annual Meeting is to the Brotherhood or union of churches, what a local council-meeting is to a local church. If a member of a local church trespasses, the local church has jurisdiction over him and may set him in order. If a brother trespasses against the Brotherhood, the council-meeting of the Brotherhood may set him in order. A member may be tried before the council of the Brotherhood for trespassing against the Brotherhood, or the meeting may send a committee to the local church where he resides to try him. In the case referred to, Annual Meeting saw fit to send a committee with authority to act in the name of Annual Meeting; and though we may differ in our mind, as to where and how he should be tried, yet Annual Meeting chose, (as it had a right to do.) to send representatives to act for it. This right is unquestionable.

The committee, the legal representatives of the union—acting for the Brotherhood, met H. R. Holsinger in a local church at Berlin, Pa. Two difficulties confronted the committee at once. 1. The congregation at Berlin—a local church—demanded that outsiders also be admitted to hear the trial. The committee quoted Matt. 18:17 in support of the usage of the church, that only members of the Brethren church should be present at the trial. The accused and his congregation refused to comply. Did that church violate a principle of local church government in thus refusing to comply with the usage of local churches in this particular? 2. The accused and the Berlin church demanded that the proceedings of the trial be published in a weekly paper. This the committee—the body sent to represent the Brotherhood—refused to comply with, because it was a violation of the usage and practice of local churches in the trial of members. We believe there is no precedent in the history of the Brethren church where a local church published in a paper, the proceedings of the trial of one of its members. Whether the committee did right in thus refusing to violate the usages and practices of local churches is a question beyond our power to settle. Annual Meeting can settle it satisfactorily to the churches, or a majority at least. That committee is amenable to the body which sent it; and if the committee did wrong in stopping where it did, the Annual Meeting is the body to point it out and decide it. All the "attorneys" in the world cannot decide it.

The committee being prevented from proceeding to try H. R. H., in the usual way, retired, prepared a report, based, as we understand, upon the evidences before it and in their possession, gleaned mainly from the paper edited by the accused—and decided that he no longer be held as a member of the church of the Brethren. The question now arises, Can the Berlin congregation—a local church—set aside the action of a committee representing the Brotherhood? If it can, then it is a triumph of congregationalism over the union—a step towards breaking the union of churches. If a local church can dictate terms to a committee chosen in a legal manner by a legal meeting of the union of churches, then congregationalism triumphs again. If a local church can present conditions of trial contrary to usages of local churches, then the rights of local churches are violated and anarchy follows.

The question is not, did the committee proceed legally, or did it render a just verdict? These questions must be settled by Annual Meeting to which the committee is amenable. If local churches or individuals can decide this, then committee work is nothing.

The proper course for H. R. H., would have been to submit, and then appeal to Annual Meeting. He should cease all church work, and in deference to the union or Brotherhood, go before its next meeting and show cause for further hearing. This course would preserve harmony between local churches, and show due respect for the Brotherhood of churches.

It may be urged that the union is corrupt. Perhaps it might be well to consider before making this hasty assertion. In a government like ours, where delegates are elected annually, and where the representatives of this year may be supplanted by others next year, the tendency to become oppressive is indeed limited. Where the elective system is maintained, as it is in the Brethren church, the danger of becoming tyrannical and papistical is so small that we think it chimerical to consider it.

Personally we should like to see every accused person have a fair—an impartial trial. It is a grave thing to condemn anyone without trial. But perhaps we do not know the evidence upon which the committee arrived at its conclusions, hence should reserve our judgment until after the report of that committee. Many think the committee ought to report to the public through the press, but it should be remembered that the public did not send the committee, hence the committee is not required to report to the public, but to the Annual Meeting which sent it. We summarize as follows:

1. The trespasses of H. R. H. 2. Committee of Annual Meeting sent to H. R. H. 3. Refusal of Berlin church to exclude outsiders or worldly persons from council-meeting. 4. The demand of Berlin church to publish proceedings of trial in paper. 5. Report of committee without trial. 6. Rejection of report by Berlin church. From which we conclude:

1. That the sending of committee was legal. 2. The resolution of Berlin church to admit "persons not members" of the Brethren church, and to publish proceedings, is a debatable question to be settled by Annual Meeting. 3. That the action of the committee is binding until set aside by Annual Meeting. 4. That there are no decisions of Annual Meeting that warrant members or any local church to set aside the action of the committee before it reports to Annual Meeting.

We have tried to present the matter in the light we understand it. What course the Annual Meeting will take we do not know, but hope wisdom, mercy and a due regard for the rights of the union and local churches may prevail. So far as the BROTHERS AT WORK is concerned it shall go on preaching the Gospel of the kingdom as usual, leaving difficulties and questions of judgment for the A. M. to settle. We have been set in defense of the Gospel, and shall abide in the truth by God's grace, and go on loving the Brotherhood. We see no cause to disrupt the Brotherhood.

CONSOLIDATION.

THE BROTHERS AT WORK has given space to the expression of sentiments for and against uniting the papers published by Brethren, so as to have but one paper. It did not deem it necessary to publish all letters received upon this subject. The majority received, were opposed to giving up the B. AT W. So far as the B. AT W., is concerned it moves along as if consolidation had never been mentioned. It has a mission to perform, and cannot stop its aggressive and defensive work in behalf of Christianity for things less important. Our readers and workers need not cease their diligence and activity through fear that the

B. AT W., will make some change which will deprive them of their just dues and most earnest desires for its welfare. Nothing will be done before next Annual Meeting. The question has already passed a District Meeting, and this will bring the question up to the meeting of 1882 for consideration. We do not feel to do anything looking towards consolidation, believing Annual Meeting should take the initiative, and control its religious papers. In the meantime the Work will move on as usual, preaching the Gospel, and defending the church against all heresies. Let all hands work for Jesus!

OUR REFLECTOR.

—I wonder if it would not be well to make an explanation about Bro. Stein's mental condition when he left? The good man was in possession of a master mind that had few equals, but much labor unobtrusively caused him to lose his mental equilibrium,—a fact yet unknown to the public. It is very kind in Mr. Blaine to institute inquiries for Bro. Stein.

—Bro. Zollers' poetry this week, is an improvement over that of last. Such poetic compositions, would be a credit to the most gifted poet. I regret that it was so short. It is a beautiful narrative of brother Zollers' life on the ocean.

—The first sentence in Bro. Balebaugh's "Mystery of Mysteries" is considerable below his dignified and pure style of writing. His article will be generally understood by those who read it. The question of right living is not generally sufficiently explained when written or preached on. Denouncing an evil is not generally the proper course; it is best to explain in detail in order to bring about the proper reformation. Tell the people what to do, how to live, what to eat and how to manage and the desired change will take place much sooner. Then I believe people can go to an extreme in this hygiene business as well as anything else. There is a medium ground that is safe and reasonable for all. My method is to eat what I think is good for my system, at all times. It would be best to dispense with tea and coffee and use heated milk instead. Pork, when used at all, should be eaten sparingly. Beef and mutton are far better. Parents should teach their children to use no tobacco and set them a good example in that respect also.

—B. F. Kittinger's "Prospective Life Terminated" is too sad to require comment. In every part of life we are subject to danger, hence the importance of always being prepared to take our departure.

—Bro. Eshelman's "Pleasant Visit" reminds me of my former field of labor in Southern Ill., especially in the vicinity of Cerro Gordo, where members are always so kind toward those who visit them. It has long been my desire to revisit those fields of labor. Bro. E. spies out his article just enough to make it interesting. I think it is an improvement over former notes of travel. Hope others will enjoy and profit by the well-meant "pinch"

—Bro. Euy's "Inconsistency" is a subject that the Brotherhood should have considered long ago. Circumstances may yet drive her to it. Brethren may be allowed to enter the printing business the same as any other lawful business; but when it comes to church papers they should be authorized and run solely by authority of the church. If church-papers are good things let the Annual Meeting take charge of them the same as she authorizes men to preach, and if not good then put a stop to the whole business. A church paper would be good for the cause. It seems there are so many who have their fears; they think there is danger of A. M., controlling. And thus they reason until papers bring on them, troubles much greater than any that will likely ever grow out of properly conducted church-papers. Let the A. M., have a good church-paper, appoint the editors, and say how the paper shall be conducted, and I and thousands of others will be ready readers. So far as profits and proceeds are concerned that will be a very easy matter to dispose of. I am decidedly in favor of the church taking hold of every good work of the kind and maintaining it.

—Those who will try the puzzle presented by Bro. John S. Saunders will soon learn how poor they are at guessing. It may teach some good lessons.

—That illustration on the Bible Class page will forcibly remind the aged of olden times when they quietly attended meeting and enjoyed the services in a plainly constructed house in the woods. Having been raised on the frontier among humble people, whose habits and company we still love, our soul becomes stirred when looking at such scenes.

—I am very much pleased with Bro. Daniel Hay's article which came in just at the eleventh hour. If his suggestions were heeded, there would be less trouble among our people. Councils would be duly respected by members of the body; for without them no organized body will exist. Even those who oppose councils will give councils to others; thus violating the very principles they teach. They also consult together and never once think to call their conclusions the "opinions of uninspired men."

—Thirty-three baptisms are recorded in this No., which added to the 203 of last week makes 239 since I have commenced "Our Reflector."—J. H. MOORE.

CHRISTIAN graces are like stars, they shine brightest in the dark.

For the Brethren at Work.

A FEW QUESTIONS.

BY ENOCH EBY.

FOR thought and response, intended especially for those of our brethren who ignore the work of the General Conference, and teach others that it is only the work of man, and has decisions the traditions of the elders; that the Gospel alone is sufficient to govern the church in all points without any ecclesiastical interpretation. In view of this fact, we solicit an honest and prayerful solution of the following questions.

1. Did the brethren in Conference ever pretend to make a law beside the Gospel to govern the church, or does Conference only give her interpretations of the letter and spirit of the law already made by the Savior?

2. Did she not always acknowledge the Gospel to be all-sufficient for salvation and church government when properly interpreted?

3. Did the brethren at our Annual Conference ever make a decision or give an advice that when lived up to would violate any principle of the Gospel?

4. Did she ever make a decision that was not in harmony with the spirit of the Gospel, that she would not subsequently change or repeal, if it could be shown that it was not Scriptural or that a good majority thought that it would not result in the most possible good?

5. Did she ever prohibit a free delegation from any part of the Brotherhood to her councils, and liberty of speech in her Conference?

6. Is there anything in the decision of A. M., in general, that would show a lack of uniformity in deliberation, purpose, or spirit, in the past century, when applied to the customs and habits of the age in which they were made and the circumstances surrounding them?

7. If the entire Brotherhood would have heeded the decisions and advices of the A. M., and all worked in harmony with her councils would they not have fulfilled all the requirements of the Gospel; and would there be one schism in the church to-day?

8. Is Solomon correct when he says, "Where no counsel is, the people fail; but in the multitude of counselors there is safety?"—Prov. 11-14. Again Prov. 15-22. "Without counsel, purposes are disappointed; but in the multitude of counselors they are established."

Eben, Ill.

duties and influence, and saying nothing of those of the father.

Well, the facts are, the little fellow tries to imitate father's walk, talk and manner of doing everything he does. If, after a while, his mother says, "Do not go to the grocery or saloon to spend your evenings! The surroundings are not good there," the son reasons, "What does mother know about that! they are good enough for father, and why not for me?" When she tries to persuade him not to chew or smoke, he reasons, "Father does and I want to do like father."

Come, be not one-sided, it is the duty of both fathers and mothers to set the best possible examples before their children, which is that of a Christian life. Our living is for eternity. Morality alone won't do! "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God. John. 5: 5.

LET YOUR LIGHT SHINE.

ABOUT a month ago, one night, in a rail road depot, there was a little company waiting for the train, some brethren and sisters, and others. While seated there, a number of young men came in, and all of them smoking tobacco. One brother said to them, "Young men, for the sake of the ladies, could you not go out to smoke?"

Out the young men went!

But no sooner were they gone until two of the sisters got out their filthy pipes and filled the room full of the filthy smoke.

Now how do you think the brother felt by this time; after he had told these young men to go out to smoke "for the sake of the ladies?" He felt ashamed, of course!

How does it look for sisters to sit in depots with their caps on and the filthy pipe in their mouth, filling the house so full of smoke that people have to go out to get breath? Does it look Christ-like? UNCLE JOHN.

[Well, "Uncle John," it looks awful bad to see members smoke. Plain garments and tobacco smoke are as opposed to each other in principles as plain clothes and drunkenness. Smoke consumes all the light that shines out through plain dress. There is nothing Christ-like about a tobacco-pipe or cigar. We pray our beloved brethren and sisters to will to put them away, and then to will to keep them away and all will be well in that direction. Will they do so, by God's grace?—Ed.]

FIELD WORK.

THE Mission board met May 14th and partly arranged their work. Elder George Myers was appointed Corresponding Secretary, and all calls should be made formally through him. The work, if incurred in by the churches will be actively commenced about the first of November, prosecuted through the fall and winter months, or at least so long as means are furnished to meet actual expenses.

As a board, believing that the missionary enterprise originated in the eternal purpose of God, prompted by infinite love, (John 3, 46.) we most earnestly solicit the co-operation of all the housekeepers, of churches and also the individual members, in pushing forward the injunctions of Matthew 28: 19, 20; Luke 24: 45, 47. Jesus Christ not only came into the world to save sinners by offering himself as a missionary; but instructed suitable men to aid him in the great work, and through them has committed the work to us.

Therefore, as the Lord prospers, we hope all our brethren may feel it an imperative duty resting upon them to aid and assist in the work, that our cause may be heard, Zion built up and churches organized throughout the State. This we believe to be the great object in view and it can be accomplished only by concerted action, and to this end let us all, beloved brethren, labor and pray.

All contributions should be forwarded to Isaac H. Bashor, Treas., Peabody, Marion Co., Kansas, who will receipt for all money received.

Calls may be made by addressing any member of the Board, viz:

George Myers, Wade, Miami Co., Kansas; A. J. Hixon, Montana, Labette Co., Kansas; Daniel Harader, Little Duteh, Cowly Co., Kan. George W. Thomas, Peabody, Marion county Kansas.

But three churches have, thus far, contributed to the treasurer. We hope the churches will all do their part in this noble work; and indeed the success of this scheme depends on what the Brethren do in the matter of money.

Fraternally,

GEO. W. THOMAS.

BRO. J. B. BRUMBAUGH writes up Mount Morris College in Primitive Christian, in a very fair and candid manner. Of the B. at W., he says:

We also visited the BRETHREN AT WORK office and found our Brother Eshelman at his post. We had a very pleasant interview relative to our work and the best method of making it, under the blessing of God, an auxiliary to the church in promoting the truth. This should be the central object of all our publishers, and we hope that none of us may become so wrapped up in our selfish interests as to lose sight of it.

Thank you, brother John, here is our hand to the Primitive to help make our papers promoters of truth. God will help us to do this. Trust in the Lord.

A CHRISTIAN should behave respectfully to all, giving honor to whom honor is due, and be constantly aiming at "whatsoever things are lovely and of good report."

THE richest colored man in Georgia is said to be Henry Todd of Darien, worth some $100,000. When a youth his master died and left him his freedom as a reward for his fidelity. The family kept him as overseer at a handsome salary. He has a family of children well educated and he is highly respected.

For the Brethren at Work.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANIMAN.

IMPORTANT and responsible as are the duties of the mother; those of the father are no less so. Perhaps nine-tenths of the articles written on this subject, are one-sided; because pressing the importance of the mother's

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, - - - - - EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Leades, Henry Co., Mo.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in towns? ELIAS HARNISH.

If man has a natural immortality, why do the Scriptures teach, (1 Tim. 6: 16) "The Lord only hath it?" "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Ex. 18: 4, 20. Immortality cannot die, and many other Scriptures of like import, and Paul seem to imply, that it is to be put on at the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15: 53. The word immortal occurs only once in all the Scriptures, and then it is applied to God. 1 Tim. 1: 17. A. B. C.

For the Brethren at Work

QUERY ANSWERED.

1. "Which is the most injurious to the body, a Christian woman wearing a plain hat; or a Christian man using tobacco to a great extent?"

In the first place we notice that the querist selects a very moderate case for the sister, and an extreme case for the brother. This is badly fair. All admit that to use tobacco immoderately is injurious to the body and is a filthy habit besides.

The wearing of a plain hat by a sister may be specially injurious to the body, but it may become injurious to the soul, from the fact, that a step from a plain bonnet to a plain hat may only be the first step down the ladder that leads to excessive pride and vanity. Were the church sure that the wearing of plain hats would be adhered to, by the sisters, amidst the ever changing fashions of the day, perhaps the church would say but little against it. But it is the first step in a doubtful direction, that is, the dangerous one. The first temptation, the first draw, the first oath, are the dangerous ones. Equally so with hats.

2. Are not men's hats that the brethren wear, as much of the world as a plain hat for the sister?"

Ever since my knowledge of the Brethren, they have worn hats of some kind; and the kind of hats they now wear, are very similar to the ones some years ago, and are not after the style of the world; otherwise they would wear regular "plug hats."

3. What authority has the church to turn out a sister for wearing a plain hat? Please give me Bible-proof for this last question."

A SISTER.

The church has full authority to regulate its own internal affairs, and to adopt such rules as she may deem necessary for her safety and prosperity. Unless the church possesses power to retain its purity intact, and to govern herself, and perpetuate the integrity of her doctrine, what is her organization worth? Simply nothing. That the church has this power, we refer the reader to Matt. 18: 17, "But if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as a heathen man and a publican." Again, "Whosoever ye shall bind on earth, shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven." Matt. 18: 18.

The objector will say, that the Scriptural reference above, has only allusion to individual trespasses, and does not reach the point in the query. To this it might be answered that cases of transgression occur for which we have no direct Scriptural testimony to judge the case, yet it is clear that such transgressors cannot remain in the church without damaging its purity, and impeding its prosperity.

For example, the Gospel does not say in so many words, "Thou shalt not gamble, thou shalt not dance, thou shalt not horse-race;" yet, if a member of the church would persist in gambling, dancing, or horse racing, would not the church be under the necessity of expelling such a member, notwithstanding the absence of direct Scriptural testimony against such practices? Certainly.

Thus we might go on and enumerate a large number of similar cases.

For the mere wearing of a plain hat by a sister, did no other consequences follow, the probability is, that the church would not expel a sister. Were the church assured that in the allowance of wearing plain hats by the sisters, they would continue to wear plain hats for 999 years, and want nothing but plain hats, the probability is, there would be little opposition to them.

The mere wearing of a hat by a sister, is a small matter within itself, yet it might be the opening wedge for disastrous consequences to follow. A crevice in a mill-dam is a small matter of itself, but if left open, the crevice will soon wear into a wide gap, and perhaps tear the whole dam away, and destroy the mill besides.

It is thus with the church. She needs to be well fenced in to stand the pressure of the world, and the powers of darkness, and if there be a slight opening, the enemy is ever ready to take advantage and shoot his fiery darts through to the sore wounding of the church, as well as individuals.

We must abruptly close this answer. Much more might be written, showing the relation between individual liberty and church authority, on which subject we would write some articles, if we had time.

J. S. M.

THE SEVEN SPIRITS.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations? C. D. H.

THE seven Spirits form the one great Spirit of the Almighty in the accomplishment of the great work performed in his creation, and dealings with mankind in the redemption of the purchased possession, brought to light through the covenant of grace, sealed by the blood of Jesus Christ, and made manifest to his people through the operation of the Holy Spirit.

In Rev. 4: 5, we read of the seven Spirits of God under the symbol of lamps of fire. In

Rev. 5: 6 of the Lamb having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God, sent forth into all the earth.

First in order we mention the Spirit of Grace. Heb. 10: 29,—the moving spirit in the manifestation of God's love to the world in sending his only begotten Son as the Savior of His people. It is also the uniting link that binds them in the bonds of favor and love.

Second, the Spirit of Truth, John 14: 17, and the Spirit of Prophecy, seems to be one and the same spirit in making manifest the Word of Truth; for in declaring the truth we testify of the Word of Jesus, and the testimony of Jesus is the Spirit of prophecy. Rev. 12: 10.

Third, The Spirit of Life, Rev. 11: 11, by which we live in God and his Son, and they in us, and the Spirit of Meekness are no doubt one; for a life in Christ begets in his followers a meekness characteristic of himself.

Fourth, the Spirit of Adoption, Rom. 8: 15, and the Spirit of Promise," Eph. 11: 13, seem also to form one Spirit; for upon the reception we are sealed with the Holy Spirit of Promise.

Fifth, the Spirit of Wisdom, Eph. 1: 17, and the Spirit of Knowledge, Ia. 11: 2, also seem to be the same, being derived from the same word in the original. (See Young's Concordance of the Bible.) This is the Spirit by which the servants of God are endued with wisdom, power and knowledge from on high.

Sixth, the Spirit of Glory, 1 Peter 4: 14, is the spirit by which God glorified the Son, and the Son the Father. Also his people glorify the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, for his goodness to the children of men.

Seventh, the Spirit of Judgment, and the Spirit of Burning, Ia. 4: 4, and 28: 6 are likely the same, whereby a just judgment will be rendered by the All-wise Being at the last day; also the guide of the saints in things pertaining to this life, and that which is to come, whereby they are enabled to judge among themselves, without resorting to those outside the household of faith.

We do not say that this division of God's Word is wholly correct, but we submit it, that others may bring out the whole truth, as it is in Jesus.

M. MEYERS.

PLEASURE is to mankind what the sun is to the flowers; if moderately enjoyed, it beautifies, it refreshes and it improves,—if immoderately, it withers, it deteriorates and destroys.

MANY persons when they find themselves in danger of shipwreck in the voyage of life, throw their darling vices overboard, as other mariners do their treasures, only to fish them up again after their treasure is over.

ACTION is the universal law of animal life. There is not a living thing, whether insect, or bird, or beast, that will not pine and fall away, and perish, under bodily restraint. Man is no exception to the world-wide ordinance.

Correspondence.

Relating to Brother Stein.

Having written to American Consul at Vienna, we received the following in reply:

No. 2102. U. S. CONSULATE-GENERAL, }
VIENNA, Oct. 20th, '81. }

M. M. ESHELMAN, Esq.,
Editor "Brethren at Work".—
Mt. Morris, Ill.,

SIR:—

In reply to your favor of 29th ult., relative to J. W. Stein, I beg to inform you that nothing of his whereabouts is known at this office. One of the clerks believes to remember speaking with him relative to a passport, but nothing farther. Should he have gone to Constantinople there should be no uneasiness about him because of a slight delay in the receipt of letters, as in that country the posts are notoriously unreliable.

I am, Sir, your Obedient Servant,
JAMES RILEY WEAVER,
Consul-General.

U. S. CONSULATE-GENERAL, }
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 13, '81. }

D. L. MILLEN,
Mt. Morris, Ill.,

DEAR SIR:—

I have received yours of the 24th ult. respecting the President of Mt. Morris College, and greatly regret that I am unable to give you any information about him. No such person, so far as I am aware, has passed through here since July last, but many Americans come and leave without my hearing of them. I shall however make inquiries, and if I obtain any information that is likely to interest you, shall immediately communicate it to you. Believe me, Dear Sir,

Very Truly Yours,
G. H. HEAR,
Consul-General.

Giving to the Lord.

Our Orphans' Home is now nearly ready for business, and as it will hardly be self-supporting I will suggest a plan of additional support. I determined last Spring that I would devote the proceeds of one acre of corn to the Home. Now when the corn is gathered, (whether much or little) it will be sold and the money paid over to the Trustee or Treasurer of the Home. Now my plan is this: Let every brother who owns land donate one acre more or less of wheat, corn, oats, hay, or whatever crop he thinks best; if he is a renter, let him determine according to his ability his share of the proceeds of an acre, more or less; if he is a mechanic, let him give a per cent. of a certain job; if a day laborer, a day's wages. If this plan could be carried out it would yield a sufficient income for the support of the Home, insuring its success beyond doubt, hardly any one would feel any loss by thus giving. Remember the good Book says, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and I know it is true, for that Book cannot lie. Again, "He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord."

JOHN METZGER.

Cerro Gordo, Ill., Nov. 4th.

District Meeting of Southern Missouri.

The delegates representing the churches of Southern Missouri met with the Mineral Creek church, Johnson Co., on Thursday, Oct. 30th. The churches were well represented, and a more pleasant and enjoyable meeting we never attended. All queries were disposed of the first day in a pleasant and Christian-like manner. Not one unkind word was spoken.

The Southern District of Missouri seems to be more fully determined than ever to maintain the ancient land-marks of the church so plainly set forth in the Gospel. We never saw more of a oneness of sentiment than was maintained at our late District Meeting. We think those that seek to create discord and division will find little sympathy in the Southern District of Missouri. But we cheerfully invite all these that are seeking the peace, unity, and prosperity of the general Brotherhood to come and help us to build up the Master's cause in this western country. God bless his faithful children everywhere.

S. CRICK.

Sad News.

Brother William Parven, aged about sixty-five years, who has always been considered a faithful and active member of the Mill Creek church, Adams county, Ill., on the 26th of October, after being missed a little while, was found by his wife in the barn suspended by a rope to the rafters and life extinct. What prompted him to commit the rash act, cannot be accounted for other than temporal insanity, having been afflicted more or less all Summer.

J. F. NEHER.

A Visit to Miami Valley, Ohio.

Left home Oct. 26th, to attend a number of Feasts in Miami Valley. At Tippesawee we were kindly met by Bro. O. F. Yount, and by him conveyed to Donald's Creek, where the first Feast was held on the 27th. As the withdrawing element had taken about ninety from this congregation, the attendance of the members was less than on former occasions; yet their commodious house was well filled, more being in attendance than could be conveniently accommodated. We were gratified to feel with others that we not only had a feast, but a love-feast together with the saints at Donald's Creek. Brother Joseph Kauffman and brother Frantz are the elders here.

On the 29th and 30th we met with the Brethren at Philipsburg. This meeting was largely attended, and everything connected with the meeting assumed the appearance of order and system. It was here that John Hershey called the first elder's meeting when on a visit to the valley two years ago, yet the withdrawing element was small—sixteen I believe. Brethren David Murray and Abraham Dedrick are the elders here.

On Lord's Day evening we preached to an interesting congregation, in what is known as Nead's Upper house. It was in this congregation we spent a number of winters teaching school in our young days. Were made to feel sad in finding a number of those for whom we felt such a warm attachment, had withdrawn from the church. But few of the element withdrawn were present at the meeting. On the first of November we attended their Feast at their lower house. This church, up to the division, has been in a happy and prosperous condition. They report twenty-six additions during the Summer. Abraham Flory was father Nead's successor there in the eldership. How he could leave such an humble, plain, peaceful, and prosperous body, and thus tear down the work that God has blessed him in building up; separating husband and wife, parents and children, producing the woe-fruits of strife, variance and division, we despair in explaining to the reader.

On the 3rd, the appointment was with the Brethren at Lost Creek. Elder H. Davy is in charge here. Their troubles have greatly reduced their numerical strength; yet as there were quite a number from adjoining churches; the meeting passed off pleasantly, all seeming to enjoy the occasion. In the evening the house was filled with quiet, anxious listeners.

We spent the night with brother Davy; took occasion to consult him upon some questions now before the brotherhood. His wide experience and keen memory enabled us to do so with profit.

There were a number of Feasts following, but our future engagements compelled us to take leave of the brethren and sisters at this meeting.

While we found the churches in an unhappy condition occasioned by the division, we were glad to find them seemingly driven closer together by their troubles. The feeling seemed warm, and their love mutual.

We remember that those brethren who have withdrawn used to criticize brethren for coaxing or persuading people to join the church. No doubt they had some occasion to do so, but we were surprised to learn of their active efforts in proselyting, visiting and revisiting the neutral element; and in some instances representing the extreme views of some brethren as being the principles of the church. In a number of instances they invited all that were going with them, to rise to their feet, and repeated the invitation in regular modern revival style. As many that leave are returning, the exact number cannot be stated.

I. J. ROSENBERGER.

Gilboa, Ohio, Nov. 5th.

Southern Mission of Indiana.

On Nov. 2nd, Bro. Hiram Branson and I started for the Southern Mission-held. Met at Anderson, Ind., boarded the morning train for Indianapolis, but on approaching the city were detained a while, by a wreck which had occurred some time previously, on our track, on account of which we failed to connect with either the Jeffersonville or Vincennes road and were compelled to wait until 6:10 P. M., on the J. M. & I. road. Reached Shoals in Martin county at 2:30 A. M. Were directed to Bro. David Norcorro, who was teaching school near by, who accompanied us to his home. Soon after, brother Henry Tranter arrived at brother Norcorro's home, ready and willing to convey us to the point directed by the Mission Board, namely, Pike county, where we arrived on Friday the 4th, late in the afternoon. As no appointment was published for that evening, it was suggested that we have meeting. That evening a few of the neighbors assembled. This was our first meeting. We will report from time to time.

LEWIS W. TEXTER.

From T. C. Wood.—On the 29th and 30th inst., I had the pleasure of meeting with the Brethren of Blount county, and attended the Love-feast at Valley church. Am happy to say that all passed off in harmony and love. One was received into the fold by baptism.... On the second Sunday we will have preaching in the city of Lynchburg. This will be the first meeting ever held in this city by the Brethren. May the Lord be with us in our labors. Harvest is plentiful and laborers are few; come, Brethren, and help us in our work. I try to preach every Sunday in the month; still there are more applications for preaching.... I expect soon to move to Pittsylvania county, where I am in hopes of doing more good, as the cause still moves onward, and the church is building up.—Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 2nd.

From John A. Studebaker.—We had a pleasant Love-feast. Some of our members went from here to the Wilson county Feast with the intention of bringing the tent along back with them, but as they failed to get it at their Love-feast, we also had to do without it. We then erected a shed at the house of our young minister, L. E. Pottinger, where we held our Feast.... At the opening exercises of our meeting, our dear old elder Metz, in his remarks while examining our rube shed said, his mind was carried back to the children of Israel—that wherever they erected an altar to the Lord, no matter how rude it was, the Lord would bless them.... Next morning met for worship. As it had rained some during the night, we concluded to move our 10 o'clock meeting to the school-house near by.... Of late we have been having a great deal of rain and high waters. Wheat fields are looking nice and green. Everything is taking a second growth.... I shall give the readers of the B. at W. an account of the wonderful springs that have lately been discovered in the county south of this, called the Chatugas Springs.—Grenola, Elk Co., Kan., Oct. 23.

From D. Bechtelheimer.—The members (eight in number) living in this county appointed a church meeting on the 12th inst., for the purpose of organizing. We call our congregation Juniata church. We unanimously agreed to live up to the general order of the Brotherhood, and to the counsels of the Annual Meeting as near as we could; and we also agreed that all that have not handed in their letter will have to promise the same, or we won't receive their letter or hold them in fellowship with us, and also all that move in, will have to promise the same; as we have seen so much trouble about what is called the fast and slow element we want to cut this off, if we possibly can, and come to a union upon the principles of the general order of the Brotherhood; for if we are willing to let Annual Meeting settle difficulties and decide what is right and wrong, and then pay no regard to it, what is the use of having any church meeting to do business in the church? Brethren and sisters, let us all be careful how we work; let us not take in members carelessly lest we bring trouble into the church.... We want members to come to this country and settle among us; but we want you to live up to the general order of the Brotherhood, and we will get along well together.... On the 15th, we held a little Communion; fifteen members communed. Brother Ives, from Kansas, was with us; had a good Feast; the members were much built up.... There is a nice field open here, and many calls for meeting.... Was at a Love-feast in Wood River congregation on the 21st, 22nd, and 23rd of Oct. Bro. S. Forsay is elder. There were two additions by baptism and one by letter. Had an enjoyable Feast.—Juniata, Adams Co., Neb., Oct. 30th.

From John Metzger.—I left my home at Cerro Gordo Oct. 28th, for Clinton Co., Ind., where I formerly had my home. Met my grandson at Lafayette, and came to my son John W. Metzger's the same evening. Next day they had their Communion meeting; had one of the best meetings I saw at that place for many years. Many members communed; large crowd of spectators; order very good. Felt very sorry that some had left the church. The church is more united at this time than she was for many years. At a convenient time I stated to the meeting we would take it as a favor if the members would assist us a little in raising funds to pay for a hall in St. Louis to preach in. It seemed the feelings of the members were touched. Brother Billheimer said: "See what can be done." They soon had $15 30.... Left Clinton county the 31st for Carroll county. Met with the brethren and sisters in the Bachelor Run church, Nov. 1st, the time set for their Communion. Their meeting was well attended. Many members communed; crowd of spectators very large; order very good. Well supplied with medicinal aid. The church seemed to be in union, and love prevailed among them. I also made a statement to the meeting about the mission in St. Louis, that we would take it as a favor if they would assist us in paying for a hall to preach in. They soon raised $21.00. May the Lord bless this church for their love to the poor that they can have the Gospel preached.—Cerro Gordo, Ill., Nov. 8th.

From A. A. Wise.—Left home the 4th of November for the Love-feast at Yellow Creek church. Arrived there just in time to see five precious souls being led down in the stream and buried in baptism. Their large and commodious church was filled to its utmost capacity. The meeting was one of good order, and long to be remembered. The ministerial force was large. Elder W. R. Deeter officiated. Met again the next morning. Held an election for two deacons; the lot fell on brethren Samuel Steiner and Henry Hoke.... Public worship in the evening; preaching by W. R. Deeter. Subject, "I am the way." Met the next morning for worship again. After meeting we turned our faces homeward. Such meetings like these we enjoy; they encourage us on our way heavenward; but while yet in our gladness we are made sorry this morning to learn that the small pox has been sown broadcast in our neighborhood. Thirteen cases in Bristol and one in Vintola; and it is said about one hundred and seventy-five have been exposed. Schools and meetings of all kinds are stopped.—Vintola, Ind., Nov. 7th.

From Charlotte T. Bond.—We had our Communion on the 12th of October. Had a very enjoyable feast of love; all present seemed in fellowship and union. There were very few of those that have left us there. Many from the adjoining churches were with us. Had good preaching. We have much to thank the Giver of every good gift; for when we consider what the true followers of Jesus have had to endure for his sake we are greatly blessed, and we fear we are not thankful enough for our privileges and blessings we are permitted to enjoy. Then as we enter upon another year of duty, let us determine to be more zealous, more faithful in our duty than we have been before, pressing forward in our high calling as sons and daughters of the Most High.—Arcanum, Ohio.

From D. F. Stouffer.—I am making a sojourn in Frederick City, Md., making my home at Dr. P. D. Fahrney's, an active and zealous brother in the church of the Brethren. Am attending meetings conducted by Bro. J. M. Mohler, of Millen county, Pa., who commenced a series of meetings on the 4th, to be continued for some time. Frederick City has a population of about 9,000 inhabitants. In this great number there are about seventeen members of the Brethren's church. Small number, think you; but one more will be added on Wednesday, and we hope before the close of the meetings, (and have cause to believe), a number of others will come.... This morning Bro. Mohler, the Dr. and myself visited the jail, being anxious to see a young man who is to be executed on Friday, 11th, for murder, but were disappointed, as the sheriff informed us that he declined seeing any one; but were permitted to see the scuffle, which is partly erected, from which the soul of P. Monshour will take its everlasting flight to the world, from whence no traveler ever returns. And from the information we could gather, he is very impenitent and utterly unprepared to meet the solemn issue. We placed ourselves under the trap-door which is assigned to send Monshour to eternity, and while there thought of the words of the good Book: "Lust when conceived brings forth sin; sin when it is finished brings forth death.".... I am glad to hear from you, and also to hear the glad tidings from the different churches and the ingathering of souls. We are moving along in our congregation slowly, but thank the Lord, peacefully.—Frederick City, Md., Nov. 7th.

The Brethren of the Home Mirror have gotten up a neat Book-mark suited for Holiday presents to parents, children, brothers, sisters, friends, lovers, and for Sunday-school or day-school teachers to their scholars. Just the thing. They are of fine silk with appropriate words thereon, also your name on as you may order. Address, Home Mirror, Longmont, Colo.

Health and Temperance.

S. T. BOSSERMAN, - - - - - EDITOR.

All communications for this department should be addressed to S. T. Bosserman, Dunkirk, Hardin Co., Ohio.

From the Laws of Life. THE BEAUTY OF CLEANLINESS.

BY ABRIE MILLS.

WHEN a child, the charming smell and dainty look of a clean apron gave a feeling of added self-respect, and when the privilege of wearing a white collar was granted, I felt that I had made great advances towards being as nice as the "school-ma'am."

But the most cleanly find that they must encounter a great deal of dirt in one shape or another. Indeed, the annoyances seem to be all on their side, for the unclean feel little antagonism to the mire. We rejoice with that Brooklyn D. D. over the fact that two-thirds of our globe is covered with water, so that there need be no fears concerning the failure of the means of cleansing.

God has made ample provision for the purification of both soul and body. Outside cleansing is not sufficient; there must be a work within, the results of which shall be felt and seen. But where the Holy Ghost enters and purifies the heart, it seems doubly fitting that the body should be clean also. And saying this, we are reminded that some people manage to look as sweet as a pink, who do not suggest that flower to the olfactories at all. The sense of disjointedness between a washed heart and a mouth filled with tobacco is too glaring, for the most superficial, it would seem, to pass unnoticed. Many persons have mouths quite as offensive to the sense of smell as these poison consumers, from a lack of intimacy with the tooth-brush or acquaintance with the dentist, or from failure to keep the stomach sweet by the introduction of proper food only at proper times.

What volumes of praiseful incense would ascend to the Giver of every good gift from all praiseful hearts, if they were but enshrined in active, healthful bodies. The spirit in harmony with God may so assert its supremacy, that praise may leap from the lips when the body is full of aches; but it is a great deal easier to sing doxologies when the blood circulates freely and is of good quality, than when indigestion sits like a harpy at the gate, ejecting poisonous effluvia into the nutritive element.

A little gospel light reaching a dirty street urchin sends him in search of water and a comb; why then should not one who claims the spotless Son of God as an elder brother, study to know what will render the outer man a fit habitation of the spirit? "Cleanse yourselves from all filthiness of the flesh" was well added to the injunction to be pure in spirit. This flesh filthiness is more than skin deep, and if some persons could turn themselves inside out while in the bath-room, it might be beneficial. There are, however, influences within the reach of all that would prove as effectual in removing every hindrance to the outworkings of Divine power within. If ye walk in the spirit, ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh.

(B.)

BEER A TEMPERANCE DRINK.

BY HON. NEAL DOW.

A GREAT many respectable people, some of them friends of temperance in their way, insist that the adoption of beer in this country in its various forms as a common beverage, would be a help to the temperance cause. Some prominent pa'pals speak out boldly and decidedly in this way. One of them in New York, a very prominent one, not long ago insisted that no one was fit to be a worker in the temperance cause, "unless he knows the difference between fiery liquors and mild beer;" indulging in the latter and in kindred tipples, while eschewing the former.

The brewing business in this country is comparatively recent origin, but it has already reached immense proportions, and a growing rapidly in every part of the Northern States, except in Maine and Kansas, where it is forbidden by law, and has been suppressed by the strong hand. This trade is enormously profitable; more so than any other business in this country. As Dr. Johnson puts it, it has the power of "producing wealth beyond the dreams of avarice." The brewers hold a "congress" annually, to consider the "interests of the trade," and at all of them they lay special stress upon the assertion that beer is a temperance drink, and that brewers are great workers in the temperance cause.

I have been surprised to hear intelligent men, insisting upon what they say is the proverbial temperance of the people in beer-drinking countries, and that indulgence in beer is really a good thing. They forget, or perhaps they do not know, that drink taken properly, is merely a help to digestion, that for this purpose only a small quantity is required, and that all beyond this, even of water, is an interruption of the process of digestion, and therefore a mischief.

It is not true that the people of beer-drinking countries are temperate; the exact opposite is the fact. England is the most drunk en country in the world, as Englishmen acknowledge, and its shocking brutal drunkenness is chiefly produced by beer, of which they consume enormous quantities. Beer-drinking in England as a national habit, goes back only to 1833, when the Beer Bill gave encouragement to brewers to extend their trade, and to the people to consume its products. Within the first year of its enactment, Sidney Smith, speaking of its effects, said: "The Nation is staggering drunk." Under the operation of that bill, it was supposed that the malt liquors would take the place of distilled liquors and supplant them in the market; but the effect really was, not to diminish the quantity of whiskey, brandy and gin consumed, but to supplement it with the enormous products of the breweries.

The original Maine law had a sweeping, prohibition of the sale of "intoxicating liquors," without specifying any of them. At the first prosecution of a beer seller, he denied that beer was "intoxicating" within the meaning of the law, and it was necessary to prove that it was intoxicating. For this purpose, some reformed drunkards were called as witnesses, and they testified that malt liquors were not only intoxicating, but that the drunkenness produced by them was worse than that produced by distilled liquors; that it was more brutal, continued for a longer time, and was much worse to recover from, as they knew by long and bitter experience.

Advocates of beer-drinking refer to the fact that those addicted to the habit consume great quantities of their favorite beverage, without apparent intoxication. It is true that beer-drinkers are always thirsty; they are always ready for a drink; that they do not know what the sensation is not to be thirsty. One of them said to me not long ago, as he was praising beer, and insisting that it ought to be exempt from the prohibition of the law: "I would give a quarter of a dollar now for a glass of good lager."

Beer is doctored in its manufacture, expressly to produce thirst, in those who drink it. Rosin in large quantities is used for that purpose, which affects the kidneys and produces constant thirst. In North Carolina, two years ago, a manufacturer of spirits of turpentine and rosin, a Northern man, whose guest I was, told me that he sold large quantities of rosin to brewers, and had in a single year sold ten thousand barrels to one of them. The beer-drinker is merely a candidate for the product of the mash tub.—Selected by Laura L. Bacon.

THE able address of Governor St. John before the citizens of Indiana, from which we extract elsewhere, must have a powerful effect in that State, in favor of such temperance legislation as Kansas now enjoys. The law is still a leading question in Kansas and the discussion is now shaping political measures for the next State election. Senator Pumb, the railroad corporations, the federal office holders and grabbers, and all the enemies of the law are reported as in favor of a return to the pots and leeks of Egypt. It cannot be possible that they shall succeed, although a Times correspondent says that in the State politics the railroads and kindred corporations are all powerful. "No man can be elected to any office on the line of any of our great railroads without humbly bowing the knee to Baal. There is scarcely a member of the present State Senate whose nomination and election were not dictated and controlled by the railroad influence from first to last. And next year, every candidate for the lower house will be compelled to get on his knees to that influence, or, in nine out of ten, suffer ignominy and defeat."

EVERY parent is like a looking-glass for his children to dress themselves by. Therefore parents should take care to keep the glass bright and clear, not dull and spotted, as their good example is a rich inheritance for the rising generation.

PLEASURE is a shadow, wealth is vanity, and power a pageant; but knowledge is ecstatic in enjoyment, perennial in fame, unlimited in space and infinite in duration.

GENERAL AGENTS
FOR THE Brothers at Work,
AND
TRACT SOCIETY.

E. T. Bowerman, Detroit, Mich. John Pursey, Abilene, Kan.
E. each Rice, Ill. Daniel Vestiman, Toledo, Ill.
G. A. Shanberger, Graham, Mo. J. C. Flory, Logansport, Colo.
W. A. Tooker, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Metzger, Corra Gordo, Ill.
J. W. Mohler, Genoa, Mo. J. W. Southwell, Mount City, Ind.
John Wills, Mulberry Grove, Ill. D. Howser, Salem, Oregon.

OUR PLEA.

THE BROTHERS AT WORK is an unassuming advocate of Primitive Christianity in all its sacred purity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

And insists that the sovereign, unmerited, unsolicited grace of God is the only source of pardon, and that the various self-righteous meritorious works of Christ are the only price of redemption:

That Faith, Repentance and Baptism are conditions of pardon, and hence for the remission of sin.

That True Immersion, or dipping the candidate three times face-down, is Christian Baptism:

That Foot-Washing, as taught in John 13, is a divine command to be observed in the church:

That the Lord's Supper is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening, at the close of the day:

That the Salvation of the Holy Kiss, or Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ:

That War and Intestination are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ:

That a Non-Conformity to the world in dress, customs, daily walk, and conversation is essential to true holiness and Christian piety.

It maintains that in public worship, as religious exercises, Christians should appear as directed in 1 Cor. 11: 4, 5.

It also advocates the scriptural duty of assisting the sick with oil in the name of the Lord.

In short it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the Apostle have enjoined upon us, and aims, amid the conflicting theories and discord of modern Christendom, to point out ground that all must concede to be laudably so.

Single subscriptions $1.00 in advance. Three sending eight copies and $2.00, will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount will be placed retain and sent as the balance. Money sent by Post-Office Order, Registered Letters, and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our service. Do not send checks, as they cannot be collected without charge. Address, BROTHERS AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan. '81," shows that the paper has been paid for up to that time. "1 Jan. '82," shows that the time will then expire.

If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Life and Work of Garfield.

This book is the record of one of the loftiest and most useful intellects that ever blessed the world; of a pure life and a well-directed ambition. The story is noble and instructive; full of pleasant lessons that touch every heart. No biography can ever point a deeper moral. The publishers, Messrs. Jones Bro's & Co., of Chicago, have spared no expense in beautiful illustrations on steel, fine paper, clear print and admirable binding.

Fast Time.

The Pennsylvania Company comes to the front with the fastest time ever made between Chicago and the principal cities of the east.—The entire run from Chicago to New York, 912 miles, is accomplished in twenty-six hours, allowing for one hour's difference in time between the two cities. "The 'limited Express'" will be composed exclusively of Pullman palace sleeping and hotel cars, which will run through from Chicago as follows: One to Pittsburgh, one to Baltimore and Washington, one to Philadelphia, and three to New York. Pullman hotel dining cars will be attached, on which meals will be served at 75 cents each.

Partial compensation for these exclusive privileges, and in consideration of the extraordinary expense incurred in running the limited express at a high rate of speed, extra fare will be charged in addition to a regular first-class ticket, the price of which is $14 Chicago to New York. The prices named below include extra fare and one double berth in the sleeping-car from Chicago to the several points named:

To Pittsburgh, 4; to Harrisburgh, 7; to Baltimore, 8; to Washington, 8; to Philadelphia, 8; to New York, 8; to Boston, 10.

Only first class tickets, together with extra fare tickets will be honored on this train. Persons holding annual passes will be carried on the train, but must secure the extra fare and sleeping car tickets, before boarding the train.

Mr. D. L. Miller, business manager of the Mt. Morris College, last week sent us a very neatly printed Catalogue of the famous Cassell library. It contains titles of some thirty thousand volumes, embracing every department of letters. The fact that the entire library has been classified and catalogued since coming to Mt. Morris is commendable to those who have it in charge. The size of the library makes it almost impossible to ask for anything ever written that cannot be found on its shelves. There are not only the thousands of volumes of by-gone centuries, but a large collection of the very latest publications have been added. It is indeed a noble library. Parties frequently come from a distance to obtain historic facts from this prolific source. That all may know what the vast library contains, Mr. Miller offers to furnish copies of the new complete catalogue for 50 cents. Parties may order books by mail or express by prepaying charges.—Oregon Independent.

How to Do Good!

The Western Book Exchange has opened a new plan of tract work. They have on their shelves an excellent tract, entitled, "The House We Live In," by Daniel Vaniman. This tract they sell at 5cts and tell us they are losing money. But they are determined to do good with the tract system. Hence they are putting up a large edition of the tract, so that they can sell it cheap in large quantities. They have obtained subscriptions for several thousand already. Persons interested in tract work and spreading the seeds of truth, agree to take as many as each feels willing and distributes them. Those who cannot distribute them personally, can give them to a minister who will. They furnish this tract at $1.00 per hundred or 50cts per hundred.

It is a twelve page tract, setting forth the doctrine of our church in condensed form, and will do much good wherever distributed. Only think of it,—one thousand twelve page tracts for $14.00. What an amount of good might be done in this way! Now here is a good chance for every one to help spread the Gospel. Send $14.00 for a thousand or 50cts for a hundred and put them to work.

Address: WESTERN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Tablets! Tablets!

Six tablets for 50 cents, — one for ink or pencil, the other five for pencil only.

Address: BROTHERS AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

Mt. Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending . . . November 4

Number Enrolled.....	186
Average Daily Attendance.....	153
Per Cent. of Attendances.....	94
Number Tardinesses.....	7
Neither Absent nor Tardy.....	113
E. A. BERRY, Principal.

All About Kansas. THE WEEKLY CAPITAL is an eight-page, 38 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county. $1.00 per year. —
— 1 SAMPLE COPY FREE. —

"Great Rock Island Route!"

Stands pre-eminent among the great Trans-Missouri lines for being the most direct, quickest, and safest line connecting the great METROPOLIS, CHICAGO, with the EASTERN, NORTH-EASTERN, SOUTHERN and SOUTHERN-EASTERN LINES, which terminate there, with KANSAS CITY, IRVINGWORTH, AVONDALE, CUMBERLAND RIDGE and OKLAHA, the commercial centers from which traffic

EVERY LINE OF ROAD

that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope, 250

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago extending west into Kansas, or which, by its own road, reaches the Pacific coast directly. NO TRANSFER, NO CHANGE, NO UNNECESSARY CONVICTIONS. Assailing in all-weather or unseasonable days, or even during the winter, by its prompt, safe and comfortable coaches, our own 2 and 3 tiered Day Cars of improved construction, THE GREAT PACIFIC SLEEPING CARS, and our own world-famous EASTERN PASSENGER CARS, afford an amount of superior accommodations, at the low rate of $3.00, covering the entire route, which is the best value offered through the West between Chicago, St. Louis, and Kansas City. The route is the shortest and the most direct of points of interconnection with other roads.

We invite the traveler to visit us at every place of importance in Kansas, Nebraska, Black Hills, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Washington Territory, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

An liberal arrangement regarding baggage as with any other line, and rates of fare shown by law on company bills, which bring up a bill of the conductor.

Free and quick service at all principal cities and stations. Tickets, rates and folders at all principal cities and stations in the United States and Canada.

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN,
The Great Rock Island Railway, Chicago, Ill., and First Agent, Topeka, Kansas.

MAGNIFICENT EQUIPMENTS! SURE CONNECTIONS! UNION DEPOTS!

Remember! Have Always as Low as the Lowest!

Announcements.

LOVE-PEAST NOTICES.

Dec. 2, at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill church, near Virden, Macoupin Co., Ill.

Dec. 25, Cerro Gordo church, Platt Co., Ill.

Matrimonial.

ROBINSON—WINTER.—At the residence of the undersigned Cedar Co., Iowa, Oct. 20th, 1881, Wm. E. Robinson to Mary J. Winter, all of Cedar Co., Iowa. JOHN ZUCK.

FACKER—MAGRAW.—Nov. 6, 1881, by T. G. Snyder, Samuel Facker and sister Elizabeth Magraw, both of Linn Co., Iowa.

Fallen Asleep.

Blowed are the dead which dwell the Lord.—Rev. 14: 13.

BLOUGH.—In the Milledgeville congregation, Carroll Co., Ill., sister Sarah Blough, wife of Bro. Joseph Blough, Oct. 20th, aged 90 years, 9 months and 8 days. Funeral services by D. M. Miller and the writer. Z. T. LAVENWOOD.

PEEBLER.—In the Crook Creek church, Washington Co., Iowa, August 30th, sister Jane B. Peebler, aged about 88 years.

She was a consistent member about 50 years.—Funeral by the writer and A. Wolf.

JOHN THOMAS.

WUNDERLICH.—In the South Keokuk church, Sept. 18th, Thursa E., infant daughter of Eld. Charles and sister Mary Wunderlich, aged one year, 9 months and 18 days. J. THOMAS.

BEMISDORFER.—Ethan J. B. Bemisdorfer, son of Bro. John and sister Eliza Bemisdorfer, aged nine months and ten days. D. HOLINGER.

SLUSHER.—In West Fork congregation, Floyd Co., Va., Oct. 26, Bro. Wm. Slusher, aged about 60 years. Disease unknown.

BOOTHE.—In Red Oak Grove congregation, Oct. 24, sister Eliza Boothe, wife of friend Asa Booth. C. D. HYLTON.

Gidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Lewistown, Pa., Nov. 2.

On Sept. 30th, Bro. Jacob Conner and I were sent by the Eastern District of Pa., as missionaries to Lackawanna, Pa. Commenced meeting Sept. 30th, closed Oct. 11th, with excellent interest. Two were baptized, viz: Bro. Henry Gardner and wife. JOHN M. MOHLER.

Edwardsburg, Mich., Oct. 31.

Brethren, continue in the way you have been doing in your work. I must say it is the best paper I ever read, but let us not forget the Bible, and receive it as the man of our counsel.

ISAAC KULP.

Mirabile, Mo., Nov. 1.

I last wrote at Hamilton, and was then in the Northern Missouri mission field. From there I went to Bancroft, held several meetings, had Love-feast on the evening of the 29th and for the second time in two months. I was left alone to conduct Communion services. On the 30th, one dear sister was received by baptism. I have word from Bro. Sell, my fellow-worker. He is also at work in an adjoining county. C. C. ROOR.

Panora, Iowa, Oct. 30.

Weather fine. Much rain recently; roads very bad. First frost Oct. 11. Some sickness; several deaths. Many calls to preach the word.

J. D. HAUGTELIN.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Nov. 8.

Our brethren and sisters in the Dry Creek church in Linn Co., Iowa, are all alive to the cause of Christ. Ministering brethren, please do not forget us. Had one addition Nov. 6th. Eld. A. Stamy is much afflicted, and for some time past has not been able to meet with his brethren in worship.

T. G. SNYDER.

Goshen, Ind., Nov. 6, 1881.

Our Communion on the 28th of Oct. was a good one. All present seemed to enjoy themselves. Attended a feast at Yellow Creek, and had a good meeting. God reigns, and the church still lives at Yellow Creek. All the officials but two left with the Ohio move, and no speaker there at present. Five baptized at the Feast; the members seem to be in love and union. Health good; plenty of rain. I. L. BERKEY.

Warren Center, Ind., Nov. 5.

REQUEST.—Inasmuch as Bro. Howard Miller has assigned some of the Census work of the Northern District of Indiana, to me, I hereby request the name and address of the brother, having the charge of each of the following churches: Bremen, Little St. Joe, Pleasant Valley, Union Center and Mapletown. T. MILLER.

Cerro Gordo, Ill., Nov. 8.

The Missionary Board of Cerro Gordo district organized, appointing Andrew Shively, Treasurer and Clerk, and all business relative to missionary work must be addressed to him at Cerro Gordo, Ill. W. L. BINGHAM.

Ladoga, Ind., Nov. 4.

Our Communion at Bethel the 13th, ult., was a very pleasant one. In the afternoon, before Communion, the saints rejoiced to see a brother come into the fold. The laboring brethren were J. W. Metzger, A. Bower, L. Dunbar, and our home minister, Wm. Harshbarger. On account of the rain, the crowd was not as large as usual, but good order and attention were manifested during the services.

A few of us had the privilege of meeting the Brethren of the Middle Fork of Wild Cat congregation around the Lord's table, the 28th ult., which we greatly enjoyed. There were more than 100 communicants and several ministers, among them was our old Bro. Metzger of Cerro Gordo, Ill., who did most of the speaking. In our short stay with the Brethren, we found them very kind and zealous of good works. SALOME STONER.

Wakarusa, Ind., Nov. 5.

The Yellow Creek church held their Love-feast Nov. 4. There were about 200 members and thirteen ministers present, most of them very able speakers. We notice the following: W. R. Deeter, from Royertown, Ind.; A. Shively, A. Wyson, P. Stuckman, A. Wise, I. Berkey, J. Metzger, Bro. Felthouse, J. Kulp, L. Weaver, E. Miller and J. Anglemeyer. About 300 outsiders were present, but the order preserved was very good. There were five applicants for baptism. A choice was held for deacon, and the lot fell on Bro. Steiner. D. M.

Liberty, Ill., Nov. 7.

Our Love-feast is among the things of the past. Though the number was not so great as I have seen on previous occasions, yet it was a feast indeed, at least to the writer. I was glad to meet with several brethren from a distance, with whom I had enjoyed many happy meetings in the past.—The preaching was among the best we ever had, and the meeting one long to be remembered. Right here let me say, this makes the fifty-second Love-feast held in the Mill Creek church, Adams Co., in the last fifty years. All were held in a circle of three miles, the first being held at the house of old brother John Wigle, long since deceased. Our Sunday-school closed on the 6th inst. for the year, after being pretty successfully conducted all Summer and Fall. Bro. S. S. Hamner is Superintendent. JOHN WOLFE.

Johnstown, Pa., Oct. 31.

I bade farewell to the many friends in Ohio on the night of the 18th, took the train at Alliance for Johnstown, Pa. After reaching Johnstown, we were out in time to Bro. Daniel Crofford's, and were just in way to attend part of the S. S. Association, which was very interesting. Expect to attend three Love-feasts here, after which we will return home. Feast in Johnstown will be Nov. 12. EMILY R. STIFLER.

To Agents Only.

—On page 655 under terms to agents, for $24 we say 18 names. It should be 10 names.

—An Almanac to all subscribers for B. at W., whether for one year or ten. Ministerial list in Almanac.

—Be sure to supply yourself with an abundance of sample copies. Order from this office, a lot of fresh and bright ones.

—Do not fail to state what premiums you want. If you do not name any, we shall infer that you do not want one.

—If you have no prospectus for YOUTH'S ADVANCE, please send for one. Also sample copies.

—Make all drafts, P. O. orders payable to M. M. Esheleman. Drafts on Chicago or New York preferred.

Good Words for Brethren at Work.

It is a valuable aid in the promotion of truth.—J. M. Rideour, Garrison, Iowa.

The B. at W. is growing in favor with Brethren here.—D. B. Arnold, Burlington, W. Va.

Your paper is growing in favor here and is regarded as the leading church paper.—Maysville, W. Va.

I am well satisfied with the paper. May success attend your labors.—Dan. Landis, Shepherdstown, Pa.

We still prize the B. at W. We feel that you are doing a good work, and would say, Go on and be faithful to the end. Would that we all were doing as much.—Sister W., Mexico, Ind.

I would feel lonely without the B. at W. I respect it highly and always read it with care and appreciate it very much.—Sarah A. Miller, Lewistown, Ohio.

I wish everybody would subscribe for the B. at W., for it is worthy our patronage.—John H. Caylor, Noblesville, Ind.

I am well pleased with the B. at W., and a welcome visitor it is to my little family. Keep on! God will bless you in the end.—J. M. Burger, Smithville Station, Ohio.

If nobody takes notice of our faults, we easily forget them ourselves.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

$1.50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6. Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Nov. 22, 1881.

No. 45.

Editorial Items.

PAPER free the remainder of the year to new subscribers.

BRO. J. S. Flory favors us with some excellent matter for Health and Temperance Department.

BRO. A. M. Dickey's address changed from Ashland, Ohio, to State Centre, Iowa.

TWENTY-FIVE hundred German immigrants landed in New York the 9th.

UPWARDS of forty new students have applied for admission to the next term of the College at this place.

BRO. Sharp preached to an appreciative audience at West Branch, seven miles west of Mt. Morris, Sunday the 13th.

BROTHER and sister Hope buried their infant child Oct. 19th, aged thirteen days. Disease, inflammation of the brain.

BRO. G. M. Noah writes: "I am making good use of my papers by giving them to my neighbors to read. They are doing good."

ANOTHER soul added to the church in Denmark by faith, repentance, and baptism. Peace prevails among the Danish Brethren.

"For is Christ Jesus neither" modern progression "avaliable anything, nor" unprogression, "but a new creature." Gal. 6: 15.

BRO. Teeter and wife returned from Dunkirk, Ohio, the night of the 14th inst. They left brother and sister Boserman convalescent.

BRO. Oles Lyon, son of elder T. D. Lyon, of Hudson, Ill., arrived here the 15th. He is now one of the brethren at work in this office.

FOR the church to do right here below, and with the church to be right when Jesus comes, should be the motto of every faithful member.

BRO. Jesse Calvert commenced meeting at May Hill, Ohio, Oct. 30th, and up to Nov. 9th fifteen had been baptized and two reclaimed.

PLEASE read your communications for the department on last page on Monday of each week, in order to get them into the paper promptly.

BRO. H. Young, of New Berlin, Stark Co. O., arrived the 10th, and will remain here awhile. We are glad to see good brethren come among us.

BRO. John Metzger recently visited Cumberland Co., Ill., and held a few meetings. One baptized. On account of ill health he returned home.

BRO. S. H. Baker, of Ellsworth, Wisconsin, has been quite sick with quinsy recently. He has moved from River Falls to above-mentioned place.

BRO. S. O. Larkins writes: "I do not want any pay for working for you. All that I can do for you will be done cheerfully and free of charge; and all subscribers I want, you may give yourself credit for, and may God bless your work." Thank you, dear brother, God will pay you and give you much more than we can.

WANTED.—An active young brother with a capital of $3000 to engage in a good paying business. For further particulars address BRETHREN AT WORK.

In No. 40 we stated that sister Delilah Toulough was raised by brother Seim. Her mother says sister Delilah was with brother S. only two years, and then married.

We desire the addresses of the following named persons in Indiana: W. A. Layton, J. C. Funderburg, Abraham Ritter, Anton Snyder, Henry Lentz, N. B. Heeter.

THE Brethren at Dunkirk, Ohio, will soon organize a Sunday-school in their new house in town. May the Lord help them to teach the young the precious truths of the Bible.

THE Brethren of the Honey Creek congregation, Nodaway county, Mo., contemplate holding a series of meetings, commencing on the 23rd of December. Council meeting on the 24th.

ON account of the illness of brother A. B. Seider, Cerro Gordo, Ill., his daughter cannot come to Mt. Morris to attend school, as she contemplated being there at the opening of the term.

THE B. AT W. Almanac and Annual Register will be ready to send in a few weeks. It contains the ministerial list, and is gotten up in a neat and substantial manner. Given to all subscribers to the B. AT W.

SINCE small-pox prevails to an alarming extent in places, should not vaccination be resorted to by those who have not yet had the disease, in order to stay its progress? Every precaution should be taken to stay the terrible disease.

THE Brethren around Morrisonville, Ill., contemplate meeting once a week, from house to house, to admonish and exhort one another to good works. This will keep alive the goals of love and bind them together more and more in the Lord.

BRO. Flowers will deliver a course of health lectures in Walkerton, Ind., 21st inst., and continue one week. Also at the Gravelton meeting-house, beginning Nov. 29th, and another at the Brick meeting-house five miles west of Gravelton, Dec. 5th.

Is it true that Ashland College is to be sold to the "progressive" faction? Is it true that brother R. H. Miller is to be put out of the Presidency? Is it true that Ashland is to become the headquarters of the "progressives"? Light is wanted.

THE District Meeting of Tennessee is held for the Brotherhood. It prepared a plan to more effectually make known the Gospel to those yet unacquainted with it. Brother Jesse Crosswhite will represent the District at next Annual Meeting.

BRS. Geo. W. Grady, of W. Va., and Daniel Hays, of Va., have promised to contribute to the columns of B. AT W. in the future. Both are lovers of the Brotherhood, and are able to edify and instruct the people how to live to the praise of God.

SIXTEEN Hope has been poorly of late. The dear sister has been a constant sufferer since she left America. Thousands eat and drink of their abundance and enjoy good health, but sister Hope endures afflictions such as few of us possess through. She shall have her reward.

We would like to send each of our readers an addressed envelope that they might send in subscribers' names, but it is contrary to law to put envelopes into newspapers that are sent at post office rates. We do not wish to violate the post-office law.

ON Sunday the 13th inst. we attended meeting at Cherry Grove, Carroll Co. Ill. Here is where the Danish Mission was inaugurated by Northern Illinois several years ago. At the same time fifty-two were admitted into the church, and joy seemed to fill the people. Brother Zollars preached the day we were there on the edification of the body.

THE B. AT W. wants two hundred articles prepared the coming Winter for the people during 1882. While the wintry blasts are sweeping over the country, and the chilly storms drive you to the shelter of comfortable homes, let the spirit of God help you to write articles in defense of pure Christianity. Do not become impatient if they do not receive prompt insertion.

BRETHREN, while it would please us to publish all your articles the day they arrive, permit us to say it is impossible. Many good articles must lie over until they can find room in order. Nearly a dozen of our own have been knocking for admission for three months, but they must wait. Please be patient, and your article shall appear to cheer drooping spirits and animate the beloved in the Lord.

W. B. SKILLFELD to meet his fellow-laborer C. C. Root in the North Missouri evangelism work at Bancroft on account of very bad roads and bridges being washed away in Harrison county. He then opened a meeting in Harrison county, collected together the scattered members, and had a Love-feast on the night of the 29th of October, which proved to be reviving and strengthening to all. He also distributed tracts and B. AT W.

WHEN in Christian country we were informed that brother Lee's eyes were well and strong again; but it seems we did not learn correctly. He informs us that he will think himself happy if they become good in one year. He cannot see two rods with his right eye, but with the left he can read. His physician thinks in one year both will be well. We regret that we did not get to see him while in that country. We remember his faith and good works.

FROM Nov. 26th to Dec. 7th, the editor will be in Le Sueur county, Minn. He will be pleased to hear from such as may have somewhat to communicate from under the Cross. Those who have "crucified Christ afresh and put him to an open shame" need not write. It is enough to contend with the enemy from without in new fields. The pocket-book has not called the editor and D. M. Miller to the great field in Le Sueur county. Neither has it called any other one "born of God."

THIS week we give space to brother Fahmy on page 719. In order to be enabled to travel at as little expense as possible among the churches, and in new fields to preach the Gospel, we have admitted notices for rail-roads; and admitting these, we could not justly refuse space to a brother. We hope it may prove beneficial to the afflicted, whom we should endeavor to relieve as much as possible. As a blood cleanser, we have tried brother Fahmy's "Vitalizer," and find it is just what he claims for it. We shall also give him the same page next week.

Religious Essays.

IN MEMORIAM.

Her hands are cold; her face is white;

No more her pulses come and go;

Her eyes are shut to life and light;—

Fold the vesture, snow on snow,

And lay her where the violets blow.

The gray old trees of hugest limb

Shall wheel their circling shadows round;

To make the scorching sunlight dim,

That drinks the greenness from the ground,

And drop their dead leaves on her mound.

When o'er their boughs the squirrels run,

And through their leaves the robins call,

And, ripening in the autumn sun,

The acorns and the chestnuts fall,

Doubt not that she will heed them all.

For her the morning choir shall sing,

Its matins from the branches high,

And every minstrel voice of Spriog,

That trills beneath the April sky.

Shall greet her with its earliest cry

When, turning round their dial-track

Eastward the lengthening shadows pass;

Her little mourners, clad in black,

The crickets, sliding through the grass,

Shall pipe for her an evening mass.

At last the rootlets of the trees

Shall find the prison where she lies,

And bear the horrid dust they seize

In leaves and blossoms to the skies,

So may the soul that warmed it rise!

If any, horn of kandler hlood,

Should ask, What maiden lies below?

Say only this: A tender bud

That tried to blossom in the snow,

Lies w'hered where the violets blow.

—Selected for Caroline Henninger, by C. V. K.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST AND MILLENNIAL REIGN.

BY JAMES EVANS.

NUMBER VIII.

ANTE MILLENNIARIANS, or those who deny the reign of Christ and the church over the earth, (epi lees gees, —Rev. 5:10) after the resurrection of the just, are compelled to take the following position, viz.: 1. All the human family will be raised together and appear together at the judgment seat. 2. That the human family will be divided into two classes, viz.: the redeemed church, and the ungodly who shall be sailed to the world of woe. 3. That the world will be converted, evangelized, before Jesus comes in the clouds of heaven. 4. That the first resurrection and the saints sitting on thrones and judgment given unto them, are to be understood figuratively and are now in process of fulfillment. The first of these positions is sufficiently refuted by Paul, as shown in our last article. They who are Christ's at his coming, (1 Cor. 15:23) settles the question that the "rest of the dead" live not again at that time.

Again, if the whole human family are to appear in judgment then, when the King sits on the throne of his glory and before him are gathered all nations, (Matt. 25:32) he will be alone; he will have no joint heirs with him, no bride to sit by his side and the world. 1 Cor. 5:2.

2. The second position that the human race will consist of only two classes is refuted by the whole tenor of the Bible from Alpha to Omega. It is amazing how little professed theologians know of the Divine Purpose. Have they never read of Abraham's seed through whom all nations of the earth are to be blessed? Does not Paul tell us that this One Seed is Christ and all who are Christ's. Gal. 3:26. This "one seed" are they who are Christ's at his coming. In other words, they are the blessed and holy who have part in the first resurrection and live and reign as kings and priests. Rev. 20. They are they who are accounted worthy to obtain that world or sion to come and the resurrection out (ek nekromon) of the dead. Luke 20:35 are the firstfruits of the great harvests of the earth. The heirs of the promised kingdom are called "firstfruits of God's creatures." James 1:18. They are the queen who will stand at the King's right hand, clothed in the golden ophir garments of immortality. Ps. 45. She is the bride, the Lamb's wife and was seen by the seer of Patmos standing with the Lamb on Mt. Zion. In her mouth was found no guile, being faultless before the throne of God. But she does not comprise all mankind, neither is it the purpose of God that she should. She is an elect company, chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world, foreknown and predestinated to the high position of being associated with Christ in the government of the world. She was not, however, elected and predestinated to reign with Christ at the expense of the balance of mankind, as the Westminster creed teaches. God foreknew the bride of his well-beloved Son; but no dark decree of reprobation rests on the remainder of the human family. The church, or bride the seed of Abraham is chosen to bless all families of the earth, not to curse them. Here, then, are at least two classes of saved ones, viz., the seed of Abraham, and the nations blessed in them. The bride is the New Jerusalem, but there are to be saved nations who will walk in her light and bring their glory into her. Rev. 21:24.

After the firstfruits comes the greater harvest. Compared with the nations who will walk by her light (Revised Version) she is a little flock, the few, just as the President's Cabinet is small compared with the vast multitude of citizens. The nations blessed and saved will be a multitude that no man could number. Rev. 7:9.

But besides the bride elect and the nations who are to be subjects of Christ's kingdom there are GUESTS who are to sit down at the marriage supper of the Lamb. In Ps. 4:5 the bride is called the queen and the King's daughter. She is all glorious within, identifying her with the virgin company. of Rev. 14, who are guileless and faultless. In Ps. 45:14 we read of "the virgins her companions that follow her shall be brought unto thee."

Jesus in Matt. 22 speaks a parable. The King makes a marriage feast for his Son and sends out his servants to invite guests to come. Those first invited would not come, then servants were sent into the hedges and highways and gathered as many as they could find, and the wedding was furnished with guests. These guests are not the bride but her virgin companions. They are called also blessed and holy. —Rev. 19:9. All are not elected to be the bride, but all to whom the Gospel is preached are invited or bidden to come to the supper of the Lamb. Thus we have proved at least three classes of saved ones, viz.: the virgin, guests, and the nations.

3. That the world will be converted before Jesus comes, is refuted by the silence of the Savior as to such an era before his coming. No testimony places the world's conversion this side of the judgment. If so, who will point it out? The Gospel is preached for a witness to all nations, but not to convert them. The whole of the Gospel dispensation is called the last days. Until the time of the dead is come and of rewards, evil will abound, and when Jesus comes it will be as in the days of Noah and Lot. Every allusion to the second advent by Jesus or the apostles, proves our position.

4. If we make the first resurrection figurative, how can we prove the reality of the great white throne, and death and Hades delivering up their dead, etc.? May not Swedenborg be right who locates it all in the past. We do no violence to a single word of Rev. 20 by applying it to a real and literal resurrection of the dead. Every event harmonizes with the clear and explicit statements of Scripture. Millenarians are the only consistent expounders of prophecy and only for their efforts, prophecy and the coming reign of Christ would be almost forgotten.

For the Brethren at Work.

A REUNION PLAN FOR HOLDING FUTURE ANNUAL MEETINGS.

1st. All District Meetings to be held as at present, but such long time in advance of Annual Meeting, that all queries with answers referred to the latter body for confirmation or rejection shall be published in all our periodicals.

2. These queries and answers thus published shall then be voted on by all congregations at home for adoption or rejection.

3. Each congregation shall send two delegates to Annual Meeting, one a minister, and the other a lay member with proper credentials. This body of delegates thus assembled shall alone do the voting; each delegate to represent the vote of his individual congregation on each and every query or proposition presented to that body.

4. These delegates when assembled at Annual Meeting shall appoint from their number a Moderator, Reading Clerk and Recording Secretary, adopting such parliamentary rules for the meeting as by them deemed necessary.

5. All applications for committees to investigate local church troubles shall be referred to District Meetings where all appointments of such committees shall be made.

6. Each congregation to have the right by a majority vote to say whether they will have an open council and reporter at such investigations or not.

7. No committee to have the right to expel or disfellowship any member or members of the church without a majority vote of the congregation, and then such expelled member shall have the right of appeal to District Meeting.

8. No queries without an answer shall be considered either by District Meeting or Annual Meeting, and all decisions made by either meeting shall be regarded only as advisory unless confirmed by a "Thus saith the Lord."

All former decisions on Minutes of Annual Meeting that have no "Thus saith the Lord" for their support shall, after the adoption of these resolutions, be considered null and void.

[The brother writing the foregoing desired us to withhold his name.—Ed.]

SABBATH-SCHOOL CONVENTIONS.

BY I. J. ROSENBERGER.

To M. M. Eshelman:—

I N a recent number of the B. AT W., you insert an inquiry as to why the Brethren do not attend the Sunday-school convention of your State. Your answer to the above inquiry is, in my judgment, not complete; like the bed upon which the prophet lay—"too short."

We do not support Sunday-school conventions because we see no advantage on the part of the schools that support these conventions, over those that do not support Sunday school conventions.

We have here, in North-western Ohio, schools numbering from fifty to one hundred and fifty, with none of this conventional parade, and have as good interest as I find in those schools aided by conventions.

The advocates of these conventions represent their object to be to devise better means to carry on the Sabbath-school work. I question the above seriously; for the means, the essential means to carry on Sunday-school work is to secure converted parents, having their children in one hand, their Bibles in the other, and the Holy Ghost in their hearts. The above means never fail to secure a good school. Nor were these means devised at any convention.

These conventions are also represented as affording especial encouragement to the Sunday-school work. I have sought for testimony to the above from practical unprejudiced minds, and obtained but little. Upon the above I however gathered the following:

There was a convention held in a congregation in North eastern Ohio. The year in which the convention was held, the school was organized in March. The next year the school did not organize until May. The second year they did not organize at all, and have had no school since.

We again look upon Sunday-school conventions as having a schismatic influence. There are many brethren who do not support Sunday-schools, who, we believe, could be induced to do so, if we would simply conduct our Sabbath-schools, leaving off, as I term them, vain and useless appendages, such as Sunday-school conventions and associations.

But when Brethren see this growing desire, like in the days of Saul, to be like the world, like other nations; already discussing the propriety of using the organ in our Sunday-schools, they turn their backs upon the whole enterprise.

It looks to us useless, and almost idle, for Brethren having so much important labor to do, and then come even from adjoining States and discuss such subjects as the following:

No. 1. What should be the length of the Sabbath school session?

No. 2. How many scholars should constitute a class?

No. 3. How much time should be devoted to singing?

No. 4. When should the labors of the Sunday-school teacher cease?

No. 5. Should we teach the commandments in our Sunday-schools?

No. 6. Is it always necessary that we repent before we can be forgiven?

No. 7. Should papers be admitted in our schools indicating false doctrine; such as Christ kneeling in the water; and John pouring the water on Christ with a mussel shell?

We might multiply the above, but let those given suffice. To us it looks idle in the extreme, to be spending both time and money in discussing subjects, which the most ordinary mind should readily answer. Besides, these advocates are nursing a growing dissatisfaction in the church.

I therefore suggest that we encourage Sabbath-schools, but leave off all the vain appendages; such as picnics, celebrations, associations, conventions.

[It is probable our remarks were "too short" like the prophet's bed; and we are pleased that you, dear brother, have made it longer. That there should be less noise and more work for and among our children is indeed true. It is to be hoped that our dear brethren everywhere will consider the question with prayer. Let us do nothing through strife.—Ed.]

For the Brethren at Work.

A HISTORY OF SCHISM IN THE MIAMI VALLEY, OHIO.

BY JOHN CALVIN BRIGHT.

[Believing that no harm can result at this time from the publication of a brief account of the withdrawal of certain elders and others in Miami Valley, Ohio, we give a history written by brother Bright. Many of our readers know not what efforts were made years ago to create division, and this will let them see it as others see it. Thus far we have tried to publish but little about them, not wishing to intensify the excitement incident to their going out, and expulsion by the church, but as it is now about over, we think this can go out without injury to any one.—Ed.]

SCHISMS and heresies have long since become the order of the day. And we need not wonder; for they were in existence in the apostles' times. Rom. 16: 17, 1 Cor. 11: 18, 19. They prophesied that "perilous times will come." "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but, according to their own lusts, shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and shall be turned unto fables."

Self-love is the most fruitful source of all schisms. "For men will be lovers of themselves," and entertain a very high estimation of their opinions and prejudices. And when these are not recognized by those with whom they associate, "beloved self" will suffer no indignity, but if it cannot rule will at least try to ruin. Hence a disruption takes place between them and the people of God.

The church of the Brethren has experienced considerable trouble of this kind since its existence in America. False Brethren have arisen speaking perverse things, and drawn disciples away after them. But their existence has been ephemeral. Some died a natural death, some came back to the church, and some have a name to live but are dead. To which of these classes the heresy we are about describing will fall, I shall not assume the province of determining. But as it is the product of self-will, self-love, and self-righteousness, it will do the church or the world no good. So much as we pass along.

This Miami Valley schism originated some years since. After considerable counseling and correspondence "about the way matters are going" in our church, a large meeting was held in the Lower Stillwater church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, on the 18th of November, 1868. At this meeting a Petition was read which wanted:

1. A. M. conducted more in simplicity and after the manner of the first Brethren.

2. Conference to direct committees to the various churches where difficulties exist.

3. The different editors in the Brotherhood counseled not to publish anything that "Disputes the practice of the precepts and ordinances of the Gospel as handed down to us from Christ and his disciples through and by the forefathers of the church." And concludes with the threat that if A. M. grants these requests it shall be well; "but in case it shall refuse to do so, it is very probable that many of the churches will not be represented at our next Annual Conference, and hence the result will be a re-organization of our Conference meetings by said churches in accordance with this petition."

Elder James Quater criticised it in his usual mild, courteous, logical and Scriptural manner. Eld. J. P. Ebersole with his short terse and original arguments; and elder H. Kurtz in a fatherly and loving way remonstrated against secession; the author of the Petition defended it with a zeal worthy a noble cause. At the close of the discussion quite a number signed the Petition, and the meeting adjourned.

On Easter Monday, the following Spring, a meeting was held in the Bear Creek church, same county, at which a supplement to the Petition was read that breathed the same spirit. Elder Abraham Erbaugh, "Whose praise was in the Gospel throughout the churches," by his silent and powerful influence, assisted by elders Samuel Garber, Daniel Miller, I. Bright and others did much to allay and modify the rebellious spirit of the petitioners. At any rate, they compromised the matter, as will be seen by referring to Art. 1 of the Minutes of 1869.

Peace prevailed in the Miami Valley until the present movement was inaugurated, with the exception of some ebullitions of this factional spirit; as the sending of papers to A. M. of a dictatorial character, and the publishing of pamphlets of an inflammatory tone without the name of the author, and spreading them broadcast over the Valley.

In the Fall of 1870, elder John Hershey, (shortly afterwards expelled) of Missouri and formerly of this Valley, appeared in our midst, and asked counsel of the Miami elders. A meeting was appointed on the 11th of Nov., same year, at the Philipsburg church.

At this meeting the Miami elders agreed to hold another one in the following Spring, and appointed a committee of correspondence; further that upon whatever matters they would agree to send to A. M., they would not compromise, but would "Take a Stand," to use their own favorite expression. It is but just that we should mention that they were opposed in their extreme views at this meeting by elder Jacob Garber, Samuel Mohler, and George Hollar.

The Spring meeting produced what is known as the "Miami Valley Elders' Petition." This made an unequalled commotion in the churches of Southern Ohio, barely passed through the District Meeting, where it received a mortal wound, and was sent to Annual Meeting in 1880. The result, at that meeting, is known to the Brotherhood. A substitute was formed and read to the meeting. And after having several hours' time for consideration, it was unanimously passed by the assembled Brotherhood.

Two of the Miami elders withdrew in the following August with some of their relatives and neighbors. After having one church meeting and some four public meetings, they subsided. One of the elders made an acknowledgement and was retained in the church. The other, with his followers, were expelled. And the action of the church was sustained by a committee sent by late A. M. So the matter rested until about the time the Maryland factionists raised their banner to the breeze when the close observing discovered that there was some underground work going on in the Miami Valley. The result was, a meeting appointed in the Wolf Creek church, Montgomery Co., Ohio, on the 8th of December, 1880. At different stages of this meeting it was apparent to all, that some of the Miami elders were almost determined "to take a stand" and withdraw from the Brotherhood and her A. M. And had it not been for the presence and assistance of elders D. P. Saylor, James Quinter, E. Eby, R. H. Miller, D. Brower, and others, the worst might have happened. However better counsels prevailed; "The Miami Valley Elders' Petition" was remodelled and sent to Annual Meeting of 1881.

As this was not sent to Annual Meeting in the usual way through District Meeting, it was unanimously pronounced illegal by Annual Meeting. And some of the Brethren foreseeing this, and wishing to give the petitioners a chance, as well as thinking it prudent for the Brotherhood to reconsider some of her late decisions, formed a substitute and sent it to Annual Meeting in the "regular order." The substitute embraced nearly all the points contained in the Miami Petition, and they were considered by Annual Meeting, and the conclusions arrived at were almost unanimous on all the points presented.

Notwithstanding all this, the petitioners came home in an unhappy mood, and after the "necessary preliminaries" held a meeting on the 24th of August in the Pittsburg meeting-house, Dark Co., Ohio, where the "fatal leap" was taken. Brethren Jos. Kauffman, D. Brower, Jacob Garher, Samuel Mohler, Jesse Stutsman kindly admonished the Brethren not to do so, and portrayed the unhappy results that would follow. But they had determined to go, and William Cassel, their foreman, said, "All who vote for the Resolutions separate themselves from the general Brotherhood and its Annual Meetings." About one-third of the members present voted for them, and the work was done.

As the brethren and sisters had been admonished time and again not to withdraw from the church; but as they had now done so of their own free will, the church took the case in hands and expelled all who had separated themselves from her. There were a number neutral in many of the churches, and these have nearly all gone off too, as their sympathies run in that direction. Some of them complainingly ask, why they were expelled? We answer, You violated the Scripture, "Love the Brotherhood." You became "wise in your own conceits," would not "hear the church," separated yourselves from the church, and the church kindly granted your request. Again, some of them complain because they were not allowed to go along on the visit prior to their trial. Now they ought to know that it never was the order of the church for accused members to prepare their own cases for trial.

For the Brethren at Work.

NO CROSS, NO CROWN.

D. E. BRUBAKER.

"Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Matt. 25: 23.

ONE of the many pleasing anticipations of the Christian heart, is the fulfillment of Christ's promises of a suitable reward bestowed, for services rendered, and for sacrifices made. In the text quoted is embodied the idea of

THE CHRISTIAN'S PROMOTION.

The mere anticipation of future promotion is a mighty lever to constancy and faithfulness, in positions of trust. The mere thought of plodding on and on, in the primary state of any calling with a conscious feeling that every avenue is closed to future promotion, would cast a sickening gloom over the heart, weaken all endeavor and invite a state of dependency; in short, it would be to the soul the blackening cloud without the "silver lining."

But, my dear brethren and sisters in the heavenly calling, if ever there was a calling open to promotion, it is in the service of our divine Master. The royal path of promotion, is pointed out with remarkable clearness in a very few words by the author of proverbs. Hear him. "Exalt her, (that is wisdom) and she shall promote thee. She shall bring thee to honor." Prov. 4: 8.

The particular kind of wisdom that vouchsafes her devotees such very desirable results, is more fully comprehended in the language of brother James who witnesses and declares that "the wisdom which is from above, is first pure then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy." Jas. 3: 17.

A correct view then of James' version of the heavenly wisdom that insures promotion and leads to honor, gives us the idea of

A PROPER APPLICATION OF GOSPEL MEANS, TO SECURE GOSPEL ENDS, or in the words of our text it is being "faithful over the few things" (gospel duties) that makes us ruler over many things, (i. e., insures future promotion and honor).

When Jesus said: "If any man serve me, him will my Father honor," Jno. 12: 26., he had this very idea in view: first the cross then the crown. Just how far God designs to promote and honor his faithful servants, is not a matter of clear revelation. John, the beloved disciple confesses that it is beyond his comprehension; he says: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." 1 Jno. 3: 2. And again the inspired Paul declared with reference to the same matter "For now we see through a glass darkly: * * * I know in part," &c 1 Cor. 13: 12. However meager our conceptions of God's design in man's future, if we take the small span of time intervening between our infancy and mature age, in the development of man's powers, as an index or comparison to all futurity, then indeed what glorious opening to future promotion! In part, at least, man's promotion and honor will consist in

A FINAL, PERSONAL INTRODUCTION, INTO THE SOCIETY OF HEAVEN.

With this wonderful attainment, freed from sin and the burdens of flesh, being in constant companionship with the most refined society in the universe, what unknown honor and happiness awaits the future of the faithful.

If the way to heaven is narrow, it is not long; and if the gate be strait, it opens into endless life.

MAN when drunk will do that which, when sober, he would not dare to do; he will do anything.

MAKE the best of things. Enjoy what is just. Lay burdens on none but thyself.

OF all the passions that invade the human breast, revenge is the most direful.

A MAN is known by the company he keeps out of.

From Zion's Watchmen.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER VIII.

IN the morning we took the steamer for Vitzrau, on Lake Lucerne, passing on the route beautiful villas nestling among the trees on the mountain sides. On arriving at Vitzrau we commenced the ascent of Rigi mountain by railway. The gauge is the ordinary width, and between the two outer rails run two others, placed closely together, provided with cogs or teeth, on which a wheel under the locomotive works, and causes the ascent of the train. Both carriage and locomotive are provided with brakes, by which they can be screwed tightly to the rail, so that in descending they can be stopped instantly on the steepest part of the incline. The train in its upward course is propelled by steam, while the descent is made by means of atmospheric pressure introduced into cylinders. The carriage is placed, in ascending, before the engine, and without any couplings, so that if anything should happen to the engine, the passenger car would not be in danger. The road winds up through the village, revealing the mighty Alps as we ascend higher, and still winding round and round, now passing through a tunnel two hundred and fifty feet long, then over a frightful chasm, still going up and up. A strange ringing sound in the ears is experienced, by nearly every one, while I am obliged to press my hands to my temples to soothe the intense throbbing and pain, caused, I suppose, by the rarified air. We went to the summit, which is 5,509 feet high where we were to remain till the next morning. Clouds had been gathering all day, and now the rain began to pour, keeping us within doors, so that we lost the glorious view which can be obtained from the summit. The mist enveloped everything, and we seemed to rest on an island a few rods across, while all else seemed chaos. As we descended, however, the mist and clouds grew less dense, and again we saw mountain, valley and lake, spread out before us. Sudden as a flash we stop on one of the steepest inclines, and the engineer steps off, picks up a large stone which had fallen on the track from a cliff overhanging our way, and then resumes the labor of our downward course; and soon we are on board the steamer which will take us to Alpnach, where we take coaches to make the Brunig pass through the Alps, to Brienz on the Lake Brienz. We have on our right and on our left the cloud-cleaving Swiss mountains, which are our companions in all the long weary day's ride. Every turn brought us something new, wild and grand. The mountains became more majestic, disclosing to our wondering eyes wild gorges, magnificent waterfalls and glittering ice fields, while little Swiss chalets were scattered in every nook or place where a few rods of earth could be found for grass or mountain wheat. A few modern Swiss houses, but the most of them bore the impress of time, and their picturesque roofs, extending far out over the body of the house, were covered with heavy stones to hold the roof down during the heavy storms that prevail at certain seasons of the year. All along our way were little shrines by the wayside, and occasionally on the sides of the houses, containing pictures of Mary and the infant Jesus, or of the Savior on the cross. Deegorges in the mountain sides showed where a torrent had forced itself down, and little mountain streams came tumbling from such an immense height that they were broken into spray resembling dust, long before they reached the bottom. Goethe finely describes one, or rather the series of falls, at Staubbach, which conveys a fine idea of all.

"Streams from the high,
Steep, rocky wall
The parent fount;
In clouds of spray
Like silver dust,
It veils the rock
In rainbow hues,
And dancing down
With music soft,
Is lost in air."

Before passing down the beautiful valley of Brienz, we see before us a huge crag overhanging the road, and wonder if we must pass under it. The driver says we must; so shutting our eyes and asking the good Lord who has so far kept us, to still hold the mountains and seas safely in His hands, we pass under, and safely make the descent, and soon arrive at Brienz, where we take the steamer which is to bear us to Giessbach, where we are to spend the night and see the illumination of the falls.

From the landing to the hotel is about twenty minutes' walk, but the incline is too great for the ladies, so chairs are provided, and two strong men, taking up each a chair, soon land us to our hotel. The falls consists of seven cascades, and are considered the prettiest in Switzerland, on account of the shrubbery through which they break. The upper falls are reached by a romantic path through the trees and shrubbery. Behind the second fall is a grotto, from which the visitors can watch the curious appearance of the landscape as seen through the water. As soon as it became sufficiently dark for illuminating, a rocket shot up from above, then all was darkness again. In a moment more a bright glare shot out from below, another above it, another and another, until like an illuminated picture we saw the seven cascades leaping and tumbling down amid the verdant foliage, while through the romantic and picturesque ravine poured a mass of foam of molten silver, rich, gleaming and dazzling. While we gazed the hue changed, and purple water dashed over purple rocks, and threw violet spray into the air, then a siren blue, deeply, darkly beautifully blue, poured down the mountain-side, and again changing, a torrent ruby red sped down, and as we gazed there was something terribly suggestive in the sight.

The girl who uttered the following will make somebody a good wife: "What would you do if you were me and I were you?" tenderly inquired a young swell of his lady friend, as he escorted her home from church. "Well," she said, "if I were you, I would throw away that vile cigarette, cut up my cane for firewood, wear my watch-chain under my coat, and stay at home nights and pray for braies."

For the Brethren at Work.

THE LORD HATH GIVEN AND THE LORD HATH TAKEN AWAY.

BY WM. M. LYON.

WHO has not realized this solemn truth? Words can not be found that can be more universally applied to humanity than these, because all who live must realize this fact sooner or later.

The Creator giveth life to the creature, and when new beings are born in the world, love and union follows, because every creature is dearly united in love to some one, and when the Lord taketh away that dear one, the friend is lost, the union at an end on earth.

Life bringeth love, joy, peace and union of hearts, death severs that sweet chain of affection from the transient scenes of earthly beauty.

These lines may be applied to silt; but by request, and through the interested feelings of the author, I am constrained to write a few words concerning the departure of a near relative of the writer, as well as a relative of many others in the far West, who are bound together by the sacred and sweet ties of kindred, and especially would I speak to the bereft family.

Ida G. Ebert, an amiable and promising young woman, one much loved by all who knew her, was taken sick with that dread disease, typhoid fever, and after a few days' sickness, on the 23d day of September, 1881, she was hushed in death, aged 19 years and 10 days. Funeral discourse, by Wm. George, from 1st Cor. 15: 22; "For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive."

And now, my dear friends and relatives, and especially the bereaved family, through love and sympathy toward your precious souls, I am prompted to speak a few words regarding our duty on earth, and thus, drop a word for Jesus.

Having been a playmate, and associate through life, of the one of whom I now write, whom Jesus has called, I feel with you that it seems hard to realize her absence in our home and family circles; but since we know that God hath called her from us, we should remember that "He doeth all things well," and "All things work together for good" to them that love Him.

In her death, one of life's great lessons has been taught us. Then let us heed the warning God hath given us in calling her from our midst; and stricken down by death, and that very soon, we may then be so happy as to meet her in that tearless and nightless region of eternal bliss.

Oh let us all try to meet our God in peace, and thus rob death of its sting, and the grave of victory. What are all the vanities of the world when we look at death and eternity—Lord, sanctify this dispensation to the bereft family.

May the eternal God be your refuge, and undergrowth be his elevating arms!

May he fill you with all joy and peace in believing; and after all the storms of life are over, may he conduct us all safely to that land, the inhabitants of which shall never say, "I am sick," and where "God shall wipe away all tears from our eyes." Amen.

Greenland, West Virginia.

Primitive Christian please copy.

Home and Family.

MARY O. NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN., - EDITRESS

ONE FORM OF RUDENESS.

A BREACH of politeness, and one which is most annoying to refined and sensitive people, is the very general practice of interrupting one's conversation. The impunity with which this is done has degraded rational conversation, which ought to be the greatest charm of social intercourse, into a farce.

A man or woman that has anything to say that is worth saying desires to say it in his or her own way and those who have brains to appreciate it will be equally desirous of hearing it without interruption. Yet it is a common thing for a parlor conversation to partake more of the babble bubble than a conversation among rational beings who are supposed to know and appreciate what each one says. One begins to relate an incident and before he has finished two sentences, some parrot in fine clothes chimes in with senseless gabble, breaking the thread of discourse and compelling the narrator to begin again or abandon the attempt to instruct or entertain. This the greatest impoliteness; but it is as common an occurrence as conversation itself.

It is hardly too much to say that nine out of every ten people who indulge in this are incapable of carrying on a rational conversation on any useful topic. Perhaps some indulge in these breaches of etiquette by way of covering their retreat and hiding their ignorance. We suggest to young people and old ones too, for that matter, that here is a promising field for social reform. Never interrupt a conversation by interjecting remarks, however appropriate and witty a thing may seem. All sensible people will respect you and conclude that you have good sense and know how to use it to the best advantage. (N.)

GIRLS AT HOME.

IN every family in the land the daughter growing up into womanhood is one of the most important factors. She may be so recognized by the household authorities, her health guarded, her education carefully directed, her associates judiciously chosen; or she may be forced to occupy an inferior position, compelled to work beyond her girlish strength, with but scanty advantages, till her young heart grows sick with hope deferred. But, appreciated or slighted, this fact remains the same.

Dear girls, have you ever realized the truth of all this? Not in any spirit of pride or self-sufficiency, but with the calm, serious thought comprehended at the same time the duties and responsibilities implied? In your quiet homes, nestling between the hills of New England, wedged in among city blocks, or out on the breezy prairie, though the great world may never hear your names, you have spheres of usefulness, more extended than you dream. They are not of your own seeking, to be departed from at your pleasure. You were born to them, as the little princess is born to her tiana and purple robes, and though you may try to shut your eyes to their existence, and shirk their obligations, the responsibility cannot be escaped; it will follow and fasten upon you at last.

Not that I believe you have any real desire to evade these things—you are true American girls, wide-awake and keen of intellect, your hearts throbbing with high, unspoken aspirations, which have come pulsing down to you from your mothers of '76—yet it is so easy, through carelessness, to ignore or fail to appreciate the possibilities within your grasp; for high aims and lofty thoughts are not enough, if they are suffered to float away without leaving the benediction of their presence on your daily life.

It is just this daily life which perplexes you. It seems so dull and monotonous that you wonder your mother endures it with such cheerful patience. You think sometimes, with tender self-pity, as you sit alone by your chamber window, that it is because your advantages have been so superior to hers that thereby you have been raised to a higher plane of living, and greater deed and joys will be needed to satisfy the cravings of your soul.

Beware of such moods and thoughts! Have a care lest, from your earnest desire after something better than you have known, you drift into these self-admiring reveries. They will surely blot the edge of your purposes, and hinder, if they do not prevent, the good you might have accomplished, the nobility of the success unto which you might have attained. There is a wide difference between the divine dissatisfaction which leads to grand results and the selfish discontent which is purposeless and miserable. You can discover for yourself into which of these ways your feet are turning, if you watch the results of your meditations. If your daily duties grow continually more irksome, and are discharged with inward, if not outward, irritation, take heed; for great purposes work themselves out with slow patience. You will not miss anything of the good, true and beautiful mission of your life by doing the duties which lie nearest you with cheery fidelity; for it is no unconsidered assumption to take for granted that you are often thrilled with the desire to be self-supporting. Our own age and country offers unexampled facilities to women in this respect, and so complete has been the success of hundreds that it is no longer deemed a matter of rash temerity when a school-girl begins the study of one of the learned professions.

I do not know what this ambition you secretly cherish and hope to realize may become—handicraft, art or profession, honorable and heartily to be commended—but I do know one sin common and possible to you all, a noble womanhood. It is incompatible with no pursuit; it will be your true glory though you attain wealth and fame in your vocation. If you scorn to ape masculinity in custom or phrase, if you fight away the continual temptation to waste your time on trifles, if you cherish high purposes with patient fidelity, it will develop itself in you as unconsciously as the rosebud blossoms—putting forth of lovely and womanly attributes, not a putting on of pert affectations. There will be no ceaseless worry to get in or out of some imagined circle, but a serene, orderly movement within your orbit. Such a life blesses humanity, and it is possible to you, whether you win your bread in a hand to hand struggle with the world, or whether, for your real work, you never cross the threshold of your sheltered home. (N.)

KINDNESS.

BETTER is a dry morsel and quietness therewith, than a house full of sacrifice with strife. (Prov. 17: 1.)

His red stireth up strifes; but love curseth all sins. (Prov. 10: 13)

Nothing is more painful to see than a house where strife dwells; surely a dry morsel with quietness is much better. It is tone and temper that make life joyous or miserable, that renders homes happy or wretched.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath; but grievous words stir up anger." Hence, how necessary that we always speak kindly. The disposition of kindness is not only desirable, but indispensable; there is no domestic happiness without. We should always be bland, courteous, and amiable to another. The law of kindness must rule if we desire love and the family peace to dwell in our house; it is the method by which we may govern, mould and harmonize the family.

Among the almost endless variety of human wants, there is none which makes itself so powerfully and keenly felt as the want of kindness in the home circle. We may all, more or less, be conscious of it, in the bosom of a family with brothers and sisters. How beautiful, and how low powerful to see parental kindness, sisterly and brotherly affection! These without, virtue has no security. O, how vain to see one destitute of a holy temper, who is a slave to his wretched passions!

Dear reader, if you are possessed with such a temper, you certainly have cause to blush, and sigh and mourn over your daily defects. Do not say "I can never master my corruptions, and attain to a holy temper." You certainly can if you try—all things are possible to God—all things are possible to him that believeth. Hence go to God and ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full. M. C. N.

A VALUABLE SECRET.

IT is related of Franklin that from the window of his office in Philadelphia he noticed a mechanic, among a number of others, at work on a house which was being erected close by, who always appeared to be in a merry humor, and who had a kind and cheerful smile for every one he met. Let the day be ever so cold, gloomy or sunless, the happy smile danced like a sunbeam on his cheerful countenance. Meeting him one day, Franklin requested to know the secret of his constant happy flow of spirits.

"It's no secret, doctor," the man replied. "I've got one of the best wives, and when I go to work she always gives me a kind word of encouragement and a blessing with her parting kiss. And when I go home she is sure to meet me with a smile and a kiss of welcome."

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

NOVEMBER 22, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE, } Corresponding Editors.
S. J. HARRISON, }

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Ernest Rly, A. W. Ross, D. E. Brubaker,
James Krain, S. S. Michin, J. J. Rosenberger,
David Vainman, C. H. Burtough, J. W. Southwood.

The Editors will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that they endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not indulge in personalities and unmerciful language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending eight names and $12.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send us the balance.

Money sent by Post-Office Orders, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk.

Address all communications,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
M. L. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

SECRETS OUT.

—Ohio, Nov. 10, 1881.

Dear Brother:

The "Progressives" are holding secret meetings for the purpose of taking our next Annual Meeting.

Yours in Christ.

Y. O. F.

FROM this the Brotherhood will see what measures are resorted to in order to break down order and government. The time is at hand when some of those secrets must be proclaimed from the housetops. Our Brotherhood must be warned of the danger. We had hoped that a special Conference might be held in order to strengthen the bond of union, but it seems the "chief men" among us thought otherwise.

Argument has failed the progressives; open work has failed them; abuse on the part of a few of their leaders has failed to establish their cause, and now Ku-Kluxism—secret meetings are resorted to. These will also fail. God works not by such devices.

In 1877, at New Enterprise, during the A. M., the leaders of this faction held secret meetings nightly. One could see the result of these meetings in A. M., during the day. At the last A. M., at Ashland, the leaders of this faction held secret meetings in the office of Dr. Roop, and those who knew such meetings were held could see the result in Conference. Those leaders made many speeches. They pulled on one string, spoke the same thing, and occupied as much time as possible. There was a purpose in this, as we know, having heard the caucusing around that editorial table.

There are two ways by which attempts will be made to control next A. M. By caucusing at District Meetings in order to secure a majority of the Standing Committee. Failing in this, resort will be had to "packing" the council tent with men and women whom the leaders can control, so as to vote up or down any measure they may desire. We do not believe those leaders will succeed in either. We do not believe there are many who will offer themselves as mere tools in the hands of designing men. They do not own the Brotherhood, nor can they lead it into revolutionary measures—nor into the fashions and indulgences of a corrupt world. The Gospel is against faction in the church—it is against corrupt measures, it stands against secret meetings for the purpose of carrying out pet schemes and corrupt bargains. Art. 20 of A. M. 1881 is against such meetings. But what care desperate men for decisions of A. M.? Nothing! We feel that we could lay down our lives for our brethren. When the church would take them into its embrace and warmest affection, they will not. We cannot go with them in their attempts to break down the subjective plan of the incarnation, and the objective manifestation of Christ in the flesh. We cannot go with them in any attempt to wipe out the simplicity which characterizes the church of the Brethren for something untried and foreign to us as a people. We cannot assist in the destruction of governmental restraints—in overthrowing the union and in turning loose the baser feelings and unbridled appetites of the unprincipled. It is our purpose to defend the church, and if needs be, to point out by name, as did Paul, such as walk warily in the house of God. It pains us to do this, but God's truth must be vindicated and the church of the Brethren warned of the danger. Brethren, pray God to help in these times of severe trial.

FOR EVERYBODY.

ALL kinds of produce and especially such as A. editors and their families require, have advanced in price. The products of the farmers have advanced from twenty to one hundred per cent. Corn, wheat, oats, potatoes and other necessities of life command much more in market than last year. Farmers and producers are therefore much more able to pay the slight advances in merchandise and meet their wants better than heretofore. This is especially true of those who have been blessed with good crops. The wages of mechanics and laborers have also been increased so that they need not be unnecessarily burdened by the advance in provisions.

We, therefore, suggest that so many of our subscribers as can, sad feel to sympathize with their editorial brethren, will please send twenty-five cents extra for this paper in 1882. We do not suggest that this be done only to B. AT W., but also to the other papers that are published in the Brotherhood for the promotion of Christianity. Please remember that we do not advance the regular price of our paper, $1.50, but merely suggest that you help us to meet the additional expenses occasioned by the advance in produce. Consider this carefully and then act as seems best to you. If you wish to do as we suggest, you can hand the extra amount to our agent, or if you send for the paper yourself add it to the regular price.

FORM AND ORDER.

{ Morrill, Kan.,
{ Nov. 12th 1881

M. M. Eselman.—

Dear brother:—Will you please enlighten your readers as to the difference between uniform and order? Or is there a difference? The reason why I ask this favor of you is because some writers and speakers seem to think that form is order, and order form. In my simple way of looking at things, I can see form without order and order without form.

Yours for consistency,

W. J. H. BACMAN.

BOTH the words "form" and "order" are used by the Holy Spirit. Christ appeared to man "in the form of God"—Philip. 2:6. The church of the Brethren at Rome "obeyed that form of doctrine" delivered to them. Rom. 6:17. Timothy was commanded to "hold fast to the form of sound words"—2 Tim. 1:13. All this is addressed to believers on Christ. Of unbelievers and the ungodly it is said, "Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." The form was right; but they denied the power of that form.

Of order it is written that Luke took it in hand to set in order the things most surely believed among the disciples. This means set in regular arrangement. Paul to the church at Corinth, "The rest will I set in order when I come." This means the method of procedure, or the proper way of doing certain things. The same apostle beheld the "order and steadfastness" of the Brethren at Colosse. Here we think he means by order, the established usage of God's house.

Form has reference to the shape of anything, giving it distinctiveness. Order in the Brethren church has respect to "customary mode of procedure" and "established usage." Hooker says concerning order: "The church hath authority to establish that for an order at one time which at another time it may abolish." This definition of the term would indicate mode of procedure.

It depends very much upon what form is applied to in order to distinguish it from order. There may be a form with order, but there can be no order without form. Order expresses harmony of arrangement; while form may express the outline of a thing, though destitute of order. Order, we think, means both form and harmony of arrangement. This is the only difference we conceive between the two terms. When the Scriptures speak of form, however, respect is had to harmony of arrangement also.

The difference between the two words is so slight that in common usage we may use them interchangeably.

PRACTICE VS. THEORY.

THE following is from the Western Recorder—a leading Baptist paper, published in Louisville, Ky.

Thus, probably, Nadab and Abihu reasoned: "Common fire will consume the sacred cloud of incense to ascend equally as well fire taken from the altar. Why then should it make any difference? What God requires is the offering, as to the manner of it, it matters but little." This same spirit is abroad in the world to-day. It is in the performance or the non performance of the current view of the "non-essentials"—that our danger lies. As to the great basal doctrines of the gospel—salvation by faith, atonement through the blood of Jesus—the so-called evangelical churches stand firm. In theory, they hold to these just as firmly as do the Baptists. But we are sorry that the interests of truth compel us to say that their practice is pulling down the very theories that their learned men are trying to uphold.

It is not only important that we know what God requires of us, but it is equally important to know how to do the work. We are glad that the Recorder is willing to observe "the little things," or what some term "non-essentials." Is it willing to accept baptism into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost?—"not into one name, but into each person," Father, Son and Holy Ghost?

That the theory of Baptists on salvation by faith and atonement through the blood of Jesus may not be pulled down by inconsistency, would it not be well for them to learn all the lessons relating to salvation by faith which is made perfect by works? We point out a few lessons for the Reflector in order to ascertain whether it has learned them or is willing to learn them.

1. What is its practice on John 13: 4-15?
2. Does it teach the laying on of hands after baptism, as did the apostles? Acts 8: 17.
3. What is its theory and practice on Luke 22: 20, John 13: 4. Cor. 11: 25?
4. What saith it of 1 Cor. 11: 4-5?
5. What is the theory and practice of the Baptist church 1 Thess. 5: 26?
6. Has it the practice founded on James 5: 14-15?

Will the Reflector tell its readers why God should not be obeyed in these things as well as in the bread and cup of communion?

It is one thing to be in the wilderness (Rev. 17: 3) and another thing to be in the wilderness of sin. Between Eilat and Sinai is not near so good a place for a Christian as at Sinai. Jerusalem is still better.

OUR REFLECTOR.

—LOOKING over correspondence and news I see that our ministers have been holding some very successful meetings in various parts of the country, and have also done good work in some of the towns. Such efforts should cause the saints to rejoice everywhere. While the good work is going on in new fields, we find many of the members in strong churches contending and striving over matters of little importance. Some faithful ones are doing their utmost to convert sinners while others, claiming to be of the same faith, are sowing discord. There is certainly no Christianity in such performances. Then we find too much wrangling in papers which should be engaged in better business. The mission of papers is to teach and edify the people, not to make strife and sow the seed of discord every where. While missionaries are working hard to build up the church and convert sinners, papers ought to help them in the good cause. I would to God that writers and editors could be made to see that the pious part of the reading public do not like to pay for that which is sure to sour on a devoted Christian's mind. Let all papers be such that a missionary can, with confidence, scatter them among the people to whom he is preaching.

—Bro. Southwood has certainly been studying "The devil on the sly." The poetry is in good, and shows how we may be led into just one fatal place on the sly, yet while reading it I could not help thinking of the old poem which runs,

"Said the spider to the fly," etc.

—I greatly miss Bro. George Zollers' "Life on the Ocean" this week. Let there be no break in the excellent line of thought he is presenting.

—Secret crimes will out. One by one the murderers of Morgan will come to light. The more I think and read of the black deed the more I hate the order that would require such a thing at the hands of its members. But I believe that Masonry is on the decline in the estimation of the reading public. Masons can no longer hold their secrets, they will come to light and that destroys its power.

—Bro. Enoch Eby, in my estimation, takes the right view of the Special Council matter. Such a thing would be legal, but not expedient. But while on this subject allow me to ask each reader a few questions: Is any one trying to get you to work in behalf of a certain element at or before next Annual Meeting? Are you willing to be influenced in that way by any one? I merely ask you these questions to put you on your guard. A hint to the wise may prove sufficient.

—If the person who wrote that article about "A peep into the bee hive" had got stung just enough to cause him to put two more M's into his fictitious name, it would be much easier for the public to detect the person's hiding place. The "Reflector" can see into these modest corners.

—Bro. Eshelman's "Real Issue" tells about all that is necessary on that particular point, only the article is a little too short to make the condition of affairs just as plain to the public as it is to his mind. I think his view is correct, and really the safe one. When men are removed from office by a proper committee it should be the duty of all churches to duly respect the decision of that committee until it is reversed by the body sending the committee. This committee was sent to try one man only, not a church, nor any part of a church, but simply one man; not for a wrong done to some individual, but for a wrong done to the whole body. Hence the decision of the committee is valid until changed or condemned by the Annual Meeting.

—I regret that the contemplated consolidation did not take place; but as a query is coming up to the next A. M., from the Southern district, Missouri, demanding that steps be taken in that direction, likely the project may yet take place.

—Bro. J. S. Mohler must not think that I am in favor of sisters wearing hats, but candidly I think he misapplies Matt. 18: 18, "Whosoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven," etc. We cannot bind people without a law, and if there is no law on the subject we cannot make one, for that is power never yet delegated to the church. This Scripture refers to binding people by the application of law already made, not by laws that we make. It is strange that those who advocate the hat for sisters always put it "plain hat." If they would always put it that way on their heads I do not know that much complaint would be made. All the hats I ever saw on sisters were the fine fashionable kind, trimmed in the latest style. And those who have visited churches where the hat is worn by sisters, tell me that they wear the most fashionable hats, trimmed with feathers and flowers. It is not the plain hat that our people object to, but they know that if they permit that much, there is no keeping those who wear them from going just as far as they want to in the foolish and vain fashion.

—It is encouraging to read how liberally the people in Indian responded to Bro. John Metzger's call for help in the St. Louis mission field. That certainly looks better than wrangling.

Forty three baptisms reported in this No., added to the 239 of last week gives 282 reported thus far.—J. H. MOORE.

For the Brethren at Work.

TURNING DUNKARD.

I WAS met by a friend a day or two ago who said that he had heard that I had turned to be a Dunkard. My reply to him was, "That so far as the Dunkards are Scriptural, just so far am I a Dunkard."

"But," said he, "a man told me that a Dunkard preacher told him to join his church. The man said to the Dunkard preacher that he was a sinner and had not repented of his sins. The preacher said to him, that it made no difference, that he could join without repentance."

My friend said, moreover, that he saw a Dunkard baptize a person, and as he dipped him, the preacher said to the subject, "I baptize thee for the remission of sin." My friend said that that was Campbellism. My reply was, that the B. at W., did not teach such doctrine.

As for the remission of sins, I thought it all right. For, said I, if a man is hanged what is he hung for? He is hung for murder.

If a man is baptized for the remission of sins, he is baptized because his sins have been remitted. That is to say, forgiven him. And he is buried in baptism because of his having died to sin; because Abraham never buried him until they were dead; and then he was for burying them out of his sight.

I do not believe that the Dunkards are Campbellites, though I never heard one preach.

You may know the tree by its fruits. My friends, the Dunkards, will please explain. Do they baptize for a death to sin, or in other words, bury the man after he is dead to sin, or bury the man alive that he may die?

The BROTHERS AT WORK is the best paper that I have any knowledge of and I am working for it, and if I live, by the help of the Lord I will send you many subscribers.

OBSERVATIONS.

There are many points of difference between Campbellites and Dunkards. We do not use the term Campbellite with a view to abuse or defame. If none are following Alexander Campbell then there are no Campbellites; and if there be none, then there are none to be offended at the term. On the other hand if there be any following Campbell, then they are Campbellites, and should be willing to wear the name. Campbellites or Disciples believe that faith, repentance and baptism are for or in order to the remission of sins.

Dunkards believe the same.

Their testimony is found in Mark 1: 4; 16: 16. Luke 3: 3. Acts 2: 38; 22: 16.

Faith changes the heart. Repentance is expressive of change of action—turning to God. Baptism is expressive of change of relationship; and emblematic of the washing away of sin by the blood of Christ.

Christ's blood was "shed for the remission of sin"—Matt. 26: 28—not because the sins had been remitted, but in order to remission. Acts 2: 38 expressly teaches repentance for remission of sins—in order that sins may be remitted by the Father. God pardons on conditions. Mark 16: 16. Repentance is a condition. Acts 16: 2; 38. Baptism is a condition. Mark 16: 16; Acts 2: 38 and 22: 16. Is not the lesson an easy one?

"Being made free from sin, you become the servant of righteousness."—Rom. 6: 28. Freedom from sin is the state immediately following pardon. 1. Faith. 2. Repentance. 3. Baptism. 4. Pardon. 5. State of freedom. This is God's order.

The person who represented that the minister did not preach repentance as a condition of pardon evidently, misunderstood his speaker.

Your Dunkard friends give as a reason for baptism what the Gospel gives. The point whether men are dead when they are buried with Christ, is not relevant. Baptism is not "for a death to sin," but is emblematic of putting on Christ. Gal. 3: 27—as being baptized in his death—Rom. 6: 3—as emblematic of the washing away of sins by the blood of Christ—Acts 2: 38. Nowhere is it stated that a man must be baptized because he is dead.—Ep.

A FEW REMARKS TO OUR CONTRIBUTORS.

QUITE frequently we notice the phrase "God bless our editors," as used by some of our able contributors. A very good idea, indeed, but there is another class of mortals that needs your praying for quite as much. These are your humble compositors. Their patience is sorely tried, their heads often ache in wrestling with poor manuscript.

The compositors often make mistakes. That they should do so, is not strange, for often the manuscript is written very illegible, deficient in grammar and punctuation. Often the compositor has to take a piece of copy written between the lines, so close, in fact, that his eyes are strained in endeavoring to trace the writer's idea. Then, again, another writer takes a lead-pencil and writes an article, scarcely legible at first, and when it reaches this office, it is frequently in a very poor condition.

Postal-cards as furnished to the regular correspondents,—ruled ready for writing—serve a good purpose as the lines are far enough apart as to cause the writing to be easily read; but when a postal card reaches us with the words and lines crowded together till you can scarcely see a white spot, we begin to think that the mission of the postal card is not correctly understood.

The sum and substance of the whole matter can be condensed into these few lines:

1. Use good black ink and a good pen.
 2. Use ruled paper, and write on the lines. (The manuscript tablets sold so cheaply at this office are a good thing.)
 3. If you use foreign words write them very plain; compositors are no college professors.
 4. In writing names of persons and places as well as in giving figures or dates, use the greatest care, or mistakes might happen.
- If you follow these directions, with the addition of a liberal supply of the grace of God, you will not only succeed in getting your articles correctly printed, but you will have the heart-felt thanks of the compositors. And if, after all, we should make a blunder, ascribe it to human frailty which is our common lot, and in your prayers do not forget your humble

COMPOSITORS.

For the Brethren at Work.

WHY COMPLAIN?

BY ENOCH REY.

WHEN the church takes action in your case and pronounces you expelled from the body, and closes the meeting-houses against you; who is to blame?

Let us see: When you kept house in the church by the general order of the Brotherhood, and a member or members, would persist in leaving the body, and you could not restrain them in their determination, did you not invariably take action as a church and grant them their request, and inform them that they are no more members? And if perchance one or more were ministers, and would ask privilege to preach in the meeting-house as before did you not say no, and even warn the members not to go to hear such preach? Now why complain when the church is just doing to you as you taught her to do to others for the same act; or do numbers sanctify the act and make it legal in your judgment?

Come brethren, do not call that persecution; but do to others as you would that they should do to you. Church rule and order demands it, however painful it may be; and do not blame us, when you went out from us; and would not fellowship us, we only close the doors till you knock for admittance.

Facts should be presented to the inquiring mind so that no one be too strongly influenced by sympathetic appeals, and complaints, and partial misrepresentations to do that which they will afterwards regret; hence these few lines. Hope the Vindicator will copy this.

LEON, III.

LITTLE SERMONS.

—If people live without an object, they stand as it were, on the outside of active life;

—There is a good deal of religion that is like a morning cloud—as soon as the sun gets hot it disappears.

—The fruit of discussion is commonly thorns and thistles, and it may likewise bear seeds for the garnering of heaven.

—The need, and the influence of educated Christian women at the head of the household, the world over, cannot be over estimated.

—There are words which can separate hearts sooner than sharp swords; there are words whose sting can remain in the heart through a whole life.—Selected by Uncle John.

PLEASURE is seldom found where it is most eagerly sought.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOLLER, Editor.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Moller, Le Sueur, Henry Co., Ia.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in towns? ELIAS HARNISH.

If man has a natural immortality, why do the Scriptures teach, (1 Tim. 6:16) "The Lord only hath it?" "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Ex. 18: 4, 23. Immortality cannot die, and many other Scriptures of like import, and Paul seems to imply, that it is to be put on at the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15: 53. The word immortal occurs only once in all of the Scriptures, and then it is applied to God. 1 Tim. 1: 17. A. B. C.

Will some brother or sister please explain Acts 12: 48? The passage reads thus: "And as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed." Did the ordination take place prior to the believing or subsequently? ISAAC H. MILLER.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE GRAND CIRCLE.

THE Grand Circle is given to show that all time is kept on it,—it is like a clock that would strike once in a year, commencing with Monday 1st, Tuesday 2nd, and so on, until it strikes on the 28th year 28 times. Then it commences with Monday 1st, Tuesday 2nd, and around the circle as at first.

The figures from 1 to 28, with the days of the week on the same line, will show you, if you desire to know what day of the week any year came in on, by dividing the number of years by 28, and if there be no remainder, it is the 28th year of the Circle. But if you have a remainder, look to the Circle for the number of your remainder on the Circle and it will show you what day of the week the year came in on. You may try it on any year; for example look at Monday 1st, 1877, Tuesday 2nd 1878, Wednesday 3rd 1879, Thursday 4th and Grand Leap-year 1880; Saturday 5th, 1881.

I give this Circle to show the analogy of the two Adams in time. The first Adam's time, commencing on Monday, the first day of the week, and on the fourth year of Adam first, the world had its first grand leap-year. The time circle turned around 143 times; and closed up on Sabbath night. Then commences the Christian Era or Christ generation, on the same day of the week in the year 4005, and on the fourth year of this second man Adam, the world had a Grand Leap year.

You can see from this circle that on No. 28, the year came in on Saturday, "Jewish Sabbath" and the Savior being crucified on the day before the Sabbath, our Saturday, he was crucified on the 14th day of the year of our Lord, 28th, making the Savior 21 years and 21 days old to the day that he was put to death.

By this Circle you can see that the year 4000, the 25th of the 12th month of which he was born, came in on Monday.

See No. 24 on Circle, which makes his birthday, Wednesday, and circumcised on the first day of the year 4001, which was on Wednesday. See No. 25 on circle.

If this time-clock is incorrect, it must be remembered that an uneducated man constructed it, to disprove the theory of our modern scientists. Let them give to the world substantial proof of their faith by their works.

In other words, a rule that shows how time has been kept up to the present, making the years coming in upon the days of the week as they have been for the last 100 years.

Grand Leap year has five Sabbaths, and cannot occur but once in every 28 years. It is grand, because no other month can come in on a Sabbath and go out on a Sabbath. C.

THE SEVEN SPIRITS.

THE seven Spirits of God are, first Wisdom; second, Power; third, Justice; fourth, Love; fifth Holiness; sixth, Mercy; seventh, Truth.

Man is lost through ignorance; can only be restored through Christ, the wisdom and power of God, to be a partaker of the divine nature.

Men, in his fallen or lost condition is ignorant, having the understanding darkened,—being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of the heart. D. B. STUBBS.

For the Brethren at Work.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

IN reading our good paper, I saw a few questions asked and will give you my ideas on some of them.

Does Gen. 4, infer that Cain and Abel were the first-born of all the living? If so, who was his wife? MARY C. NORMAN.

That question has been asked me more than once or twice. Here is my answer: The average life of man was eight hundred and seventy years, and now only thirty-four. Each family will average five children. According to those times Adam would have had ninety children.—After Cain went to the land of Nod, Adam lived 800 years, and Cain had a choice of forty-five sisters.

Will some one please explain 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35? Why are women to keep silence in the church?—Shall they not sing or pray or what shall they do? A BROTHER.

We understand the church to mean the people, not the house they worship in. As for the laws that govern the church, let them keep silent; but in the house let their voices be heard, and there is no Scripture to condemn them.

What are the seven spirits of God mentioned in Revelations? C. D. H.

They are the Bible divided into seven parts, as follows, The Five Books of Moses. You destroy them and what would your Bible be worth? The Book of Psalms; the Prophets; the History of Christ; the Acts of the Apostle; the Book of Revelations. Upon these seven pillars or spirits as you may call it, God has revealed himself to man.

BRO. David Moore wants to know whether there is more Scripture for an organ in a family than to dance.

We read in the Bible of men dancing and it was of God; of women dancing and it was of God; but no place where the sex joined together to please God. As for the organ, there is nothing said about it. Of course, "silence gives consent."

Will some one please give the Scripture where it is said that man has an immortal soul, or it is said man has any immortality before the resurrection?

In order to get a clear understanding on the above query, every one should read the history of the Shumanties' son. That convinces me that the soul is always active. 2 Kings 4. HIRAM DOTY.

THE OLDEST CITY.

DAMASCUS is the oldest city in the world Tyre and Sidon have crumbled on the shore; Baalbec is a ruin; Palmyra is buried in a desert; Nineveh and Babylon have disappeared from the Tigris and the Euphrates. Damascus remains what it was before the days of Abraham—centre of trade and travel—an isle of verdure in the desert; a "presidential capital" with martial and sacred associations extending through thirteen centuries.

It was near Damascus that Saul of Tarsus saw the light above the brightness of the sun; the street which is called Straight, in which it was said "he prayed," still runs through the city. The caravan comes and goes as it did a thousand years ago; there is the water-wheel, the merchants of the Euphrates and the Mediterranean still occupy the streets "with the multitude of their ware." The city which Mahomet surveyed from a neighboring height, and was afraid to enter, "because it was given to man to have but one paradise, and for his part he was resolved not to have it in this world, is to-day, what Julian called the "Eye of the Eret," as it was in time of Isaiah, "the Head of Syria." Still it is a city of flowers and bright waters.

Correspondence.

Our correspondents will please bear with us for abridging their communications. Many write us and we desire to give all a hearing. The facts most interesting should only be written. What would interest a few might not be interesting to the many.—Ed.

District Meeting of Tennessee.

I will give you a synopsis, for publication, of our District Meeting held in the Knob Creek congregation, Washington county, Tennessee.

On the 4th and 5th of Nov. 1881, pursuant to appointment, the Brethren met in council, and organized by electing Samuel Molsbee, Moderator; Joel Sharfy, Writing Clerk; F. W. Dove, Reading Clerk; and Jesse Crosswhite, Assistant Reading Clerk. The meeting was well represented. Taking the face of the letters presented by the delegates, as an index of the condition of Zion in this part of God's moral vineyard, we are glad to say that peace and harmony prevail among us. There was not a sentiment expressed in the letters that showed any dissatisfaction with the general Brotherhood.

The meeting throughout was characterized by good feelings towards each other, and while the discussions sometimes became quite interesting and warm, there was nothing of that "sharp cutting" indulged in that so often wounds the feelings of brethren and sisters in council meetings.

Several subjects of considerable importance came before the meeting, and I think were disposed of to the general satisfaction of nearly all present. The Feet-washing question came up. Two requests asking District Meeting to have only one mode or manner of Feet-washing in the District. We are somewhat divided in practice on this question, though a majority of the congregations in our district practice what is called the "Single Mode of Feet-washing," and its advocates could carry their point by a fair vote in favor of the single mode, yet rather than offend our brethren who take a different view of the matter, all seemed to be disposed to bear with one another, and not act hastily in the matter.

A petition was presented asking the District Meeting to adopt some plan for more successful preaching of the Gospel in our district. The plan of operations adopted by the meeting, I think, is calculated to do good.

The meeting appointed five brethren, zealous in the cause of Christ and sound in the faith of the Gospel, as a Committee of Arrangements, whose duty it was made to divide the district into three sub-districts. The elders in the sub-districts are to call together the ministers in their respective boundaries and assign them their work for the succeeding year. And in view of filling the distant calls for preaching which involves expenses, all the congregations in the district are requested to appoint a solicitor to raise funds to defray expenses of brethren who may be selected by said committee as traveling evangelists.

Our meeting was honored by the presence of brother J. C. Moomaw, of Virginia, who gave us some very good counsel on different subjects, and preached three excellent sermons during the meeting.

We had fine weather during the meeting, and a good attendance.

The meeting decided to represent the district at next Annual Meeting by delegation. Bro. Jesse Crosswhite was honored with the position.

I have been reading the Report of Annual Meeting, and it does seem to me that there is not as much love and forbearance existing in the Brotherhood that should characterize us as the professed followers of the blessed Redeemer. I think we should labor more for the good of others, and not let our own selfishness overcome our Christian charity. I see that our blessed Zion is threatened with divisions; but let us all labor together for the good of the church and the advancement of Christ's kingdom on the earth.

Here we have our conflicts and trials, but if we hold out faithful a never-fading crown of glory shall be ours, where we all shall see eye to eye and speak the same thing.

J. OZ SHEAFF.

Jonesboro, Washington Co., Tenn., Nov. 8th.

(Primitive Christian, please copy).

To Traveling Ministers and Brethren.

In this place (Albion, Calhoun Co., Mich.) there is but little known about our church, the brethren having never preached here to my knowledge, though there has been preaching by them about four and one half miles north of town several years ago. There are only five members here including wife and self, who, with one exception, were baptized by Bro. Fryfogel. . . . We desire any brethren who may travel through this place, to stop with us as we seldom see any brethren. Address us as above and I will meet any one who may favor us with a visit. The main line of the Mich. Central and the Lansing division of the L. S. & M. S. R. R.'s pass through our place.

PETER B. MESSNER.

Home Mission of the North-western District of Ohio.

WHAT IS ITS OBJECT?

It is to aid in carrying out a positive command of our blessed Savior, "Preach the Gospel to every creature." Its object is to send our ministers to places where there is no organized church, where there are a few scattered members, or some anxious seekers after the truth, to preach the Gospel to them as we understand it, to make disciples of those who will hear, and build up churches where our doctrine is little known.

Brethren and Sisters of the North-western District of Ohio, are we really in earnest to spread the Gospel? Do we ever consider in calmness and earnestness and with a burning zeal for the cause of Christ, that we are each one personally interested in "Preach the Gospel to every creature?" If so, when your solicitor calls upon you for something to aid in this work he will not go away empty. No doubt some dear brethren are ready to say,

"Brother are you not advocating a salaried ministry in soliciting aid to send ministers to preach the Gospel?" I answer positively, I am not. I am opposed to a salaried ministry, but when I think of the commission that Jesus gave to his disciples. "Go ye into all the world and preach my Gospel to every creature," I am made to think that laity and ministry should labor together with zeal to fulfill this last command of our blessed Savior. No doubt some dear brethren are ready to inquire, if some sheep are away from the fold and call for food, and a shepherd is sent to feed them, and the little flock be increased, will it not be necessary to feed them from time to time, and if so will this not make a regular salaried ministry? No. Let us look at the remedy. Just as soon as this flock is large enough, let them be organized into a church and let them have their own fold and their own shepherd and if they desire food from other shepherds let them send for them as the church has been doing heretofore.

If there are brethren in this district who are isolated from the church and are anxious for the brethren to come and preach for them, please make your wants known by writing to me at Dunkirk, Hamilton Co., Ohio, or any other member of the board.

J. R. SPACEY.

HEINOUS CRIME IN TIFFIN!

Charles Madder Murders Phoebe Bernard On Thursday Night, Nov. 3rd.

On the night of Nov. 3rd, the city of Tiffin and vicinity were thrown into great excitement over the murder of Miss Phoebe Bernard by Charles Madder, a College student of Heidelberg College. This young man had been paying his respects to the lady, which partly ended in Madder asking her to become his wife, which she refused. But this did not satisfy him. On the evening before the awful tragedy he asked her to take a walk with him, which she at first refused, but finally consented by him telling her that he had something particular to tell her. While walking that evening he again pressed his suit, which she again refused, telling him that he might expect to live a miserable life if he married a woman whose affections were not with him. He then said, "If I live a miserable life, you shall never make another man happy; for I will lay my religion down and we will both die together." This she told the landlady of the boarding-house, at which she was engaged as dining-room girl, who told her to beware, if he is that kind of a fellow.

On the evening of the 3rd inst., while on her way to a social party on College Hill with a young man and two lady friends they met Madder in front of the College. They asked him if he was not going to the party. He said, "I will be there after a while." He then turned to the girl and said, "Phoebe, I want to speak to you." She turned about three feet from the rest, and the other three advanced about ten feet. After conversing a minute or two Phoebe was heard to say, "No!" which was followed immediately by the report of a revolver; the bullet entering the cheek a little to the left of the nose. She fell forward, and the wretch caught her in his left arm, and again shot her, the bullet entering the mouth, cutting the upper lip and driving with it one of the front teeth and going to the brain. She then fell to the ground, and after that he fired two more shots, but they evidently did not hit her. The murderer ran across the street and fell down on one knee; and although a thorough search was made for him during the night, he could not be found. His victim died almost instantly, and her body was taken to the boarding-house, where she had been employed, and word sent to her parents who reside in the west part of the city. The next day the prisoner gave himself up, stating that he had spent the night in a lumber yard. He was taken into custody by the sheriff. In conversation with the murderer in prison when asked why he did this awful deed, he said he did not know why; but said he again asked her to become his wife and she again refused. He said, "Then we will die together." The preliminary examination took place in the sheriff's private office on Saturday, and he was bound over to court for murder in the first degree. The hearing was private for the purpose of avoiding trouble that was feared from an immense crowd.

While the hearing was in progress, Louis Bernard, the father of the murdered girl was observed among the visitors. When he caught sight of the prisoner he had grasped his revolver, and his conduct warned all present that he was about to take the prisoner's life. A scramble was made to get out of range, when the sheriff ordered him away from the jail.

The funeral took place Sunday the 6th, at 10 o'clock A. M., from the Protestant Methodist church on Market St., immediately opposite the jail in which the murderer is confined. The funeral was the largest, no doubt, the saddest ever known in Tiffin. The murdered girl's age was 20 years and 27 days. She joined the Methodist church last Winter, of which she was a member when she died. Scarcely ten months had elapsed from the time she confessed her Savior until she met so cruel a death without even a moment's warning. To gaze upon so young and fair a face pierced by two bullets from a revolver in the hands of one who was once her suitor, was heart-rending in the extreme.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. O. V. W. Chandler from 1 Sam. 20 h Chap. and latter clause of 1st and 3rd verses.

B. F. SREIDLER.

Tiffin, Ohio.

From J. R. Royer.—The Love-feast of the Ephratis, an adjoining church, was held Nov. 1st and 2nd. It happened that I only attended the second day.... When I entered the meeting-house the first I noticed was our dear brother and elder Geo. Myers, of Kansas, who was standing at the table exhorting the brethren and friends. After prayer C. Bacher read the 12th chapter of Romans, then brother Harehey, of Montgomery county, preached a short, telling sermon from the first verse, followed by brother Isenberg, of Chester county, John and Charles Moore, of New Jersey, David Eiter, C. Myers, and George Meyers. Brethren N. Martin, G. Blicher, from Maryland, and others, were present on the first day of the meeting.... The Brethren at Ephratis had an enjoyable Feast. The best of all was, we had no factions. We had no use for the Miami discipline. We are all "Old Order" Brethren, as we keep the ordinances as Christ commanded over eighteen hundred years ago; but old men's fables we do not wish to hold up. We feel glad that we have no trouble with either factions; the church here in the East is in love and union, as far as I know, except in the extreme East may be a little of the "Progressive" element; but but for the Miami Resolution, I find none. One brother said to me some time ago that he thought the Miami Brethren were about right in their movement; but since he read their Resolutions he turned against them. We feel sorry for them, and wish for them to return to the fold again.—Litiz, Pa., Nov. 7th.

From J. H. Peck.—Through an unfathomable yet ever kind Providence, I am at Indianapolis waiting to take home my daughter who is under treatment at the National Surgical Institute of this place for hip disease. She has been here ten weeks and though not yet out of danger, she has improved sufficiently to make me believe she will get well if I can stand the financial pressure and keep her here long enough. Since my sojourn here I am more convinced than ever that they are doing a good work in the way of curing hip disease, spinal affection, paralysis, white swelling, club foot and many other diseases for which common practitioners do not usually possess the experience and appliances necessary for successful treatment.... My daughter not being willing to let me go home without taking her along, and not being well enough to take home, I have engaged work at my trade and will remain here for some time.... Should this item come under the observation of any that are afflicted and would desire information with regard to this Institution, I shall be happy to supply them with what I know about it on receipt of stamp to pay postage.... I would like to get acquainted with the Brethren if there are any living in or near this city. Address me at 35 West Georgia St., Indianapolis, Ind.

From Sadie J. Price.—We the brethren and sisters of the Pine Creek church, Ill. met at our church to-day, on the regular day for preaching, for the purpose of worshipping God. There was quite a large crowd assembled the day being very pleasant. B-fure preaching there was a young sister reclaimed; after which singing and prayer was offered. Then we were favored with a sermon by brother M. Emmert. After preaching we repaired to the water side where two, a young couple, were led down into the water and were buried and rose again, we trust, to walk in newness of life. Thus the good work of the Lord is moving on here with us. May the good Lord guide them, and may they all three live faithful until death, is my wish and prayer.—Nov. 6th 1881.

From G. M. Noah.—We can say there is but little discord among us; we are getting along finely, are in love and peace; have meeting every Lord's day when the weather will permit. We have had no additions recently but we had the occasion to disown one member who was not willing to follow the simple Word of Truth. It is not hard to tell the good from the bad. Those that are for the world do mind the things of the world, but those that are for the Lord do mind the things that belong to the Lord. The Savior says, "By their fruits ye shall know them".... Brethren William Hipes and John Ely are laboring hard to feed the flock with the pure Word of Truth. We trust the Lord will bless their labors with an ingathering of many poor souls who are wandering away from their Father in heaven.... On the 19th of October, brother John Nicholson, of Bristol, Ohio, came and labored for us on the 25th, when he went with brother William Workman to Waterloo, to attend the Love-feast on the 29th and 30th.... We believe the church was edified by his labors while he was with us. Brother John would be a good missionary man. Such men ought to do nothing else but preach.—Nora Springs, Ia., Oct. 30th.

From C. Hope.—I have returned from Frederickshaven and vicinity, having held some interesting meetings here. If God will, I shall baptize a woman near Sindal Station on next Wednesday evening. The church refused a woman admittance at our Love-feast. Brother Eskildsen writes under same date:

"Last Sunday we had our Love-feast at Hjørring. The Holy Spirit was evidently among us. Peace and love reigned. Our prayers were abundant in your, and especially sister Mary's, behalf that she may regain her health. As we surrounded the Lord's table I could not refrain from shedding tears to think it was our first Love-feast, and you were not among us. Dear sister Mary, I cannot now visit you, but let us be united in the spirit and daily bear our little ones to the arms of Jesus and invoke his blessing upon them, so that when we are gathered around the throne of grace we may be able to say: 'Lo, here am I, Lord, and those that thou hast given me.'

I will now close my letter with much love to you all. Yours,

THINE ESKILDSEN."

Will you come to Denmark, and when? Will you bring the building fund along? Shall I look for property or not?

The Lord bless you evermore to do his will and use your pen for the glory of Jesus.—Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 24th.

[It is still my intention to visit you next year, the Lord willing. But often our best laid plans are prostrated, hence do not build too much on my desire to visit you. Cannot tell whether I will carry building fund to you or not, as it is not in my hands. Nor am I able to advise you concerning property. The Board of Foreign Missions has that in hand. Suppose it will give you advice in due time. My mind has long been, purchase property and use the income to carry on missionary work. It is the business way of supplying the mission.—Eu.]

THE world is out of tune, and our hearts are out of tune, and the more our souls vibrate to the music of heaven, the more must they feel the discord of earth.

From Samuel E. Netzley.—Thursday three ladies were baptized at this place, after dark, in the Baptist church. They told the pastor that he should baptize them in the night. Were they ashamed? If any one is ashamed of Jesus and his words, how can they love him? A Baptist deacon recently said, 'Some folks think if they are only baptized they are saved.' I replied, "If a man is saved without baptism, why do you go down into the water?" He said, "To be baptized into the church." If a man is baptized into Christ, is he not in the church? Brethren err not, for God is not mocked.—Batavia, Ill.

From J. C. Lahman.—We left home Oct. 25th for Pennsylvania via Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Arrived in Washington at 10 P. M. the 29th. Spent part of the 27th visiting the Capitol of our great country, reaching Baltimore same evening; taking Western Md. R. R. Reached Abbotstown, the route of destination, being the former home of my wife, at 10 P. M. Having learned of Love-feast to take place next day at Marsh Creek, Adams Co., though eighteen miles distant and raining, wife and I started next morning to enjoy the occasion which we have long desired to do, having frequently preached in their house. Met many relatives and brethren, and had an excellent meeting. The ministering brethren present from other parts were elder Solomon Stoner, Joel Roof, of Pipe Creek, Md., Brown and Utz of Locust Grove, Md., and elder Daniel Loganecker, Upper Cowawago, Adams Co., Pa. The membership large; but owing to wet weather, outside attendance small. The best attention to the Word preached. Since the time of Feast have been visiting friends—old brother Michael Trostle, who is somewhat feeble, being eighty-two years of age, but able to attend the Feast. He is the father of three sons in the ministry—elder Jacob Trostle, of Maryland, Levi Trostle, of Lee county, Ill., and Joseph Trostle, of State Centre, Marshall Co., Iowa. He also has one son (William) in Montana Territory.... We next visited sister Petrin, aunt of wife's, eighty-two years of age, who recently was unfortunate in having one arm broken and the other very much strained by the upsetting of a carriage. She is doing as well as can be expected. We then visited brother-in-law and elder Ephraim Stoner, Union Bridge, Maryland.... To-morrow we expect to attend preaching at Locust Grove, brother Jacob Trostle's congregation.... Monday morning.—Attendance good. Brother Trostle, Roof, and Brown present.... Brother Trostle's health has been much impaired the past Summer. He will leave some time the present week for Dr. Walter's water cure. His hopes and ours are that he may by the blessings of God be restored to health and usefulness to the church. We now leave for Frederick, Md., Washington Co.—Linganore, Md., Nov. 5th.

From A. W. Reese.—We have just concluded our Love-feast at Mineral Creek held in connection with our District Meeting. We had, truly, a pleasant time, and, we trust, a profitable meeting to all the dear brethren and sisters in the Lord. As you will, doubtless, have the proceedings from some of the other brethren who were delegates, I will make this communication brief. Nearly all the ministering brethren of the Southern District of Missouri were present. Love and unity seemed to prevail, and we had our souls refreshed in the fellowship of the saints. The following ministering brethren were with us: Geo. Barnhart, Wm. Harvey, C. Holderman, Thos. Allon, D. L. Williams, A. Hutchison, Jacob Witmore, J. S. Mohler, F. Culp, Jacob Yost, S. Chick, Joel Garber, Bro. Montgomery, Bro. Chick, Bro. Bollinger, S. S. Mohler, J. M. Mohler, Bro. Carrier.... During the meeting three were baptized. The district business passed off harmoniously; a kind and fraternal feeling characterized the deliberations.... We had the great pleasure of having a dear brother in the flesh with us at the meeting—the first meetings of the Brethren he ever attended. He came from his home in Clay county, Mo., to spend his 63rd birthday with us; Oct. 19, 1818 being the day of his birth. He is with the Brethren in all their doctrines of non-conformity, non-resistance, the refusal to bear arms and to take oaths, feet-washing, etc, but does not see his way clear as to trine immersion.... May the good spirit of our blessed Lord so present the truth to this beloved relative that he may yet see his way clear to come into fellowship with us. Pray for him, dear brethren, for we do believe that he is not far from the kingdom of God.... Our Feast at the Walnut Creek church was a pleasant one. The attendance was good, and the general audience attentive and well behaved.... May the Lord bless and comfort all the dear members and keep them in the true paths.

From E. E. Toms.—Your paper is a welcome visitor in my family. It has been coming for some time. Some friend, I know not who, has favored me with it for one year, for which I feel thankful and desire to make it known through its columns.... We were greatly interested in brother James Evans' article on the "Second Coming of Christ and Millennial Reign." We felt there was Gospel light in it; in fact, we feel we have gained light in several respects; and we are glad its columns are open for the investigation of Bible truth; for thereby we can point each other to the Scriptures which will lead us to a perfect knowledge of Christ and finally to an everlasting inheritance.—Darwin, Minn., Nov. 8.

From A. W. Swab.—On the 26th and 27th of October we had our Love-feast at Hurricane Creek, Bond Co., Ill. We had a good and quiet meeting. About fifty commenced. Brother John Metzger officiated. Bro. D. B. Sturge, the old doctor, was here last week. He preached for us four times, and held forth the Word with power.... The weather is still very wet. Have not had much cool weather yet.—Hurricane Creek, Ill., Nov. 13.

THINGS THAT DESTROY PREACHERS.

It is the purpose of this paper to consider some things that destroy preachers as preachers. A good many ministers have lost their grip, their influence is paralyzed and they are left wondering what the matter is. Their intentions are good, they wish to continue in the work of the ministry, but they find no field of labor and seem to be dropped out and don't understand the why. We will look at some of the answers to this mental inquiry.

1. Laziness. Do you loaf? If so, the people will soon conclude that you are lazy, and they will not long tolerate an indolent preacher. And what will they think of your sincerity should they happen to hear you speak in your pulpit of salvation from sin and eternal death, if you spend half your time chatting promiscuously in the stores, or whittling goods boxes on the streets? You would better be in your study engaged in hard work, profitable reading, or earnest prayer. Perhaps your congregations are thin, your own life lean, for the reason that your public ministration of the Word is stale and without unction, all because of your indolence. Of course you wish to and must be sociable—to go into the stores and shops and stop on the streets, and all that is all right and must not be neglected, but you must not loaf if you wish to maintain the respect of the people and your influence among them.

2. Tobacco. You preach self-denial and purity, certainly, if you preach the Bible; but you don't deny yourself of this evil desire, nor cleanse yourself of this filthiness of the flesh. And your use of tobacco is excessive and nasty too. People smell your clothing and your breath saturated with the odor of a vile pipe. Your shirt front is spotted with tobacco stains. You have spit unnaturally until the muscles of your lips are partially paralyzed; the track of ambler is visible on your chin; your bad breath is exhaled into off-odded nostrils; your mouth stands half open displaying your stained teeth and dirty gums; and even the pieces of quid may be seen floating around in the saliva between the cheek and gums, the whole appearance forcibly reminding one of the back yard of a slaughter-house after a heavy rain in a wet time in July. And yet some of this sort of preachers wonder and wonder that they are not appreciated! The fact is that their filthiness actually drives away from them those who wish to be friendly with them.

3. Borrowing money. Some preachers fail to live within their means; hence they resort to borrowing, or run accounts at the stores and shops, which is the same thing. The latter is sometimes allowable, but it is bad policy. "O me no man anything" should be strictly observed by the minister. But oftentimes he is not able to pay as he goes, because of his own false modesty in looking industriously after the financial interests of the church. These should receive his constant care, and every congregation will honor its preacher if he does all his work faithfully, the finances included. The writer has learned of some preachers who have not only destroyed themselves but our churches also in the communities where they lived, by a shameful habit of borrowing and the dishonor of unpaid debts. The minister's home, his table, his apparel must not go beyond the limits of his receipts, however plain they may be, as a result of its littleness. "I have learned in whatever estate I am, therewith to be content," said the most heroic of men.

—The Christian.

PROOF.

The Primitive Christian, a German Baptist (Tunker) paper, steps on the stand, and testifies to the fact that Dr. P. Fahrney is not a myth—nor deceased—but a living reality.

The public have a right to know, and ought to know, that all is not gold that glitters. Mrs. Smith gets the highest price for her butter, while poor Mrs. Jones can hardly dispose of hers at any price.

If people are so particular about the food they eat, how much more careful should they be about the kind of medicine they swallow.

There is so much put out under the Fahrney name, that people are at a loss to know whether there is or is not a successor to the original Dr. P. Fahrney, who flourished about the time of the Revolutionary war.

The editor of the Primitive Christian stopped over Sunday in Chicago, at the residence of Dr. Fahrney, and the following is what he says:

"Dr. Fahrney lives outside of the city limits, perhaps four or five miles from the station; his location is much more pleasant than in the city.

"It is building up very rapidly around him, and in a short time he will have to move further out in order to be away from the business confusion. Brother Fahrney is well known among our readers as the manufacturer of a very good medicine. He is still doing a good business.

"His medicine is acknowledged to be good, and it should not be superseded by something new, that is not half so good."

FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER is made at only one place in the world, and that place is CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, U. S. A. The lawful proprietor, Dr. P. Fahrney, is the only "Fahrney," and the only "Doctor" Fahrney now living who puts out blood medicine. He has no partners and no "brothers" interested in his business—East or West.

A pamphlet, containing a history, testimonials, and particulars, on application.

ONE CENT.

Yes, for one cent you can have a postal card, and with that you can place yourself in communication with one who is willing to give you any kind of information, and send you surprise gifts of real value—perhaps in all, one dollar's worth during the year.

You ask how this can be? You are surprised to learn that is a leading clothing house of Chicago gave away 50,000 slates to school children of this city, and adjoining towns. Now all those scholars insist on buying their clothing at their store. The same house sent up a mammoth air ship with two men in it, people call that enterprise, and so it is.

You are perhaps not aware that many things can now be sent by mail that was not allowed a few years ago, and all such packages can be registered, thus securing absolute safety in transit.

Dr. Fahrney has business directories of most cities of this country, and can tell you where you can get the very best things you want. He can tell you the names of all the business men in your town, and can tell you what they are estimated to be worth, (but this information is not intended for the public).

You want to know if your neighbor is selling the GENUINE Fahrney medicine. This you can find out by addressing a one cent postal to

DR. P. FAHRNEY,
Chicago, Ill.

DO YOU CARE

whether you are well or sick? Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?

You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.

How? By getting one bottle of DR. FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER, and taking it regularly according to directions.

In other words, FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER has cured scores of people suffering just as you are. It is made by a responsible manufacturer, whose high reputation is a guarantee of the truthfulness of his statements, so you have every reason for believing that it will do you good, and therefore, with every chance of success you risk a quarter dollar to obtain results which are of incalculable value to you.

Dr. P. Fahrney couldn't afford to spend the money he is spending to introduce FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER unless he knew it would do just what he claims for it, but having tried it thoroughly in so many cases and finding that it always brings relief, he knows he can stake his reputation on its curing you.

Wearing Out!

That is just what a great many people are doing. They know something is wrong, and yet can't tell what is the matter.

Did you ever think what a large proportion of the American people are sick, or at least if not exactly sick, are not well? Something is the matter all the time.

How many people of your personal acquaintance are constantly complaining of being "so tired," having "such a headache," of "not feeling just right," and a thousand and one other things, until it almost seems as if the world had become one huge hospital filled with incurables?

What is the cause of all this? Certainly it is not a natural condition, but on the contrary is one that should cause much anxiety and alarm.

The American people are proverbially in a hurry. They eat in a hurry, work in a hurry, and sleep in a hurry, overworking and overstraining nature, and then wonder why it is they don't feel well and strong.

One of the results of the American way of "rushing" things is the impoverishing of the blood, which furnishes the sinews of life. Not being able to respond to the calls made on it, the blood becomes thin and weak, and losing its strength it soon fails to accomplish the work for which it is intended, and disease in its varied forms is the inevitable result.

Every new discovery in medicine has been hailed with delight, only to be thrown aside because it will not stand the test of time.

Many leading physicians are now regularly prescribing FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER, and consider it the best of all their list of remedies.

Nothing will restore failing health, nothing will so quickly and surely bring strength as FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER.

An introduction bottle costs but 25 cents, if procured before the close of this year.

SPECIAL

Never apply to an agent for a 25 cent bottle VITALIZER, they are not supplied with small bottles, which are only to be had of Dr. Fahrney in Chicago.

Never apply to any one else but an agent for a LAROK bottle VITALIZER. He will show you a shipping receipt to convince you that he gets his supply from Chicago, and has the genuine article.

If there is no agent near you then apply for terms. It will be worth your while to visit the agency. There are quite a number of ladies selling VITALIZER and they are doing well. Any trustworthy person can apply. Dr. Fahrney is not engaged in any other business outside his line. The goods he offers as "give aways" are bought in the market by an experienced buyer.

ASHAMED

to drink straight Whisky or Rum, a great many people pretend they need a tonic, and so take the various Bitters that are in the market, simply for the sake of the Whisky they contain.

Everybody knows that the blood is the foundation of life, and that so long as the blood is pure and healthy disease cannot secure a hold.

Are you tired and weary, overworked and overstrained? Do you wish that you could sleep; are you sick of tossing around all night, ever trying and ever failing to get sleep and rest?

Do you ache all over, wishing the morning was night, and the night morning? Is life a burden and everything around you dark and gloomy? Take DR. FAHRNEY'S BLOOD VITALIZER, and you will wonder how it is you feel so well, and why the world is so bright.

Are your kidneys out of order; have you dyspepsia; are you weak and debilitated; is anything the matter? Try one bottle of FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER, and you will find sure relief.

GIVE AWAYS

OFFER NO. 1.—A $25 Sewing Machine, and a $3.00 box of small bottles Vitalizer will be boxed, crated and delivered in the depot to any address, on receipt of $16.00. Any machine you may name can be furnished at lowest price.

OFFER NO. 2.—A Bible Dictionary and Brown's Concordance, 800 pages, worth $3.00. The American Unabridged Dictionary worth $2.00. A watch worth from $6 to $8, and a $3.00 box Blood Vitalizer, on receipt of $5.50.

OFFER NO. 3.—Shakespeare's Complete Works $3.00. Popular Dictionary $1.00. Four 25 ct. books on the Great Pyramid, and Infidel Silenced 25 cts. Horse Book 25 cts, and a $3.00 box of Vitalizer, for $5.00.

OFFER NO. 4.—A $4.00 Watch, Dictionary, and a $3.00 box of Vitalizer, for $3.50.

OFFER NO. 5.—Four books on the Pyramid, Infidel Silenced and Horse Book together with a $3.00 box VITALIZER, and a promise to make an effort at introducing the same, for $3.00.

OFFER NO. 6.—Will send Express free to any part of the United States and Canada, a $3.00 box Vitalizer, on receipt of $3.00 and return of the retail price, the articles to be named within a month. This is on the principle that one favor is worth another. The medicine is warranted to give satisfaction.

Address DR. P. FAHRNEY,
Chicago, Ill.

WHY CAN'T I?

Said a business man, the other day, "Why can't I work as I used to? I once thought I could do any amount of work, and still feel fresh and strong; but now when night comes I am tired out, my head aches, my back feels as if it was broken, and I ache all over, and in the morning I feel as if I was all rusty. Fact is, I am fast getting to be good for nothing."

Few people know how many men there are who feel just this way. They need something to strengthen the whole system, and thus relieve by permanently invigorating the blood; and nothing has yet been discovered that will so quickly and fully restore failing strength as DR. FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER—and some of the heartiest testimonials come from business men who have overtaxed and overstrained their strength until life is misery.

DR. FAHRNEY'S BLOOD VITALIZER is not sold as an experiment, as will be seen by reference to the many and old testimonials. It has been tried in all parts of the country, and for many complaints, and the universal testimony is that it accomplishes what has been for so long a time the desire of the medical profession.

It is not unpleasant to take, and its effect will soon be apparent in renewed vigor and strength. Why suffer longer when relief can be so very quickly and easily obtained? Price of introduction bottle is only 25 cents.

Be sure and send in your name.

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

Dec. 2, at 10 A. M., Pleasant Hill church, near Virden, Macoupin Co., Ill.
Dec. 25, Cerro Gordo church, Platt Co., Ill.

Matrimonial.

OBLINGER-BACON.—In Ottawa, Le Sueur Co., Minn., Oct. 30, 1881, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Ezra Bacon, Mr. Uriah W. Oblinger, of Sutton, Neb., and Laura I. Bacon, of Ottawa.

Fallen Asleep.

Blot out the dead which die to the Lord.—Rev. 14. 13.

CRUPE.—At Cerro Gordo, Nov. 11, infant son of friend Isaac and Elizabeth Crupe, aged 1 year, 11 months and 11 days. Funeral services in the Brethren's church by M. Stouffer and D. Troxel, from Pa. 10: 6 to a large and sympathetic audience. J. V. EILER.

MILLER.—Near Dayton, Va., Nov. 5, 1881, sister Magdalena, wife of Bro. John J. Miller, aged 44 years, 10 months and 6 days. Funeral services by Eld. Solomon Garber from Rev. 14: 13. S. F. SANGER.

Tidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Olathe church, Kan., Nov. 8.

To-day was our first Council-meeting since our organization. Had a pleasant meeting. Our church is increasing by emigration, and we now number over fifty and prospects good for an increase. To-day we had two applicants for baptism. We have public meetings every Sunday, and frequently two to four the same day. Our ministers are Isaac Studelaker, Wm. Holinger, B. Brubaker and the writer; but we have a large territory and a great many calls. Health is good here at present. ISAAC H. CRUPE.

Lewistown, Pa., Nov. 15.

I left Lackawanna County and met with the Brethren in Buffalo Valley, Union Co., Pa. was at Communion. Met my wife here; pleasant meeting. Met Bro. Geo. Meyers of Kansas here. Continued meeting several days after Communion.—Bro. Chas. Boyer, daughter, wife and self went to Sugar Valley, Clinton Co. Were present there at meetings and dedication of church-house. Nine days' meeting. J. M. MOHLER.

Sporting Hill, Pa., Nov. 10.

To-day meeting had been appointed to receive in to the church two precious souls that were willing to follow Christ down into the water, there to be baptized, and, I hope, to rise and walk in newness of life. A. E. LIOHT.

Covington, Ohio, Nov. 18.

Bro. J. Quinter came to us Saturday last and has labored earnestly for us. Since last evening Bro. R. H. Miller came and preached for us in the evening, and the church seems much built up by the warm and zealous appeals of the dear Brethren.—The attendance and attention were an indication that the cause of the Master is prospering among the members here. Bro. S. Mohler has been laboring under an attack of nervous fever, but is convalescent again. We expect Bro. Hutchison, of Mo., in a few weeks, to conduct a series of meetings. A. S. ROSENBERGER.

Neodesho, Kan., Nov. 10.

Our Love-feast, Oct. 8 and 9, in Fall River church, Wilsou Co., Kan., is in the past. We can truly say we had a meeting long to be remembered. About fifty members communed and quite a number of ministers from a distance were with us. Their labors were appreciated by all, and much zeal manifested by the Brethren, in putting forth the Word. May the Lord bless all those trying to live a Christian life.—Health generally good. Brethren that desire homes in the West, and are faithful, should stop at Neodesha and Fredonia, and look at the country. G. W. PRISER.

Virden, Ill., Nov. 13, 1881.

At the close of my St. Louis article in No. 43 you make me say, "Met again at 10:30 and 8 P. M. Congregations large and order excellent." It should read, "at 8 P. M. congregations larger than usual; and order excellent." Please correct. The congregations have never been large except at the Communion. DANIEL VANMAN.

Bristol, Ind., Nov. 11.

The small-pox is raging here to an alarming extent. There are about forty cases reported up and around Bristol. There have been but two deaths so far that I have heard of. J. C. LOHMAN.

Carleton, Neb., Nov. 6.

Our quarterly council came off last Saturday.—But out of a membership of fifty, only some fifteen were present. The meeting passed off harmoniously, and the members about all helped in the good work. LEVI HOFFERT.

Cerro Gordo, Ill., Nov. 15.

I started for Johnston, Cumberland Co., Ill., on the 10th, ult. Had four meetings; congregations large, considering the weather and the condition of the roads on account of so much rain. Order good. Baptized one this morning before I left Johnston. I would like very much to have stayed longer, but on account of my health being very poor, I started for home this morning. Came home last night; found all well; thank the Lord. JOHN METZGER.

Mulberry Grove, Nev. 9.

We have had the pleasure of listening to six sermons from our dear old brother D. B. Sturgis. Our church was filled every time, by brethren, sisters and friends from far and near. Bro. S. was for many years a resident of this county, and warmly welcomed by all. Although past seventy he still preaches with as much power as when we were accustomed to hear him, more than 20 years ago. N. E. L.

Milford, Ind.

NOTICE.—There will be a meeting of the delegates of the Northern District of Indiana, Dec. 5, in the Turkey Creek congregation, near Gravelton on the B. & O. R. R., for consultation relative to the approaching A. M., and all are solicited to be present. By order of committee of Arrangements, W. R. DEKETS, Foreman.

Hassel, Iowa, Nov. 11.

Our Communion meeting at Green, Butler Co., Iowa, is past. Brethren J. C. Eby and Wm. Hooper, of Nora Springs, Floyd Co., Iowa, and M. Fowler were with us, and preached the words of Jesus with power to attentive hearers. Two young sisters were baptized. The meeting was very pleasant, though we had wet weather, muddy roads and high waters. Have had almost continuous wet weather since August. This rain of almost thirteen weeks' duration has damaged the crops considerably. Corn was good, but is spoiling in the field. Brethren, traveling West should not forget to give us a call. We are a band of about ten or twelve members, twenty miles away from the main body of the church. H. W. HANAWALT.

A Lost Child.

Any person reading this card can give information that will find Courtney Carbaugh, a little boy that left home the 22nd of October, and not since been heard of, will relieve a grief-stricken father and mother and will be rewarded for all trouble. He is 12 years old and has dark eyes and hair, and the thumb of the left hand off at the first joint. Was dressed in a dark suit of good clothes when he left. Telegraph, J. H. CARBAUGH, Shannon, Ill.

Mt. Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - November 4

Table with 2 columns: Metric and Value. Number Enrolled...187, Average Daily Attendance...157, Per Cent of Attendance...96, Number Tardinesses...10, Neither Absent nor Tardy...117.

E. A. BERRY, Principal.

All About Kansas. THE WEEKLY CAPITAL

is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county, $1.00 per year.—SAMPLE COPY FREE.—

"Great Rock Island Route"

that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway is the only line in its own road, reaching the points above...

EVERY LINE OF ROAD

that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway is the only line in its own road...

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway is the only line in its own road, reaching the points above mentioned, and is the only one that reaches the points mentioned, and is the only one that reaches the points mentioned...

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, The First and General Agent, Chicago, Ill., and First Agent, Chicago, Ill.

UNION DEPOSITS! SURE CONNECTIONS! MAGNIFICENT EQUIPMENTS!

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

BRETHREN AT WORK.

11 30
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Nov. 29, 1881.

No. 46.

Editorial Items.

Is the brain plants no corn, it plants thistles.

FIVE added to the Lord's people at Broad Ford, Md

THREE were recently baptized by the brethren at Loudonville, Ohio.

NORTH-WESTERN Ohio have added three new churches to their number this Summer.

A MAN aged ninety-two, at Des Moines, Iowa, is suing his wife, aged eighty-five, for divorce.

In last week's paper, the article "Turning Dankard" should have been accredited to C. L. J.

THE Brethren expect to dedicate their new house on Sand Ridge, Henry Co., Ohio, Dec. 13th.

BROTHER Geo. Garver and brother Samuel Coppock, of Miami Valley, were recently ordained.

BRO. I. J. Rosenberger begins a meeting at the Logan church, Ohio, on the evening of Dec. 1st.

DIRECTOR Swift, of Warner Observatory, has discovered another comet—the seventh of this year.

SISTER Katy Price will look after the B. at W. in our absence. Treat her gently, for she is worthy.

If you are an agent for the BRETHREN AT WORK, please read "Our Working Band" on the last page.

DARWIN has written a book on "Worms." He finds it, as a digger and plougher, a very useful creature.

FOUR were added to the church a short time ago at Glen Hope, Pa. "Rejoice with them that do rejoice"—Rom. 12: 15.

A VERY sudden and heavy snow-storm set in at Milford, Pa., the 23rd. The thermometer fell ten degrees in half an hour.

THE Brethren in Miami Valley have invited brother Enoch Ely to speak a word of comfort to them in the early part of the Winter.

WANTED.—A female compositor at this office. Fair wages and a permanent situation will be given to the right person. Apply at once.

BETWEEN fifty and sixty new students had already arrived on Thanksgiving day. The school is very large and is moving along quietly.

BROTHER J. E. Bryant has an excellent reply in Primitive Christian, to a Disciple or Campbellite friend. We shall publish it next week in B. at W.

ONE hundred and seventy-two persons in attendance at Brethren's Bible School in the Chapel, Sunday 29th. The "hees" are busy gathering honey.

THE B. at W. Almanac will be sent out in our issue of Dec. 26th. All shall have an Almanac free. Be patient; you shall get it in time for 1882.

BROTHER Rufus Gish's father, who is over 90 years old, is quite feeble and is slowly wearing away. Brother Rufus Gish is watching daily at his bedside.

A NEW department has been added to the YOUTH'S ADVANCE. College news and essays by students have become quite an interesting feature of the paper.

PLEASE read "Dunkard's Will. We shall print a large number on leaflets to distribute. Send for them and hand to the people. Price, 15 cents per hundred.

BRO. J. W. Grigs and wife, of Miford, Ind., arrived here the 21st and remained a few days. We much enjoyed their company and regret they could not stay longer.

PREACHING in College Chapel on Thanksgiving day. Brother S. Z. Sharp delivered the discourse to a large audience. Bro. Levi Trotter of Rock River church was also present.

THE item on first page last week concerning Bro Sander's daughter contained an error. We should have said she could not attend College on account of the illness of her mother.

THE Committee of Arrangements for next Annual Meeting are W. R. Deeter, J. Arnold, J. H. Miller, I. L. Berkey, Wm. Cook, J. Gump, M. Shotts, — Nusbaum, — Stoomaker.

THE address of the Editor until Dec. 5th will be Le Sueur, Minn. He will be pleased to hear from his correspondents there. A friendly letter while in a new field will be greatly appreciated.

ELDEN Daried Fry is confined to his house and is growing quite feeble. We hope to see him before he departs this life. God sweeten his last days and give him a bright hope of eternal life.

BRO. Lymard Eby, of Harlan, Iowa, writes that he would love to be here that he might enjoy Chapel services with us. Indeed we wish he were here. We have spent many days pleasantly with him.

BRO. John Newcomer, of Dorrance, Kansas, says: "Corn an entire failure this year on account of drought and chinch bugs. Wheat pretty fair crop. We are a small hand of Brethren on the frontier."

THE Preacher announces that it "will have something of great importance and interest to lay before the Brotherhood" in its next issue. Have the Preacher and Primitive Christian consolidated! If so, God bless the union!

It is believed by some that young people who attend College become indifferent to physical labor. This is not true of all, for during corn gathering several students went out into the fields afternoons and Saturdays, and worked faithfully.

As Guillean was being taken from the court room to jail the 19th, some one rode up on horseback, fired at him and then rode rapidly away. The ball passed through his coat sleeve, grazed his arm, but failed to inflict any injury. A man by the name of J. Jones has been arrested, charged with doing the shooting.

Notice to Our Readers.

Owing to a break in our machinery which cannot be repaired before December first, we shall be compelled to send out this and the next issue without being stitched. Please sew or pin together, and you will have the paper the same as if it were sewed here. We regret that we must send it without being stitched.

We stop the press to announce that the owners of the Gospel Preacher "have decided to run it in the interest of the Progressives." Brother K. H. Miller has resigned his position as its editor.

SAURDAY, 19th inst., presented a busy scene in this office. Twenty persons were at work—one on brother Moore's Family Companion, some on the Almanac, some on job work, and others on B. at W.

IN No. 43, Brother Jessa Stutsman was made to say that an election was held in his congregation after the close of the Communion Oct. 13th. It should have been, "election 22nd," as he so wrote. 1 John 4: 7.

THE "Growing World" is a work of great merit. It is worth a place in every library, and we recommend it to all young people especially. It contains a vast amount of valuable information. We take one for our daughter.

PEACE and love rule among the churches in Northern Illinois; and it is to be hoped that no encouragement will be given any one to sow discord. We need no such work in Northern Illinois. It will get very little encouragement.

TWO weeks ago the meter power in our press room gave away, and had it not been for the aid of two College boys, the B. at W. would have been considerably behind time. They laid hold of the crank, and by diligence helped to print the paper.

BRO. D. Clark, of Maysville, W. Va., writes: "Bro. Hays' article in No. 43 is to the point, and is the sentiment of the Eastern or Southern churches. Our entire District No. 1 of W. Vs. is staunch for the Brotherhood. I do not know of one sympathizer with the Miami movement in the District. One immersed since our Feast and one applicant."

ELSEWHERE in this paper we publish a sound article from Bro. J. H. Peck. Bro. John now experiences the usefulness and benefit of a good paper. We regard his remarks on what should be left out of a paper as eminently sound, and shall try to profit by his suggestions. (God help us to shun egotistical contention; but to "contend earnestly for the faith.")

BRO. C. G. Lind, of Meyersdale, Pa., writes: "We are getting along smoothly. Our church is at peace; have a liked eight worthy members since June. Our Sunday-school has been better on an average the last six months than it has been for years before that. The average was eighty-five during the last six months, and the present term exceeds that considerably."

BRO. Josiah Keim, one of the Trustees of Ashland College in No. 45 of the Preacher says: "I wish to say in justice to the Trustees and the interest of the school, that it will not let a cent be expended in the interest of any faction or party of the church, but on the principle of right." To this we may say amen! No school or paper should be conducted in the interest of a party or faction in the church.

WHERE we get on the shoulders of the learned men of ages past, we can see as far as they could. But some men when they get on the shoulders of the wise, catch a glimpse of the wonderful things and then go about exclaiming, "See, what I have done! Am I not the originator of this good work and that good thing?" Know, O vain man, that "boasting is excluded by the law of faith."—Rom. 3: 27.

Religious Essays.

PASSENGERS ON THE STREAM OF TIME

Down the swift stream of time we float,
And each with the freight in our life's frail boat.
Roses or thorns with song or sigh—
We scatch from the banks we're speeding by.
None do we meet; one way we ride,
And all on a never-returning tide.

Whether our sky may lower or beam,
The water will show; for it paints the stream!
Yet if its face be wild or black,
No haven is near; we can't go back!—
Though we put off more high, more low,
We sit to the mouth of the stream must go.

Then from our skiff and leading we Shall hasten, to launch on a shoreless sea.
Each in his breast a pearl must bear,
To enter the ark of mercy there.
They who are found without the gem—
O dark is the plunge to be made by them!

Ever adown the stream we float,
Where anchored are none, and where none we meet,

Who is insured when time shall fail,
An ocean of bliss serene to sail?
He who in time with all could part,
To purchase the pearl of a Holy Heart!

—Selected by Vina Eller.

Lebanon, Ohio.

For the Brethren at Work

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST AND MILLENNIAL REIGN.

BY JAMES EVANS.

NUMBER IX.

WE now turn to those Scriptures that are able to make us wise unto salvation through faith in Jesus, (2 Tim. 3: 15) and which were written aforetime for our learning, (Rom. 15: 4) viz.: the writings of Moses and the Prophets, and learn from these divine Oracles, not only the sacrificial nature of Christ's mission into the world, but also the glories after this.

God had a glorious purpose in view when he created the heavens and the earth. Then the morning stars sang together and the sons of God shouted for joy. Job 38: 7. He made this earth to manifest his wisdom and power. His eternal power and divinity are clearly seen, being perceived by the things that are made. Rom. 1: 20.

The divine order was, man should rule the world beneath him, and that he should obey the will of God. No sphere of glory, however exalted, can release a created being from obedience.

The angels who excel in strength, do the commandments of the Eternal; they are obedient to his word. Pa. 103: 20. God has never lost sight of this purpose for a moment; hence we are instructed to pray, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." This prayer will be answered when Jesus shall reign from sea to sea.

Sin has seemed to defeat the purpose of God. It has entered into the world and brought death upon the race of man. Satan has enthroned himself as the prince of this world, as the prince of the powers (Revised Version) of the air, the spirit that works in the children of disobedience. Eph. 2: 2.

The kingdoms of this world are not the kingdom of God, but the kingdom of men. Dan. 4: 32. Symbolically, the kingdom of men is called the "great red dragon, the Devil and Satan" because all the kingdoms, empires, and republics of earth are animated by the one spirit of sin which proceeds from Satan, the God of this present evil world. But the divine purpose has not been defeated. God makes the wrath of man to praise him. The entrance of sin into the world has unfolded the love of God and his mercy to the children of men. The heavens and the earth teach us the mighty power of God, but pity, love and mercy shine in the face of Jesus. If sin had never entered, grace would not have abounded; the love of God in sending his only begotten Son would have been unknown.

The mild glories of thy grace

Our softer passions move

Pate divine in Jesus face,

We see, adore and love.

The Lamb for sinners slain, the cleansing blood, redemption, the new song of redeeming love, the divine compassion stooping to men's lost condition would have been forever unknown if sin had never existed. The redeemed sons of men will sing a sweeter, nobler song than they could have done had not sin entered the world. When Jesus sees of the travail of his soul he will be satisfied, for the pleasure of the Lord will prosper in his hands. All things were made for the divine pleasure, for the unfolding what is in God. Jesus is the remedy for sin. He died to put it away. He bore it in his body on the cross and will yet wipe it out of existence. Jesus must reign until he put all his enemies beneath his feet. Hence his reign must occupy an important place in the oracles of God. Adam was a figure of Christ. Rom. 5: 14. Adam was made to have dominion and to subdue the earth, and thus was a type of the second Adam, who will subdue the earth and cause every knee to bow to him and confess he is Lord to the glory of God the Father. Phil. 2: 11. He must sit at God's right hand or reign till he makes his foes his footstool. Ps. 110.

Again, he is to bruise the head of the serpent, that is crush the power of the serpent, the devil and Satan, bind him and cast him into the abyss.

To Abraham the promise was made that his seed should possess the gates of his enemies. Gen. 22: 17. Then, only can all nations be blessed in Abraham and his seed. This universal blessing of all nations does not obtain now so long as the nations are walking in the night and shadow of death. The nations must learn war no more and become the kingdom of our Lord before the blessed condition obtains.

The reign of Christ is called "his days" and we are informed that "in his days" the righteous shall flourish, and abundance of peace so long as the moon endures. Ps. 72: 7. Then the law shall go forth from Mount Zion or the saint who shall then judge the world (1 Cor. 6: 2) and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. Isa. 2: 3. At that time God will have returned with mercy to Jerusalem, (Zech. 8: 2) and will choose her again to place his name there, (Zech. 2: 12) and when Jerusalem becomes the visible capital of the kingdom of Christ, then the Lord of Hosts will reign in Mt. Zion and in Jerusalem and before his accents gloriously. Isa. 24: 23.

When David would build a temple for the Lord, the prophet Nathan informed him that he should sleep with his father, but that God would establish the throne of his kingdom forever. 2 Sam. 7: 13. David's throne and kingdom were the Lord's and were typical of the throne and kingdom of David's Son, who is his root and offspring. The typical throne continued until Zedekiah, then, because his sons committed iniquity, the diadem was removed and the crown taken off, the kingdom overturned until the coming of him whose right it is to reign; then the anti-typical kingdom will be given him. Ex. 21: 25-27. The kingdom thus promised to the rightful heir has relation to this earth and is not administered beyond the skies or in some far off clime where man does not dwell. This King is the rod of Jesse and the branch that grew out of his roots. Isa. 11: 1. He is related to the human family, and the Father has given him authority to execute judgment because he is the Son of Man. John 5: 27. So much did the prophets speak of his glory as a king who would reign in righteousness, Isa. (32: 1, Jer. 23: 5) his sufferings were completely overlooked and when he was manifested in flesh and appeared in the form of a servant, he became a stone of stumbling and rock of offence to the house of Israel. The child born and the Son given was to have the government on his shoulders and sit on the throne of David and his kingdom, to order and establish it forever. Isa. 9: 6, 7. His kingdom was to be universal and fill the whole earth. During its administration men would learn war no more. Weapons of destruction would be converted into implements of husbandry, and peace would everywhere prevail. Such was to be the kingdom of the Christ.

God's original purpose respecting man and the earth would thus be fully carried out. His will, will then be done on earth as in heaven and God will be all in all.

But before this period of blessing arrives, the whole creation must be made subject to vanity, (Rom. 8: 20-23) and ever since sin entered into the world it has groaned and been in pain, not even God's children are exempted. But Paul assures us that this subjection to suffering is in hope of deliverance from the bondage of corruption. Then may we not say that the human race will profit by the ordeal through which they have to pass? When the bondage of corruption passes away, those redeemed from sin and the curse and the nations blessed in Abraham and his seed will have a clearer conception of the divine perfections than if they had not felt the bitterness of sin and experienced the vanity of earthly things. All things work together for good to them who love God.

CHICAGO has canceled the order which forbade the employment of married women as teachers in the public schools.

See the Brethren at Work

BIRTH SONGS.

BY C. H. BALBAUGH.

'R j ice, thou barren that barest not; break forth and cry, thou that travailest not: for the desolate hath many more children than she which hath a husband.'—Gal 4: 27

TO be born of God is to be well born, into a pure, exalted life, a "glorious liberty," and an unending inheritance, no matter whether Sarah or Agar be the mother. Different economies are but steps in the one, all-comprehending scheme of the All-Father. Abraham had two sons, by two wives, howbeit one was wife only through the other. Sarah was barren and desolate, and yet had a promise which made her fruitful by anticipation. Agar was but a servant, utterly desolate and barren, however fertile. She had no promise in relation to progeny that connected her and them with the economy of redemption. Sarah represented Jerusalem, and Agar Mount Sinai, which localities are as closely connected to one husband, in a moral view, as the wife and servant were to Abraham. Agar and Sinai are as necessary to fill out the Divine Plan, as Sarah and Jerusalem. Sinai is Golgotha by anticipation. The Law is the Gospel in type and shadow. Under the Law people were saved as well as now by faith in what the Law prefigured. The Jesus of the Gospel is also the Jesus of the Law. God was not incarnate to destroy the essence of the elder dispensation but to fulfill. The Law was bondage in its letter, and so is the Gospel. The law means flame and thunder and destruction, and the Gospel means cross and darkness and earthquake and bitter death-wail. And yet the agonizing "Eloi, Eloi, lamu Salmethani" of the Crucified is the birth-rhapsody, the pilgrim song, and the bridal-alleluia of the church. The law is often referred to as incomplete, a school-master, bondage, a yoke, a curse, and a terror; and yet in the midst of its strongest depreciation it is pronounced "holy, just, and good." Rom. 7: 12. It cut off the desolate and the married as regards our Adamic relation to God, and at the same time offered the security and fellowship and bliss of eternal wedlock to both. Agar also could help to fill the world, but only through Sarah. Abraham could be approached, and become the father of Ishmael, only by the consent of the mother of Isaac.

The Maker, the Lord of hosts, the Redeemer, the Ho'y One of Israel, is the Husband of Jerusalem. Isa. 54: 5. The Gentile world was Israel's Agar. The promise of Isaac was for the whole world. "In thy seed shall all nations of the earth be blessed" Jerusalem was the world's mother, and type of the Jerusalem above. The Holy One of Israel was wedded to Mt. Zion. Through the Bride children should be born as the sand by the seashore and the stars of heaven for multitude. And the new born should be members of the bride as soon as born. But the Spouse of Deity "played the harlot" and "multiplied her whoredoms" until the mind of the Bridegroom was alienated. Ez. 23rd chap. He wrote a bill of divorce, and cast the marriage-certificate into the conflagration of Jerusalem, but only to write a better one with the blood of His Only-begotten. Then she shut out, not only in prophetic strain, but in glorious realization, that the Gentile world should enjoy the embrace of the Husband of Eternity and fulfill the sublime mission of proffering the overture of Eternal Love to every creature under heaven, and gather a multitude of virgins which no man can number, for the glories and raptures of the everlasting nuptials. No wonder that prophet and apostle and saint and martyr and angel take up the strain of the Redeemer-Husband's heart, and sing and preach and pray the great truth, "rejoice, thou barren that barest not; break forth and cry thou that travailest not: for the desolate hath many more children than she which hath a husband." This is "the mystery of Christ," "which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men," "that the gentiles should be fellow-heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of His promise in Christ by the Gospel" Eph. 3: 4-6. Israel must sit in widowhood till the times of the Gentiles is fulfilled. The barren and desolate and childless, is childless no longer. The little sister without breasts, without suitor, but not without yearning and hope is visited, wooed and wedded, locked in the embrace of the Beloved, bearing "many more children" than she who thought so long that she alone had a husband. Sol. Song. 8: 8. "Rejoice, thou once barren," and be sterile no longer. "Break forth and cry, thou once desolate," for thou hast an husband, and art commanded by Him to bear sons and daughters in the ends of the earth. O faithless bride, give thyself anew to the self forgetting conjugality of Luke 1: 38, and then will be repeated a million times the dear, sweet, hallowed mystery of Luke 1: 35, and fulfilled the glorious consummation of 2 Pet. 3: 13.

For the Brethren at Work

JUDGMENT.

BY ENOCH WOOD.

Dear Brother Editor:—

WERE it not that I am afraid of spoiling my reflector more or less and knocking the chimney off the lamp of "False Theory" in B. AT W. No. 41, page 650, I would feel to take the scissors of friendly criticism, sharpened by brotherly love, and cut the sauffings off the wick, so that the light would shine more brilliant. But as your columns are quite modest and also consistent on the subject of controversy, I would perhaps better drop a few thoughts, and then dismiss for the present, reserving the privilege however to think and speak on the subject as before.

1. Understand the Bible to teach that God could judge persons righteously at death because of his foreknowledge, but he has appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteousness, (Acts 17: 31; Rev. 20: 12, 13) and that day is not until after the resurrection of the body, and the first resurrection will not be till the second advent of the Savior, and the second resurrection and final judgment will not be till after the thousand years' reign of Christ on the earth. Rev. 20.

2. God will judge according to what we have done in the body. 2 Cor. 5: 1. Again, "According to their works. Rev. 20: 12, 13. Some people's work lives long after the death of the body. Some may live to the day of judgment; others die with the body or soon after. How do works live after the body is dead? We answer, in memory or in books written by themselves or by some other one; and they have their influence as long as they exist. Works and influence are synonymous in the sense that you cannot have one without the other. You cannot have works without an influence. Neither can we have influence without works in the Bible sense of work. And as long as the work is kept alive it has an influence, and that influence is doing a work, and for the work we must and will be judged but not till the work is done. Is it not a fact that often the influence of the work of parents is more powerful to the conversion of their children after their death than the works during life?

"Well," says one, "does not your theory make us responsible for the use others make of our works?" O, no, were that the case, the Savior and the apostles would be accountable, and the devil and his agents who made such a bad use of their good influence, go free.

Again, if we were accountable for the use others make of our works they could not be judged according to their works, for we have answered for that. But we desire the reader to be impressed with the thought that we are awfully accountable for the influence we exert; but not for its results in the works of others. Suppose like many do say, "I know you are right according to the Gospel, and if ever I join a church it will be yours;" is that not a good influence that impresses that man's mind? yet he goes on in disobedience and do ing evil; are we accountable for his evil works? Nay, verily; but suppose he would have seen some bad works among us and he become disgusted and turn away from religion, we would be accountable for our influence whether the man is afterward saved or lost. Matt. 5: 14-16.

But suppose a man of seventy years of age has believed and wrote a book on infidelity, and six months before he dies he is converted, how about his salvation, for his influence for infidelity would be so much greater (or longer at least) than for Christianity? Let us look at that a moment. Does not that man, when he renounces infidelity and embraces Christianity, completely demolish his infidel structure. Yea more, he does more to establish Christianity than if he had been an ordinary Christian professor all his lifetime. Would not ministers of the Gospel refer to such with pleasure, and say there was a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and he tried infidelity almost a lifetime, fighting with all his forces against Christianity and the divine authenticity of the Bible, but he with all his powers failed, utterly failed, to resist the power of its teaching. Should not that man be saved when his six months' work was paramount to all the rest of his life? Read Ez. 35: 11-16. Vice versa with a good man.

If I have presented one thought that will aid in correcting the ante-scriptural and popular idea that judgments and rewards are meted out to the children of men at death, and hence no necessity of a resurrection, I have accomplished my desire so far at least.

And further, I think I have established the fact logically, if not scripturally, that as long as a work lives it has an influence, and that influence is doing a work that can only be justly attributed to the originator of that influence, and will not be judged till the influence of his work as well as the work or his influence may be justly used as a logical reason for not judging people at death, but appointing a day, as the Bible teaches.

A KNotty PROBLEM.

THE multiplicity of sensational events during the past few weeks has detracted attention from a circumstance which would otherwise have excited much interest. A few weeks ago the body of "a young girl" was found on the sea beach near an Eastern town. She was known as a "respectable girl," but investigation showed that she had parted with her virtue before her death. She was poor, but she was beautiful, and had kept company with some rich young men, one of whom, under a promise of marriage, by the aid of a city courtesan and possibly also of a drug, seduced her. Her alleged murderers are on trial now. Aside from the sad fact of the death of a girl in whom was the combination of personal beauty and intentional purity, the public is, or should be, interested in that phase of human nature which, by the adjuncts of wealth and high social position, accomplished not only her death, but the ruin of her soul. It is sad to know that wealth and social position are prostituted to such ends, but it is sadder to know that there are many such "young girls," and that every day adds to their numbers. This young lady having lost all that entitled her to the name of maiden purity, could not survive her loss. Those of her delicate nature are not sentimental. She, though of poor parentage, had been petted and not compelled to work. Whatever of personal adornment of her natural body could be provided from the humble purse, was lavished upon her. She barely tasted those luxuries which her domestic education had taught her to yearn for,—and she fell, in the delusive hope and the fraudulent promise that she should realize them. Had she been taught to labor by her mother's side, to indulge in only such luxuries as she could virtuously earn, she would not have fallen. It is the parents of such as those of this young girl who are stocking the palaces where sin holds carnival over the prosaic form of virtue.

The moral of this lesson is read in the following from an Eastern paper:

The ranks of prostitution are recruited from this would-be genteel class, not from domestic servants. Let any Christian reformer drop for an hour his pet scheme for elevating the world, whether it be the conversion of the Jews or the Polynesian, and follow any day a group of these girls home from their work. If they are Americans they have not sensual faces. There is none of that hopeless predominance of the animal nature in mouth and eye which puts the mark of the beast on the woman of the lower orders in some European races. As a rule, their features are clear and fine, their eyes sparkling eager; the whole natural, physical character is nervous, delicate and refined. With proper training, these would be the same women as those who conquered New England by their endurance and piety, or who are conquering the West now in many a rude cabin by their unflagging energy and high heartedness. The race is the same; the education is different. But note the vulgar insolence of their talk: their insane giggling to attract the notice of men passing by; the vacuity, the incipient depravity, the hopelessness of it all. There is no sight more tragic on earth than one of these women, meant by God to be a pure wife and mother, frisking jauntily down her way to ruin.

It is not only to this class of young girls we would call attention, but to the habits and manners of those who hold a much higher social rank. Our educated orders know little more of the real lives of the young people than they do of the thoughts and private occupations of the lower animals. Let them read, as a mere matter of curiosity, one of the cheap novels which are sold by the tens of thousands among them, or one of their "society papers" with their "personals" and "handkerchief language" and all the rest of the silly, pitiful nastiness. The young men and women who take delight in these things are, in all probability, virtuous; but how long will they remain so?

The temptation to ruin, we urge again, does not come to the native American girl through any natural proclivity to vice, but through her vanity, her intense desire to be noticed, her nervous craving for excitement. She is not born with any ineradicable base taint of blood; she is worth saving. How shall she be saved?—Selected by H. B. M.

For the Brethren at Work

SHUN WORLDLY INFLUENCES.

BY M. M. ESHELMAN.

WHILE meditating over the past, and viewing where I once stood, I rejoice that I can realize a firm hope. I will try and warn my young friends of the dangerous road some of them are traveling. I had been a member of the church, joined when I was twelve years of age and retained the relationship until I was sixteen, when by encouraging worldly influences and entertaining worldly companions, they soon overbalanced those of heaven, and I was soon floating on the other side. I tried to feel satisfied with the Lutheran denomination, studied catechism a short time, and on Easter was seen in full fellowship with the church, or "confirmed." Shortly after, my mother and I took a trip to Pennsylvania, where some of my relatives would try to point out to me my failings and the dangerous road I was on and the fruits of not building a solid foundation. But all this availed nothing.

This Fall I attended the Silver Creek Love-feast, where the Word was spoken with such power as to give me more light on the path I was treading. I was soon meditating on the parable of the sower, asking myself, Shall I prove to be the one to receive the seed in stony places or the one that received it among thorns, or on good ground and hearth the Word and understandeth it? Matt. 12: 44. I resolved in my heart to change my life. I prayed and pleaded earnestly for God to give me strength sufficient to carry out my resolutions, for I felt very weak of myself. My attention was drawn to the 7th chapter of Matt., 7th verse, "Ask and it shall be given, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you. My first thought on being convicted was to guard against its calling, for I was not yet ready to forsake the pleasure of this world, for there were so many hearty invitations of this kind for me, I thought at present I could not deprive myself of them. In less than two weeks from that time I re-united.

And now my young brethren and sisters, I admonish you not to let too much of world in; let Christ and the Word come first and the world be of a secondary matter, and then it will not be as difficult to keep warm in the church. Satan is like the spider in some respects. He weaves shred after shred until he has you bound so close that it proves beyond your power to loosen his bonds. Therefore let us keep our lights shining that the world may see us, for we do not expect our reward on earth; it is to be a heavenly crown. And let us not become weary in well-doing; for Christ says, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Polo, Ill.

THE DRUNKARD'S WILL:

Which Every Saloon Keeper is Aiding Him In Drawing Up.

- 1st. I leave to society a ruined character, a wretched example, and a memory that will soon rot.
- 2nd. I leave to my parents during the rest of their lives as much sorrow as humanity, in a declining and feeble state can sustain.
- 3rd. I leave my brothers and sisters as much mortification and injury as I could conveniently bring upon them.
- 4th. I leave to my wife a broken heart, a life of wretchedness and shame, to weep over me and my premature death.
- 5th. I give and bequeath to each of my dear children, poverty, ignorance, a low character, and the sad remembrance that their father was a drunkard.—Selected by James R. Gish.

Romano, Ill.

TEMPTATIONS come to us from our own bosom mainly. That is the great magazine of temptations.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER IX.

INTERLAKEN is a summer resort for tourists, as well as the tired and weary citizen, who come here for rest, and to enjoy the magnificent scenery. From this point we were to take coaches and make an excursion to the Grödelwald glaciers. In coming to Interlaken from Brienz, we rode in double-decked steam cars, which were to me, and I think to all the party, a novelty—those who were fortunate in getting a seat on the upper deck had an extended and unsurpassed view of the country through which we passed. At our hotel we had a fine view of the Jungfrau, covered with snow, "confessing to the monk who waits eternally by her side." We left the hotel early in the morning for the glaciers, passing every variety of mountain peak that towered the sky. There were peaks that ran away up into the heaven, old gray crags, splintered as it were with thunder bolts, mountains that were like great brown castles, and peaks that the blue atmosphere of distance painted with a hundred softened tints. On our right was a ridge of mountain wall, at our left a deep ravine, where a foaming torrent leaped over its rocky bed. Then we would come to a pretty rural picture of chalets, gardens, herds and flocks. Every available inch of ground is cultivated, and the cultivation extends up the mountain sides as far as vegetation can exist. All around, the air is filled with the sound of running water. Torrents leap from the mountains to the ravines, little rivers tumble down in soft spray on silver sheets, brooks clatter and flash as they wind in and out of view on their way to the valley; cascades vault over sharp crags, streams

"That leap'st so late the mountain's brow,
As though its waters ne'er would sever;
But ere they reach the plain below,
Break into drops that part forever."

We hear in the distance the Alpine horn, mellow and soft; presently we come to a halt and listen to some women singing le Ranx des Vanches; little we, toddling children come offering flowers, Alpine flowers, and our hearts are so full of joy and pleasure that for a few hours we forget that sorrow ever left its impress upon our hearts. About noon we come to the foot of the great mountains, Wettenhorn, Eigerhorn, and Mittleberg, between which are the glaciers, which descend close to the pasturage in the valley. We alight from the carriages, and after lunch at the hotel, take horses and a guide for the upper glacier, which is about an hour's ride. The ladies' saddles have a low back, something like a chair, and have a great many straps—in fact, a complete harness. The guides lead the horses, and are very careful to have the ladies sit squarely, so as to preserve their equilibrium. With all their care, one of the ladies' saddle gave way, which, the guide seeing, caught the lady in his arms in time to prevent what might have been a serious catastrophe. When within a half mile of the glacier we were obliged to dismount and walk. On our way we gathered our buds full of flowers as souvenirs of our visit, and as a curiosity in that they grew so near a sea of ice. We climbed up and walked over a little spur and as we did so, the gentlemen gave three cheers and the ladies waved their handkerchiefs. A tunnel had been cut some fifty feet or more, and at the end a grotto, over which the ice must have been as thick as the tunnel was long. The ice is beautifully clear and transparent, so much so that at the depths mentioned we could readily see to read. Our guide said that the ice taken out was exported in large quantities to southern markets. I picked up a piece and ate it, thinking as I did so that perhaps it might be older than the oldest inhabitant we have any record of. The lower glacier is not as easy to visit as the upper, moraines obstructing the passage; but when visited, it is said to be one of the most wonderful glacier views imaginable. We had a fine view of the upper part of it as we passed, and wished our time could be extended in order that we might visit its upper basin and see where it was formed. One of these mountain peaks, the Mittlehorn, was first ascended by Professor Agassiz, in 1843, and is 12,166 feet above the level of the sea.

We returned to our hotel, and after resting over night, resumed our journey, passing over Lake Thun, and taking the cars at Thun, visited Berne, the capital of Switzerland.

It derives its name from Baren, the German for bears. The figure of the bear is conspicuous everywhere. For many centuries numerous bears were kept at the expense of the city, and a certain fund is now devoted to that purpose. All tourists are expected to go and see the bears, so we went down to their pits, which are some twenty feet deep. There are houses and fountains, where their bearships may bathe, and poles for them to climb. It is prohibited, under pain of severe punishment, to throw anything to these idols except fruit and bread. A few years ago an Englishman fell into one of the pits and was instantly torn in pieces. On each side of the principal street is an arcade, the second story of the building extending out and supported by granite pillars and a stone floor, and are used as benches for all kinds of merchandise. They extend for more than a mile, and are used also for a promenade. A concert was given in the cathedral for our benefit, which was very fine, the selections being from the old masters. The organ, in this cathedral is said to be finer and larger than the one we heard at Lucerne. It was only a few minutes till twelve as we left the cathedral, so we stopped on our way to see and hear the curious old clock strike. A few minutes before the hour an automatic cock crows and flaps his wings; then the hour is struck by a circular figure dressed like a knight of the olden time, while a troop of bears appear and march around on a wooden platform. An old man representing time, turns an hour-glass, and the cock concludes the ceremony by again flapping his wings and crowing. The fashionable promenade of the city is the cathedral terrace, a broad, shady walk one hundred feet above the river, three or four hundred feet long and commanding a fine view of the whole range of distant mountains.

From Berne, a ride of about a mile brought us to Freiburg, which consists of an old and a new city, the old city being in a valley and walled, while the newer part is upon a rocky hillside. At the base of the old city is the river Sarine, and extending over the chasm to the opposite bank are suspension bridges. The first we crossed was nine hundred and eighty-five feet above the water, and is supported by four chains about twelve hundred feet in length. The ends are secured by one hundred and twenty anchors, fastened to granite blocks sunk deep in the earth. The other bridge is seven hundred feet long and two hundred and eighty-five feet above the water. After dinner, and just as the sun was sinking out of sight, we took a stroll over the bridges, and when in the middle the musicially inclined sang patriotic airs, and gave three cheers for the two republics, Switzerland and the United States. In the evening we attended services in the cathedral, which is said to contain the finest organ in Europe, having sixty-seven stops and seven thousand eight hundred pipes. The minister, as they call the curé d'al, is a grand gloomy old pile, dating from the eleventh century. The tower, of beautiful fretwork, rises to the height of three hundred and ninety-five feet, and the body of the church is of corresponding size. The interior is solemn and majestic. In the side chapels are some fine altar pieces by Holbein, and a large crucifix of silver and ebony, which is kept with great care, having been carried with the Crusade to the Holy Land.

From Freiburg we sped on to Lausanne, and without stopping at the little town, rode down in coaches to the little seaport of the place, Ouchy, on the bank of the very blue and beautiful Lake Leman. The view here is charming. The panorama of mountains upon the opposite shore extends as far as the eye can reach, and in the dim distance looms up Chillon. The houses are pointed out and the room shown where Byron wrote his beautiful poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon." The massive, irregular walls of this old castle have five towers, with the loop holes and battlements of the feudal times. It stands on a point of land that juts out into the lake, and its whole appearance realizes our imagination of a gloomy old castle or prison.

A NOBLE, conscientious preacher is not always expecting to be hated, praised and tolerated up with flattery. He is not sensitive about his reputation, and seeking worldly popularity. His great aim is to do the will of God and to be useful while he lives. He seeks to be a humble, faithful minister of the Gospel of Christ. He seeks to become more and more like Christ. He is willing to preach the Gospel as his hands it recorded in the Word of God. He has the Word of God and wants to proclaim it. He is not changing from one side of a subject to the other. You can rely on him. You know where to find him. They are a comfort and a joy to those for whom they minister. They will always be remembered with gratitude.—The Christian.

DIOGENES, being asked which beast was the most dangerous, replied: "If you mean wild beasts, 'tis the slanderer; if tame ones, the flatterer."

Home and Family.

MARY C. NORMAN, LE SUZUR, MINN. - FIFTY-THREE

For the Brothers of West.

BE PLEASANT TO YOUR WIFE

BY MARY A. RIMES.

DON'T think that when you were won a wife that you also have won a slave, or think that your wife has less feeling than when she was your sweetheart; her relationship to you has changed, not her nature.

Don't think that you can disagree with all the civilities. Those things are quite as necessary for her as they are for other women.

Don't be gruff and rude at home; for had you been that kind of fellow before marriage, the probabilities are that you would be coming on your own buttons still.

Don't make your wife feel that she is an incubation on you by giving to her grudgingly. What she needs, give to her cheerfully and it will be a pleasure to do so; the will feel better and so will you. Don't find fault with her extravagance until you have shut down on cigars and tobacco.

Don't leave your wife home to the care of children while you go down town to see the show, or to spend a few hours in the billiard hall; before marriage you could not spend enough evenings with her.

Don't think the woman you promised to love, cherish and protect becomes your slave as her part of the contract. Don't think that board and clothes are sufficient return for all she does. Don't expect your wife to love and honor you if you prove a brute. Don't expect your wife in public and snarl at her in private. Don't, if your wife has fault, be continually reminding her of them and never have a word of commendation for her virtues. Don't expect your wife to have no failings; for not to have them would not be human. Remember you married a woman and your wife thought she married a man—don't deceive her.

NEED OF HIGHER CULTURE IN HOME LIFE.

NOTHING is more painful to one who knows what mothers may do for their children, or wives for their husbands, than to see the idleness of young women who are not compelled to work for a living, and to find how empty-headed they are. This may seem a small matter in itself, but the moment a woman is married she has to learn how to be interesting in her home to her husband, and as soon as she is a mother, the training of her children is the foremost duty of the hour. In these two spheres of life, which are essentially the goal of woman's existence, everything depends upon what the wife and mother brings to her several positions, everything for her own, her husband's and her children's happiness. Women are perpetually losing their husbands because they rely upon evanescent personal charms to uphold affection, but the surest way to provide against the decay of the enthusiasm of the early married life is to cultivate those mental and moral qualities which make women always charming and attractive.

Nothing is surer to do this, aside from personal means, than the improvement of one's mind, the growth of literary tastes, the interest of what imports new and wholesome attractions into one's home. It may be the microscope, or French or German translation, or botany, or English literature, or history, or music, but whatever it is, the stimulus of knowing one thing thoroughly is worth immensely more than the knowledge itself, because it gives one the power to know more and to enjoy more. These studies, even in themselves, are refining, but pursued in the general atmosphere of home, they are more than simply refining; they are agencies by which the spirit of the home is elevated, and mental, even made religious. Religion in one's home is the best when it is least insisted upon, when its life is the unceasing poetry of the household, when it seems to be the natural culmination of the amenities of life; and religion and culture go together in the well-ordered life of every woman. But it is when the wife becomes a mother, when the religion and culture had a congenial sphere for development within the sanctities of home, when among children and among friends and neighbors the tone is always uplifting and inspiring, that literary culture and the general development of a woman's mind and heart seem to make life sweetest and best. Fortunate is the boy or girl who has such a home. It is from such quarters, be they the log cabin or the house with brown stone front, that men and women go forth with the idea that conquers the world. Every leading person has had a start somewhere, and usually it is traced to one of these mothers whose native or acquired culture has been imparted to her bright children. Here is the true impetus of literature of home. It pays for itself hundreds of times over in its influence upon parents, and in the early direction it gives to their children. (N.)

DON'T TALK LOUDLY.

NOTHING marks a true gentleman or lady more surely than a low voice, and a man can have it as well as a woman. A loud voice either arises from extreme carelessness, or from loud breeding. No one likes to walk beside a person on the street who talks in a loud voice. The same rule applies to boys and girls. Play your own tune and conversation quite another, though the former need not be boisterous. Children may have good lungs, and use them in cheering when the right time comes; but when they talk, a low, distinct voice marks one accustomed to good society, and possessed of innate refinement. (N.)

MY INFLUENCE.

GATHER up my influence and bury it with me," were the dying words of a young man to the weeping friends at his bedside. What a wish was that which deep anguish of heart there must have been as the young man reflected upon his past life—a life which had not been what it should have been. With what deep regrets must his very soul be filled, as he thought of those young men he had influenced for evil— influences which he had met, if possible, but eradicated, and which led him to, faintly, but pleadingly, breathe out such a dying request—"Gather up my influence and bury it with me."

My young friends, the influence of your lives, for good or evil, cannot be gathered up by your friends after your eyes are closed in death, no matter how earnestly you may plead in your last moments on earth. Your influence has gone out from you—you alone were responsible; you had the power to govern, to shape; your influence no human being can withdraw. Such a request cannot be fulfilled. It is impossible! Your relations and friends cannot "gather up your influence and bury it" with you.

Young men, live noble, true pious lives. Possess this moral courage in full proportions, and at all times—everywhere. M. C. N.

PLANNING WORK.

EVEN in housework, the brain may save the body a great deal of labor. A woman who plans her work beforehand always accomplishes a great deal more than her less methodical sister, and with less fatigue to herself. Before she rises in the morning her breakfast is thoroughly planned, and the order in which the different details are to be carried out is quite decided upon. It makes all work easier to have it thus planned beforehand, and many a weary woman might secure many bright halloos to herself every week if she would but inaugurate the system. It is like packing a trunk—you know how easy it is for one skilled in the business to put in a third more than one who piles things in "just as it happens." It is always such a pleasure to look back on a well-packed day and see just what has been done. People whose days are full of idleness and ease do not have the monopoly of happiness by any means. Those who have nothing to do except make themselves comfortable are generally peevish and discontented. Work has manifold advantages; and the woman who has led a busy life cannot be content to rest in idleness. (N.)

TAKE IT OFF.

YOU think your corset may be worn so loose that it will do no harm. If worn so loose as not to interfere with respiration when you lean forward in needle-work, then it will make the form look badly. A corset to look well must be worn snug and trim. And then you think the corset is important as a skirt-supporter. It certainly may be of service in this way, but it is not half as good a skirt-supporter as a pair of common gentleman's suspenders. No, girls, the corset is bad. It is not only a great enemy to health but is the great destroyer of female grace and beauty. A rigid stiffness in the center of the body, makes all the movements of the entire body stiff and ungraceful. As to the matter of beauty, it's a question between the Creator and the dress-maker; I take sides with the Creator, some folks take the other side. (N.)

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

NOVEMBER 29, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN,..... Editor.

J. H. MOORE, }
S. S. MOORE, } Corresponding Editors.
C. H. HARRISON, }

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Enoch Eby,
James Ewing,
Daniel Vanhook,A. W. Brown,
S. S. Moore,
C. H. Harshbarger,D. E. Brubaker,
J. J. Harshbarger,
J. W. Southwood.

The Editor will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that he endorses every sentiment of its writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please not indulge in personalities and unbecoming language, but present their views "with grace as becometh with all."

Subscription price, $1.25 per annum. Those sending eight cents and $12.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional cent the agent will be allowed five per cent, which amount he will please retain and send in the balance.

Money sent by Post-Office Orders, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk. Make them payable to M. M. ESHELMAN. Address all communications for the paper,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

EXPLANATORY.

A COPY of the Progressive Christian of Nov. 18th, was handed us, in which H. R. Holsinger says that we wrote him a "very saucy and insolent letter." If this be true, then we need to sit in sackcloth and ashes. But it is probable that H. R. H. is mistaken. It may be he is at sea without rudder or compass, and thinks he sees spectres. He evidently looked through smoked glass at our letter, and thus it seemed smoky to him. We retained a copy of the letter sent to him, and here give it to our readers so that they may be able to judge us correctly. They will see whether it is "saucy and insolent" or whether it is a manly affectionate letter. We do not hate H. R. H., nor are we angry. But between him and the Brotherhood, we choose to respect and stand by the Brotherhood. Following is the letter:

H. R. Holsinger:

Dear Sir:—

It has pleased you to publish our card without consent in your issue of Oct. 28th; still we shall not complain of that as we have nothing to hide. However as you were prompt in giving space to that may we presume that you will be equally prompt in giving room to this. Our reasons for not desiring your paper are,

1. In the Progressive Christian of July 8th in your account of your "Western Trip" you say:

"On Thursday, June 16th, brother D. L. Miller took us to the West Branch Meeting-house, where the Love-feast was being held. Here we had the iron-clad rule of Northern Illinois applied to us, by the Elder, brother Edmund Forney; we were not invited to preach because we had not the regulation suit on, the church at West Branch, Illinois, disfellowships the church at Berlin, Pa. And what for? Because we do not preach the truth? No, no! but because we do not part our hair in the middle of our head and wear a narrow stand-up collar to our coat!"

This you published when you knew this was not the reason you were not invited. On the way home D. L. Miller and M. M. Eshelman repeatedly told you that the rule did not apply in your case—that you came to Northern Illinois without invitation from any church. You were told that the decision of Northern Illinois was in reference to inviting ministers to come into N. Ill., to preach, and not to inviting them to preach when they came of their own accord. If we remember correctly, it was suggested that you should not publish the rule applied in your case; but notwithstanding all the assurances, you deliberately published as reasons what were not reasons, thus telling the untruth. In No. 39 BRETHREN AT WORK, a statement of the facts was given; but you never apologized nor made any attempt to correct the gross misrepresentation you made concerning brother Forney and Northern Illinois. And were you not written to privately to correct it? Why did you publish the untruth? Was it for effect? Was it to awaken sympathy? If so, the ways of truth will wash away your sandy foundation, and then, O, what a loss you shall sustain!

2. We regard you as disfellowshipped; and as has ever been the rule among the Brethren, disowned members should not be encouraged to go on in their disobedience. To encourage them to continue on in a course contrary to the church, is to aid and abet insubordination and the overthrow of good government. We are for treating you kindly, but we need not condone your errors and help you in the wrong in order to be kind to you. Chastenings are sometimes kindnesses. This is the Lord's way, and it is good. The reasons we regard you as expelled is 1. You trespassed against the Brotherhood. You were repeatedly brought before its council meeting and as often confessed and expressed a willingness to cease opposing the church, but violated your promises time and again. Finally the Brotherhood, through its council meeting, sent you a committee to deal with you. This committee did so, and decided you be no longer a member of the Brethren church. 2. The Brotherhood is greater than the Berlin church. All the members of the Brotherhood could not go to Berlin to sit in judgment upon your case, hence the Brotherhood sent its representatives—a committee—and these representatives were empowered to do the work of the Brotherhood. Have you any doubts as to the result if all the members of the Brethren church had been at Berlin when you were expelled? If all had been there and a vote taken, would you have been justified in your course? Look at the council of the Brotherhood and you will get an answer. Now where is the difference between the decision of the majority of the Brotherhood and its legal representatives? Unless you desire to overturn good government, you must accept the work of the committee. You might as well say the Supreme Court of the U. S. does not represent the judicial status of this government, because the judges were not elected by the people, instead of being appointed by the President, as to say that the representatives of the Brotherhood did not represent the judicial work of the Brotherhood in your case. We maintain the work is binding until set aside by Annual Meeting which sent them. If not binding, then committee work is a mere farce—a vain and empty thing; but it is not this. And history of the past will show that you disregard the work of committees thus sent, as binding before they report to A. M.

We are not ignorant of the plea of some that you have been unjustly dealt with. Such would do well to wait until the committee gives its reasons for its decisions. Perhaps when that committee reports to A. M., not a few will be surprised at the abundance of the testimony in its hands, and which is a basis of the decision. And it may be equally surprising to those to learn that in the main the testimony is from your own hand. We have not seen the testimony as formulated by the committee, nor have we furnished them with it, but we have learned enough from some of the committee to know that the committee has not done its work blindly, nor walked into the spider's web as some would have us believe. Blind eyes will open in due time.

You now have our reasons for not wanting your paper. We can not aid insubordination. We cannot knowingly help any who tell the untruth. If it be wrong to refuse to give you any encouragement in your spirit of rebellion, then it is wrong indeed. But we have too much regard for the church—for the whole Brotherhood, to assist you in your effort to overthrow the government of the church. So soon as you manifest a spirit of submission to the church you joined, that soon you will find our hand ready to help you in the way of truth. But you must throw away your matted which you use to dig up the church and come with the sword of the Spirit. When meekness, submission, and brotherly love shall characterize your work, we shall be among the first to give you our sympathies. But we cannot justify your course. It is dangerous. May grace be given you to devote your mind, soul, body, text and talents to building up the church in lova. Our paper continues to be sent to you.

Yours sorrowfully

BRETHREN AT WORK.

It is likely we would have had more honor, if we had not asked him to discontinue the paper. We should have remembered that to lay hold of a muddy wheel is to become mudded. Respect for the Brotherhood led us to take the course we did. If our letter to H. R. Holsinger be wrong, we ask not to be spared and are willing to have our church here sit in judgment on the case. We hope we may have no occasion to allude to it again.

ABOUT BROTHER STEIN.

Schofield, Pa.

Brother Stein is a puzzle to me. After the great and successful controversy; and after being made President of Mt. Morris College—standing high as he did in the church, suddenly to start on a tour around the earth, for parts not named, leaving his trace covered for months, I think, is a mystery which justly calls for explanation from any who can give it.

ISAAC PERCE.

REMARKS.

The above card was handed to me for answer. I have personally known Bro. J. W. Stein for some years. Before he became a member of the church he frequently called on my father's family in Newton Co., Mo. I also spent several days in his neighborhood during the "Stein and Ray Debate" in Newtonia, Mo. Since that time I have met him very frequently, and learned to love and respect him. I always admired his extensive knowledge and chaste conversation.

Bro. Stein has been a hard-working man from his youth—a careful reader and close thinker from childhood. During the war he lived in the South, and enlisted in the Southern army. One of his soldier comrades, now a brother, told me that "John" (for that is what the soldiers called him) was different from the rest of the boys. When not on duty he might be found alone studying his Greek books, or intently pursuing some other course of study. After uniting with the church, and ever before, his reading was immense. He also kept a careful record of every important thing that came under his notice while reading.

When it was concluded to purchase the Mt. Morris Seminary, Bro. Stein was requested to take charge of the institution and become its President. He finally consented, and soon afterward moved to Mt. Morris with his family, a wife and three children. He was received and recognized by the people with the greatest of confidences.

At this time he was in the midst of his discussion with Mr. Ray, a work that required an immense amount of mental labor. School soon opened, the man worked hard, undertook too much study for his strength. Add to this the perplexity of conducting a large school, and you have what soon began to tell on Bro. Stein's mind. It told on him so strongly that he became a little alarmed himself. He continued his work, took sick; this seemed to make his condition still worse. Finally he made up his mind that he must get away from the college—get away from his books, his work, and associate with new scenes, or he would go beyond recovery. He concluded that a trip around the world would be the best thing he could do. It would give him relief, associate him with new scenes, and add much to his stock of information. His business was arranged and he left for Europe, taking a steamer at New York for London, which point he reached in safety, and wrote a letter to his wife. Some weeks afterwards he wrote again and was then in Austr., expecting in a few days to start to Constantinople. That is the last we have heard of him. Beyond this we know no more than our readers; but perhaps we can draw inferences that may throw a little light on the mystery. After brother Stein left here we learn from his family that his mind was at times very seriously affected for some months before he left, so much so that his condition seemed alarming. This, however, was not known outside of the family, and never would have been told if it did not now seem necessary. It was feared that he would soon lose control of his mind altogether unless something should be done—hence the trip was adopted as the remedy. No one outside of his own family knew his condition or else the brethren here would not have permitted him to have gone on such a trip alone.

Man frequently injures their minds by hard study and then travel for relief. The President of a Western college had his mind so over-taxed that he became deranged, left the institution for parts unknown, and after a year's search was found among the mountains in the West, having good health and in his right mind; but he never could tell how he got there. Years ago a young man, after writing a very valuable book, and doing much other literary work, fell into the same condition, disappeared for years, and finally came to light as the author of one of the ablest books of the age.

Our impression is that one of two things has happened Bro. Stein: He is either dead, or else his mind grew worse after reaching Europe, and he is in the same condition as the two mentioned above. Either case is sad to contemplate; but such is the fate of overworked minds. We regret to publish things of this character—not that they are a disgrace to the man and his family, but because of the many sad hearts that the painful news will make.

Bro. Esholman had an arrangement with Bro. Stein to write for the paper; but did not learn of the good man's troubles for some months afterwards. He regrets to disappoint his readers but he cannot help it. He must endure the sadness with the rest of you.

It might have been best to have published this explanation two months ago; but we felt so sad over the affair that it was put off as long as possible. If Bro. Stein is still alive we hope to meet him sound and in his right mind. If he is dead we must say that a great and good man has fallen. And it makes no difference what becomes of him; so far as his work is concerned, he has done a grand work for our church and his good name will go down to posterity covered with honors.—J. H. MOORE

OUR REFLECTOR.

—We welcome Bro. Evans' articles on the second coming of Christ. The article this week contains some things that will be new to many readers of the B. AT W. I refer to the two orders of the saved.

—I do not like the "reunion plan of holding future Annual Meetings." The items 1, 3, and 4 might do. Item 5th would permit districts to disregard many of the distinctive features of the Brotherhood. Item 6 is both unreasonable and unequal for in principles of church government. Item 7 would permit a congregation to keep in 6 fellowshippers of the most dangerous character. A man could rail out against the Brotherhood, slander and abuse men in good standing, and be perfectly safe if the majority of his own congregation would sustain him—no committee could remove him. Item 8 winds up with a clause that, if applied, would upset the writer's whole theory about holding the A. M.

—Bro. John Calvin Bright gives an interesting history of the schisms in the Brotherhood. I had no idea that the movement dated so far back as he traced it.

—"No Cross, No Crown" is also good. That is the name of a book written by Wm. Pean.

—I learn that the "Notes of Foreign Travel" are proving quite interesting to many readers. Articles of this class are generally appreciated.

—I would like to know who wrote "A Few Remarks to Contributors." I have a very correct idea, but it is one of the little secrets that does better when kept in a close place. At any rate it is a good, sensible article, and I hope contributors will profit by it.

"The Grand Circle" contains some good things; but I would like to know how the writer is going to prove that the "first Adam's time commenced on Monday?" He is equally lame in saying that the Savior was only 31 years and 23 days old at the time of his death.

—Twenty-eight baptisms are reported this week; adding the 282 of last week gives us seven 310.—J. H. MOORE.

For the Brethren at Work.

CHURCH PAPERS.

BY J. H. PECK.

ARE church papers essential to religious happiness? In this age of books and papers and schools, a class of people have grown up who have acquired such a habit of reading that they feel about as unhappy without something new to read as they do without their regular meals; and as "out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh," so the desires of the heart will inevitably govern what we want to read. If the heart craves romance and fiction we will read such papers as the "New York Ledger;" but if the heart loves truth, especially the truth that makes us free, we will hunt reading matter that pertains to the same. Those who have acquired no taste for reading are not competent judges to decide whether church papers are beneficial or not.

What could I tell about a good cigar or a bad one; good whiskey or that which is adulterated? I am not sufficiently well acquainted with either to know the good from the bad, and my judgment would be, that the best of them is a nuisance.

So it is with some who have no taste for any kind of reading, they pronounce all the papers useless; but those who have acquired the habit of reading always have a preference. To them some reading matter is good and others inferior; but great diversities of opinion obtain as to which is good. This is owing to the condition of the heart, or affections. As already intimated, the Christian wants religious literature; if he is a reading man, he must have it. How important then, since these desires of ours are creatures of education, to place before our children such reading matter as will bend the tender twigs of their minds into a love of God and the truth that makes you free.

This is the object of church papers; as every honest professor believes that the distinctive features of the church to which he belongs are right, who can blame him for manifesting a desire to promulgate those doctrines as much as possible?

This week, finding myself in a great, noisy, bustling city with no acquaintance to interchange greetings with, and everybody seemingly bent on that all-absorbing business of "making money, honest if you can, but make money anyhow," I thought I experienced something of the isolation brethren and sisters sometime write about. Isolation in a city of ninety-five thousand people? Yes, indeed! isolated among all these people, from those of like precious faith. This proves to me that heaven could never be a place of happiness without Jesus and those that love him. THE BRETHREN AT WORK was the only acquaintance that visited me this week, and I read it with more than usual interest—wished it was three times as large. Felt more than ever the importance of having our papers filled only with such matter as will inspire us with a love for our blessed Redeemer and the great cause of salvation that He has so graciously instituted for our benefit, and leave out everything that has a tendency to incite contention and strife, or wound those that do not exactly agree with us.

Ballingsho, Ind., Nov. 20th, 1851.

For the Brethren at Work.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE.

BY DANIEL VANMAN.

IT is a mistake for mourners to follow the silly fashion of sitting in church with hats on and refuse to bow in prayer on funeral occasions. It is just as much in order to bow in prayer; and for men to pray with hats uncovered, and women with heads covered, as at any other time.

It is a mistake, to study astronomy, as if the planets would leave their orbits and be lost if we did not fully comprehend them, and remain so beastly ignorant of our own bodies and the laws that govern them that we will have ruined our health in a few years.

It is a mistake for one to imagine himself so important that the church could not afford to do without him; for it is a fact that the church can better afford to do without him than he can afford to do without the church.

It is a great mistake for brethren and sisters to talk and act as if the command "preach the Gospel to every creature" meant only in the country. Jesus preached principally in towns and cities; and from them it spread into the country. It doesn't spread well the other way.

It is more than a mistake after you have erred to lie about it. It is like trying to hide in a fog. If you move about you are liable to bump against the truth; and if you remain quiet until the fog clears away, you are gone sayhow.

CAUSE FOR LAMENTATION.

BY MARY C. NORMAN.

OUR heart is sad, and we have mourned over the unsettled state of the church. Why is it, Brethren? You who claim to exhibit a spirit of meekness, humility and forbearance in your conversation, criticize so much about the present condition of the church; is such work in harmony with the spirit of Christ? We, who have been born of the Spirit, will lament and mourn over divisions and strife in the church, and will certainly try with all our power to restore those again who were once esteemed among us, and who have gone out from among us, rather than to say "let them go," and not only that, but publish to the unconverted world all the wrongs and sins which they have committed. Such work, is just what Satan loves to see, and he rejoices because the church is divided; knowing that "a kingdom divided against itself cannot stand."

Brethren, above all things, have fervent charity among yourselves; for charity shall cover a multitude of sins. We feel sorry for those who have sinned among us; for they are certainly dear to us—Jesus died for them. Did not Jesus weep over the many sins of Jerusalem? We certainly have the example of weeping and lamentation set forth in the Word of God. Let us then weep for the erring ones, and try to restore them, rather than hold them up before the world that their sins may be known from the sting to the setting of the sun. Such work seems us very much. It gives the world a chance to speak evil of us. Brethren, do you not know that he which converteth a brother from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins?

"Leader and blind be all our thoughts,
Through all our lives let us see you;
So God forgives our numerous faults
For the dear sake of Christ, I pray."

For the Brethren at Work.

THE CHRISTIAN STANDARD ANALYZED.

BY L. J. ROSENBERGER.

DECENTLY, at the close of one of our meetings, a friend took occasion to distribute some papers to those around him; being near, I enquired what they were.

"The Christian Standard," replied the friend.

"Published by the Disciple friends in Cincinnati?" I enquired.

"Yes sir," replied the friend.

I remarked that "that paper cannot be the Christian Standard; for that means the standard of Christianity; the Bible is the standard of Christianity, and it teaches one doctrine, and your paper quite another."

"That is a subject open for controversy," replied the friend.

I replied, "The subject needs no controversy; for it is clear that the Bible—the real standard of Christianity, teaches the anointing of the sick with oil. (See Mark 6: 13. James 5: 14.) This same standard of Christianity holds up, as a Christian duty, the salvation of holy kids; while your paper does not teach the above doctrines. It is therefore not the standard of Christianity; hence is not the Christian standard."

We must save our neighbors' children or our own will go down with them. It is likely that, soon after removing to Sodom, Lot gave up preaching entirely, and soon after neglected family religion. At any rate his children became like those of his neighbors, and for want of religion the family was ruined. If Lot had been faithful, there is little doubt but that he would have had a church around him of at least ten members, and these would have saved Sodom. But he saved his children to drift with the current, and the stream carried them into the fiery lake. In self-interest we must save others. The alternative is we lose our own.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MILLER,

EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Miller, Le Sue, Henry Co., Mo.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in town? ELIAS HARNISU.

If man has a nature immortally, why do the Scriptures teach, (1 Cor. 15: 50) "The Lord will hab it?" The soul is not sinless, it shall die. Ec. 18: 4, 23. Immortality cannot die, and many other Scriptures of import, and Paul seem to imply, that it is to be put on at the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15: 55. The word immortal occurs only once in all the Scriptures, and then it is applied to God. 1 Tim 1: 17. A. B. C.

Will some brother or sister please explain Acts 13: 48? The passage reads thus: "And as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed." Did the ordination take place prior to the believing or subsequently? ISAAC H. MILLER.

Why is it, that in the parable of the unjust steward we are taught to take what is not our own? Can any one tell? L. A. PLATE.

For the Brethren at Work.

SEEING GOD.

Will some one please harmonize Exodus 24: 10 and John 1: 18. W. W. FOLGEM.

The verse referred to in Exodus reads as follows: "And he said: Behold I make a covenant. Before all the people I will do marvels, such as have not been done in the earth, nor in any nation; and all the people among which thou art, shall see the work of the Lord; for it is a terrible thing that I will do with thee."

The verse in John reads thus: "No man hath seen God at any time; the only-begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him."

There do not seem to exist any conflicting points between the two verses.

The verse in Exodus seems to be an answer to a request made by Moses in the preceding verse.

The promise made to Moses in the verse of the query, was no doubt fulfilled. Such wonders as were manifested among the Israelites were never seen or heard of before. Such as crossing the Jordan, when it overthrew its banks, as on dry land; the falling of the walls of Jericho; the sun and moon standing still for a day; the bite of serpents cured by licking at a brass serpent; great and many nations overthrown by mere handful of people (comparative); Samson killing a thousand men with the jaw-bone of an ass; David killing Goliath. Hundreds of other cases might be mentioned, to prove the fulfillment of the words of God in the verse referred to.

In John 18: 1, the first clause reads: "No man hath seen God at any time." This, too, the Bible says, "For there shall no man see me and live." Ec. 33: 20. God is so pure, and just, and holy, that we in our sinful, and corrupt nature, could not look upon Him and live.

For this reason our spirits need to be purified by the disciplinary measures of the Gospel, till, at last, our natural bodies are thrown off by death, and our spirits go to God, till in the resurrection morn; then our spirits will be clothed upon with a body that is all glorious and fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body. The latter clause reads: "The only begotten Son which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him."

From this clause we learn that God has been declared, by His Son. While we cannot see God in this life, we are glad that we have a declaration of Him. By the term "declared," we understand that God has been made known unto us by His Word and the gift of His Son; also his will concerning us.

God, then, has been declared in His attribute of love, in giving us a Savior. His wisdom has been declared in the excellency of the teachings of Christ. "Never man spake like this man." His power has been declared in stilling the waves of Galilee; in bringing Lazarus forth from the grave, in feeding thousands from a few loaves and fishes. His mercy has been declared in healing the sick, cleansing lepers, giving sight to the blind; in the sufferings, and death, and triumphant resurrection of Christ, in order to redeem us from the powers of darkness and make us heirs of immortal glory.

All this is characteristic and worthy of a God; and more than fills our highest conception of God. Such a God, Jesus Christ has declared unto us.

Well might John say, "The only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, He hath declared Him." J. S. M.

For the Brethren at Work.

THREE CIRCUMCISIONS.

FIRST, the circumcision of the foreskin of the flesh, on the 8th day. This is Jewish.

Second—The foreskin of the heart by the Lord Jesus. This is Christian.

Third—That of the head,—the cutting off of the foreskin of ignorance, which will occur on the 8th day, allowing a thousand years for a day. This is heavenly. C.

From the Inner Ocean.

ST. JOHN AND THE ISLE OF PATMOS.

How did St. John escape from the Isle of Patmos, or did he ever escape at all? M.

MOST writers agree that St. John was banished to the solitary, barren Isle of Patmos, in the Aegean Sea, under Domitian, and that he was set free on the accession of Nerva, which occurred soon after, and returned to Ephesus.

GOOD RULES.

THE following is the list of the moral virtues, being rules drawn up by Benjamin Franklin, to which he paid constant attention:

Temperance—Eat not to fullness; do all things in moderation.

Silence—Speak not but what may benefit others or yourself; avoid trifling conversation.

Order—Let all your things have their places; let each part of your business have its time.

Resolution—Resolve to perform what you ought; perform without fail what you resolve.

Frugality—Make no expens; but do good to others as yourself; that is waste nothing.

Industry—Lose no time; be always employed in something useful, but avoid all unnecessary actions.

Sincerity—Use no hurtful deceit; think innocently and justly, and, if you speak, speak accordingly.

Justice—Wrong no one by doing injuries, or omitting the benefits that are your duty.

Moderation—Avoid extremes; forbear resenting injuries.

Cleanliness—Suffer no uncleanness in body, clothes, or habitation.

Tranquillity—Be not disturbed about trifles, or at accidents, common or unavoidable.

Humility—Imitate Jesus Christ.

For the Brethren at Work.

A FEW THOUGHTS.

DIVINE Inspiration tells us: "Forasmuch, then, as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that God can be worshipped by an instrument made by art or man's device."

It methinks David looked forward to a grander dispensation in which we now hear the voice of the Apostle James saying: "Is any among you afflicted? Let him pray. Is any merry? Let him sing Psalms." How different men would now say! If any be merry, let him play the organ or musical instrument made by the hand of man.

We are commanded to worship God in spirit and truth. Has a piece of furniture made by man, any spirit?

What does the word "play" mean? We read of a class of people which sat down to eat and rose up to play.

I would rather be considered narrow-minded or even an hypocrite, than to go back to the old law, (which was good enough when we had no better) for Scripture to prove any doctrine! Why not take the sword David did? No wonder gross evil's are coming in the thick.

ELLEN SPICKLER.

EPICURUS said: "It is dangerous to fall into impure conversation; when anything of the kind is said before you, if the place and person permit, remove him that spoke; if that is not convenient, by your blushes and your silence show at least that you are displeased."

HAPPINESS is like manna. It must be gathered in the grains and enjoyed every day; it will not keep; it cannot be accumulated; nor need we go out of ourselves nor into remote places to gather it, since it has rained down from Heaven on our very deers, or rather within them. Mankind would be far better and happier, if they would only enjoy the good that each day brings with it.

Correspondence.

From J. W. Metzger.—Left home Sept. 10th to attend a council meeting near West Lebanon county, Indiana, which was held on the 13th. A gain left home Oct. 4th and next day met with quite a number of brethren and sisters in the Santa Fe church at 2 P. M. . . . Had a very good communion that evening; about two hundred communed. . . . Next morning started for Howard county. Met the same day at 2 P. M. with a good many of our dear brethren and sisters of the Howard church once more to commune together. It was truly a meeting of rejoicing. . . . Our aged brother Hiel Hamilton is the elder of the church. On the 26th of Oct., went to Pymont, Carroll Co., but did not get there until the evening at 4 P. M., as we attended the funeral of an old sister. Met with a good many members with whom we so often communed, and also old brother Elias Caylor from Arcadia, one of the older elders of Southern Indiana. One was baptized. The next Feast was the 29th ult., in our congregation—Middle Fork church, Clinton county. It is said by all that it was a feast of love. About 225⁺ communed. . . . Nov. 1st.—Met again in the Bachelor Run church at 2 P. M., when quite a large number of members communed. Much love seemed to prevail. From there we went to the Lower Deer Creek church; held one meeting on the evening of the 2d. . . . Next morning left for Miami Co., Ohio, to attend a Love feast near Roann. On the 4th, at 2 P. M., met again with a crowded house; and in the evening had one of those communions that will not soon be forgotten. Remained there over Sunday; had three meetings, and all well attended. . . . On Monday morning, Nov. 8th, went to Howard Co., to attend a council meeting. . . . All the above named meetings were well attended and had the best of order. . . . Arrived home on the 10th of Nov. Found all well. Many thanks to the good Lord.—Edna Mills, Ind.

From B. F. Moomaw.—My visit, with its labors to West Virginia, is now with the things that are past. My journeying toward that country was attended with discouragements and disappointments. The cars failed to make connection at three different points, and thus putting me behind time, I failed to meet the brethren at the place appointed, and had to make my way as best I could on foot. I chanced to get conveyance on market wagons; but failed to reach the place of appointment for our first day. Next day was taken to the Beaver Run meeting-house, where a Love-feast was prepared. Here I met brethren C. Wine and J. P. Zigler from Broadway, Virginia, and we entered together upon the labors incident to the occasion. Had a good congregation at night, and good order. . . . Sunday morning.—Congregation very large, and attention good. Afternoon meeting likewise. As it appeared to me, the most that were present felt that it was "good to be there." At this time the brethren from the Valley left me to attend some outside appointments, I remaining to continue the meeting. Preached two sermons each day up to Thursday, when the meeting closed, in a good state of mind and feeling, I think. A large number of brethren and sisters came forward to give the parting hand. I here formed many pleasant associations, with whom I hope to meet over there where parting will be no more. . . . The Brethren here have one of the best meeting-houses that I have seen, and the members seem to be alive and in harmony. Not much sympathy with the extreme element either way. This is the way it should be, and I advise the churches everywhere to be slow to make haste. Give no encouragement to the disorganizers and disturbers of the peace. Cast your anchor and furl your sails until the storm of excitement is past and the sea will be smooth and calm again. . . . From here I went on Friday morning, conveyed by the brethren some fifteen miles through storm and snow, and met at brother William George's at 11 A. M. Afternoon went some seven or eight miles, and stopped at friend D-illy's, who, with his kind family, (some of whom are members) spared no pains to make us comfortable. May the Lord reward them for their kindness. . . . Next day met the Valley Brethren at the new meeting-house of the Lunier's Creek congregation. Meeting commenced at 10 A. M., and closed Sunday afternoon as did the other meeting spoken of above. The brethren here also have a good house on the way, not yet quite finished. What we have said of the other may be said in the main of this; not as many members, and having come out of some tribulations, are now at peace and united on conservative ground. The brethren left me here again, and I continued the meeting up to Thursday noon, delivered a farewell address, and took our leave with manifest emotions of fraternal regards for each other, and with many expressions pointing to this period as the dawn of a new day, and a glorious consummation on the other side. . . . Left this point to attend a meeting some five miles distant, and to anoint an old afflicted brother. Quite a number of the members followed to this meeting to witness the solemnity of this exercise. . . . From this point was conveyed by the brethren a distance of sixty miles to Broadway. I remained with the brethren in the Valley several days. Had two meetings. Would have remained longer, but being impaired by the excessive labors and exposure to the damp and chilly weather, prudence admonished me that rest and recreation were needful for me. . . . Returning to the place which on earth I call my home, I found all well and doing well, for which I feel grateful to the Father of all mercies, and Author of all good. . . . The members with whom I met in the Valley of Virginia are steadfast in the faith, and having no use for the extreme elements, if any of their emissaries should intrude upon their territory they would be likely to meet a cold reception.—Bonsacks, Va., Nov. 18.

From Dennis Clark.—On the 20th of October we attended the Feast in the Beaver Run congregation, Mineral county, W. Va. Ministers present from a distance, B. F. Moomaw, Bonsacks, Va., John Zigler and C. Wine, Broadway, Va. It was a feast indeed. The ordinances were faithfully observed according to the established rules of the church. The meeting was continued over Sunday. Sunday, at 10 o'clock, brother Moomaw delivered an able discourse in his usual pleasant, happy style from Heb. 6: 1, 2, and at 2 P. M. brother Zigler preached an interesting discourse which was listened to with good attention. Brother Moomaw continued meeting a few days; brother Zigler and Wine departed to labor in other localities. . . . This church is under the supervision of brethren D. B. Arnold and Solomon Biser, and is in a prospering condition. Their meeting-house is a model of neatness, and is perhaps the best in the State. . . . On the 5th and 6th inst., our Feast was held in the Greenland church, (formerly Luney's Creek) Grant Co. Brethren Moomaw, Wine, and Zigler were present at our meeting, also brethren S. A. Fike and Jesse Hays from our own State. Our meeting was a pleasant and profitable one. Brother Moomaw officiated. Brother Moomaw delivered an able defence of the ordinances, which was listened to with marked attention. If some of our brethren who think that that kind of preaching is not admissible on such occasions had been present and noticed the attention and feeling that pervaded the entire congregation while brother Moomaw was talking, they would undoubtedly have been well pleased, and would not be so quick in abandoning this old custom of our Brethren. The ordinances were faithfully observed in their Scriptural order. Brother Zigler delivered an excellent discourse on the sufferings of Christ. . . . On Sunday brother Moomaw preached a talling sermon at 10 o'clock A. M., and at 2 P. M. brother Fike improved the occasion. All our ministering brethren left us Sunday evening, except brother Moomaw, who remained until the evening of the 10th, warning both saint and sinner. . . . Brother M.'s manner of preaching is too well known in the Brotherhood at large to need any description by me. Some good impressions were made, which we pray may result in yielding abundant fruit. The church here is left in a much better condition, the members much encouraged. On the 11th, brother M. bid farewell to our locality. It was our pleasant privilege to convey him to Broadway, Va. . . . On the 13th, we had the privilege of hearing our brethren preach a discourse at the Brethren church in Rockingham Co., Va., at M. V. Grove. May the good Lord bless our brother for his labor of love among us. He also can reward him.—Maysville, W. Va., Nov. 18th.

From D. W. C. Ran.—Our Love-feast is in the past. The meeting was largely attended, with good order. A number of ministers were present from adjoining churches and preached the Word with power. . . . I am well pleased with the B. at W., and hope it will continue to hold to the Gospel order which was once delivered unto the saints by Jesus and the apostles. Will continue to take the B. at W. as long as it holds forth the Word of God.—Curry, Ohio.

From A. C. Killefer.—Big Creek church Communion is in the past; had a pleasant time. Though the Feast was not so largely attended, all those that did attend enjoyed a soul-refreshing season. Ministering brother from abroad was Jonas Jealton, of Lawrence Co., Illinois. The Brethren had intended to hold a choice for a minister, but had to defer the matter, there not being any elders from other congregations present, but will attend to it in the near future, when brother John Metzger will be present. The church appointed John Forney of Parkersburg, Richland county, Jacob Michaels, of Fairfield, and G. W. Bowers, of Noble, to receive calls for the preaching as prescribed in the 12th District Meeting.—Parkersburg, Ill., Nov. 17th.

From J. C. Lehman.—In our last we were stopping at Frederick City, Md., where Bro. J. M. Mohler has been holding meetings. This point has been considered under city mission work for about two years. Bro. Dr. Forney resides here; and has induced the Brethren to come here and preach. Their work was not in vain, as there are now from twenty to twenty-five members in and near the city. Our stay with the brethren and friends while at this place was pleasant.... The meeting is now being held by brethren Mohler and Stouffer, of Beaver Creek. Wife and I remained over two days and preached twice. Before we left, brethren E. Stoner, Hoover, and Metzger arrived. The meetings were well attended considering the wet weather. It is designed to hold a communion meeting on the evening of the 14th. It is to be hoped this meeting will show us in a more favorable light to the people. What the result of the meeting will be, time will tell.... Brethren, remember the city missions. They need our support with which is useful to sustain and defray expenses.... We now leave northward; cross the South mountains to Boonsborough, near the Antietam battle field; and visit my old home on the banks of the Potomac river. My thoughts run back to school-boy days. Many changes have taken place however. When I ask, where are many once resided here? The answer comes: They have gone; some here, some there; but many to the eternal world. Brethren, as we travel from place to place and hear of the disturbance in the church, is it not an indication of the falling away that shall come? Then let us watch and pray more for the cause of Christ and unity of the church. Weather has been very wet for two weeks past; at this writing however it is fair; a slight frost last night 16th inst.... Winter wears looks fine, with a large acreage sown.—Abbotstown, Pa.

From H. S. Young.—I have been visiting the Brethren at Mt. Morris a short time, and feel like returning my sincere thanks for the kindness manifested towards me during my presence. I have been paying some attention to the proceedings of the school and the manner in which it is conducted. Everything seems to move on in a quiet, peaceable and humble way.... I was made to rejoice to see so many young members of our church attending school. I hope and trust their main object in view is to serve the Lord.—New Berlin, Stark Co., Ohio.

From Geo. L. Studebaker.—Our Love-feast, which was held Oct. 4th in the Missionary church near Eaton, Ind., is past, and long to be remembered by the brethren and sisters here. It is truly a joyful season to be seated around the Lord's table, and there have sweet communion with God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ and with one another.... Bro. Jacob Rife and Daniel Bowman were with us, and held forth the Word of God with power. We were truly sorrowful, believing that much good could be accomplished if they could have stayed longer. We held an election for a speaker, and the lot fell on brother Jacob Harlick. Brethren George W. Studebaker, John U. Studebaker, Samuel Younka, Jacob Rarich, and the writer are the laboring brethren.—Shideler, Ind., Nov. 19th.

From C. H. Balsbaugh.—Our beloved brother Moore takes exception to my "Mystery of Mysteries" on the ground of its lacking in dignity and purity. The comparison in the first sentence is unique but pertinent. I had just been trying the spring of a new knife, and was pleased with its clear, metallic snap; and when I read Dr. Flowers' letter on the gross and almost universal violation of organic law his sharp, ringing, logical snap reminded me of my new knife. And so the reference slipped in naturally, without a suspicion that it was either undignified or unchaste.... The principle for which I so strongly plead in "Mystery of Mysteries" is unutterably dear to me; and brother Moore, and all other good souls, will please bear with me if I employ language which on the face of it seems "considerably below the dignity and purity of style" for which they look when gashing and ripping and laying bare the habits that drag millions to inevitable ruin. No one can vindicate the private sanctities of life, and lance the stealthy ulcers and uncover the ghastly leprosy of modern society, without offences to the taste of some readers. I venture on no theme, defend no principle, and lay bare no abomination, where I see not a clear warrant in the Divine Incarnation. The manhood which God developed in Christ, it is His purpose to develop in the Christian.

From L. D. Witter.—The Holy Spirit is still striving with his people, and the good work goes on. On the 16th after regular services three promising youths were buried with Christ in baptism. On the 19th a father, mother, and their son made the good confession and in like manner were added to the fold. Peace and union prevail, and may we all follow the guidance of the good spirit and keep close to the foot of the cross, so that the spirit of strife and disunion may never enter our peaceful band, is our sincere desire.—Mexico, Ind., Nov. 23rd.

From J. R. Keller.—On the 5th Sunday of September, Joseph Glick and the writer held three meetings at Watson, Mo.,—a town on the K. C. St. Joe & C. B. R. R. There are a few members living there that formerly belonged to this arm of the church. Had good order and attention.... But now to Farragut, Iowa. On the 4th of November I left home to attend a Love feast at Farragut, Iowa. Had a good meeting, though disappointed in ministerial aid, there being no one present but the writer and home ministers. Found the church in a prosperous condition, under the care of Bro. B. F. Flory. Found them earnest Christian workers.—Mound City, Mo., Nov. 17th.

From F. C. Myere.—In No. 42, page 668, you will see an article from me, headed F. C. Myere. The name Shamber should be Shomberger. I received $30.00 from brother J. Metzger which he collected to pay ball rent in this city. Also $1.00 from brother J. O. Culler, Milford, Ind. We are glad to know that there are some brethren and sisters who think of us. May God bless them. They shall in no wise lose their reward. Pray for us that we may be spared from the enemy.—St. Louis, Mo.

IT IS PAST.

For once and the first time I thought I would try, through the merits of God, to write something concerning our Sunday-school. It was closed for the year. Had a good school this Summer, and many of us learned many useful lessons of our Savior. The little folks labored hard committing verses. We rewarded them with prizes, which they appreciated very much. We also rewarded them with reward cards. These were given them for their regular attendance and good order. Our officers were as follows: Charley Hillery, Superintendent; Henry Troup, Assistant Superintendent. It was largely attended most of the time, and was one of interest. Many questions were answered. Many of the young no doubt learned many useful lessons. We can search the Scriptures and always find something new to read. Sunday-school is something of importance. May learn something they never knew by attending Sunday-school and having the Scriptures explained.

MARY C. TURNER.

Pearia City, Iowa.

The Real Issue.

Bro. M. M. E.:—

Having just read your article on the Berlin question, under the above title, I feel to say that it is a logical elucidation of the subjects in a proper spirit. Many and harsh have been the criticisms against the work of that committee, while but little thought is given to the critical circumstances under which that committee was placed. Being present on the occasion, I thought then and think now, that if H. R. H. would have been simply gentle toward the committee, he would have sought legal permission to conduct his trials in a manner so different from the usages of the church, and thus evade throwing the committee under such embarrassing circumstances. Three of the members of the Berlin committee were members of the Ashland committee. A charge was presented to that committee against a former committee for admitting outsiders in a former council. This the Ashland committee condemned. I now ask the candid reader how those brethren could go to Berlin, and admit outsiders in the council, after they condemned it at Ashland?

I. J. ROSENBERGER.

PEOPLE in a position seldom wish their questions answered with reason.

From Sarah M. Saunders.—On the morning of Nov. 5th we left our home to attend the Love feast in Noocho county church, which was held at the home of our beloved brother and sister, David and Mary Cram. Arrived there at 3 o'clock P. M. that evening, the distance being forty miles. Found brethren and sisters gathered together from far and near. Preaching in the afternoon; evening services opened at 5 P. M. There was quite a number of able ministers present, among whom were elder A. J. Hixon, formerly of Ohio; Martin Baghly, formerly of Waterloo, Iowa; John P. Hess, Sydney Hodgdon and others. The meeting was held in a tent and the weather was most beautiful, which made the meeting enjoyable in every respect. Preaching Sunday morning; quite an interesting sermon by our esteemed brother Hixon, from the 10th chap. of 2 Cor., followed by brother Baghly. After meeting one received by letter, and one by baptism. . . . Perhaps it will not be out of place to say there was also a wedding on Sunday morning.—Mr. George Berry to Miss Emma Kester, solemnized by A. J. Hixon. . . . Oh how refreshing are these happy reunions, how it cheers us on our way through this world of trials and temptations. I sometimes think if they could only last always; how pleasant it would be if we could always remain in company with our Father's children. Perhaps the time is not far distant when we shall all be gathered home; may we all be ready.—Independence, Kan.

From Samuel Ross.—About eight years ago I cast my lot with the Brethren, finding out that they took the New Testament for their only creed. I had given up all creeds and was outside of creeds; I intend to be with the Brethren as long as they go with the Word. At that time there were two sisters and one brother here, now there are twenty members; we belong to Sunfield district. Bro. Friggle, our elder, thought we should organize, hence, appointed the first Saturday in Nov. We came together and a choice was held for a deacon; the lot fell on Samuel White; he is zealous in the cause of God, and we hope it will be for the interest and the cause of Christ. In the evening and Sunday we had meeting in the village of Dimondale, in the Methodist church. The elder preached in the spirit, and had the best attention. Some time ago three inmates of the County-house were baptized; one man was over seventy years old. God has chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith and heirs of his kingdom.—Mt. Windsor, Mich., Nov. 14th.

From John Knisley.—Arrived at Bro. Robert Badger's church Nov. 1st. Stopped at Bro. Samuel Badger's, he being a speaker. In the evening had meeting; small congregation; rained all evening; good order and attention. On the 2nd elder R. Badger brought us to his house. In the evening had a very good meeting. Here we met our brother Allen Boyer and wife; they have been traveling through the western States among the members for the last four months. We were glad to meet them; they travel by their own conveyance. Bro. Badger is a sound brother; his church is in good order; I heard nothing but praise and union. On the 3rd brother Badger and the sister took us to Bro. Christian Lohr; he has been much afflicted and looks poorly. In the evening had preaching again; hopes of some coming out on the Lord's side. On the 4th we went to visit our sister Fitch, eighty-five years old. We had a season of prayer with her, which gave her much comfort, and said, "Remember me wherever you bow in prayer." . . . On the 4th of Nov. had meeting again. On the 5th visited brother Walker's; had meeting again; good attendance and splendid service. Preaching on Sunday, the 6th, at the Quail Trap school-house; had two meetings here; never saw better order. From here we were taken to R. D. Field station, where we took the train for Pandora, Iowa; here we were met by friend John Baiegier formerly from Elkhart Co., Ind. His wife is a sister in the church; we were treated very kindly by them. From here we were taken to meeting by brother Benjamin Miller. We hope our children and friends will write. Address us at H. Way, Shelby Co., Iowa.—Pandora, Iowa, Nov. 14th.

From J. D. Haughtelin.—Bro. John Knisley and companion of Ind., arrived here a week ago. He preached four times in our meeting-house, and twice in Pandora; the continued rain and bad roads made the attendance rather small, and entirely prevented two meetings in Dale City. T-day they go to Harlan, Shelby Co. Bro. John seems much interested in the work of the Master; he reports the churches thus far visited in peace and harmony and less conformed to the world than in the east. As the light of the sun and darkness of night begin in the east, may it not be even so with the light of the Gospel and the darkness of worldly wisdom.—Pandora, Iowa, Nov. 14th.

Still United, Hence Stand.

We are happy to see that the Southern District of Mo., after dark clouds have passed over, can be set down as solid for the Brotherhood in the even tenor of its way. Then, dear Brethren, just over the river to your north, is another district of about 25,000 square miles which still offers you the united hand of fellowship "in the even tenor of its way." So far no local trouble is heard of in this district. A strong immigration of members from other districts bearing good letters. And we have no question at issue that threatens us with dissolution, or even discord.

C. C. Root.

Report of Southern Mission Field of Ind.

NUMBER II.

On the evening of Nov. 5th we began our meetings, according to previous announcement, in Pike Co., with a well-filled house. Had meeting on Sunday at 10:30 A. M., also at night with good interest. Meeting on church night until Tuesday night.

Having a desire to know whether the members here were at peace with each other, we visited the members from house to house, and on account of the inconvenient use in reaching some of the members with a vehicle, we concluded to walk; we began on Monday afternoon. In company with Bro. Braunson and Bro. Henry Tranter (a worthy deacon) we visited all that day, excepting our zealous young sister M. J. Miller, who was teaching school about three miles distant, whom we visited on Tuesday.

Soon after we started it began to rain, and not having our overcoats with us, we got a good soaking. But to our encouragement, we found the members in love and peace with each other. We proposed to hold a communion with these members, to which they assented. Arrangements were made, and on Thursday evening we held the communion, (Bro. Braunson officiating) which was as enjoyable a season, circumstances considered, as any communion we were ever at, although it was the smallest, only eight communicants; two sisters and six brethren being present.

This occasion created quite a sensation in the congregation; some being averse, but professors and non-professors, who with unbroken attention compared the precepts with the examples, confessed on next day that they tried their "best" to detect a discord in the harmony, and afterward acknowledged that they could find none.

Then there were others in the congregation who were amazed at the simplicity, and seeming foolishness of observing these little things, which brought to our mind Luke 9:26; "For who never shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, &c.," which we used as a text the following evening, when, as we have reason to believe, the congregation felt the weight and eternal importance of those little things, judging from the solemnity and flood of tears; so that many of them could scarcely speak the word "Farewell." We are of the opinion that good will result in Pike Co., from the meeting.

We no doubt should have remained longer, but as Bro. Tranter had conveyed us to this point, and his family not being well at the time, we left them. We thought it but brotherly charity to respect his wishes, hence, on Friday night after our last meeting, after waiting a few hours for moonlight and less rain, at about 11:30 P. M. we launched into rain and mud, the rain continuing until about 4 A. M. In that time we experienced what it is to be lost, traveling about seven or eight miles out of the way. This did not add to our comfort. Pardon us, brethren and sisters for thinking of many of you who were safely housed and warmly bedded during these few long hours. We were compelled to do this to avoid disappointment. We arrived at Bro. Tranter's near Shells, Martin Co., late, on Saturday evening.

We think we are safe in saying that this is the last trip that need necessarily be made by private conveyance from Martin, to Pike Co., as there is a railroad in course of construction, running within twelve or fifteen rods of the place of meeting; and station, it is supposed, will be at this point, hence these members need not be neglected.

This point can be reached by running from Indianapolis to Princeton via Vincennes. From Princeton to Oak and; farther than this, stations are not positively established; but the line is to be completed on the first of Jan., 1882.

LEWIS W. TRILLER.

THE highest characteristic of character, of power and of dignity lies within the reach of the lowliest and the poorest.

MISERABLE

all the time. This is the way a gentleman described his feelings. How many more there are who feel just the same! A careful observer estimates that nine out of ten people are not well. Something is wrong all the time.

Probably nobody wants to be sick just for the fun of it, and nearly everybody tries one thing and another in the vain hope that it will cure them; but, in most cases, they find themselves no better for the trial.

There is no reason why they can't be cured if they go about it in the right way; but they generally take the wrong way, and then think there is no use trying any more, and so keep getting worse instead of better.

If a man has dyspepsia he can take red pepper pills, and it will afford temporary relief; but it won't be long till the stomach refuses to be stimulated in this way, and then he is far worse than before, for the remedy has seriously injured him.

A weak man can fill himself with whiskey and for a short time he may imagine he is a great strength, but it won't be long till that whiskey and he will be weaker than before.

What, then, is the right way? The only permanent and satisfactory remedy for most of the troubles of mankind is that which will invigorate and strengthen the whole system. This can only be done by beginning at the origin of life, which is the BLOOD. No one whose blood is strong and healthy can be sick; therefore, if the blood is purified and invigorated, disease cannot remain.

HOLD YOUR BREATH

The Scriptures say: "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."

Cases are on record where patients lost the power of evacuating the bowels in a natural way, and yet lived for years. In such cases nature provides that when the food is digested the stomach is emptied by vomiting.

A case of this kind occurred about twelve years ago, in Ashland Co., Ohio, and is by some deemed incredible, hence this explanation. The lady was cured by the use of FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER, and for some years her statement of the cure was published. In June of this year, 1881, Dr. Fahrney attended Conference at Ashland, Ohio, when Mrs. Baker was introduced to him. She reiterated the statement and begged that it might be again published for the benefit of other sufferers. Ministers and others who know of the case are willing to verify what is here published.

TESTIMONIALS

Ashland, Ohio Dec. 3, 1872.
Eld. Moses Weaver says: "I received the two dozen Vitalizer all right. It sells rapidly, and is doing wonders. I expect to report a most wonderful cure before long, as the cure is being brought about very rapidly."

The cure was efficient, and indeed of Eld. Weaver's report the young lady's own statement is given.

Rev. H. W. Oliver, Ohio Dec. 25, 1872.
DR. P. FAHRNEY—I had dyspepsia in June, 1877, and that left a burning pain on my stomach. The pain grew worse in the spring of 1880, May 5, I consulted every time after I had eaten. The vomiting continued daily from the commencement until I used your medicine. In March, 1880, I had no more, and my bowels became so constipated that I got a large lump in my stomach, which proved my great pain. Eight doctors of various orders tried, but they could do nothing for me. About the 15th of May, 1880, I had a passage from my bowels, and I felt better. On the 25th of May, 1880, I had a stool. My bowels opened again. This has occurred many times, and I have no more pain on my bowels.

I feel that if you could see me, you would be proud of me, as I feel that I am a new man. I feel that the cure is a great blessing to me, and by the word of you I have been completely cured. On this 11th of May, 1880, I had a very good stool in my head. I had shooting pains in my stomach, and at the time my bowels opened, the pains did about like shooting pains. I never was so sick. I did not intend to write, but by request of Eld. Weaver I have written.

HANNAH BAKER.

THE THIRD-DAY AGUE CURED.

Brownington, Mo., Aug. 6, 1881.
DR. FAHRNEY, Sir—My father sold out some of your medicine when I lived in Indiana. It cured me of the third-day ague, when everything else failed.

SILVESTER BURKS.

Elkhaville, Pa.

DR. P. FAHRNEY, Dear Sir—I will try and send you money with an order in a few days. I had a fever, there are persons waiting for it. Brother John Bennett and wife have taken one bottle between them, and you have had them some good. They will they should try you. Brother John is our minister.

My daughter has taken one-half bottle, and it is helping her already. Very truly yours,
EVELINE SHAFER.
(Maconette.)

Colts, Ill., July 2, 1881.

DR. FAHRNEY—I received the medicine all right, and found it just as good as represented, and I think it will be well.

I am too old a lady to get an agent, but I will find one for you who perfectly honest and true.
Yours truly,
MRS HANNAH SWEARINGIN, JR.

Prague Depot, O., July 27, 1881.

DEAR SIR: Send me one dozen Vitalizer and some Cream. I would like to become an agent. Those bottles come to hand and they were all sold inside of two weeks, and now the order came about every day for the medicine, of which I am so sure.

ISAAC THOMSON. (Maconette.)

If any of our readers desire a good blood cleanser write to Bro. P. Fahrney, Chicago, Ill., for his VITALIZER.—The Vindicator.

GIVE AWAYS.

People can hardly be expected to try everything that is offered them in these days without some evidence of good faith on the part of the would-be benefactor.

Dr. Fahrney has hit on a plan that gives universal satisfaction.

A man has very sore eyes, his blood is out of order because his kidneys no longer drain the system of impurities.

He has been advised to use VITALIZER, but having tried so many Blood medicines—paid out so much money—is discouraged.

Dr. P. then says to him, "You need goggles—in fact you must have them. A pair will cost you 35 cents. I sell you a small bottle VITALIZER for 25 cents, and make you a present of the goggles. If you are not benefited by the VITALIZER then you still have the eye glasses, which are worth all you paid for the medicine."

Not every one is in need of goggles but may need something else. Anything you see in a book or drug store can be furnished in this way, even agents' profits on Sewing Machines are given away to further introduce that invaluable remedy FAHRNEY'S VITALIZER.

These "give aways" are bought from first hands at first cost. Dr. F. has given away clocks, washing machines, cloth wringers, carpet stretchers, Testaments, Bibles, and other books and has yet to hear of one disappointed person.

By this method Dr. Fahrney hopes to make at least three thousand new agents for 1882, and thus avoid sending out traveling men and peddlers who are beginning to be looked upon by the people as a kind of nuisance.

In another place, is a list of "give aways." These offers are only made in the latter part of each year, and must be accepted or declined at the very time when offered.

From January to June there is a rush of business when small orders are not solicited.

All money that is sent in a registered letter or money order, comes at the Doctor's risk—safe arrival of packages guaranteed. Anything you ask will be promptly answered if in relation to this business.

Address DR. P. FAHRNEY,
Chicago, Ill.

GIVE AWAY LIST.

OFFER NO. 1.—A $25 Sewing Machine, and $300 box of small bottles Vitalizer will be bought, created and delivered in the depot in any address on receipt of $160.00. Any machine you may name can be furnished at lowest price.

OFFER NO. 2.—A Bible Dictionary and Brown's Concise Bible, 500 pages, with a $100 The American Multiple Dictionary with $200. A watch worth from $5 to $8 and a $10 box Blood Vitalizer on receipt of $50.

OFFER NO. 5. Shiloh's Complete Works $2.00. Popular Dictionary $2.00. Four 25 ct. books on the Great Pyramid, and India $1.00. 25 ct. Home Book $5.00, and a $100 box of VITALIZER, for $7.00.

OFFER NO. 4.—A $100 Watch, Dictionary, and a $100 box of VITALIZER, for $7.50

OFFER NO. 3.—Four books on the Pyramid, Infidel Silenced and Home Book together with a $500 box VITALIZER, and I promise to make an effort at maintaining the same, for $100.

OFFER NO. 6.—Will send EXPRESS FREE to any part of the United States and Canada, a $100 box VITALIZER on receipt of $100 and a small bottle FREE on your part to introduce the medicine. You are then at liberty to name fifty articles either of books, jewelry, or other plated ware, which you can have for little cost, and I will give them to you and include the retail price the articles to be named within a month. This is on the principle that one favor is worth another. The medicine is warranted to give satisfaction.

Address DR. P. FAHRNEY,
Chicago, Ill.

SPECIAL

Never apply to an agent for a 25 CENT bottle VITALIZER. They are not supplied with small bottles which are only to be had of Dr. Fahrney in Chicago.

Never apply to any one else but an agent for a LARGE bottle VITALIZER. He will show you a shipping receipt to convince you that he gets his supply from Chicago, and has the genuine article.

If there is no agent near you then apply for terms. It will be worth something worth to have the agent. There are quite a number of ladies selling VITALIZER and they are doing well. Any traveling person can apply.

Dr. Fahrney is not engaged in any other business outside his own. The goods he offers as "give aways" are bought in the market by an experienced buyer.

THE PROPRIETOR,

Dr. P. Fahrney, of Chicago, is the only "Fahrney" and the only "Doctor Fahrney" now living who puts up Blood Medicine. All others are merely pirating his good name. He has no interest in anything but his own, and has no partners and no "brothers" in the business.

For "Outfit" and Pamphlets, Posters, etc. apply without delay, Address,

DR. P. FAHRNEY,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

Dec. 2, at 10 A. M. Pleasant Hill church, near Virden, Macoupin Co., Ill.
Dec. 25, Cerro Gordo church, Platt Co., Ill.

Matrimonial.

DRURY—KLINE.—In the Stone church, Marshall county, Iowa, on the 13th, inst., Isaiah Drury and Mary A. Kline. Ceremony performed by Eld. John Mohr.

OGAN—GARDNER.—By the undersigned, at the residence of the bride's parents, Nov. 3rd, Mr. Geo. Ogan and Miss Elizabeth Gardner, both of Wabash Co., Ind. J. R. CRUMKINE.

Fallen Asleep.

Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord.—Rev. 14: 13.

LOOKINGBILL.—In the Coon River church, Ia., Oct. 17, Ida Lookingbill, daughter of Bro. Henry and sister Elizabeth Lookingbill, aged 10 years, 6 months and five days. Before her departure she expressed herself as being reconciled with God, ready and willing to die. Funeral services by Bro. J. W. Diehl from latter clause of Jas. 4: 14. J. D. H.

PIPPINGER.—At Yellow Creek congregation, Ind., Oct. 30, Joseph Pippinger, aged 67 years, 7 months and 27 days.

BAINTER.—At the same place, Nov. 11, Daniel Bainter, aged 84 years, 2 months and 12 days. J. R. MILLER.

YOUNG.—In the Log Creek church, Caldwell Co., Mo., Oct. 23th, Bro. Hezekiah Young, aged 40 years, 8 months and 1 day.

HENDERSON.—Also, Aug. 23th, William Henderson, of diphtheria, aged 11 years, 6 months and 7 days. C. C. ROOF.

WILLIAMS.—In the Somerset congregation, Wash County, Ind., Oct. 16, 1881, sister Emeline Williams.

ZIGLER.—At same place Oct. 27th, Bro. Joseph Zigler, aged 50 years and 10 months. J. R. CRUMKINE.

BOWERS.—In the Washington Creek church, Douglas Co., Kan., sister Mary Bowers, aged 72 years, 9 months and 13 days.

Gidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Treasurer's Report,

Of Receipts and Expenditures for Annual Meeting of the church of the Brethren, held at Ashland, Ohio, June 1881.

Cattle and meat delivered to cooks.....	$159 46
61½ lbs flour and baking.....	620 87
145½ lbs sugar.....	138 23
400 lbs coffee.....	67 16
65 lbs tea.....	39 50
240 gallons apple butter.....	120 00
157½ barrels pickles.....	82 50
147½ lbs butter.....	228 32
2920 lbs milk.....	30 00

Salt, pepper, ice, etc.....	16 38
Firewood.....	40 00
Cooks.....	25 00
Extra Police.....	63 60
Dryaise and express.....	35 50
2½ gross of knives and forks.....	131 63
28 gross of spoons.....	51 70
148 dozen plates.....	134 80
165 dozen cups and saucers.....	143 29
Tinware.....	126 04
Meat and water pans.....	61 07
Hardware, pumps, etc.....	80 61
Iron pipes and valves.....	47 78
Tubs, buckets and baskets.....	24 80
Water tanks.....	32 14
Bricks and building furnace.....	60 01
Hauling water.....	25 75
Bedding, maulin and toweling.....	244 32
Lumber bill, 48,500 feet.....	771 37
Digging wells.....	74 30
Delivering mail to ground.....	7 00
Tent, freight and superintending.....	337 55
Printing bill.....	38 05
Labor of various kinds.....	311 54
Baggage master.....	12 00
Lamps, oils, candles, soap &c.....	27 87
Freight and boarding.....	43 00
Stationery.....	8 00
Railroad fare.....	10 50
Amount for interest.....	68 00
Total expenditure.....	$5,847 04

RECEIPTS.

Sale of tickets.....	$220 00
Deer, hides and tallow.....	220 20
Sugar, bread, etc.....	59 28
Dishes, knives, forks, etc.....	374 56
Lumber.....	476 43
Bedding, maulin, etc.....	140 45
Pans, tubs and baskets.....	70 22
Iron pipe and valves.....	41 00
Total receipts.....	$2,084 51

Total expenditures.....	$6,847 04
" receipts.....	2,084 51
Net cost of meeting.....	$4,762 53
Amount rec'd from dis't churches N. E. O. 1164 29
Amount needed from the district.....	$998 33

AUSTIN MOHRMAN, Treasurer.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY: That we have examined the above treasurer's report, and that to the best of our knowledge and belief, it is a true statement of all money received and paid on account of Annual Meeting.

D. N. WORKMAN, Foreman; H. K. MYERS, Secretary; A. M. DICKEY, W. SADLER, Committee of Arrangements.

Rock Creek, Ill., Nov. 21.

We arrived among the Brethren here, yesterday, with the intention of visiting among those of like precious faith. If the Lord wills, we also expect to visit Mt. Morris, ere we return. We will be in Mt. Carroll for some time to come.

JEASSE Y. HECKLER.

Board of Canvas Tents.

I am here in B. A. T. W. office. Have conversed with a number of brethren about tents. Saw brethren Moore, Eshelman, D. L. Miller, Daniel Winger, S. Z. Sharp and others, and they all say they would erect hard bent in preference to canvas, if they were to hold A. M. again. Their reasons are that canvas tents are more liable to blow down, or if it rains, they let in too much rain or if hot too much heat.

They cost too much. By using lumber, it can sold after meeting for about the same price as it cost, thus saving money, while the money paid for a canvas tent will be lost if it does occur to me that we should learn a lesson from the experience of the Brethren in Northern Illinois. I am told the Committee of Arrangements of N. Ill., would not again purchase canvas tent. J. W. GRIFE, Mt. Morris, Ill., Nov. 23rd.

Our Working Band.

☞ The following have sent subscriptions for B. A. T. W. If mistakes occur, please notify us, stating the number of the paper in which it occurs. Send for prospectus and sample copies. Canvass thoroughly, and do a cash business.

- | | |
|--------------------------|---------------------|
| Laura D. Witter, 4, | Sarah A. Miller, 2, |
| George Baker, 2, | A. K. Brown, 9, |
| H. Kieck 10, | J. C. Scher, 1, |
| C. C. Roof, 1, | C. Heise, 4, |
| J. J. Carr, 8, | J. P. Ebersole, 2, |
| J. D. Hauptmann, 6, | S. D. Shirk, 7, |
| D. S. T. Butterbaugh, 5, | Conrad Fitz, 2, |
| J. R. Miller, 1, | W. H. Clark, 1, |

Mt. Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - November 18.

Number Enrolled.....	184
Average Daily Attendance.....	164
Per Cent of Attendance.....	97
Number Tardinesses.....	13
Neither Absent nor Tard.....	117
E. A. BESSY, Principal.

All About Kansas.

THE WEEKLY CAPITAL
is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county. $1.00 per year. —
— SAMPLE COPY FREE. —

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

"Great Rock Island Route!"

Stands pre-eminent among the great trunk lines of the West for being the most direct, quickest, and safest line connecting the great Metropolis, CHICAGO, and the Eastern States, with the most fertile and productive prairie lands, which fertilize them, with KANSAS CITY, LEAVENWORTH, ATCHISON, COUNCIL BLUFFS and OMAHA, the commercial centers from which traffic.

EVERY LINE OF ROAD
that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. The

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago reaching track into KANSAS by its own cars, avoiding the trouble of transferring to other lines. No switching or connections! No handling in ill-served or congested yards, and no expense incurred in carrying to remote and unsettled sections, upon Fast Express.

FREE DAY of unexpired night-rides. FREE DAY-TRIP FREE CARDS, given which make any excess of miles on the line paid for by express-charge. FREE CARDS, with ample time for business, pleasure, and sight-seeing, between Chicago, Rock Island, Council Bluffs, Leavenworth, Atchison, and Omaha.

We ticket you and forget the details. Rock Island is the only line that carries you every place in the West. Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway is the only line that carries you every place in the West.

These and facts of special interest, are given in our prospectus, which we will send you on request. These and facts of special interest, are given in our prospectus, which we will send you on request.

For R. R. CABLE, V. P. and Gen. Mgr., Chicago, Ill. and E. ST. JOHN, Gen. Mgr. and Asst. Gen. Mgr., Chicago, Ill.

UNION DEPOSITS! SURE CONNECTIONS! MAGNIFICENT EQUIPMENTS!

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

BRETHREN AT WORK.

$1.50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies
Five Cents

Vol. 6.

Mt Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Dec. 6, 1881

No. 47.

Editorial Items.

REMEMBER to keep " Tidings-from-the-field " column filled.

THERE were 152 in attendance at Sunday-school last Sunday.

LAST week we had some bland days and thunder showers.

BRO. John Dunlap's address is Purple Case, Dodge Co., Neb.

THOSE who stand for the right must often suffer in this world.

BRO. Edmund Foray will preach at West Branch on Saturday evening, Dec. 10th.

"WHATSOEVER a man soweth that shall he also reap." How will it do to sow kindness?

BRO. S. T. Swibert returned home last Tuesday from a short visit to Livingston Co., this State.

IT is a pleasant pastime for brethren when they meet to see on how many points they can agree.

TWENTY-FOUR cases of small-pox reported in the vicinity of Vicksburg, Ind. Four persons have died.

THE YOUTH'S ADVANCE is becoming more brightly and interesting. Send for a copy and get up a club.

BRO. Daniel Fry is rapidly failing. He realizes that his end is nigh, and like the true disciple is ready to go.

THERE was considerable snow in Eastern Minnesota and Western Wisconsin when we came through the 30th ult.

ON every occasion of uneasiness we should retire to prayer, that we may give place to the grace and light of God.

PROF. Hebrungh at Mt Morris College has nearly one hundred pupils in penmanship. The Prof. is a minister.

FROM the "Family Almanac" we learn that the Brethren number 90. There are 110 churches and 1,665 ministers.

BRETHREN Edward Mason and David Bailey, the latter a teacher in Ashland College, are now editors of the Gospel Preacher.

BRO. Benj Row, of Dallas Centre, Iowa, formerly a resident of this place, made the BRETHREN AT WORK a pleasant call last Monday.

THE boy Carbaugh, reported as being lost, has been found in Wisconsin, working for a manufacturing company. He is now at home.

SOME of Christ's commands are hard to learn, especially Matt. 7: 4, 5. Verse 2nd of the same chapter also requires a good deal of study.

BRO. Allen Boyer arrived home from his western trip the 22nd ult. He and his wife made quite an extended tour in their private conveyance.

IN the query from Brother W. J. H. Bauman he wishes to say: "I can see order without special form; special being granted in the article in No. 45."

BRO. Jesse Y. Heckler and family, of N-braska, are visiting friends and brethren in Whiteside and Carroll counties, this State.

"TRUTH crushed to earth will rise again." The guards of the Highpriest and of the Roman Government could not keep the Savior from rising out of the tomb.

THE Holy Spirit comes among men only when they are at peace with each other. On the day of Pentecost, "They were all with one accord in one place."

BRO. Henry Young, of Berlin, Ohio, left for his home on the 29th. We enjoyed his stay with us very much. The Cassel Library was a pleasant retreat to him while here.

FROM a brother who travelled in Southern Illinois, we learn that in some places the people will actually suffer owing to the great drought. Their hay and all their crops have failed.

BRO. John Metzger returned to St. Louis on Saturday last, where he will spend a few days with the brethren and sisters. God bless brother John and his earnest work for the Master.

THOSE who may desire information concerning price of land at Diller, Neb., should address F. M. Timlin, Diller, Neb. It is desired that Brethren move there and help build up a church.

THE editorial entitled "The Mission of the Brethren at Work," was written several days before we started to Minnesota; and now on our return we see nothing in it that we would change.

BRO. D. M. Miller did not go to Minnesota as was intended. This is to be regretted very much, as the field there is very promising, and brother Daniel has the ability to do much good in the Lord.

THE Preacher suggests that brother Hope be furnished means to go in search of brother Stein. It is doubtful whether he would be more successful than the United States Ministers to Foreign Countries.

THE convicts in the Ohio penitentiary, by abstaining from the use of tobacco, saved $100 and sent it to Michigan sufferers. This is an act of self-denial worthy of imitation by many outside of penitentiaries.

IF your agent is negligent in getting up a club, you may serve the good cause by stirring him up to duty. An active, energetic worker wanted in each congregation. Send for prospectus and sample copies.

A COPY of the "Brethren's Family Almanac" is upon our desk, and we pronounce it good--very good. Send ten cents to Quinter and Brumbaugh Bros., Huntington, Pa., and with pleasure they will send you a copy.

THERE are 180 students enrolled for the Winter term at Mt. Morris College at this time. A large proportion are Brethren's sons and daughters. We are glad to see the interest manifested by our Brethren in the proper training of their children.

THE people at Scotch Lake and Ottawa, Minn., treated us with great courtesy, and seemed eager to learn the way of the Lord more perfectly. We hope to visit them sometime again. They are kind, hospitable, pleasant and desirous of knowing the truth and nothing but the truth.

WE have received four barrels of apples as a gift from brethren E. and Daniel Miller, of Peru, Indiana. We appreciate the kindness of those brethren, and hope they may be amply rewarded for thus remembering the editor.

OWING to sore throat and bronchial ailments, we were compelled to return home from Minnesota the 1st inst. The field is very promising, and it is desired that two ministers go there soon. An account of our trip will appear next week.

BRO. D. E. Price started for an Eastern tour upon the morning of the 29th ult. He expects to visit Hagerstown, Philadelphia, Washington and Waynesboro, the latter being his native town. He will, perhaps, remain East seven or eight weeks.

IT is but a modest request, and when you have read it, please comply that the field of usefulness of your paper may be enlarged. Send us the names and addresses of members who do not read the paper. We desire to lay sample copies before them.

BRO. S. S. Mahler, of Corralia, Mo., returned home the 30th ult., from a ten days' trip in South-western Missouri. A few factious recently visited his church, but drew off some. All stand by their promises and remain with the Brotherhood.

QUITE a number are ordering "Howe We Live In" to distribute, and thus aid the Master's cause. Some are taking 1,000. Send for some and distribute them. Price $4.00 per thousand, or 50 cts. per 100. Address Western Book Exchange, of this place.

BRO. R. H. Miller says that though he has retired from the Preacher because its owners have determined to conduct it in the interests of the "Progressives," he shall remain with the church, stand for its principles and order, and stand by the Annual Meeting. It is gratifying to know that he will continue to work with and for the church.

Mrs. Garfield is being annoyed already by money beggars. One woman who had traveled 5,000 miles and spent considerable money visiting, asked Mrs. Garfield for money to pay a debt. She is even asked by church societies for money to help build houses of worship. It seems that some professors of religion have no sense or feeling. No sooner had Mrs. Garfield buried her husband than hundreds of crazy people wrote her for money.

FOR several years the BRETHREN AT WORK has been in the way of some men whose influence is thrown backward. The bold and fearless advocacy of the whole truth--the adherence to Gospel principles as held by the Brethren church, has made it the object of bitter attacks; but it has never been frightened, nor will it be. It is not conducted in the interest of partyism, but is a firm friend of the church. There is where its readers find it, and for this reason they love it, and read it.

SOME of our patrons misunderstand our business arrangement. A few that we recall, send us a dollar bill and thirty-seven cents in stamps, retaining ten cents for postage and three cents for postage. This is a wrong practice. We have announced no such arrangement. The price of the paper is $1.50 a year. Only our agents who are at considerable expense are allowed a commission so as to suffer no loss. We could not in justice to ourselves allow a man a commission for sending in his own name.

Religious Essays.

THE CHILD'S MORNING HYMN.

BY JAMES EVANS.

[Translated from the French of Lamertrie, for the B. AT W.]

O thou to whom my fat'er prays,
Whom he ador's on bended knees,
Sweet and glorious is thy name.
It makes my mother worship thee.

They say that yonder flaming sun
Is but a plaything of thy might,
That 'neath thy feet his balances keeps
Bright like a gilded lamp of light.

They say that thou hast made to fly
The little birds o'er meadows green.
By tender ones in infant years,
Thy wisdom and power may be seen.

They say thou deck'st the garden fair
With rarest flowers of tinted hue.
Without thy fruitful rain and sun,
Would grapes in clusters rich be few.

Thy bounty spreads a table wide,
And all creations call to come.
Of creeping things none are forgot,
Nor beasts which in the desert roam.

The thyme is cropped by the lamb;
The goat seeks food in pastures wild.
The fly unwelcome sips the milk
From the same cup held by the child.

The sparrow and the lark, their food
From grain by reapers left receive;
Thus will the child in tender years
To its fond mother's bosom cleave.

Each gift thy bounteous hand supplies;
We need but ask, Thy name pronounce.
When morning breaks or night comes on,
Thy gifts are free, Thy words announce.

O God my infant stammering lips
Can lip Thy name ador'd above;
An infant's voice Thou deign'st to hear
From the eternal thrones above.

Since thou dost hear from heaven above,
The vows from infant lips address'd
From Thee to ask I'll never cease
Rich gifts that others may be blest.

Give water to the fountain pure,
To little birds a plumage rare,
To the unsheltered lamb give wool,
And shade and dew to garden's fair.

On the sick let health be bestow'd,
To needy ones the bread they seek,
Give to the orphan child a home;
Let free air kiss the prisoner's cheek.

Lord a numerous offspring grant
To him who lives as in thy sight.
Make me a wise and happy child,
My tender mother's fond delight.

THE Infinite has sown his name in the heavens in burning stars; but in the earth he has sown his name in tender flowers.

From the Primitive Christian.

EPISTOLARY.

[The following letter was written by a Campbellite friend to brother J. E. Bryant. We think his reply contains thoughts that may be of interest and benefit to the general reader.—J. B. B.]

Dear Friend:—

I CAN see no reason why we cannot unite on the New Covenant which is to be our judge. The way is plain. Christ says, "I am the way." John 14. We agree we must do as well as say. It appears that we differ in the name. Now let us look at this matter a little. When you were married was your wife worthy to wear your name? What would you think if she would deny your name?

Again: If I owed you $1,000 and payment was to be made in 30 days, and I would draw a note and put a man's name to it that could not pay five cents on the dollar, would you take that note? Surely not. You can see by this that there is something in the name. Now in all kindness let us proceed to further proof. "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts 4: 12; Rev. 22: 4; 3: 5 "And the disciples were called" Dunkers "first in Antioch." Acts 11: 26 "Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a" Dunkard. Acts 26: 28 "Yet if any man suffer as a" Baptist "let him not be ashamed." 1 Pet 4: 16. Now where can you find any other name to live by than that Christ and the apostles gave us? Man's ways are weak compared with Christ's ways. See Matt. 16: 18; John 17: 20-23. In the Scriptures we find our whole duty, and all that remains for us to do is to perform it. These delusions are gathered from men and not from the New Testament.

You speak of us not knowing much of your faith in Morgan county. We know quite enough of it. Please tell me where in the Scriptures we find your words, "We are to receive our reward according to the deeds done in the body." I cannot find it. You referred me to Isa. 4: 1. Please look again. In commemorating the Lord's sufferings, you will not partake the emblems with Christians, nor suffer them to partake with you.

I will now give you the history of the Christians and also of the Dunkers. As for the Brethren, neither church history nor Scripture gives any.

History makes no change in Christianity or the beginning of it. Separate from Christ and the apostles, the greatest fuss is made about Alexander Campbell. I will tell you what he did. The Christian's oldest literary institution is Bethany College, founded by Alexander Campbell, and over which he presided for years. This is all history gives of him as a founder. The Christian church glories in his martyrdom. Hated and persecuted for seventeen hundred years, it still exists and is widely extended. Every Christian ought to have his attention again and again drawn towards men whom God preserves for so great a time under calamities which would have been the total ruin of any other people. This is taken from the history of all denominations.

The first name on which you have founded your faith is Tunker, afterwards Dunkards. The first in that faith were Alexander Mack and wife, in the year 1708. They appeared to have the reins in their hands. There were three others, formerly Presbyterians. This, in 1708 is your remotest history. Now, were you baptized in the name of Alexander Mack? Was he crucified for you? If you were baptized in the name of Christ, please don't be ashamed of it.

REPLY.

Dear Friend:—You say that "you don't see why we cannot unite on the New Covenant by which we are to be judged." You say that Christ says, "I am the way." I respond with a hearty amen. I think if we were to draw your picture complete in regard to the bride, etc., it would be a bad thing for you. Now let us see. Suppose that my wife, however honest she might have been, had proceeded unlawfully to obtain my name, perhaps not fulfilling the half that the law required of her to obtain that name, what would she have been called? An adulteress. In regard to the note you spoke about, if our acceptance with Christ depended upon the name we are called by, your picture would look better. "Not every one that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

The disciples were first called Christians at Antioch, and yet you claim that it is essential to salvation that we shall be called Christians. According to your argument, the first martyr, Stephen, was lost, for he was never called a Christian. You refer to Acts 4: 12. "Neither is salvation in any other man." Now if the virtue be in the name, here is another for you: "That at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow." Phil. 2: 10. Now according to your reasoning we could and should bow to the name itself independent of the Savior in person, the same that we might take the name of Washington or some other name, and place it in some conspicuous place and bow to it. Now I will prove to you that the disciples were Tunkers. This word is a German word, meaning "dipper," and we are thus called because we baptize by immersion. Now you no doubt will admit that the disciples were immersed, hence they too were Tunkers the same as we. Now, can you prove that they were Campbellites? You want to know where I can find any other name than that the apostles and Christ gave us.

You surely read the Scriptures, do you not? I have been looking over the Acts of the Apostles this week and have found where it says that the disciples were first called Christians at Antioch. You are ready to say that the apostles gave this name but you can't prove it. I believe, and have reason for it too, that this name was given in derision by those who were opposed to the doctrine which the apostles taught, for nowhere they are called such, except Peter says, "If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed." Don't you see by that, that this is the name which persecutors applied to them because they were followers of Christ, who they thought was an impostor? Thus we might say if any one suffer or is persecuted as a Tucker, let him not be ashamed, knowing that if we do what the Lord requires it matters not if we be persecuted as Tunkers. As I was going to say, when looking over the Acts of the Apostles I found far more places where they are called Brethren than Christians. I also find in 1 Cor. 1: 2; and 10: 32, that Paul plainly calls them the church of God. Christ says, "All ye are brethren." He also says, "Ye are my friends if you do whatsoever I command you." But I see no use in our caviling about this, for if you will study the Word of God with an unprejudiced mind, you will banish the idea that we will be saved by the name that we are called by here. You make the salvation of each man depend on what others call him. If others call him Christian, all is well.

Now let us see whether there is any difference between whom you desire to call Christians in the time of the apostles. Christ says that we shall love our enemies, and the apostles say the same. Christ and James say, "Swear not at all." Christ commanded the disciples (or Christians) to wash one another's feet. The apostles also taught it, for Christ told them to "teach all nations, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." If they taught it not they were transgressors and would not have been able to do such miracles. Paul says plainly that we shall not go to law before the unjust, but to adjust matters before the saints. Paul and Peter, through inspiration, command the Christians of that age to salute each other with a kiss, a holy kiss, a kiss of charity. Paul also tells the Brethren, or Christians at Rome to not be conformed to this world; also that the women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety, not with braided hair or gold, or pearls, or costly array. I have had considerable acquaintance with those who contend for the name of Christian in the nineteenth century, and notwithstanding Christ says, "Love your enemies," I have known their ministers to stop preaching and go to kill them; and not only that, but to persuade others, who no doubt meant to do right, to go also. The Word plainly says, swear not at all, yet the Christian of the present time says, swear if you want to, and does it himself. Christ said, "wash one another's feet;" the present Christian says, don't do it. Paul asks, "Dare any of you having a matter against another go to law before the unjust and not before the saints?" The modern Christian hesitates not to go to law before the unjust. Paul says, "Salute one another with a holy kiss," Peter says kiss of charity. The modern Christians do it not. Paul says, "Salute one another with a holy kiss of charity." The modern Christians do it not. Paul says to the Christians of his day (and the same law will apply to us now if we will allow it), "Be not conformed to this world," yet the modern Christian follows the fashions of the world in dress, etc., joins himself to the secret societies, and is taught by many ministers that it is right for them to do so. The women should dress or adorn themselves in modest apparel, and not with braided hair, or gold, or costly array, yet such is never restricted, to my knowledge, among the modern Christians. Those who dress the finest are most respected. Can you see why you should contend for the name? Jude says, "Earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints." Christ says, "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" James says, "Whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer but a doer of the law, this man shall be blessed in his deed." Also read James 1: 22, 23, 24. Peter says, "I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth God and worketh righteousness is accepted of him." He says nothing about what he shall be called. Again, "He that saith I know him and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him."

You say that in the Scripture we find all our duty if we will only do it. New I ask, will you do it? Will you? You say "these delusions are gathered from men." Who is to blame for this? Verily those who "make the commandments of God of none effect by their tradition," who are continually finding neo-essentials in the plain Word of God.

You ask for the Scripture that we shall be rewarded according to the deeds done in the body. Perhaps it does not read just so, nevertheless the Scriptures teach it. "For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with angels, and then he shall reward every man according to his work."—Matt. 16: 27. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." 2 Cor. 5: 10. "Who will render to every man according to his deeds."—Rom. 2: 6. "And every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor."—1 Cor. 3: 8. "They that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation.—John 5: 29. You seem to find fault with us for not taking the Lord's supper with other denominations, or, as you say, we "won't partake of the emblems with a Christian, nor suffer them to partake with us." We believe that whers there is a communion there should also be a union. We find in Acts 2: 42 that those who were baptized continued steadfastly in the apostle's doctrine. Now if you as a church would "continue steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine," then we could consistently "partake of the emblems" together. You say that history makes no change in Christianity. I admit that, hence you can't blame history for showing that the ancient Christians were very different from modern Christians. I believe that genuine Christianity is the same to day that it was in the apostolic age. You say that A. Campbell founded and presided over the oldest Christian (or Campbellite) literary institution and that is all that history gives of him as a founder. I find that history says this: "Here we have a denomination calling themselves Disciples, but frequently passing under the name of Reformers, or still oftener are they called Campbellites after the Rev. Alexander Campbell, the President of their college at Bethany, Va., who, as will be seen, may be regarded as their founder. The rise of this society, if we only look back to the drawing of the lines of demarkation between it and other professors is of recent origin. We find the following recorded in history concerning the Brethren: "God will always have a visible people on earth and these are his people at present above any other in the world."

Now you say that you know quite enough of the doctrine of the Brethren in Morgan county. On a certain occasion Christ said, "For which of these works do ye stone me." I ask you for what work, or wherein do you find fault with the Brethren? You make a quotation from history which you give in connection with the Campbellite church as being part of the history of that church. This is your quotation, or a part of it. "The Christian church glories in its martyrs. Hated and persecuted for 1700 years it still exists, etc." I have looked the history of the Campbellite church over from beginning to end and I find no such quotation and I have the same history I presume that you have. You say that the first name that we have founded our faith on is "Tunker." In that you are mistaken as that is a name given to us in derision. You say that A. Mack and a few others were the first in that faith, and that they appear to have had the reins in their own hands. If they were the first to obey for a number of years that form of doctrine which was once delivered to them by Christ and the apostles, that is no sign that they held the reins. You blame them for having formerly been Presbyterian. History says that A. Campbell and his father were Presbyterians, and that they renounced that system and were immersed in 1813; and you also say that the history of the Brethren extends to 1708, so on your own reckoning we can claim 104 years greater antiquity than you can.

You ask if we were baptized in the name of Alex. Mack? Was he crucified for us? I will ask you if we were baptized in Campbell's name, or was he crucified for you, for it is easy to see that you follow his teachings and examples instead of Christ's? You ask if we were baptized in the name of Christ. I answer that I was baptized according to his instructions, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, and in the likeness of Christ's death. Can you say as much for yourself and the followers of A. Campbell? Come, now, and let us reason together. We have these words in Acts 3: 22, 23. "A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren like unto me, (Moses) him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people." Read what the prophet says to us in the four Evangelists and then what he says to us through his faithful witnesses, the apostles. Then if you find that he tells you to be called a certain name, obey him, else you will be destroyed from among his people, and if he commands you to do anything else, obey him, or the same condemnation rests upon you. Come boldly forth and say as Paul said, "For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." Then when you say that with a pure heart, you will not find any non-essentials in the Word of God. Mary preached as good a sermon at the marriage in Cana as was ever preached by a follower of Christ in so few words. "Whosoever he saith unto you, do it." See that ye refuse not him that speaketh, for if they escaped not who refused him that spake on earth, much more shall we escape if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven. Heb. 12: 25.

I have written you a longer letter than I interded, but your remarks have called forth what I have presented. I hope that you desire to see the light, and that you will not allow SELF to keep you from your duty to Christ. "They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affectionate and lusts." The carnal mind is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." Now I commend you to God and the word of his grace which is able to build you up and give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified. Beatrice, Neb.

[You have done well, brother Bryant. Permit us to put a few questions to your friend. Do you endorse what Alexander Campbell says in The Millennial Harbinger, Vol. 4, page 26 new series? We quote from him: "Now if the name Christian had been given in Antioch, twenty years before, by divine command, what an ungodly man must Luke have been during those twenty-one years after, and fourteen years before—never to have called them Christians; but on the contrary, waywardly and forwardly to have called them disciples all the while."

We think Luke was not an ungodly man.

The disciples were first called Christians at Antioch about A. D. 43-47. Christ ascended A. D. 34. What were the believers in Christ called from A. D. 34 to A. D. 43? Were the multitude of disciples the first ten or fifteen years after Christ's ascension lost because they did not wear the name "Christian"? If you have open eyes you see your dilemma.—Ed.]

MANKIND has been learning for six thousand years, and yet how few have learned that their fellow-beings are as good as themselves.

For the Brethren at Work.

LIGHT AND DARKNESS.

BY OLIVER L. COVER.

"Where is the way where light dwelleth? and as for darkness, where is the place thereof?"—Job 38: 19.

TO the darkened understanding of man, the above is a frequent inquiry. Notwithstanding the exciting confusion of this knowing age, scripturians and interpreters have always acknowledged a wide distinction between light and darkness, though many there are who have never applied the interpretation of the above text to their spiritual understanding.

It is therefore very necessary for the inquiring mind, that the ways of light and darkness be defined, in accordance, too, with divine testimony, that there need not be confusion in discerning these two different conditions of life, in which the whole human family is standing.

First, the word light has three different meanings, viz., natural, secular, and spiritual. Darkness, the same, and is just the opposite in meaning, whether in the natural, secular, or spiritual sense.

Light in its spiritual sense is that agent which renders objects visible to the natural eye, the opposite of which is darkness,—void of light—invisibility.

Secular light is knowledge, wisdom, and understanding of the learned, scientific, and industrial world; the opposite is darkness, which is ignorance,—an unlearned and illiterate condition. In a spiritual sense, light is righteousness, holiness, godliness and truthfulness, a state of purity in purpose and soul.

This is the light which is spoken of in the above inquiry, and is the light that concerns us all above every light. It is that perfect state, through which all must pass, that would enter the haven of eternal happiness. This Light is Christ, of whom John was a witness. St. John 1: 7, 10. That was the true light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

As light in its natural sense means to shine out and bring to view the hidden objects and mysteries of darkness, so does the spiritual lamp of life shine forth, bring to view and make known the hidden mysterious blindness of iniquity, folly and crime, and translates the same, when effectually discerned, to a more noble state of being, and to a knowledge of the truth, which is the highest and most appreciated state of life. On the other hand, we have spiritual darkness, that state in which those who have no hope nor promise of eternal life stand, where ignorance, superstition, covetousness, and idolatry have reign and dominion, influencing people to rebel against their own Maker. This certainly is darkness or blindness in a spiritual sense, a state where we would think no one would want to stand if he could properly discern light from darkness in a spiritual point of view.

Those who have passed from death unto life can also testify to the reality and advantageous change of life, what a glowing flame of gospel liberty and truth encircle the children of light; knowledge and power from on high is theirs to enjoy as long as they abide in the light of the Son of God, which is the spirit of adoption. For ye were sometimes in darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light; for the fruit of the spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth. This is Paul's language to the Ephesians, as he beheld their liability to error. He furthermore tells them to have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them, for all things that are re-proved are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever depth make manifest, is light. This seems to define the term more clearly to our minds, that no one need stand in doubt as to the distinction between light and darkness, and as there could be no wider distinction given. But oftentimes nature and carnal mindedness gain too much ground, and deludes us to such an extent as to veil our eyes with unrighteousness, which is dangerous indeed. But it is to be hoped this is not frequently the case, for the love of God constrains us to let our light so shine that others may see our good works, may also glorify the Father in heaven. Yet as the powers of darkness are continually striving to induce us to return to its sinful paths, it becomes every child of grace to stand firm in the Gospel and to take heed, therefore, that the light which is in us be not darkness.

New Geneva, Pa.

SEARCH others for their virtues, and thyself for their vices.

For the Brethren at Work.

CONSOLATION IN BIBLE STUDY

BY SARAH BURGLEY.

THE Lord often lays sore afflictions on his people. And we are made to wonder why it is. Sometimes the hand of death will take our near friends, and often nearly all of a family, and we may feel that it is more than we can endure. But when we take our Bible we find much that will comfort us. All things work together for good to them that love God. So it is for some good, although we may not comprehend it, yet the Lord knows all things. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son he receiveth." It is often for our own good; perhaps we are not living as we should; we become forgetful of our duty, and have strayed from that narrow path, and these afflictions will be the means of bringing us back again. Often our faith is tried; we may feel that the Lord has withheld his hand of mercy and that his ears are deaf to our prayers.

But again we have that promise that he does hear our prayers and will answer them if they are in accordance to his will. He often delays to answer them, then we often lose our faith, and he will not answer because we don't pray in faith believing. It is a consolation when we know that the Lord has promised his children that he will hear and answer their prayers. An obedient child is not afraid to ask his father for anything he needs, for he feels that he will get what he asks for. So an obedient child of God knows that he will give him all he needs. But a disobedient child, one that has left his father's house, cannot come and ask him for anything, for he feels he is guilty and has not been obedient. So the sinner feels in going to his heavenly Father for any thing; unless he come as the prodigal son; then he will receive him gladly, and pardon all his sins.

In studying the Bible we find many precious promises that are consoling to us; and most of all that at last God will receive his children unto everlasting happiness.

THE greatest sources of happiness and usefulness are open to rich and poor alike.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER X.

A RIDE of six hours over the blue waters of Leman, or Geneva, was most delightful and enjoyable. The boatmen near the shore of the lake, stopping at every village, and between them passed many beautiful residences. At Coppet, a beautiful little village, we saw the chateaux of the Medoms de Stael, and now belonging to one of the descendants. Here she held her intellectual courts. At La Benjeris is the prettiest villa on the lake, formerly belonging to Joseph Bonaparte. All along the shores are chateaux of famous families. At Morges an incomparable view of Mt. Blanc is had, and also there is an old chateau, or Donjon, in sight. When within an hour's ride of Geneva, the lake, which had before been perfectly smooth and motionless, became suddenly disturbed, and the steamer rolled and tossed upon the angry waters fearfully. The captain said that it was owing to a sudden rising of the north-east wind, called bise, and that they dreaded it on account of the general shaking up it gave all crafts caught out. He said the lake was subject to sudden changes of level also. That the phenomenon consisted in a sudden rising and falling of the water, sometimes as many as five feet above its usual level, and seldom lasts over twenty minutes. There are also strong currents at times, which the most powerful boatman cannot stem, which are supposed to be caused by the numerous springs which issue from the bottom. Another curiosity about the lake is that it is subject to water-spouts, and the temperature of the water is twice as high at the surface as at the bottom, near its deepest point, and never freezes entirely over in the coldest winters.

As we approach the city of Geneva it presents a magnificent appearance. The river Rhone dividing it into two parts, the right bank being inhabited principally by work people. The city is connected by six bridges, from the center of which a suspension bridge extends to a small island, called Rousseau's island, and on which is a fine bronze statue of him. There is in the city a public library and college founded by John Calvin, who lived in the city twenty-one years. Returning from a walk, we saw the Swiss women washing. Beneath a long wooden shed, with one side open to the river, were a row of stout-armed, red-checked women, bending over a long board which extended into the stream before them. Seizing a garment, they first give it a wash into the water, then rub it thoroughly with soap, and again wash it to and fro in the water, then mould into a ball or mass and beat with a heavy stick; then comes more washes and more moulding on the smooth board before them, again soaping and beating until the garment is cleansed and hung up to dry. It was a laborious work, and one which required strong garments to work upon. Our delicate American garments would not endure more than two or three such poundings before giving out entirely. To-morrow morning we leave for Italy.

The Mont Cenis Tunnel, which we passed through in going from Geneva to Turin, is named from Mont Cenis, but it is in reality some distance from it. It starts on the French side, 3,804 feet above the sea, and rises gradually to an elevation of 4,377 feet, and then slopes down on the Italian side, 4,334 feet above the level of the sea. It is well lighted, and the air is very pure and good, though warm. We were twenty minutes in passing through. The work of opening the tunnel was commenced in 1857, and at the close of 1870 the whole mountain mass, a thickness of 13,256 yards, was pierced from end to end. Two thousand men were constantly employed, and opened at first half a yard in twenty-four hours, and finally increased to ten feet, and it cost $13,000,000 when completed.

In traveling through Germany and Switzerland we noticed that the grape vines were trained to a stake and only allowed to grow a certain length, which seemed to be uniform throughout both countries. After leaving Geneva and entering France the vines were trained to mulberry trees, siling the tops, and fastened from one tree to another; giving a peculiar charm to the landscape. This style of training the vine continued all through northern Italy. As we approached Turin a great plain spread out before us, and our way for some miles passed through a beautiful country, the roads being lined with forest trees. The city makes but little show in the distance, yet as we approach and enter, we find it to be a remarkable clean city, and not a mean looking house in it. There was a freshness and regularity that was in strong contrast with many cities we had visited. The building material is of brick, succeeded in imitation of stone, giving the city a magnificent look taken collectively. All around the town are ancient trees of luxuriant growth, which makes an impenetrable shade where the citizens can walk or sit, under the sometimes intolerable heat of the sun. There is a lovely range of hills rising beyond the river Po, on which are beautiful villages and gardens, and in the dim distance are seen the Alps, standing as a barrier to another world. The city is filled with interesting churches, a large gallery of paintings, a museum of antiquity, public gardens and charitable institutions. The fashionable promenade is in the palace gardens, which are more than ordinarily beautiful, and the gates which separate the palace from the plaza are magnificent. Our ride from Turin to Milan was through a country highly cultivated, the chief grain being corn, immense fields of which were on our left. The division of fields was made by trees, supporting grape vines, which were fastened from one to the other.

We found Milan to be a walled city, eight miles in circumference, irregularly laid out, but having some very fine and interesting thoroughfares. The city is entered by ten gates, and all the thoroughfares center near St. Mark's church and the Palazzo. Here is an arcade in the form of a Greek cross, in the center of which is a dome, each wing being about one-fourth of a mile long. At the base of the dome are gas jets, 2,000 in number, which are lighted by a gas that makes the circuit in something less than five minutes. In the evening, when the whole arcade is lighted, the scene is most brilliant and bewitching. The Duomo, or Cathedral of Milan—that wonderful work of art, stands near the entrance of one of the arms of the arcade. It is in the form of a Latin cross, and constructed entirely of white marble. The sides, front and roof are covered with niches and spires. The number of statues filling these niches, and those inside the church, number over three thousand. The interior of the temple is grand beyond description—the nave, over four hundred feet in length, with their vistas of nearly the same length of clustered pillars, supporting the magnificent arch one hundred feet above our heads. There are five great doorways to the church, and near one of them are two gigantic pillars of polished red granite, thirty-five feet high, supporting a balcony on which are two colossal figures of saints. The floor is laid in colored marble mosaic. We went into the crypt, passing through a corridor lined with the richest of marbles, a portal adorned with columns of colored porphyry, their base and capitals richly gilded, and entered an octagonal room lighted from above, down which the faithful may look upon the sarcophagus below. The walls of the apartment are formed of eight silver bas-reliefs, representing events in the life of the saint who lies enshrined before us. The sarcophagus is of bronze mounted with silver. The attending priest turns a crank which causes the bronze cover to fold away, revealing to our eyes the dead body of the saint, in a transparent coffin of rock crystal, bound with silver. There lay a skeleton, arrayed in Episcopal robes, ablaze with precious stones. In his left hand was a pastoral staff, encrusted with diamonds; above him a cross of emeralds and diamonds, and over the head, covered with shrouded skin, black with age as suspended a golden crown. The priest turns the crank and the bronze cover hides the saint from our view, so we leave him to slumber in his costly mausoleum, and follow the guide to see more of this costly and beautiful edifice.

THE BEST HUSBANDS.

THE best husbands I ever met came out of a family where the mother, a most heroic and self-denying woman, laid down the absolute law, "Girls first." Not in any authority, but first to be thought of as to protection and tenderness. Consequently the chivalrous care which those lads were taught to show to their own sisters naturally extended itself to all women. They grew up true gentlemen—generous, unobnoxious, courteous of speech and kind of heart. In them was the protecting strength of manhood, which coaxes to use its strength except for protection; the proud honesty of manhood, which infinitely prefers being lovingly and openly resisted to being twisted round one's finger as mean men are twisted, and mean women will always be found ready to do it, but which I think all honest men and brave women would not merely dislike, but utterly despise.—Sel.

THERE are some young fellows who want to put their legs on the top of the ladder at once. But believe me, step by step is the only way to climb.

Home and Family.

MARY O. NORMAN, LE SUEUR, MINN. - YFIDRESS

A PLEA FOR YOUNG WIVES.

WE have just passed through a trying time to all business men. Many have been the honorable, unavoidable failures; also, advantage being unhesitatingly taken of customs, laws, and licenses to secure freedom from financial embarrassment by a sacrifice of moral principle.

Proudly happy he that man to-day, who, after an honorable course of strict economy in each minutest detail of his public and private life, now breathes easily; relieved of the burden of terrible anxiety, in many instances more on account of the loved ones of his home than of himself, and in too many instances borne alone. To repay him, he stands to-day with the world before him, honor upon his right hand, re-awakened ambition upon his left, and the broad pinions of hope over his wings. Scarcely a home in the length and breadth of our happy land that has not felt the effect of the late searching crisis. In speaking of this, said an old gentleman in my hearing the other evening, "The young women of our country have much to answer for in many, many cases of bad business failures. Yes, yes, they have had much to do with it." My whole being cried out against the injustice of the old banker's remark—although he intended none—and his opinion is that of a great many others. We felt that we could cry out with more truth, "They have not had enough to do with the great crisis!" We can all recall instances of young men, who seeing nothing but total financial ruin before them, involving everything but honor, and the knowledge that the loved ones at home must stand face to face with poverty, without a moment's hesitation have taken their own lives; and the terrible, life-long burden of sorrow was then laid on the fair young wife to whom the knowledge of the cause of her husband's suicide, when explained to her, was the first intimation of trouble in his hitherto prosperous business. Mistaken love, blind affection that shuts her out of that business trouble.

At its first appearance a plain, sensible talk with the young wife who was only ignorantly spending too freely, not knowingly dragging her husband down, would have enabled them to join forces, meet the approaching trial with a system of co-operative economy that would have gone far towards retrieving matters.

One of the saddest instances connected with the late crisis was of a young man in New York in 1876. With the mistaken kindness of which we have spoken, all knowledge of financial embarrassment was carefully kept from his young wife. She spent freely as ever, with no idea that the money to meet the bills did not come as easily as it appeared to do. Her knowledge came to her on the day that her husband's business trouble reached the crisis and left him a mental wreck. To-day she earns her scanty living in the shadow of the building known as an "insane asylum;" between whose walls lives —a life in death—the man who promised to cherish, love and honor her. Had he honored her with his confidence, loved her with far-seeing love, he might to-day cherish her. Had he told her, what every woman who is worthy to be the wife of a manly man and the mother of his children, should know the exact condition of her husband's finances, all might have been so different! Our great longing now is to reach some, if only one, that will read this and profit by it. Pay your wife the compliment of believing she has the sense to understand as much of your business as is necessary to place before her your actual resources. For her sake as well as yours do not let her compromise your honor as well as her own by allowing her to spend money that is not, strictly speaking, yours to give her. It is no kindness to place her in a false position before her friends. "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." But it does not follow that ignorance always is bliss. Before it is too late, while we are once more to the broad and, thank God, gradually broadening era of prosperity, before we fast living, slow-to-be-warned Americans bring upon ourselves another panic, once more we beg, let our young wives, more especially, know each minutest detail of that business whose fair honor and success shall be as dear to them as to you; and for more reasons than the fact that it gives them money to spend. We young wives (our secret is out) stand ready and willing to aid the husbands that we love and honor, ready and willing to do anything honorable to help them through hard places. All we ask is a chance. Some of us have had it already, and we, one of the thankful ones, beg it for all. When the baby falls we tell our husband. If stock falls let our husbands tell us. If the bread rises too much we do not hesitate to tell him; if there has been a corresponding "too much" rise in coal and sugar let the little wife know and have the satisfaction of saving a little. Begin right with little things. Train the young wives gradually into business-like ways of handling their household money; and then the great financial crises—of the far future, God willing—shall be met by husbands and wives hand in hand, heart joined to heart; sad few shall be the recorded names who, rather than face poverty with those they love, prefer to face death alone.

Looking at it from all sides, are we not right? Have not the young wives had too little, instead of too much to do with the late panic? (N.)

PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH AND TEACH.

WE have had much thought upon the subject now before us. It is a subject which should concern all professors of religion, and should be brought home to each individual heart, especially the heads of families. Practice what you teach, is our motto.

If you desire to mould your children's characters according to the divine Pattern, you should first mould your own thereby. It certainly is as necessary to do, as it is to say; this I have learned long since. Not only have I learned it by observation, but also by experience. I have keenly felt its effects when I would say and then fail to do. Such failure has caused me oft-times to weep bitter tears. It is written, "He that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." James 4: 17.

A living, practical life is certainly a bright and shining light at home and abroad. The place to live out what we teach is at home. When we speak of a true practical religious life, we do not mean a mere form of ceremonies, which leaves us destitute of holiness. We are sorry to say that there are those, who are heads of families, who have a form of godliness, in the home circle, yet, destitute of the power of the Spirit. They conform in a measure to outward acts of religion, though at the same time strangers to the spirit of God and experimental religion. Fathers may instruct their sons and daughters in religious knowledge and then fail to live out in their life the religious principles taught. What doth it profit? Most fatal error indeed! Such fathers do more harm and make more infidels than Bob Ingersoll and all his followers. The children of such parents become disgusted, and say there is no reality in the religion of Jesus Christ; hence they believe not. Why all this? Because the example is not in harmony with the holy things they teach. Fathers, do you not see the necessity of a holy practical life—a life that carries with it the power of the spirit of God? If so, then reform your life; show to your children and the world a practical personal illustration of a true life; and you may expect a religious improvement in the home circle. The father's example is imitated by his children. This ought to come home to the hearts of all fathers, and touch them with an earnest realization of the parental responsibility.

Christian parents, if you desire to work for the Lord, begin with your little ones at home. True Christian effort will begin at home and not go out from the center to embrace wider fields. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," are the words of the wise man which are as true to-day as when first uttered. M. C. N.

WOMAN.

OH, the priceless value of the love of a true woman! Gold cannot purchase a gem so precious! Title and honors confer upon the heart no such serene happiness. In our darkest moment, when disappointment and ingratitude, with confusion care gather thick around, and even the gaunt poverty menaces with his skeleton finger, it gleams around the soul with an angel's smile. Time cannot mar its brilliancy; distance but, strengthens its influence; bolts and bars cannot limit its progress; it follows the prisoner into his dark cell and sweetens the home morsel that appeases his hunger, and, in the silence of midnight, it plays around his heart, and in the dreams he folds to his bosom the form of her who loves on still, though the world has turned coldly from him. The couch made by the hands of a loved one is soft to the weary limbs of the sick sufferer, and the patient administered by the same hand loses half its bitterness. (N.)

PRIDE, perceiving humility honorable, of a to rows her cloak.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

DECEMBER 6, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE,
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Busch Ely, Lansie Ely, Daniel Veerman,	A. W. Reese, S. S. Mohler, C. H. DeWolfe,	D. E. Brethren, J. J. Rosenberger, J. W. Southward,
----------------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------------------------------------

THE EDITOR will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that he endorses its contents or the views of the writer.

CONTRIBUTORS, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please send in prose and unassuming language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending slight names and $1.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the balance.

Money sent by Post-Office Orders, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk. Make them payable to M. M. ESHELMAN. Address all communications for the paper.

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

MISSION OF THE BRETHERN AT WORK.

THE object, purpose and mission of the BRETHERN AT WORK have been repeatedly set forth in our columns so that our readers could understand its true character. I have been a fearless exponent of primitive Christianity in its ancient purity as revealed by Jesus Christ.

The B. AT W. is not a representative or leader of a faction or party unless the church of Jesus Christ be regarded as a party. It reflects not the sentiments of any party, but of the church. It has no position of its own to advocate and defend. Its mission is to advocate and defend "the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth."—1 Tim. 3: 15. It seeks not its own, but the church's good. It urges its readers to "fight the good fight of faith," to "lay hold of eternal life."—1 Tim. 1: 12. It believes that the children of God "are built on the foundation on the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone."—Eph. 2: 20. It maintains the Brethren "are builded together for a habitation of God through the Spirit."—Eph. 2: 22.

It is wrong to advocate and defend God's habitation—the church? If so, then the B. AT W., in this respect, is wrong.

The B. AT W., since, amid the conflicting theories and discords of partyism, to walk by the side of the church. Its aim is not to mould sentiment and thus draw after it a certain class of admirers and favorites, but it is an exponent and a defender of the Brethren church—which church reflects the faith and practice of the apostolic society founded by Jesus Christ. We repeat, the B. AT W. has no platform of its own to defend and advocate but stands on the Gospel as understood by the church of the Brethren.

The one divine system of religion, as made known in the New Testament, believed and practiced by the Brethren, which the B. AT W. aims to advocate and defend, is as follows:

1. The sovereign, unmerited, unolicited grace of God, is the only source of pardon.—Rom. 5: 15, 16. Titus 2: 11. Acts 15: 11.

2. The vicarious sufferings and meritorious works of Christ, are the only price of pardon.—Acts 20: 20. 1 Cor. 6: 20. Gal. 4: 5. Titus 2: 14.

3. The Spirit of God, in connection with the Word, aids in the regeneration of man's heart, and when he is "born again," assists him in his efforts to obtain eternal life.—Rom. 8: 2, 14. Eph. 2: 18 and 4: 4. John 14: 23 and 15: 7.

4. That faith, repentance and baptism are conditions of pardon, hence for the remission of sins.—Mark 16: 16. Acts 2: 38; 3: 19; 10: 43; 16: 31.

5. That penitent believers are to be baptized "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost"—not once to all the names, but once into each name.—Matt. 28: 19 and 3: 16, 17.

6. That the laying on of hands is a Gospel requirement enjoined on God's ministers.—Acts 8: 14-17. 1 Tim. 4: 14. Heb. 6: 2.

7. That Christians are to salute one another with a holy kiss.—Rom. 16: 16. 1 Cor. 16: 20. 2 Cor. 13: 12. 1 Thess. 5: 26. 1 Peter 5: 14.

8. That believers in Christ should wash one another's feet as taught in the New Testament.—John 13: 4-17. 1 Tim. 5: 10. A. M. 1877 Art. 24.

9. That the Lord's Supper is a full meal and in connection with the communion should be taken in the evening of the day.—Mark 14: 17, 22. Luke 22: 15-20. John 13: 1-4. 1 Cor. 11: 25. A. M., 1869 Art. 11.

10. That peace and non-resistance are opposed to war and retaliation.—Matt. 5: 44. Rom. 12: 14, 15, 19, 20. John 14: 27. 2 Thess. 2: 3. A. M. 1845 Art. 5. 1855 Art. 4. 1874 Art. 2.

11. That non-conformity to the world in dress, conduct and conversation is enjoined as expressive of piety, holiness and humility of heart.—Rom. 12: 1, 2, 17, 18, and 6: 13, 16, 19. 1 Cor. 6: 20. 1 Tim. 2: 9, 10. 1 Peter 3: 3. 2 Peter 3: 11. 1 Cor. 13: 5. A. M. 1866, Art. 47. 1871 Art. 18. 1877 Arts. 1 and 8.

12. That Brethren and sisters in the Lord should appear before God in prayer and prophesy as directed in 1 Cor. 11: 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 13. A. M. 1848 Art. 8. 1856 Art. 26.

13. That Christian believers receive a divine blessing in complying with the injunction found in James 5: 14, 15. A. M. 1777, Art. 4; 1812, Art. 1; 1870, Art. 6.

14. That love for one another and the Brotherhood is enjoined on all of the disciples of Jesus.—John 13: 25. Rom. 9: 10. Gal. 5: 13, 22. Philip 2: 12. Heb. 12: 1. 1 Pet. 1: 22 and 2: 17.

15. That children should be brought up in the Lord and receive such instructions as will keep them out of the snares of the enemy. Eph. 6: 4. Acts 2: 39. 2 John 4. A. M. 1873, Art. 11. 1881 Art. 25.

16. That preaching the Gospel to every creature, is the work of the church.—Matt. 23: 19. Mark 16: 16. Acts 5: 42. A. M. 1863 Art. 21. 1861 Art. 24.

17. That the church owes its care, and love and sympathy to its faithful servants, and is required to see that they do not bear all the burden alone.—1 Cor. 9: 13, 14. Matt. 5: 42. Gal. 6: 2. A. M. 1881, Art. 13.

18. That the disciples of Jesus shall not love the world which constantly changes its fashions, and seeks to please itself rather than God.—John 15: 19 and 17: 16. 1 Cor. 2: 12 and 4: 9. Gal. 6: 14. James 1: 27. 1 John 2: 15, 16. 2 John 7. A. M. 1877 Art. 16. 1880 Art. 16. 1881 Art. 21.

19. That secret societies for the promotion of selfish interests are forbidden by the Gospel.—Mt. 23: 22. John 18: 20. 2 Cor. 4: 2. Eph. 5: 7, 12. A. M. 1804 Art. 6. 1838 Art. 1. 1848 Art. 4. 1853 Art. 19. 1859 Art. 10. 1877 Art. 3. 1879 Art. 11.

20. That taking oaths of confirmation is forbidden Christians by the Law of faith.—Matt. 5: 34, 37. James 5: 12.

21. That benevolence and giving to the poor are characteristic of Christian believers.—Matt. 26: 11. Luke 14: 13, 21. Gal. 2: 10. A. M. 1840 Art. 2; 1851 Art. 19; 1857 Art. 12.

22. That hospitality without grudging, is enjoined upon Christians who are the pillar and ground of the truth.—Rom. 12: 13. 1 Pet. 4: 9.

23. That fraud, idleness and extortion are not allowed on the part of Christians.—Mark 10: 19. Luke 13: 15. 1 Cor. 6: 10. 1 Thess. 4: 6, 11. 2 Thess. 3: 10, 12. Heb. 13: 5.

Reference is shown to decisions of Annual Meeting as showing how the Brethren church understand principles and applies them. We regard ourselves insufficient to decide for the church how it will practice Gospel principles. The following is the ground of the BRETHERN AT WORK occupies on observing decisions of Annual meeting:

RESOLVED: That all the brethren should labor, as far as they can, to observe the decisions of Annual Meeting, and that the officers of the churches should labor carefully and judiciously to have the churches to carry them out until they are changed, if a change is desirable, and will bring us nearer the Gospel. In the above we have reference to decisions that pertain to the present condition and circumstances of the church, and not to those that time and circumstances have made obsolete.—A. M. 1881.

This is the position of the church on observing decisions of A. M. We accept it as expressive of the wish and mind of the Brotherhood until it says otherwise. For the church, with the church, and not opposed to it, is our motto. We do not believe the church seeks to subvert the Gospel. We do not believe it desires to get away from humility and Gospel simplicity. We do not believe it seeks to ally itself with worldliness. We may before long suggest a plan upon which all can unite, and thus avoid much trouble.

Examine the ground carefully. If you love the unadulterated word—the high mission of the church,—the maintenance of vital Christianity—the freedom of Christ, come and help us “fight the good fight of faith,” to “hold fast the form of sound words.” Help to guard the holy temple of the one God against all adventurous innovators.

We shall encourage every good work, that does not conflict with the one divine system of Christianity. Young preachers and old, who shall preach the Gospel, and shall not subvert the faith and practice of God's house, shall receive our encouragement. Saints who live pious lives, who study to be quiet, who strive to enter in at the strait gate, shall be encouraged by us. Will you help to brighten the pathway of others with your Holy-Ghosted letter? Will you turn away dark clouds from the horizon by your prayers, your smiles, your words of sympathy? We thank you for your daily words of cheer and encouragement. Stand fast in the Lord, and be not soon shaken in mind.

OUR MISSIONARY PLAN.

THERE are many not members of the church who might be induced to search the Scriptures and learn the way of truth by reading the BRETHREN AT WORK if placed in their hands by some friend. There are also brethren and sisters who will cheerfully contribute for this purpose. We feel like doing some missionary work this way ourselves. We therefore make the following offer: Any brother or sister, sending one dollar, can send the paper to any outsider, they may name, for one year. It must be a gift from a member, not a dollar received from an outsider. The name to whom the paper is sent will be published.

It is encouraging as well as gratifying to know that not a few are out in the field striving to build up the church and win sinners to Christ. We notice J. M. Mohler, Jacob Conner, J. T. Myers, Wm. Hertler, B. F. Moomaw, Solomon Buckalew, Geo. Cripe, D. L.

Williams, C. C. Root, W. B. Seil, G. W. Thomas, James Evans, John Metzger, J. E. Gish, D. Vaniman, D. M. Miller, Enoch Eby, J. H. Miller, Lewis W. Teeter, D. B. Sturgis, and many others. How much better to go from place to place with the Gospel, than with a creed gotten up in 1881 or any other year this side of the apostle! Our great Brotherhood is a fortress that cannot be overthrown.

RECALLED.

SINCE my visit to Christian county, Ill., the latter part of November, where I contracted a severe cold, my lungs and throat have been in a delicate condition. Perhaps I should not have undertaken the work in Minnesota, but the circumstances seemed to require my presence. I went there with the intention of remaining ten days or two weeks, but my lungs failed me, or rather they with my throat became so sore that after preaching four sermons, I was compelled to cease working and return home. It is necessary that I cease preaching for several months; hence my engagements are hereby recalled. I trust that those who expected me to labor with them will bear with me in this disappointment. Here with my pen I can address you once a week; yet I would love to be present with you in body also, and sing and pray, and talk with you. O, how I would love to be with you all! God's will be done; for then we shall all be together in glory.

BRETHREN AT WORK ALMANAC.

THIS work is now ready for our patrons. It contains the ministerial list arranged alphabetically by States and counties. That there are mistakes in the list, there is no doubt; and these mistakes will likely continue to be printed from year to year unless some one in each congregation will correct them.

The almanac is gotten up in a neat and substantial manner, printed on good paper, and as a gift no doubt will be appreciated by our many readers. It will be sent to subscribers in the B. AT W., as a supplement; and as we cannot send it until your name comes in for next year, we hope you will be prompt in renewing so that there may be no delay in sending.

Those who do not subscribe for B. AT W., but desire the almanac, will please send ten cents for it. Remember it is free only to the subscribers of BRETHREN AT WORK. Agents will please make a note of this. Agents can send names on postal cards if it is more convenient for them.

BODILY labor alleviates the pain of the mind; whence arises the happiness of the poor.

BLESSED is the man who has found his work; let him ask to other blessedness. Know thy work, and do it; and work at it like Hercules. One monster there is in the world, the idle man.

It is folly to be surmising and suspicious concerning Bro. Stein. Everything we know about his whereabouts and why he left before Annual Meeting has been given to the public. We are not of those who think they can tell what they do not know.

The Evening News of Toronto, Canada, referring to the River Brethren's annual love-feast says: “The Dutch, or Society of Dunkards, enjoyed their annual feast down in Markham last week. They are credited with being the kindest-hearted people in the universe—without it is the Quakers.”

The “Reflector” does not reflect this week. It was cut down a little last week for want of room in order to get in an article about Bro. Stein, and now it is a little timid. It is to be hoped that it will shine again soon. It shall have “free course” and “be at the morning” if it be in our power. Let us be tender, but look not mollusk.

“The hat of the fashionable woman is something smaller than a wagon wheel. As a screen in church, where the fellow just behind is anxious to take a nap, they are par excellence, but in the theater or other places of amusement, where there is always an anxiety to know what is going on,” they must be terribly in the way.

QUITMAN thus states his plea:

Inanity, in that it was God's set, and not mine. The divine pressure on me to remove the President was so enormous that it destroyed my free agency, and therefore, I am not legally responsible for my act.”

With exact truth he might have stated it thus: “Inanity, in that it was the devil's act through me his agent. The estatic pressure to remove the President was so enormous that it destroyed my feeling of good sense and love for Garfield and his family and the nation.”

On the 4th of March last, after Garfield had read his inaugural address he kissed his mother and his wife. It was a spontaneous act of a great man—an act expressive of love. Many of the leading papers, religious and secular, referred to the act in terms of commendation, and it was well to do so; but a greater than Garfield, one Jesus Christ, Son of the living God, Emancipator of mankind, and King of kings, in his plan of salvation tells his followers, “Greet one another with a kiss of charity.”—1 Peter 4: 14. Rom. 16: 16. What saith the Christian Standard and Religious Telescope about this?

For the Brethren at Work.

CHIPS FROM THE WORK-HOUSE

BY DANIEL VANMAN.

"But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions;" do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of the ministry." 2 Tim. 4: 5.

A MINISTER in order to watch in all things; should above all else, watch his own thoughts, motives, and work. He must in his habits be temperate and thoughtful. In conversation "Shun profane and vain babblings for they increase unto more ungodliness," must use sound speech that cannot be condemned. He should guard against indolence on the one hand and over-work and over-exposure on the other; should study much to be "approved unto God, a workman that need not be ashamed; rightly dividing the word of truth," like the apostles, make no apology nor tell the people of his weakness, etc., but deliver the Lord's message with an earnestness that evidences thankfulness for the opportunity of telling it.

He should also watch that he does not put the heavenly food so high in the rack that the lambs of the flock cannot reach it. They are an important factor in the flock. He should not speak from his fourth story to the people below; but remember that to do the people good he must go to where the people are.

With what spirit should he endure afflictions? Always with the spirit of love and patience, without murmuring or complaining. See the examples of the prophets, Jesus and his apostles, how through their sufferings, and patient endurance the world was made better. He should plan and labor to make those who oppose themselves as well as all others, know that he loves them and intends their welfare.

What the work of an evangelist is: 1. To travel from place to place to preach the Gospel. 2. To baptize those who believe, and thus build up churches. In Eph. 4: 11, the evangelists are classed after the apostles and prophets and before pastors and teachers which would lead us to think that they stood between the other two groups of workers, being sent out as missionary preachers by the first and prepared the way for the labors of the second. In the apostolic age, the evangelist might be either a bishop, elder, or deacon. Timothy though a bishop, could yet do the work of an Evangelist.

How to give proof of his ministry: 1. A man may give some proof of his ministry by giving one-fourth of his time to the ministry, more proof, by devoting one half of his time to it and the other half to something else; but most by giving all his time to the work. 2. A man might give his whole time to themiometry, and only half of his energy or power—the same as he might do in any other business; but this would not yet be giving full proof of his ministry. Full proof of the ministry can only be given by giving his whole time, energy and power to the work and thus give full proof by discharging his duty faithfully and thoroughly.

"Meditate upon these things, give thyself wholly to them that thy profiting may appear unto all." 1 Tim. 4: 15.

OUR PERIODICALS.

ARE they beneficial to the cause of Christ? This is sometimes seriously questioned by good honest brethren and sisters.

I will answer: It greatly depends on how they are conducted. A person who is an extremist, of an excitable disposition, having some peculiar notions of his own, perhaps never genuinely converted to the doctrine of the Bible, with plenty of "zeal but not according to knowledge," may take a notion to publish a paper. And he may be a finest writer himself, and he will likely select his contributors from among such as are of a similar disposition as himself. And if any articles are written which do not agree with his peculiar notions, he can reject them.

Now who can for a moment consider that such a paper is not injurious to the cause. This need not run long until the spirit is stirred in some one, in the opposite extreme. So he will conclude to publish a paper, and will run it about in the same style, only in the opposite extreme.

And what is the result? Contentment in earnest.

Railing and evil-slandering is one of the prominent features of both these papers. Sowing discord among Brethren, which is an abomination to God. Prov. 6: 19. And love will be destroyed, and ill-will and hard-feelings will be caused by them, instead of being peace makers and encouraging to love and union.

But now let us look at the other side of the picture. Let brethren who are genuinely converted to the whole doctrine of the Bible—full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, who, like brother Paul, will not "shun to declare the whole counsel of God," do the editing of our papers. They will be likely to have contributors who try to walk humbly before God. Their prime object, as in all other callings, is not to make money; but to labor for the welfare of humanity. But here some may stop and ponder, whether it is not too much for money. Well, I believe we all need to watch that point; the farmer and mechanic, as well as the editor. Paul says, "having food and raiment, be therewith content," and are not a good many of us laboring for more?

But to our subject. Who can say after due reflection that a paper well filled with wholesome doctrine, as taught in the Bible, is not a powerful means of spreading the truth? A dozen or more writers can reach thousands of isolated members and honest seekers after truth, who are scattered all over the United States, with a good lesson weekly, with only a few hours meditation and writing; but a great pity is, that many of our most zealous, and devoted brethren and sisters do not write for the press because they did not have the necessary training. I wonder whether there is not too much timidity in this direction? Oh how many good, and soul-reviving lessons, which inspired me with renewed zeal and courage, I have gathered from the pens of my brethren and sisters, in the last fifteen years.

The paper last described, is the kind I wish to patronize, and to introduce to my brethren, sisters and friends; and feel that I am laboring for their future welfare.

Looking at the subject in this light, I am persuaded that the contemplated consolidation of our periodicals would be good. And to have them under the control of brethren, selected by the Standing Committee, for that purpose, and not allow any one, of his own accord, to publish a paper, more than to preach without being authorized by the church. For an editor has more power with his paper to lead into truth or error than by preaching. Then why not use the same restrictions and exercise equal care over papers? I believe in this way a greater degree of love could be cultivated, and consequently more peace and harmony. And having reached this much desired end, our influence would be much stronger to convert men and women, and to encourage each other on our way to the heavenly Jerusalem.

Now I hope what I have written will hurt no one, will cause no evil surmising, but will be received in the spirit of love. Trust its influence will be in the right direction, an honor to God and to the good of men. Praying God's blessing to attend the aims, I submit it to the serious consideration and candid judgment of my brethren and sisters.

J. R. M.

BROTHER W. THOMAS of Ontario, Ia., says the following excellent thing in the Primitive Christian. "In my opinion the papers are a part of the vital activities of the church, essential to their progress, equalizing the circulation of zeal and love, and if fostered by impartial love for the truth will ultimately prove that the editorial work of our church will receive its share of the good rewards in store for all who serve the good Master. The pen must do its work as well as the tongue. There must be writers as well as talkers; unite them, and the forces of the heart and soul are utilized to the good in human race. By the papers we know what the brethren are doing in St. Louis—how the cause prospers in Kansas, whether they are planting and watering in Nebraska, and see rich clusters of the true vine which are developing and maturing in many of the other States, and the glorious dawn in the East with a halo of light that shall never fade away—the land of the Danes—the star of Hope."

We want men in this age of infidelity and liberalism, that have the true steel in themselves who shall warn, admonish, persuade, entreat and encourage erring humanity to turn to the Fountain of Life and drink and live.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, - - - - - EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, LaSalle, Henry Co., Mo.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in towns? ELIAS HARRIS.

If man has a natural immortality, why do the Scriptures teach, (1 Tim. 6: 16) "The Lord only hath it?" "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Ec. 12: 23. Immortality cannot die, and many other Scriptures of like import, and Paul seem to imply, that it is to be put on at the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15: 52. The word immortal occurs only once in all of the Scriptures, and then it is applied to God. 1 Tim. 1: 17. A. B. C.

Will some brother or sister please explain Acts 13: 48? The passage reads thus: "And as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed." Did the ordination take place prior to the believing or subsequently? ISAAC H. MILLER.

Why is it, that in the parable of the unjust steward, we are taught to take what is not our own? Can any one tell? L. A. PLATE.

For the Brethren at Work.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

IF a thing is instrumental for good or evil, man is inclined to study and try and gather up Scriptural evidence to prove his opinion of that thing.

You can get some idea of what I mean, by reading H. P. Moyer's article, "Query Answered, in No. 29 B. AT W., in favor of an organ in the family.

I trust he is sincere in his views; yet we have no more right to rely upon his views, or to accept them, than on the combined wisdom of A. M., which claims an organ is only calculated for amusement and not to promote vital Christianity. It is true we cannot give any Bible terms that to have organ in the house; nor would I venture to say so, for I might be mistaken; but we will simply reason together about it. We will not introduce anything from the old Bible, for Luke says, "The Law and the Prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached."

IT IS WROTE,

According to my understanding people praised and worshipped God during the old dispensation in ways that Christ put away. He wanted and understanding in praising God, and not so many music ceremonies. Paul says, "I will sing with the spirit and with the understanding also."

MORE SPIRIT

Eph. 5: 19 tells us, "Speaking to yourselves in psalms, hymns and spiritual songs; singing and making melody in your hearts to the Lord." Col. 3: 16 tells us, "Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord."

If hurps and organs would have made praising more complete and pleasing in the sight of God, why are they not mentioned? Why did not Christ and the Apostles call for them?

Bro. Moyer stated in his article: "Seeing only the evil a thing may do, some people, without ever investigating or even desiring to know, whether any good can come out of it, condemn it entirely."

May not the opposite be occasionally true? In my boyhood days I was occasionally present where the organ was played; but praising God was not the prevailing object with me, nor, doubtless, with the others; for God was, as a general thing, far distant from us; though spiritual songs were sung, but

WITHOUT THE SPIRIT

and understanding; hence all vanity. Self-exaltation seemed to be the object. It was no inducement to bring me nearer to God; for it was a lifeless and heartless calling.

"But," says one, "Shall we condemn the organ, being it had no effect on you?" No, indeed, but the character, mind and disposition of the people in general are somewhat alike.

Again, some claim that the organs are a means to keep children at home and enjoy the music. Well, then the poor would have to see all their children stray off, because they can't afford to have an organ. If any of the boys will threaten to leave home, because it evidently shows that he is not in possession of a good character; and if he can only be reached by means of an organ, he must be a nuisance on the farm.

NO ORGAN IS THERE,

Suppose your children become attached to an organ at home, and they become of age and set up house-keeping themselves, and are in limited circumstances, so they cannot afford to have one, will they not be more miserable than if they never were around any?

Perhaps each do like some other persons I heard of: They purchase one anyhow if they are in debt one-fourth what they are worth. If any calls for money are made for church purposes or missionary work, or some homeless, suffering family calls on you for help, that were seemingly providentially hindered in the progress of gathering the necessities of life,—then probably only dimes will be sacrificed, where dollars were expected; simply because you have increased your debt unnecessarily.

"O, well," says one, "as far as that is concerned, how many Brethren are GOING IN DEBT,

and give sparingly by spending so much money unnecessarily in decorating their houses." Is that right? I fear not; but one wrong will not justify the other. Decorate your houses by the same method that the poor class does, and you need not spend much money towards it. Keep your houses neat, clean and in order,—industry does that.

Again, if the holy will allow its members all the latitude they want in getting organs in their houses, then, afterward (because it is more popular) a so-called Progressive may rise before A. M., plead for and ask, "Is it more wrong to have organ in our church-houses than in our dwellings? Should not our houses be dedicated to God and for his service as well as our churches? And are we not worshipping the same God in our churches as in our houses? Should we therefore not praise him, please him, and manifest our joy to him with in the church as at home? Can it be gained, brethren?"

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

Then, afterward, probably, some ministers will say, "Those that sing had better sit up closer to the organ; it is more convenient and sounds better. Next we had better select some of the best singers, say two or three for each of the four parts in music, and have them sit a little to one side, although the congregation can join in and help if it wants to." Then who will have the honor and praise?

Often one evil tolerated, will lessen the next greater in the eyes of men, and because another innovation springs up, more Brethren will be dissatisfied, a stronger effort made for separation is likely to be the result.

WHERE IS THE ORIGIN?

The idea then may be brought up that we could get more additions to the church by those means. That is doubtless true, but being in the church is not in heaven; and probably where you get five in the church through the means or the influence of an organ, style or liberty, you are barring the doors of the church of God to two honest truth-seekers, who have for years been searching for a church where Christ's meek and lowly principles can be tolerated, and where the poor, the lame, the blind and all can meet together, and worship their God in Spirit and in truth.

THE QUESTION

may often arise in the minds of many, "Shall we justify ourselves in purchasing one, independent of what has already been said and warned against by the children of God? Let us consult God about it and consider well before we purchase an organ." Let us sing with our own tongues and fall down upon our knees and pray God for mercy. We may feel without an organ, but doubtful with it. Paul says, "Abstain from all appearance of evil." Consequently we should have nothing to do with a thing that has so many evils connected with it.

PERFECTLY JUSTIFIED

I will close with the admonition given us by one of our old, "Whether therefore ye eat or drink or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." 1 Cor. 10: 31. J. O. CUTLER.

Mt. Pleasant, Ind.

WHAT GOOD can religious liberty do a man unless he know how to use it wisely? May God's grace dwell in us.

It is those who know little, and not those who know much, who so positively assert that this or that problem will never be solved by science.

Correspondence.

From E. A. Orr.—We have lately received four additions to our number by immigration. One, a minister, Dr. John Sturgis, of Indiana. Glad to welcome him among us. We are expecting that brother A. Harpaz will be one of us after Spring. We will then have seven ministers. Not un'ed as we should be; flesh and blood are at work among us.—Smith Fork, Mo., Nov. 15th.

From Wealthy A. Clarke.—On Sunday evening, Nov. 16th, the members of the Huntington church met together to hold a Love-feast. At 5 o'clock the examination services were held in the chapel, and earnest advice and admonitions given by our home brethren, none from abroad being present. We then repaired to the dining-hall, where, on account of room and convenience, the evening exercises were held. The membership was well represented, and the meeting was one that will long be remembered. Love seemed to reign, and we felt that it was good to be there.... The order was excellent—not a sound seemed to disturb the worship, and the spectators gazed and listened with intense interest. We hope they left with good impressions and inquiring hearts.... There was a pretty thought connected with this meeting as it was held in the midst of a school. Surely such scenes should exert a good influence on those who reside there, and what a happy privilege it is for young brethren and sisters to be thus surrounded! Instead of being among the votaries of fashion, they are daily surrounded by those who are trying to set good examples and lead them heavenward. They are highly favored, and should be, through the knowledge they receive, better fitted to give tone and character to their work, and labor for the purity and up-building of the church.... This is the third Communion held within the walls of the Normal, and it is hoped that all have been built up in the faith and feel encouraged to go on in the good work. We are glad to say our little Zion is enjoying peace and harmony.... All the regular services are well attended by the members, especially the prayer meetings. This, in place, is not the case. Church meetings are held every month, and every member is expected to be present, if possible.... Our Sunday-school is growing in interest and number. Of late, we have had Institutes relating to the work, and good ideas have been suggested. If we wish to make our Sunday-schools interesting, we must all work, and not let the labor devolve upon a few. "United we stand, divided we fall," applies to us in every department of life. Although we have had no additions lately to our little band, yet we are not discouraged, as we feel we are trying to do the Master's work, and he will not forsake us; but will add unto us "such as shall be saved"; we have our trials and troubles to contend with, but with the aid of Him who is "a present help in time of trouble," we will overcome. Christ has promised to be with his children, and why should we fear when dark clouds hover around? We must not expect to get along without meeting obstacles in the way, and should set our to tempt us from the path of duty, let us remember our Savior was "tempted like as we are but without sin," and therefore will be near to help us. It may not be long until our labors will close—time is rapidly hurrying us onward, hence we should "not grow weary in well doing" along the way, but labor more diligently for the Master that we may hear the welcome applaudit, "Well done."—Huntingdon, Pa.

From P. D. Fahrney.—Brother John M. Mohler finished his work here on the 20th, and went to Long Meadows, Washington county, Maryland, in Beaver Creek congregation. Had a feast of fat things for the last seventeen days. Four received by baptism, and one resigned. Many others are counting the cost.... We held a Love-feast on the 14th; fifty-two communicants. Houses were well filled; many could not get in to witness the occasion. The very best of order. Every eye was fixed upon those observing the commands of our blessed Savior.—Frederick City, Md., Nov. 22.

From Elihu Moore.—Our Love-feast, which came off the 29th and 30th ult., was well attended considering the extremely bad roads and dark nights at the time. Two were baptized.... Ministers present from a distance were Marcus Fowler, John Eby, and Wm. Hipes.... Also attended the Love-feast in Chickasaw county, this State, Sept. 24th and 25th, which was truly a feast to the soul. Had the very best of order and a good attendance. One baptized.—Brother David Eby, of Illinois, officiated.—Greene, Iowa, Nov. 19th.

From M. V. Sword.—As I have no church news to write you from this place, will just say that Pueblo is a thriving city; population 15,000, a d building very fast. Much business.... plenty of saloons and gambling places. Such drinking and swearing I never saw or heard the like. I often think of Sodom and Gomorrah. Not much church going.... Pleasant weather.... Our health is good.—Pueblo, Col.

From D. B. Gibson.—Thanksgiving meeting to day here. Very interesting.... I am going to Spring Run to dedicate meeting-house and hold series of meetings.... It is possible there were fifty-two additions at Hickory Grove the 19th? So says B. AT W. You will hear from me soon.—Cerro Gordo, Ill., Nov. 24th.

[Brother Gibson is mistaken. The fifty-two additions were at Cherry Grove instead of Hickory Grove. This addition was in the year of the inauguration of the Danish Mission, and not on the 19th.—Ed.]

From B. B. Bollinger.—To-day I visited Eld. J. Shoemaker. He requests me to say that this is the fiftieth day of his sickness, that during these days he has suffered intensely, having a complication of diseases culminating in an abscess of the lungs and lung fever. He is very weak and in a rather critical condition, and does not expect, even under the most favorable turn of his case, to leave his room much this winter. He sends brotherly greeting to all the brethren and friends of his acquaintance, being unable at present to answer the letters sent him. He prays for the blessing of God upon the Brotherhood—for the up-building of which he has devoted much of his time; but feels that he is "worn out," and does not expect to perform much active service in the future. But the Lord knows best what labor may yet be awaiting him.—White Pigeon, Mich., Nov. 24.

From Cyrus Bucher.—Was in meeting to-day. Preaching by C. and G. Bucher, on "Prayer".... Our sister Lizzy O. Erholter, who has been on her bed of sickness for six years, was very poorly this week. She was so weak that her bed could not be made for seven weeks; yet not a murmur or complaint escapes her lips. Here is a lesson of patience for us to copy after—six years on a sick bed; must be fed and nursed all the time.—Reistville, Pa., Nov. 20th.

From John E. Metzger.—Three persons baptized in our congregation last Sunday, causing joy among the saints on earth and amid among the angels in heaven.—Edna Mills, Ind., Nov. 29th.

From L. I. Williams.—Yesterday was our council here with the little band of believers known as the Bellville congregation, and a pleasant council meeting we had indeed. Our esteemed brother Emanuel Hilary was ordained to the full ministry, and brother Daniel Smith was chosen to the first degree of the ministry. We now have an elder; also two ministers in the second degree and one in the first degree. Elders John Forney and Henry Brubaker were present, and O, what good meetings we have had! It was a feast to our souls. We feel that the spirit of the Lord is working with the people here. The old men and women, as well as the young, wept under the sound of the telling sermon of the brethren to-day. Come again, brethren.... Sister N-lie Dagget is very sick, which we are sorry to relate.—Belleville, Kan., Nov. 27th.

Miscellaneous.

As my time for the last three weeks has been closely occupied in watching by the bedside of my aged and afflicted father, (now in his 90th year) and while sitting thus alone by the silent burning lamp with the sable curtains of the night over and around us, while millions of our fellow-mortals are wrapped in sweet repose without, and within all is still, this quietude affords time for meditation; and our thoughts have been much occupied about our beloved Brotherhood and the work.

Some have suggested that we have a called meeting to consider matters; but who shall appoint this meeting to make it legal? At the Miami Meeting there was considerable said and done, but when the business came before the Annual Meeting, it was decided out of order. Could a similar meeting now be considered in order? I am rather doubtful. We no doubt all feel sorry and deeply regret the sad mistake of the Miami Movement, yet it is now done, and we can't help it. This thing has been working for years; like an inward cancer, working slowly, but surely, until it has produced death to them that have been afflicted with it.

And as sure as the tree is known by its fruit, so sure do we see the sour fruit of the Vindictor. God told us to mark them that cause divisions and avoid them. But we didn't do it. Yielding to old and respected brethren, we let sympathy overstep duty, and this is what we get for not catching the little foxes (though they were old) before they spoiled (at least some) the vines. But now what is to be done? Let the churches wake up and watch, for these same foxes are creeping about through the churches causing all the division they can. Whereof do I write it mildly but firmly. Put it away from you or it will eat as doth a cancer. Don't forget, "Mark them that cause divisions, and avoid them." If you do not, will not, "you may not see the sting until you feel the smart." And I think we all can see and feel the effect of bad papers. While a good paper is a power for good, bad papers are a great power for bad; and as it is much easier to pull down than to build up, today our Brotherhood would have been far better off if no paper had ever been printed in our Brotherhood. But we have them, and they have done a bad work. Now let the Annual Meeting take all papers published in the name of the Brethren under its control. The mistake was made when it was turned loose as an individual enterprise. We had far better turned the ministry loose and let every one preach that feels like it. It could not have done the mischief to the Brotherhood that has been done by these papers. Now whether this evil can be best remedied by consolidation or by obtaining a permit from Annual Meeting to publish a paper in the name of the Brethren subject to the consents of the Annual Meeting, I will not say, but we should try to carefully guard the Brotherhood from such disasters in the future from that source. And as brother Eby truthfully remarks, "Like papers, like people," so we may add, "Like people, like papers." We may safely conclude when men have secession and divisions in their hearts, their papers sow that kind of seed and bring that kind of fruit. When they have the spirit of the world he has a false pride and popularity, desiring to be and look like the world, that is the kind of seed the sow, and its fruit is back to the world; much rather be like the world than like the Brethren. But as "A man sows he shall also reap;" "He that sows to the flesh will reap corruption. He that sows to the spirit will reap everlasting life."

JAS. R. GISH.

Roadsboro, Ill.

[Of papers in the Brotherhood, Bro. Gish says, "We have them and they have done a bad work." We think Bro. G. is in favor of good papers, upon the same principle that he favors good money, good preachers and good citizens. Because a farmer commits fornication is no proof that all farmers are fornicators! Bro. G., perhaps, has distributed more B. A. T. We than any other brother, and that, too, because he regarded it as a good paper—thinks, if rightly conducted, it will do good and he an honor to God. He sees the fruits of bad papers and so do others. Hope the Brethren may watch over the papers for good.—Ed.]

God Bless Our Compositors.

As the "Remarks to Contributors" on page 714, in No. 45, was a doubtless intended especially for me, I will hasten to ask pardon for my all but uncomprehensible chirography, and venture with all brotherly kindness to offer my humiliation. As there is probably no writer in the Brotherhood who is a greater agony to compositors than myself, I am not surprised if they sometimes hurry me into type in sheer despair of making a correct guess of my angular, zigzag sprawling, homogeneous scribbling. Well, bear it heroically, and let patience have its perfect work. I write out of the furnace of affliction, and the nib of my pen always groans and weeps as it scratches hither and thither, and runs up and down on the paper; and the flaming, earnest, seething soul forgets every thing but the thought, so that the letters are at the mercy of all the cramps and twists and jerks and distortions of extreme nervousness and constant suffering. There is no use trying to improve my penmanship. The evolution of my mind in the theme in hand, and my hopeless and growing invalidism, forbid. So long as my thought is worth spreading before the public, please accept it in its unsmooth setting. A feeling that announces itself to my innermost as something Divinely imperative, often urges me to cry aloud and spare not, so that to write or not to write is not wholly in my volition. Only so that good is done. I know that I must offend some if I want to please God. To insist on the most fundamental gift of redemption, and cling to what alone gives value to all other features in God's great plan of deliverance from evil, is to be obnoxious to many who linger in the nature-worship and self-pitting of three milleniums ago. Would-be leaders of progressive thought have yet to learn the meaning of John 1:17 and 1 Cor. 15:4, 6. They are not aware that they live in the dispensation of the Spirit, with God incarnate as the Model, Genesis, Development, and Destiny of moral being.

C. H. BALSMAGH.

["Remarks to Contributors" was not "intended especially" for you. Our compositors readily decipher your chirography.—Ed.]

Notice.

This is to notify my correspondents that there is a letter lost from among my mail, in bringing it out from the post office. All the description that can be given of it, is that it was enclosed in a close white envelope. Hence if any one fails to get a prompt answer from me, it may be owing to this, especially if it was on business and contained a stamp for return postage, for very many are lost (??) for the want of that. Yours Truly,

C. C. ROOR.

That Artificial Place For Baptizing.

Fearing that some might conclude that we designed constructing a "Baptismal Font" in its normal form, it was thought best that some explanation be given relative to this matter. As our church building stands near a brook spring, we the Brethren of Bethel church petition District Meeting of North Massouri to grant us permission to construct a permanent place near this spring, into which the water could be conducted, making a suitable place in which to administer the holy ordinance of baptism; thus supplying a want long felt in this part. Certainly this is nothing very new in the West where the condition of streams is frequently such, that suitable places for this purpose are seldom met with.

Quite a gloom seems to be settling down over our fraternity in consequence of the mysterious disappearing of our dear brother Stein. Two years ago I procured his tract on "Non-conformity." On page fourteen and fifteen, Bro. S. uses language that seemed to impress itself indelibly upon my mind, and at this time particularly seems to loom up in the mind with more than ordinary significance.

We receive some very heart rending news from the valley of eshlim. Thank God with us in the West fraternal peace prevails. And we pray God to stay the westward-bound wave of disunion. May it never, never, no NEVER reach us, but like a morning mist, vanish in the valley of its nativity.

P. E. WHITMAN.

Her Sun Has Set.

Louisa Isabella, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Butterbaugh, died of gastric disturbance, Oct. 26th, aged eighteen years, one month and twenty-six days. Her illness was short but severe. As a flower she was cut down. A sweet life was blotted from our sight. The autumnal fogs seemed to freeze the precious fluid which gave life and beauty to one beloved by an affectionate father, a tender, loving mother, fond brothers and numerous attached friends. Her warm heart ceased to beat. She has fallen asleep.

The procession of mourners which followed her to her repose testified to the esteem in which she was held. It was truly a mourning procession, as with tear dimmed eyes they bid farewell to all that was mortal of their young friend. She is now at rest and peace. The writer and several to preach an appropriate sermon from the words of Him who destroyed death's terrors and robbed the grave of victory—"The maid is not dead, but asleep." She rests quietly from her labors in the arms of a Friend who stretcheth closer than a brother. May God who is the source of all comfort and consolation temper this dispensation to the bereaved family, and especially the poor heart-broken mother whose stay and staff she was.

J. J. PURCELL.

"Few were the Summers she had seen,
That lovely friend, fair;
But she was bright and beautiful—
Her heart was full of air.
The world was full of joys to her,
Where'er her footsteps trod—
She loved the benches of the church,
Yes, and she loved her God.
She rests, but Oh! she rests not here!
The cold grave could not keep
A spirit that was pure as hers;
Below she does not sleep!
From happy spirit now is free,
Her sorrow, care and pain;
We would not call her back to earth,
"Twould still an angel strain."

M. E. F.

Health and Temperance.

S. T. BOSSERMAN, - - - - - EDITOR.

All communications for this department should be addressed to S. T. Bosserman, Dunkirk, Hardin Co., Ohio.

EATING AND DRESSING

Bro. Eshelman:—

WE notice your call for something for the Health and Temperance department. We do hope our dear Bro. Bosserman will soon be able to give us an abundant supply of good things for this very interesting department; in the meantime we are willing to send in our mite. By all means don't let this page of the B at W. be neglected. Strange as it may seem, yet there are people—I was going to say Christians—who cannot see what bodily health or temperance has to do with religion! They can see plainly how religion applies to the exterior adornment of the body, but are as blind as bats as to an application of Gospel religion to what we eat and drink. Yes, the hull of the body must endure the fiery criticism of modern "Puritans," while the kernel is the hobby of idleness. Never do, to dress like a sinner, but you may eat and drink like a sinner to your heart's content. The apparel must be—and rightly too—brought down to the gospel rule, but the throat let go,—let free! What inconsistency. Know you not, oh man, that to sacrifice the body on the funeral pile of carnal or fleshly desires, paves the way for a raging tophet of iniquity within the soul? The body must be brought a "living sacrifice Holy and acceptable to God" before we can expect to "grow in grace" spiritually. To transgress nature's laws is a sin, and punishment follows as sure as punishment will follow transgression of a moral law. A sinner cannot escape in either case.

No man can ever attain to a high standard of spiritual excellence who hugs to his bosom morbid propensities or puts no restraint upon an appetite that, to gratify, injures health and demoralizes his judgment and aspirations, and gives a cross grain to the whole man, body, soul and spirit. Hygienic living means living religiously. Religion without true hygiene is a mockery. What the world wants or needs, what the church wants and what God wants, is for all men and women to know how to live right physically, morally and religiously and then live according to their knowledge.

J. S. FLODY.

Longmont, Colo.

COUNT THE COST.

HE lived in the south—an heir of wealth, noted for his ambition. He possessed the finest lands in that sunny clime, drove the fastest horses and rode in the finest carriages. Servants came and went at his bidding. Never did royalty assume more style and grandeur than he. A lovely wife, affectionate sons and daughters contributed to make up his store of happiness—if it were possible to be happy— with such a burning ambition in his bosom. He was not content. "One thing more," said he, "and the some of my happiness is attained."

A palace that shall surpass all others and then I shall be peer amongst the kings of nobility." He sought for the finest marble and the best workmen were secured. The beautiful glittering edifice was erected. But alas! ambition had overstepped the bounds of even all his vast wealth. The building passed into other hands. In an humble cottage he found a home, and there where too late he saw his great mistake, he said in the bitterness of an humble ambition, "If I had only counted the cost at the start."

In our imagination we behold that palace as the result of vanity and folly, and regard the builder as a fit representative of mankind in general.

The young man starts out full of bright hopes for the future—did he but know his first dram is his first step to ruin—his first oath would lead to bitter remorse or that one evil associate would drag him to ruin would he not pass upon the threshold of sin and count the cost?

Many a maiden beautiful and full of life and health has rushed into the whirl of fashion, there to contract the seeds of disease that lay hold of the vitals of life and when too late to escape an early grave, says, "Oh! if I had only counted the cost."

Others are fascinated with the offered enjoyments of the ballroom, because others whose respectability is not questioned, frequent such places, they are the more readily enticed to enter and in the dance take the first step that leads from purity of thought, and there commit the first act of immodest demeanor with the opposite sex.

Looking back from a life of shame to a home of innocence from where they wandered, from the depths of an agonizing heart their cry is, "My God! had I only counted the cost I never should have crossed that dangerous threshold—the ball-room—though the charmer had charmed never so sweetly."

Indulgent parents, who let their children have their own way; when in after days you garner the bitter fruits of your indulgence and weep in sorrow over a wayward son or daughter, you will, when too late say, "Had we only counted the cost."

Children, you may be obstinate to fear, unmindful of your parents, but in the far future, if not sooner, you will feel the scorching pains of remorse and then you would give worlds, had you them, to requite the kindness of your parents, but they will have gone down to their graves in sorrow; then you will say, "Would to God, I had, in my youth, counted the cost."

Husband or wife, the first angry word may be spoken, or an indifference manifested and but little thought of or no steps taken towards forgiveness; but in after years of "growing apart" and when life seems a misery you may have occasion to look back and say, "had we counted the cost and guarded our temperaments, how different would it have been."

You who profess to be the followers of the meek and lowly Redeemer, but are not careful how you live, by your worldly conversation and by joining hands with the votaries of fashion, bring reproach upon the name of Christ, who the sound shall greet thine ears, "Depart from me I never knew you," you can only say, "O, if I had only counted the cost!"

He or she is wise who counts the cost in the beginning and builds accordingly.

J. S. FLODY.

BURDETTE ON INGERSOLL.

THE Burlington Hawkeye says of Mr. Robert Ingersoll's recent article: "In treating these great problems of life Mr. Ingersoll has a fascinating and plausible way of stating things, but they certainly are an unphilosophical as they are untenable. 'Water always runs down hill,' says Mr. Ingersoll. But it does not. Sometimes it runs up hill, and we call it capillary attraction. We have a mode of explaining it by the attraction between the particles of mobile matter and the inert matter of the tube in which the fluid rises. Mr. Ingersoll would explain it by saying that the fluid rises because it rises! That is certainly child-like and simple, but it is hardly in keeping with the rules of a philosopher who proposes to dethrone a God—the God who is the designer and creator of the universe. We do not only find that Mr. Ingersoll is mistaken in asserting 'water always runs down hill,' but there is a wonderful process of nature that exceeds even capillary action. The life-bearing sap ascends the tree and carries with it nourishment that sustains and enlarges the plant. The tree has a system of water works that actually extends its own water mains. This phenomenon, we are told by Mr. Ingersoll, happens because it happens! It that is not superstition but it eclipses anything of the kind so vehemently denounced by him, we do not know what superstition is. Its genesis is clearly traceable to the pagan belief that the world is a great plane resting upon the backs of four mighty oxen, and the oxen rest upon a great elephant. What the elephant rests upon, the pagan belief failed to state. Mr. Ingersoll goes one step further and affirms that the elephant rests upon himself."

CONSUMPTION.

THE prevalence of consumption is alarmingly on the increase, and yet there seems to be no general measure adopted to arrest its ravages. People have become so accustomed to this fell destroyer of the human family, as to conclude there is no way to avert its inroads. Did people understand more fully how to live properly and put to practice what they know the bill of mortality would grow beautifully less. The masses live on unhealthy food, so either from its nature or manner of preparation, and their manner of living and clothing themselves, only tend to prepare the system for disease. An exchange says: "Moreover, it is found that the chief cause of consumption is breathing impure air, and the ill-ventilated living and sleeping rooms of the consumptive districts may be pointed to, in confirmation of the assertion. Buckwheat or Indian pancakes soaked with lard and covered with molasses, fried pork, ham, salt beef, salt fish, leathery pie, soggy dumplings, &c., and tea cannot be relied upon to nourish and sustain a hard-working man or woman in any part of the country, and such a diet persisted in is sure to bring a harvest of dyspeptic affections and fevers."

J. S. FLODY.

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR THE

Brethren at Work,
AND
TRACT SOCIETY.

A. T. Rossmore, Deakins, Ohio. John Forney, Abilene, Kan.
Brook By, Lees, Ill. Daniel Vaniman, Vinton, Ill.
G. A. Shambaugh, Graham, Mo. J. S. Pory, Longmont, Colo.
W. O. Taylor, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Metzger, Cairo, Genoa, Ill.
J. B. Mohler, Girard, Mo. J. W. Southwell, Havana, Ky. Prof.
John Wise, Mulberry Grove, Ill. D. Brown, Salem, Oregon.

OUR PLEA.

THE BROTHERS AT WORK is an uncompromising advocate of Primitive Christianity in all its ancient purity.

It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice, and maintains that the sovereign, unmerited, unalloyed grace of God is the only source of pardon, and that the vicarious sufferings and meritorious works of Christ are the only price of redemption.

That Faith, Repentance and Baptism are conditions of pardon, and hence for the remission of sin.

That Trine Immersion, or dipping the candidate three times face-forward, is Christian Baptism.

That Foot-Washing, as taught to John 13, is a divine command to be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper is a full meal, and, in connection with the Communion, should be taken in the evening, at the close of the day.

That the Sanctifier of the Holy Spirit, or Spirit of Charity, is bestowed upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retaliation are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That Non-Resistance to the world in dress, customs, daily walk, and conversation is essential to true holiness and Christian purity.

It maintains that in public worship, or religious exercises, Christians should appear as directed in 1 Cor. 14, 4, 5.

It also advocates the scriptural duty of visiting the sick with all in the name of the Lord.

In short it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the Apostles have inspired men to do, and aims, and counts the accomplishing thereof as divine and modern Christianity, to point out ground that has not been made so infallibly safe.

Single subscriptions $3.50 in advance. Those sending eight names and $25.00, will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount will be placed retails and sent as the balance. Money sent by Post-Office Order, Registered Letters, and Drafts properly addressed, will be our cash. No cash sent checks, as they cannot be collected without checks. Address,

BROTHERS AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ill.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 JAN, '81," shows the paper has been paid for up to the time "1 JAN, '82" shows that the time will then expire.

If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Please Read—We have some calls for "Stein and Ray Debate" in connection with B. at W. We will send B. at W. one year and the book, cloth, for $3.00.

The North American Review for December is in all respects a good number. The writers without exception are eminently competent for the tasks assigned them, while of the subjects discussed, there is not one which does not possess a living interest. Indeed, were one called upon to enumerate the contentions that are to day exercising men's minds, those treated of in this number of the Review would certainly occur to him among the first. There is a discussion of the Death Penalty, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Cheever, Judge Samuel Hand and Wendall Phillips. The policy of Mr. Gladstone's Government toward Ireland is strenuously defended by Mr. H. O. Arnold-Forster, son of the Chief Secretary for Ireland. This paper is confessedly an appeal to the judgment and the sympathy of Americans in the struggle now going on across the Atlantic, and is a graceful, and practical admission that British statesmen are not indifferent to the enlightened public of the United States. Four physicians and surgeons of the first rank, namely, Drs Hammond, John Ashhurst, Jr., J. Marion Sims and John T. Hogan, review the history of President Garfield's case. Finally the Hon. David A. Wells treats of Reform in Federal Taxation.

Why Tobacco Should Be Used.

Tobacco is useful to missionaries who travel among cannibals. These eaters of human flesh will not eat a man who uses tobacco. Neither will leeches live that suck the blood of smokers, and turkey-buzzards will not eat their flesh. Tobacco is a preservative against cannibals, leeches and buzzards. The following extract is taken from a little work entitled, "Power of Grace."

"Put a victim of the tobacco habit into a hot bath; let full and free perspiration arise; then drop a fly into the water—and the fly dies at the instant of contact; so, leeches are instantly poisoned by the blood of smokers. Cannibals will not eat human flesh which contains the flavor of tobacco. Even the turkey-buzzards of Mexico refused the flesh of soldiers addicted to this indulgence." "Power of Grace" may be had for 15 cents by addressing Hope Pub. Co. Brooklyn, N. Y.

Job Work—If you have a book or pamphlet, circulars, letter-heads, bill-heads, envelopes or any kind of Job Work, you want done, we will do it neatly and cheaply.

Do You intend to bequeath something to the Gospel Tract Society? Millions of pages of good Gospel reading matter ought to be usefully used if there were funds with which to print them.

Brethren's Envelopes.—These are neat, white envelopes with the general principles of the Brethren church printed on the back. By using them, the doctrine of the church may be spread far and wide. Price, 15 cents for 25; or 40 cents per hundred. For sale at this office.

Terms to Agents.

- For $1 75 { BRETHREN AT WORK and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year.
- For $4 50 { Paper to three persons each one year and a copy of Close Communism by London West to sender.
- For $6 00 { Paper to four persons, each one year and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year to sender.
- For $9 00 { Paper to six persons, each 1 year, and a copy of Family Instructor, an excellent work worth 75cts.
- For $12 00 { Paper to eight persons each one year and one copy free to the sender.
- For $15 00 { Paper to ten persons and a copy of Biblical Antiquities, by Nevins, to sender. Price of work alone, $1.50.

- For $18 00 { Paper to 12 persons and a copy of Stein and Ray Debate in cloth to sender. Price of book alone, $2.00.
- For $24 00 { Paper to 15 persons, 1 year and say $2 50 book found on Western Book Exch'g Catalogue to sender.
- For $30 00 { Paper to 20 persons, each 1 year and a Dictionary of the Bible by Smith. Price of book alone $3.00
- For $37 50 { Paper to twenty-five persons, each one year, and ten per cent. off to sender, or $4.00 worth of books from catalogue.
- For 45 00 { Paper to thirty persons, each one year, and $5 00 to sender; or we shall put $5 00 into missionary fund for every thirty subscribers and $45.00.
- For $60 00 { Paper to forty persons, each one year, and a copy of Worcester's Standard Quarto Dictionary worth $10.00.

Mt. Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - November 23.

Number Enrolled.....	186
Average Daily Attendance.....	167
Per Cent. of Attendance.....	97
Number Tardiness.....	3
Neither Absent nor Tardy.....	122

E. A. BERRY, Principal.

All About Kansas. THE WEEKLY CAPITAL is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county, $1.00 per year - - - BANNER COPY FREE. - - -

I A MAN

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE!

EVERY LINE OF ROAD

that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slopes. The

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago-Abilene-El Paso to Kansas or which by its own rail, reaches the points above named. No transfers of passengers. No special connections! No shuffling in miscellaneous or unnumbered cars, with their inferiority to express trains, through fine, between Chicago, Peoria, Milwaukee and Missouri River points; and close connections at all points of interest.

We ticket you free direct to any of our great cities or intermediate in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington Territory, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico.

An ideal arrangement regarding baggage, as any other line, and rates of fare always as low as competitors, who furnish the best of the country.

Tickets, baggage and all other principal ticket offices, and all other office and depot.

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN,
The First and Best, The Best and Truest

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

BRETHREN AT WORK.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Dec. 13, 1881.

No. 48.

Editorial Items.

In these days of severe provocation are you sowing kindness?

On the 6th inst., a Bible printed in 1482 was sold in London for $5,000.

D. T. Woods, of Clark-burg, Canada, is a student at Mt. Morris College.

Bro. Lair reports very good prospects for Orphan's Home in Middle Indiana.

Bro. D. E. Gibson is at work at Prairie City, Ill. Several added to the one body.

Four or five large mills at Minneapolis, Minn., were hoisted Sunday the 4th inst.

Bro. D. Kins, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., has gone to California to remain a short time.

NEXT week we shall send you the BRETHREN AT WORK Almanac and Annual Register.

The true disciple of Jesus never attempts to show his innocence by proving some one else guilty.

But do you think of this commandment? "Speak first of another, brethren."--James 4: 11.

BRETHREN AT WORK, Microcosm, Youth's Advocate, and Family Companion to one address for $2.60.

REMEMBER Moore's Family Companion and B. AT W. will be sent to same address one year for $1.90.

It is rumored that the Gospel Preacher and Evangelical Christian are to be consolidated. Is this true?

ROBERT A. BARNES, of St. Louis, has bequeathed $25,000 to the Methodist Central College, at Lafayette, Mo.

MINISTERS should devote some of their labors to the young. Talk to the children also; they will appreciate it.

The propeller JANE MILLER went down in the region Bay recent with twenty-five persons on board. All were lost.

The members of the March Creek church have enlarged their meeting-house. Four persons added to the flock there.

ONE brother sent us about one hundred names, to whom we have sent sample copies. May 1 Pet. 5: 10 be his exhortation.

BROTHER Daniel Fry died on the morning of the 9th inst., and was buried Sunday the 11th. More particulars next week.

Two baptized in Lexington church, Ohio, November 5th. Love-feast at same place Dec. 1st, which was largely attended.

SISTER Susan Barkley, wife of leather Norman Barkley, of Falls City, Mo., died the 9th inst. Thus one by one they pass away to rest.

If the ministers in the church desire more spiritual life among the members, they need themselves be more "spiritually minded." Would it not be well to manifest more long-suffering and meekness all around?

Did you read "Chips From the Work-house" in last week's paper? They make a very warm fire at which cold hearts may warm. Nov. 20: 4.

The real worth of a life should be measured, not by the times one has not stumbled, but by the times he has succeeded notwithstanding his stumbling.

Thus writes Brother H. Kepler, of New Hampton, Ia.: "We are in love and union, as we should be, God bless you in the good work you are doing."

BRETHREN D. M. Miller and Martin Meyer have again gone to work in the Master's field in Wisconsin. Hope they will go from there to Minnesota.

Bro. S. T. Bovermann and wife are getting along nicely, and we hope before long will be able to meet their brethren and sisters in the public assembly.

Two hundred and one persons attended Sunday school in the Chapel here on Sunday, 4th inst. Harmony and concert of action make work interesting and edifying.

Our wealthy brethren can lay up some treasures in heaven by leaving a sack of flour at some poor widow's door or a cord of wood in her yard, and say nothing about it.

NOAH TROYER, the man who used to preach during his spurs, has ceased to preach that way, and two others, John Kaufman and Christian Zook, have gone into that kind of work.

The rate of steamer passage from Hamburg, Bremen and the Scandinavian ports in Europe to Chicago is only $32. There will be an immense immigration to this country next year.

Bro. Bashor has been holding meetings in Montgomery Co., Ohio. Dr. Hinkle, formerly a member of the German Reformed church, has been received into the church at those meetings.

We know a brother minister who desires to spend the Winter among isolated members--where there is no church--and help along the work of the Lord. Address this office, with stamp.

BRO. L. R. Peifer and wife returned the 2nd from an extended visit in Lebanon, Berks and Lancaster counties, Pennsylvania. They report no division there, but sobriety for the Brotherhood.

Has Annual Meeting ever decided that uniformity in dress shall be made a test of fellowship? If so, what some brother or sister point out the year and article? If it has not, will its enemies cease their false accusations?

If our intention to devote some space in next year's paper to general news. As the first page of the paper will be larger than in the present form, it will give opportunity to present considerable matter of general interest.

SINCE we are looking about for example, suppose we take the one commended by James: "Take, my brethren, the prophets who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of suffering, affliction, and patience."

Thus following from our esteemed brother J. M. Mohler, of Lewistown, Pa.: "Meeting closed in the Long Meadow congregation, Washington Co., Md., the 4th. Meetings well attended. Bro. D. F. Stouffer, bishop, a very active brother, was present during the two weeks' meeting. Fourteen were added to the church."

BRO. A. W. Reese, of Warrenburg, Mo., writes: "Was over to Centerville last Saturday (4th inst.) Had good meeting. Brother Andrew Hutchison just got back from Virginia, unseparated in health. Brother Jacob Whitmer was also present."

EDWARDS FANCH EBY, Joshua Schultz, Peter Fomoy, and J. S. Snyder were locked out of the B. at W.'s meeting-house in Cedar Co., Ia., by the "Old Order Party." They then resorted to the school-house hard by and preached the Word. We hope they bore that kind of treatment patiently.

The attention of our readers in Northern Illinois is called to the article in another column entitled, "Unsty." Some who love strife and have bitter envy in their hearts may scoff at our desire for peace, yet we believe the great majority will echo the desire and take courage to renew the bond of union.

A LARGE number of our subscribers did not receive the first number of the present volume because they waited until after Jan. 1st to renew. We hope all will renew in good time this month so that they may not miss a single number. We do not desire to publish many more than will be needed. Send in your name soon.

A SISTER at Hudson, Illinois, writes that she intends to send the B. AT W. a Christmas gift. "I have often thought," says she, "it would be nice if the subscribers to B. AT W. would each send a box of good things, weighing fifteen or twenty pounds, to the tired editor. We would none of us feel it, yet it would do him much good or make his burdens easier to be borne."

BROTHERS held meetings in the Chapel each evening from Sunday to Thursday last week. Meetings opened promptly at six and closed at seven as is not to interfere with work of students. The interest, attendance, and preaching were excellent. Meeting this week also until Thursday evening. We hope our isolated brethren in other churches will come and help.

The statement in last week's issue in regard to number of churches, ministers, and members of the Brethren, is incorrect. Brother Howard Miller says the report is not yet complete and that "anything now published as complete is wholly erroneous, unsatisfactory, and unreliable. There is no person living who can do more than estimate, and it would be the blindest guess-work."

It is our purpose to give some attention to Bible prophecy next year. That we are near the end of the Gospel dispensation seems so evident that none ought to be ignorant; still an awakening is needed. We are compiling an article on the "Ages," which will be illustrated by a neat diagram in the paper. Just now we are very greatly pressed with business so that we can do but little towards preparing the article on the "Ages."

In looking over the Gospel Preacher No. 46 under the head of its "Future Course" we notice it fails to include in the things which it purports to "maintain and defend," the principles of Non-conformity to the world, and the covering of sisters' heads during prayer and prophecy as found in 1 Cor. 11. We are inclined to regard the omission as an oversight; for we do not wish to believe that the Preacher has concluded so long to defend and advocate the doctrine of Non-conformity, and announ of appearing before God. We trust we may be allowed to say this in all charity without calling down upon us any kind of a persecution.

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work.

CHRIST, THE TRUE LIGHT.

BY LEZZIE M. BROWER.

"But it shall come to pass that at evening time it shall be light."—Zech. 14:7.

How wondrous are the works of God,
What various beauties rare,
While each and every one of us
Of these rich bounties share.
The rich and poor, the great and small
All taste of earthly food,
While kings and monarchs one and all
Are freely blessed with good.

At evening time it shall be light,
The winds and rain have ceased;
Our eyes behold the planet bright
Which is to rule the day.
'Tis thus when nature's loveliness
Is anxiously espied,
The rainbow plainly meets our view,
God's promises verified.

At evening time it shall be light,
Thus hath the prophet said,
That man may rest and live aright
When other hopes have fled.
When clouds of sorrow compass round
And trouble fingers near,
To this ray of hope is found
To quiet every fear.

My youthful friends, and others, too,
Why idle all the day?
There is a field of work for you,
Then enter while you may.
And at the close of life's last day
Your evening time may be light.

At evening time it shall be light,
For those who've borne the cross,
Who long did strive to walk the path
Which leads to endless bliss,
Who oft withstood the tempter's frown,
His visit and strife,
In hope to gain a shining crown,
A lasting victory.

At evening time it shall be light,
May this our comfort bring,
And hush to us in the eve of life,
O death where is thy sting?
Why should this earth thus bid us here?
We seek a rest above,
Over the river where shines a light
A glorious Savior's love.

South English, Iowa.

For the Brethren at Work.

CONCERNING THE LAW.

FT. SENECA, O., Oct. 31, '81.

I. J. ROSENBERGER.

Dear Brother:—

I take this liberty of writing to you for information, on the 51st verse of the 3rd chapter of Romans. "Do we make void the law through faith? God forbid! Yea, we establish the law."

How or in what way do we establish the law?

I have read and learned much from your letters in the B at W. on the law. Please let me also have your views on Heb. 4:10 When did Christ cease from his works? SUSIE E. DUKES GILBOA, O., Nov. 2nd, '81.

SUSIE E. DUKES.

Kind Sister:—

Your letter of inquiry, bearing date Oct. 3rd, was received. In view of continued absence, answer has been delayed.

We pause first to inquire what law is referred to in the quotation you make. Paul cannot mean the law of ten commandments, and had no future typical signification, besides being given by God himself; they were established when given. I therefore conclude that Paul had allusion to the ceremonial law of Moses, every particular of which typified something in the Christian dispensation.

For instance, that law provided Israel with a lamb for an annual Passover. That lamb was a type of Christ. That law recognized Moses as Israel's law-giver and intercessor, who himself said that a prophet should be raised up, like unto him. In these words Moses holds himself up as a type of Christ. That law provided for daily sacrifices, which were types of the daily sacrifice of our bodies, etc., etc.

Now Christ coming in the world and meeting all points in that law, answering the grand things signified by the law, he by this course of procedure "establishes the law." Christ says he did not come "to break the law, but to fulfill the law;" that is: answer the design of the law; hence you and I being in Christ, we also in no wise make void the law, but contrariwise establish that law, by showing that that law prefigured facts, hence was true.

Your second text reads, "For he that has entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from his." The person alluded to as having entered into his rest, is Christ. Paul then states that he ceased from his works, meaning his work of redemption; as God did from his, meaning his work of creation. Now let us go to Genesis 2nd, and see how God ceased. We find that God ended his work on the seventh day and rested, blessed and sanctified it.

Christ ended his work of redemption on the first day of the week, by his resurrection. It then, as Paul says, he ceased as God did, he rested and sanctified that day. When on the cross Christ exclaimed "It is finished," he meant his suffering and not the work of redemption; for as yet we had no resurrection, but happy to state that the glorious resurrection car was attached to the grand redemption train, the next blessed and sanctified first day of the week.

With the above, I remain, yours in hope of eternal life.

I. J. ROSENBERGER.

For the Brethren at Work.

OUR BELOVED ROSIE.

BY THOS. D. LYON.

To eulogize the life and character of the dead, is not always right; yet to let ungrateful silence cover up the Christian graces of our beloved departed is equally wrong. It has been suggested that more be said in memory of our dear departed sister, Rosie Lee Snively.

Sister Rosie was an orphan child, having been robbed of the dearest of mothers when about six years of age. Three weeks after, she was taken by Y. and Lydia Saavely, as their own child.

Rosie, perhaps, possessed the weaknesses and frailties in common with other children, but she was, in an eminent degree, a good child. She early imbibed great affection and respect for her foster mother and father. She was possessed of refined sensibilities; nothing so tortured her as to have a word spoken bordering on vulgarity or obscenity. She surely was a model child, a noble specimen of humanity. Yet with all those traits that distinguished her as a noble girl, at the age of fourteen years she found that something must be done as a further preparation to live in a world to come; "She came to Christ," "she put him on;" for surely such a mind was in a state to be made free. The writer well remembers the time when she was buried in the waters of the Mackinaw, the indescribable influence that surrounded the sacred laver, as a prelude to a greater glory. The writer is yet encouraged when he looks back to that time.

So far as the church at Hudson knows, sister Rosie lived a blameless life to the day of her death.

words, new deeds, and a new being, in order to serve him acceptably. The things we would once do we should now spurn even to think of.

I am a jealous God. You are loving another husband than the one I would have you to espouse. Therefore I am jealous. I would have you to love Me and devote all your service to Me. I am the Groom to whom you should give your regards, and not those dumb idols which man has reared, for I am God and besides me there is none other; I am he who only can answer your prayers; from one emanates all you now enjoy, and your most sanguine expectations can only be realized through me. For this reason devote yourself to me, and the interests of my cause; live devoutly, quietly, and godly in this present evil world, and you may at last safely enter the ineffable portals.

The mercies of the L. rd,
Which hath doth treely gve,
Will joy, and peace, and lib. ff rd
To all who will beli-ve.

Then come and let us do
Our duty to the Lord,
And thus unto our God be true
By trusting in his word.

Assured that those who win
Those mansions there secure,
Must stri-ve, it they would enter in,
With Christ, the just and pure.

Our easy burdens now
With cheerful hearts we'll bear,
Until we with the angels how,
And Christ's dear presence share.

Then, in that home above,
All freed from toil and pain,
With Christ our Head, the Prince of Love,
We shall forever reign.

Mt. Morris, Ill.

For the Brethren at Work.

WHY DO WE THUS?

BY GEO. A. HAMBERGER.

THESE is surely an abortive anxiety, on the part of many, to know why the Berlin committee acted as it did. Undoubtedly, the committee is right in not reporting to any body except the body that gave it its power. There was confidence reposed in the committee before it went to Berlin, and confidence should not be abated without a cause; there is no cause yet, for it has not reported.

No. 41 of the Progressive Christian was handed me? (Who will patronize such a sheet?) It carries my mind back to Eden: God's people were urged to progress there. They did. The result is patent to the world. Progress indeed! In all candor, I ask, in what shall we progress? "Let us go on to perfection," was given not that we should improve upon God's system of grace, but that we should strive to attain "unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." Where do we conceive progression to stop? Is it not in perfect love toward God and man? How do our fathers stand in this fight? May we not point to their lives as synonyms of victory through Christ? They were on the alert; they bravely met the enemy at every turn; they gave no room for babblers; they said down with the throne of carnality—and they put it down; and they said, "the life we now live, we live by faith in the Son of God"—and they lived it.

But that paper. Some say, "read all and accept the good" (Can you digest poison and be uninjured? Can you touch pitch and not be defiled?) Trust not your sifting powers. Think of the young and unsuspecting. "But," says another, "where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." Liberty in what? To say and publish anything you wish? Verily not. I make no argument. Let us hear Paul. Paul, can a man hiss his venom throughout the church without restraint? "For there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, especially they of the circumcision: whose mouths must be stopped." Titus 1: 10, 11. Who shall stop them? The wise shall understand.

Graham, Mo.

For the Brethren at Work.

IN MEMORIAM

BY WILLIAM M. LYON.

THESE lines are inscribed in memory of our worthy brother, John I. Ebert, who passed from this earth to his eternal home Oct. 25th, 1881, aged 48 years. Disease, typho malarial.

The bereft family consists of the mother and six sons, the only daughter, Ida Gertrude, the eldest child, having died of the same disease September 23rd, 1881, only one month and two days before the death of her father.

Thus the messenger of death hath entered the once happy family, and hath severed the mystic tie, and hath snatched from the family circle a kind father and loving daughter, leaving the dear wife and mother and brothers in sorrow, sickness and affliction. In this sad visitation of death, the bereft wife and mother hath lost a kind husband and obedient daughter, the brothers a fond and tender father and an affectionate sister.

Brother Ebert had been an ardent laborer in the Master's vineyard for several years, having been elected to the office of deacon shortly after his admission into the church, and having labored zealously and effectually for a short time in this position, he was then chosen to the ministry, in which calling he served faithfully till his Divine Master called his spirit home.

Before his death, according to the Scriptural injunction,—James 5: 14—he was anointed with oil in the name of the Lord. Thus in the midst of life we are in death. "To-day we bloom, to-morrow we die." But since we know that our heavenly Father "doeth all things well," and "His ways are past finding out," let us bow submissively to his divine will, and when dear ones are taken from our midst, though it is hard to give them up, let us remember that the "Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away," and trust him as a "Friend that sticketh closer than a brother." May the Lord sanctify this dispensation to the afflicted and bereft family.

Gone to their spirit's home,
The father and daughter dear,
Their bodies mouldering in the tomb,
Their souls with God appear.
Gone to that resting-place,
Beneath the lifeless clode;
The grave hath won the race,
The victory is God's.

Gone from the dear ones here,
Done with earth's sorrows and tears,
Never again will we hear
Our voices mingle with theirs; [call
But when we trust that when God shall
Our spirits from earth away,
That we'll live together all—
In peace through endless day.

Williamsport, W. Va.

WE are near the end of this dispensation . . . The coming of the Lord in the clouds to take His church to be with Himself is the Christian's hope. O to be ready! In the Master's name I tell you to be ready. I charge you to prepare for His coming.

In life, we always believe that we are seeking repose, while, in reality, all that we ever seek is agitation.

From Zion's Watchman.

Notes of Foreign Travel.

BY A LADY.

LETTER XI.

WE continue our description of the Cathedral of Milan:

In the sacristy we see two statues of saints, and their sacerdotal robes, which are richly studded with gems; altar furniture of rare and exquisite manufacture, missals, studded with precious stones, rich embroideries, rare altar pieces, which are kept locked up except when exhibited to the wonder-seeking tourist. Hundreds of poor, hungry-looking men, women and children were kneeling in different chapels, or walking about, some of whom ask for a few centimes to get some bread, making a motion as if hungry, which we have no doubt they feel, judging from their looks. We next visit the refectory of the Church of Santa Marie delle Grazie, to see Leonardo da Vinci's celebrated painting of the Last Supper, the picture that we are all familiar with from childhood, having seen it in Bibles, story books and engravings. It is the picture always referred to when the representation is spoken of. We found it a half defaced fresco which has had a door cut through the lower portion of it, the refectory, having been used as a cavalry stable. Although this is the great original from which so many copies have been taken, yet I never fancied the picture, or rather the design, in any of the copies I had seen; but here these arrangements of various sizes, which in finish were far superior to the original. It was one of da Vinci's first works, on which he spent sixteen years. In the picture gallery, there is a painting of the Last Supper which pleases me better than da Vinci's. In it the Savior is the central figure, while the disciples, instead of being seated at the same side, are seated around the table or reclining with their full faces toward you, or their profiles. The picture was painted by Rubens, and although not considered as one of his master pieces, is nevertheless a picture of more than ordinary merit. In this gallery is a painting by Raphael, which is considered one of the gems of the collection. It is the Betrothal of Joseph and Mary, the coloring of which is almost transparent or luminous, and as fresh as though just finished. There are many others which, had I time to describe, might be of some interest to those who cannot see them. We wished to visit the Palace, but the new king and queen had made their entry into the city a few days before our arrival, and the palace was closed to the public. We saw them, however, taking a drive, each in their own carriage. The queen was dressed very plainly, as were the ladies accompanying her. The king was dressed in a military suit and rode with his head uncovered. The outsiders of his carriage, and also of the queen's were dressed in red. They have a palace in city, and are to spend the summer in the different cities. Their next visit will be made at Venice, and they arrive the next day after our arrival. There is a fine zoological garden, containing among other things one of the largest cameleopards in the world. Large magnolia trees line the walks, with here and there a tall cypress pointing heavenward. The barracks are fine and extensive, the largest being nine hundred feet long and seven hundred wide. In front and on the sides are elegant walks, lined with trees. In the rear is an arch of marble richly adorned with statues. Here the Simplon road commences, which passes through one of the finest ravines of the Alps. This road, if I remember correctly, was constructed by Napoleon I, for the passage of his troops from France to Italy. In front of the arch, facing the city, is a bronze statue of Peace, in a car drawn by four horses. The manufacture of silk is carried on extensively, also lace, velvets, carpets and gloves, and various other goods. Vocal music, or voice training, is made a speciality. We met a gentleman from Boston who had been here ten months with his daughter for the purpose of giving her the advantage offered in vocal training. I made some inquiries in regard to the cost of living, which he said was higher than in America. He pays for wood at the rate of $40 a cord, flour 88 per cent. Everything but rice was sold by the pound, that by measure. All kinds of dress goods were much cheaper than in America. This gentleman and his daughter gave us much valuable information in regard to the Italian cities, and how we should see them, and the most favorable time for seeing certain places which we desire to visit.

We now leave for Venice, Queen of the Adriatic.

For the Brethren at Work

PRAYER.

BY BELLE DUTLAR.

"Pray without ceasing."—1 Thes. 5: 17.

HOW impressive is the word prayer? how deep, inspiring something holy—a glimpse of pure light—a glorious future where the sunshine of love sends its beams of beauty, cheering us through dark trials. When the heart is weary with world's toil, the word "prayer" brings its comforting spirit to lead us penitently to this noble life, which to gain, is better than great riches.

In many instances we are commanded to "pray without ceasing;" and this should be our life motto.

The mother bends in supplication over her only son, whose habits are of an impure nature—who loves the poisonous taste of liquor; but she grows not weary. When her efforts seem of no avail, we would whisper, "be of good cheer, prayer is not forgotten."

The little beggar child, kneels in its tattered dress and whispers the name, "Father;" and God will hear; for he has said, "Suffer them to come unto me."—Matt. 19: 14.

The widow looks upon her fatherless children and sends a message heavenward, "give us this day our daily bread."

The Christian farmer views his field of waving grain, noting the many golden sheaves to be garnered at the coming harvest; and breathes a prayer to heaven, "I thank thee, Father, for thy goodness to me."

The mother, the little barefoot-child, the widow and Christ-an,—the rich and poor, alike in time of need, go to the fount of goodness for help when earthly aid proves unavailing.

The many messages will reach the great throne and the Father will answer all in his own time. So we should live in daily anticipation of a pure and holy life before us, remembering to "pray without ceasing."

PATERSON, N. J.

For the Brethren at Work.

TAKE WARNING.

BY SARAH MURKEL.

HOW lamentable it is to look around us and see so many that are not concerned about their soul's salvation. Some are taken away by death. But a few days ago a young man in this vicinity, had to give up to death unprepared; he was an orphan boy and had no relatives here, which seemed sad indeed. But there is one that is a friend, if we only would accept him as such, who is ever ready to listen to our wants; but alas, they will not hearken! Though all the pieces of advertisement were written that could be printed, and ministers were to wear out their lungs preaching, and death rob them of half their number, it would not change all. And now, friends, are you going to let it be you? For the sake of your own happiness, give your hearts to the Lord; he is the truest friend you ever had. There is sweet comfort in the love, he will be with us through the dark valley of death, and lead us to the shores of eternal happiness.

Salvation is free; it does not take money to purchase it, we all can have a share. It is the best offer ever made to mankind; although so few accept of it.

If you were to hear there was a place where everything was plenty, and no one had to work, nor ever get sick, and everything happiness, would you not all try to go there? Very few I think would stay and toil and labor when it was offered so freely.

Our life is short at best, and why not be more concerned about our soul that is to live forever, either happy or tormented? Which will you choose? I hope all may consider well the matter; it is of vast importance. And we, who have taken the yoke of Christ upon us, let us be more faithful, hold fast to that old ship of Zion, and press forward to the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

The flaming sword over the gate of Eden, the parted heavens through which angels stepped upon the ladder of Jacob, the burning bush before which Moses took off his sandals, the pillar of fire by which night-enveloped Israel were guided through the wilderness, the Shechinah of the tabernacle, the brightness about the fire intending itself, of Ezekiel's vision, the transfiguration, the tongues of fire on the day of Pentecost, Stephen's vision and the glory of the New Jerusalem, these all express the fact, that Christ is to the believing soul its light.

The worst mode of outweathering a cold, dull time is to sit down and wait for it to pass away. The law of the skies is that a better, purer air shall drive away the clouds, and let down the sunshine.

HALF the misery of human life consists in our making a wrong estimator.

Home and Family.

MARY C NORMAN, LE SUERC, MINN., - EDITRESS

OBJECTIONS.

WE have learned that there are some who feel the weight of our argument—object to us talking and writing so much upon the subject of Christian religion. These persons are trying to impress upon the minds of others, that our object is to force the faith and practice of the Brethren upon the people whether they want to believe it or not.

Dear friends, this is not our object. We care not to force any one; we only wish to persuade and entreat you to come to Christ; for it is only the willing that Jesus wants—without faith it would be impossible to please God. If our teaching and practice is in accordance with God's Word and condemns your teaching and practice, do not, for Christ's sake, object to it; but just come over and practice the teachings of Christ and the apostles; then you will not feel condemned.

No doubt these persons would not object to us if we would cease negative teaching, or showing both sides. It would not pinch quite so hard should we go along in a quiet way and say nothing about errors in theology and practice; which are so manifest in the religious world. But this we cannot do; for it is our right and duty to condemn error and hold up the truth of the Gospel, regardless of who it hits. We have put on the harness and are working in the vineyard of the Lord, and there are none who dare molest or make us afraid. We expect to live and die in the service of the Lord. O, Lord may it be said to us in the resurrection morn., "Come up higher!" M. C. S.

OUT OF THE MOUTH OF BABES.

"LITTLE Annie Wilder has joined church," said Mrs. Fielding to her friend Mrs. Brewster.

"Joined the church! Well, I must say I don't believe in filling the church with children, and such material too. I don't believe Annie Wilder knows how to read."

"And her mother is such a low-lived termagant," added the first speaker.

"Yes, and that isn't the worst of it, she takes a drop too much, I am told."

"Say a great many drops, and you will get nearer the truth," was the reply.

This bit of dialog took place in Mrs. Fielding's pretty summer parlor, in a certain suburb.

It happened that not long thereafter Annie Wilder came to Mrs. Fielding, and asked for work. She was set to washing dishes and cleaning vegetables, and a most efficient little handmaiden she proved. She was as gay as a bird, warbling snatches of hymn and song, as she hurried from one task to another.

One day Mrs. Fielding said:—
"Annie, I wonder you are not more serious since you joined the church. It is a great responsibility to be a church member, and religion is a serious thing."

Annie paused in her work, looked at the lady with her sweet, truthful eyes, and said:—
"I don't know what you mean, ma'am."
"I feared so much," said Mrs. Fielding.
"Child, do you know what it means to join the church?"

"It means being on Jesus' side," said Annie, her face radiant; "and O, I love him so that I can't help singing!"

"But," said Mrs. Fielding, "don't you have any fears, any struggles?"

"Why should I, ma'am?" asked the child, her clear eyes opening wide.

The lady said no more, but shook her head ominously as she walked away.

The hot weather came on; family trials were common; nobody had an appetite; the children cried; papa was critical. One morning Mrs. Fielding felt particularly out of condition. The sun, but a little way on his journey, shone with noon-day intensity. Not a leaf stirred. The breakfast was tasteless. The flies were aggravating. I don't know how it happened, but it only takes a little spark to make an explosion when the train is laid. Some unguarded word was spoken, a temper blazed; a child was slapped and sent away from the table; the husband remonstrated; sharp words followed; there was recrimination, tears, a downright quarrel.

"Oh, the trouble of living!" groaned Mrs. Fielding, when husband and children were out of the house, and she was left alone. "I cannot bear it, I cannot bear it!" and she gave herself up to hysterical sobbing.

By-and-by, when the storm was a little clear away, came Annie, her face serene, her eyes soft and outtroubled.

"Pless excuse me, ma'am, for being late," said she, "but mother was had this morning, and wouldn't let me come."

"What is the matter with her?" The child blushed.

"She has been drinking, I suppose," said Mrs. Fielding.

Annie raised her arm at that minute, and there on the soft, fair flesh was the livid mark of a blow.

"What is that?"

"Please don't ask me, ma'am; it is nothing."

"Your mother has been beating you—and what a face! You look as if you hadn't a trouble in the world. How can you bear such things?"

"I keep saying 'em over, ma'am."

"Saying what over?"

"The charity verses. I said 'em so fast I didn't hear mother very plain."

"What do you mean?"

"Love suffereth long and is kind—isn't it beautiful, ma'am?" and the child's face glowed. "And then when I started to come here," she continued, "I couldn't help feeling bad and lonesome, and I thought of another verse: 'Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.' Always, ma'am, think of that! It means Jesus, ma'am, and Oh, I love him so."

Mrs. Fielding went to her own room, dumb before the wisdom of an ignorant child. Presently Annie's voice came floating out on the stifling air. She was singing, "His loving kindness, Oh how great."—Christian Union.

Among the base, merit begets envy.

Subject.

PRAISE YOUR WIFE.

PRAISE your wife, man; for pity's sake, praise your wife when she deserves it! It won't injure her any, though it may frighten her some from its strangeness. If you wish to make and keep her happy give her a loving work occasionally. If she takes pains to make you something pretty, don't take it with only: "Yes, it is very pretty. Won't you hand me my paper?"

If will take you only a moment's time to kiss her and tell her she is the best wife in town. You will find it to be a paying investment—one which will yield you a large return in increased care and willing labor for your comfort. Loving praise will lighten labor wonderfully, and should be freely bestowed.

I called on a friend one day and found her up to her eyes in work. "Oh, dear," she said, "this is one of my bad days; everything goes wrong, and I haven't got a thing done!"

"Let me help you," I said.
"No, no," she replied, gently pushing me into the sitting room, "I'm going to leave everything and rest a while; but I must just wipe up this stop first," pointing to an ugly spot which disfigured the pretty oil cloth.

Just as she stooped to do it her husband came in; he didn't see me, but went straight to his wife. One quick lift, and he placed her on her feet, and taking the cloth from her hand, wiped up the spot himself.

"There, busy be!" he said, "you have done enough for to-day. You tired your self all out getting my favorite dinner. Now I think I'd leave the rest till to-morrow."

I spoke to him then, and he sat with me a few minutes before going down town. Shortly after, my friend came in, looking very much amused.

"I guess I was in the dump," she said laughing, "for I'm finished; and everything has gone swimmingly since E—— came in." (N)

Subject.

PERSONAL CRITICISMS.

THE tongue, girls, is an unruly member, and has to be held in tight rein, lest it get the better of us. Don't get in the habit of gossiping about each other; throw a bomb from the beginning all attempts at personal discussion and criticism. Indulgence in gossip leads in most cases to mischief. There is no happy medium; this line cannot be drawn safely at any point. There are many subjects to talk about quite as interesting, if not more so, as people. Besides being wrong, it is a cowardly thing to speak ill of a person who is not present to offer a defense. If we must discuss each other, let it be only in praise. We scarcely realize what a fearful magnitude this evil has attained. People unconsciously drift into it, only waking up to the fact that they have been slandering their neighbor by having some word they have dropped, in an unguarded moment, brought to their door, the beginning of vile slander.

In your judgment of each other, be careful to find out the motives which prompt an action. Do not condemn without being sure there is ground for condemnation. (N)

A FEW books well chosen are of more value than a large library.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

DECEMBER 13, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN,..... Editor.

J. H. MOORE, }
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Ernest Eby,	A. W. Soos,	D. K. Reisker,
James Evans,	S. H. Mohler,	J. J. Boergerger,
Orville Vanaman,	C. H. Eschinger,	J. W. Southwood,

This Work will be responsible only for the general tone of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that we endorse every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will please set typewriting in German and accurate language, but present their views "with grace associated with wit."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending eight cents and $1.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional order the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send us the balance.

Money sent by Postal-Notes, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk. Make them payable to M. M. ESHELMAN. Address all communications for the paper,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

THOSE of our readers who may wish to take the Primitive Christian in connection with B. AT W. can have both papers for $2.75. Orders sent to this office will be promptly attended to. Spell names and address correctly and write plainly.

UNITY.

THUS far in every good work undertaken in Northern Illinois, there has been a remarkable unity or oneness. It is doubtful whether it is possible to find its parallel any where, and we do not believe it possible for two thousand members to live more harmoniously than those have thus far in Northern Illinois. There have been differences; but those differences have been allowed up in love, and thus unity has been maintained. Every measure brought forward designed to promote the Lord's cause among us has been duly considered by the District. When the call came from Denmark for ministerial aid, delegates were chosen by the churches and sent to the District Meeting at Cherry Grove to consider the propriety of sending help to the seekers after truth in Denmark. God blessed your efforts brethren! In your home mission work, the District inaugurated it, supported it, managed it, and it has been blessed of the Lord. In all those meetings you had a voice. You said what should be done, how it should be done, and freely gave of your money to carry on the work. Can you now go back on that noble record? Do you regret what you have done in Central Illinois, in Wisconsin and in Denmark? No, we do not believe there is one who regrets that the work of the Lord was thus carried on by the District. God blessed the work, and it stands as an honor to God, and those who were his instruments.

By the District taking these things in hand, remarkable unity has been maintained. No church has demurred. No church refused to work with the District. All those far have been in harmony with each other; and we do not believe there is a church in Northern Ill. that is tired of serving God us in days past. There may be individuals who want some new way—some plan prepared elsewhere by men who care but little for union and peace—but as a District the unity will be maintained, though attempts be made to create division.

The members as a rule are lively. They are not only lively, but lovely and cheerful. We have met many churches—have been in many parts of the "Brotherhood," and observed a grand deal, and we turn to Northern Illinois with gratefulness to God for the great unity that has thus far prevailed. We must praise your brethren and sisters for your great devotion to principles. We hope that this same spirit of oneness—this desire to labor together, may continue till Jesus comes. We deplore division. It is an evidence of a loss of love. It betokens a turning to worldliness. Divisions are far more worldly than anything else; for the devil is the author of division among members.

Some of you, my dear brethren and sisters, have received a little nameless sheet calling a meeting at West Branch at which the "Old German Baptists," as the new sect started Aug. 24, 1881 in Ohio, call themselves—will define—not the Gospel,—but a certain "Revelation" written by men. And what do they ask you to do? They come asking you to give up your missionary work. They ask you to stop teaching your children the Gospel in the meeting-houses in the form of classes. They ask you to take the supper off the table during feet washing—a thing in which all agree, and which all enjoy because Gospel. They ask you to tear down colleges which you never started nor own. They ask you to put away single-soles of feet-washing,—you practice the other way. In short, they come seeking to break the unity which has so long existed. We do not believe that you will give heed to such work. Your past life—your zeal, your knowledge—all declare, you will not turn from the Gospel of Christ for something made and formed by men. Nor do we believe that the church at West Branch will open the meeting house to any number of expelled elders from Ohio or elsewhere to sow discord. The members of the West Branch church are prospering. Many have been added during the year, and as a people they have no desire to turn away from the Brethren. If they would be at peace with God and love the church of the Brethren, they will pass by in silence any attempt to stir them up to division. The Italian proverb, "Hear, see, and say nothing if you would live at peace," is worth remembering.

Why a nameless sheet should be sent out, if the reformation is of God, is a mystery. It is not of God. God manifests himself—hides nothing which he does. That which is evil is born in darkness. Northern Illinois wants no division. It needs no instruction from those who go out from us and try to entice members from their first love. It loves the Brotherhood, and cannot give up that love for something of so recent birth. We need not this "new thing"—this spirit of sedition among us. We desire to preserve unity—the peace which has so long prevailed among the churches. God will not permit the "unity of the Spirit" to be a vend. We love the churches in Northern Illinois, hence this timely warning. Accept it as coming from a loving heart for your unbounded love, your zeal and constant endeavor to maintain good works for necessary uses.—Titus 3:14. There are very few, if any, in N. Ill. who want division makers to come here. We need no such scenes as have been witnessed in Southern Ohio. Let us be prayerful and seek the Lord often for help.

WANTED.

THE labors of the office being too much for one person, I have concluded to take in a partner. A man of business qualities—a careful, prudent worker desired with $3,000, or $5,000. To attend to the purchasing of stock, the keeping up of repairs, the overseeing of the general work in the office, and edit the paper is too much for one man. Correspondences solicited. R. F. Francis, D. L. Miller and S. Z. Sharp, Mt. Morris, Ill. M M Z

LOVE ONE ANOTHER

Love worketh no ill to his neighbor.—Rom. 13:10.

O MIGHTY love! It softens the heart and lifts up the fallen! It delights in others as in itself. Love loves meekness as well as itself. Love seeks the good of soberness, justice, humility, and every other virtue as well as its own. Love is of God, for "God is love." No wonder he shows us his love. God being love, could not manifest himself without manifesting love; for all his attributes which enter into the work of saving us have been manifested.

We perceive God's love in his giving us his Son—John 3:16. God's love is perfected in us when we keep his word.—John 2:5. God's love is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit.—Rom. 5:5. All this on condition that we love one another. We cannot love God and yet hate one another.—1 John 3:13.

1. Love is an evidence of discipleship. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another.—John 13:35. Love for one another includes all the principles which enter into relationship and friendship. For instance it would be useless to maintain that we love one another, and at the same time throw away the principles of forbearance, kindness, gentleness and goodness.

2. Love is a medium through which we are to serve one another. Brethren, by love serve one another.—Gal. 5:13. O how pleasant is service when love moves us in it! But if we have bitter envyings, and strife and jealousies, and evil speakings, then there is no love.

3. Christians are to provoke one another to love.—Heb 10:24. If we were all industriously engaged in provoking (stirring up) one another to love and good works, think ye there would be any bitterness,—any wrangling? Suppose we all meet on the imperishable platform of love, and forget the things that are behind. We are certain nothing but love will commend us to God, and admit us into the glorious rest.

4. Christians must be kindly affectioned with brotherly love.—Rom. 12:10. Who does not love to be treated kindly? Who wishes to be treated rudely? Do not all love to receive love? Well if it be a good thing to receive, is it not a good thing to give? If a genuine dollar makes you happy when you receive it, will it not make the one happy to whom you give it? Then pass love around from heart to heart. Let not Satan tear it from you; but as God supplies you, freely give it to others.

Where is your "first love," brother? Do you know that love wins? Love endures. Love smiles when the hot iron of wrath is thrust into it. Love is joyful when persecution sweeps over it. Love rules in sweetness, even though venom be found upon it. Love burns out the dross and leaves the temple refined. Love bows from heaven and rescues the perishing. Love uproots briars and brambles and plants the vine and fig tree. Love conquers, but blows no trumpet. Know ye not that the Lord's rebukes are guided with love? Rebukes are for the healing of the sick—not for the mere gratification of the well.

Remember our text, "Love works no ill to his neighbor." It will in no manner harm him. It seeks to do him good—not evil. It defames not, but rejoices in his prosperity. That we all need more love—more spiritual development—more goodness of heart, is evident. Will we seek improvement in these? Will we by God's help, help each other? Here is our hand to show love, by God's grace, to all men. Come let us dwell together in love and seek to build up the truth in love, going forth in the power and strength of our God.

OUR REFLECTOR.

—True, we did not reflect in our usual way last week. Likely a week's rest will enable us to do even better than in the past.

—I think the readers will admire the Christian tone of the last week's paper. We believe in peace, preach peace, and would like to see everybody write peace. It makes us feel good when the paper comes laden with such good things. I hope you will bear with me when I tell you that all of our papers, of late, have been bending the rule of propriety in this respect. Let our papers be the means of circulating nothing but the good and the pure, and if we must differ and discuss points of difference, let that be done at our Annual Meetings. I think that Bro. Gish tells a great deal of truth in his short article on pages, 748-9. If the Brotherhood would have controlled and taken charge of the publishing of church papers there would be no party papers among us to lead off small bodies of members. The different papers would work in the interest of the common cause for the good of the church, leaving all conference matters to the A. M. I believe this is about the only way that peace can be kept in good condition among our papers. I would have all the church papers subject to the A. M., with plain instructions to preach the Word as generally understood and practiced by the Brethren. If an editor would not promise to do that, he would not be permitted to run a religious journal in the interest of the church. The contents of church papers should be about what we would expect to find in the conversation and preaching of a good minister, who might happen to come among us. You know there are some ministers who seem to so greatly edify the church and strengthen believers that we love to have them come and preach for us. Well, that is just the way I would like to see the papers conducted. This method would leave all church troubles at home where they belong and spread nothing but the good and noble. I do not believe that either money or time should be devoted to spreading that which can be of no real benefit to society; bad things spread fast enough of themselves; let us devote our time and attention to scattering sunshine in the pathway of others.

—There are some good articles in this issue I would like to notice, but I must be careful and not take up too much space, hence will omit considerable in order to say some things that should not be neglected at this time.

—The editor's "Mission of the BROTHERS AT WORK" is a well and carefully prepared article, and if properly adhered to by our ministers and papers would prove a blessing to the cause. What a glorious church we would have if all our members would work together in the interest of the one common cause!

—I see that Bro. Eshelman was compelled to leave his work in Minnesota unfinished, his health not permitting him to continue longer. This is to be greatly regretted, but it opens up a way for me to say in public what I have repeatedly said privately. The right place for an editor is at home attending to his paper. The man who properly edits a weekly paper has all one man ought to do, and do it right. At best, Bro. E. has poor health, and ought to take care of himself; this he cannot do while traveling over the country preaching and editing a weekly paper besides. Furthermore, I do not think the people ought to ask him to come and preach for them, better write and tell him to stay at home and make the paper as good as he can; for I consider the paper vastly more important to the Brotherhood than what little preaching he may do. Send him as many barrels of apples and potatoes as you please; but do not ask him to come and preach for you while he is editing a weekly paper. This is about the way I talk to him privately, but seeing that it does no good I have concluded to say it publicly. If this does not remedy the difficulty I must give it up as "a bad case."

—Whatever may be said of J. C. Culver's views in regard to the use of musical instruments, it must be admitted that he has given the subject careful thought before preparing his article. We have no desire to see musical instruments introduced in our churches; they tend to destroy congregational singing and reduce the whole system of praising God to a kind of machine work that has understanding enough, but no spirit.

—Twenty-two baptisms reported since last Reflector. Previously reported 282, making in all 304.—J. H. MOORE.

WHY NOT STITCH IT?

It is with deep regret that we send you the papers unstitched, but we can do no better at this time. Several weeks ago the boiler in our press-room gave way, and last week we received another one, but it will take another week before it can be made serviceable. Just so soon as we can get steam power to run the sewing machine, we shall stitch the papers. Perhaps no one feels worse over these failures than we do; in fact, there seems to be no end to perplexities, yet we shall not yield our patience but meet all things resignedly.

During the past Summer, more than 2000 Mormon converts left Liverpool, England, for Utah. Twenty-four Mormon missionaries left New York recently to work in Europe. It is plainly evident that unless the Government soon takes heed of this evil and stops it, our country will, within twenty years, be called upon to spend the lives of some of its noblest men, and millions of money to put away this blight upon our country.

CHRONICLES.

1. THERE was a certain disciple in Mount Morris in the province of Illinois, by occupation an editor, a minister of the hand called the Brethren bend.

2. And to him the disciples in the vale of Minnesota had written, beseeching him that he should come unto them.

3. Now it came to pass that another disciple by the name of John, whose surname was Gripe, with his wife, a sister in the Lord, was at Mt. Morris also.

4. And these disciples with that other one, on the five and twentieth day of the eleventh month, in the one thousand eight hundred and eighty-first year of our Lord went out of the village of Mt. Morris and came to the city of Chicago in the same province.

5. Here they took leave of one another, John and his wife going to a house called Palmer, and that other disciple to a station called Union.

6. (For the abode of John and his wife is nigh unto Milford, Ind., whither they went shortly after the parting on the street.)

7. Now as that other disciple was sitting in the Railway station, a disciple named Fahrney, by occupation a physician, came in and tarried an hour.

8. And it came to pass that same day that the disciple who had been called by the Brethren in the vale of the Minnesota to preach the Gospel,

9. Passed on through the cities of Milwaukee, Watertown, Portage City and La Crosse in the province of Wisconsin, and on the morrow at dawn arrived at a great city called St. Paul in the country called Minnesota.

10. And on the same day he went up the right bank of the river Minnesota sixty miles, and came to a little village called Ottawa.

11. And immediately repaired to the house of a disciple by name, Henry Bacon, whose family received him kindly and administered to his wants.

12. Now there was also living in that village a lover of the truth—a friend of the Brethren, who made haste to find a place where the people might come together to hear the Word of the Lord by that disciple;

13. And it pleased them of the band of Methodists to open their house, into which the people came to hear that disciple preach the Word of the Lord.

14. Now when the people had heard this minister, this same friend whose surname is Clark, beaught that disciple that he come into his house and abide with him.

15. This did that disciple, and the Lord blessed that family for their hospitality.

16. And it came to pass on the morrow, early in the morning, being the seven and twentieth day of the month, that some of the disciples with friend Clark, went forth to a place called Scotch Lake, twelve miles distant.

17. Now certain disciples of Jesus by name, Norman, who have long stood fast in the liberty of the Gospel, had written to one Stewart of the band of Reformers—which Reformers once had Alexander Campbell as their leader—that certain disciples would come hither to preach the Gospel.

18. So when they came to the house, the people gave audience while that disciple made known the work of the Lord and the duty of men.

19. And it came to pass that when he had finished speaking, that the head man of the band of Reformers, at this place—which sometime had Alexander Campbell as leader,

20. And when they had finished, their teacher, by name Stewart, arose and proclaimed that the disciple of Jesus had preached the Word, but in treating Matt. 5:34, had forgotten that other Scripture, Rom. 13:1.

21. Now it was evident to that disciple that he had not forgotten Rom 13:1, but it was manifest that said Stewart was in this matter without understanding.

22. But that disciple held his peace.

23. Now when the evening was come, the people again assembled to hear that disciple preach.

24. And as was the custom of the people they came together early to speak one to another concerning God's love and mercy.

25. And when they had done, that disciple arose, commended the people for their zeal and desired them to hear him further concerning the things of the kingdom.

26. But it pleased him first to say aught of Rom. 13:1 showing that the higher powers do not compel the Brethren to swear, therefore the Brethren are subject to them in this matter.

27. And from that time forth for more than an hour that disciple proclaimed the Gospel with great boldness and confidence in Christ, beginning with that Scripture which reads, "If ye love me, keep my commandments."

28. Now it had been declared by the leader of the band of Reformers, whose surname is Stewart, that he would withstand that disciple to his face publicly;

29. But that disciple, nothing daunting, spake the words of life freely, and when he had done and bade the people depart in peace, said Stewart opened not his mouth; nor withstood the Lord's minister before the people.

30. And that disciple with others, went to the house of said Stewart, and lodged over night,

31. And this leader, Stewart, showed all hospitality, and his family gave the disciples respect and courtesy.

32. Now this Stewart is a man of ability—a minister of the company of Reformers, and is zealous in all the ways of his people.

33. But he withstood the disciples alleging that certain things which the Lord prescribed in the Gospel, need not be practiced.

34. The Lord have mercy upon him!

35. And on the morrow the disciples departed and came to the region of Sharon where dwell two disciples Robert and Mary Norman,

26. There that disciple, tarried until the nine and twentieth day, when he came to the village of Ottawa on the Minnesota River.

37. Here he again entered it to the house of the band called Methodists and taught the people. And the people heard him gladly, and would that he enter in daily and persuade men and women to turn to the living God.

38. But that disciple being sick—his lungs and throat were being affected through cold—he turned homeward. And some followed him to the station, and made him good bye, weeping that the association was severed and that he must leave.

39. And of the rest of the acts of that disciple knoweth the Lord.

ONE cannot travel on the cars without having the lives of the Younger Brothers, or of the James Brothers, or Highwaymen stories thrust under his nose. Sometimes we hear it offered as an apology for buying and reading this class of books that it is true. It is true that there are readers by the name of Younger or James, but these trashy pamphlets give rose colored, sensational one-sided views of their wicked lives, and are calculated to exert a most pernicious influence upon the minds of weak-minded youths. True histories that would paint them as unmitigated scoundrels, instead of surrounding them with the glamor of heroes, would be less corrupting, out familiarity with vice usually tends to degrade. The effect of such reading finds an illustration in a train wrecking and a murder on the Burlington and Cedar Rapids road in Iowa, which occurred a few days since. Two foolish boys, inspired by reading the history of the James' Brothers, determined to wreck a train secure a lot of money, go east, buy steel armor and fire arms and then make for the Plains for the life of rovers. They carried their plans so far as to displace a rail, wreck a train, kill the engineer, who leaves some fatherless babes; and are now in jail awaiting their trial for murder. Parents who are careless concerning the reading of their children must be prepared to abide by the results.—The Evangelist.

A TREE is known by the fruit it bears. Like produces like. Men and women are known by the lives they live. Many see after the outward and care little about the inward life. They want to appear well to all those whom they may meet. The mistakes they make is in neglecting that which needs the most care and cultivation. Put an honest, good heart into a man and he will not go far wrong.

THOSE who are true to principle, love the truth and deal honestly with all men, enjoy themselves better than those who are dishonest. It will not pay any one to be dishonest.

THERE is a time for all things, according to Solomon. Let everything be done on time and at the right time.

Our Bible Class.

J. S. MOHLER, EDITOR.

All communications for this department, such as queries and answers, should be addressed to J. S. Mohler, Lads, Henry Co., Mo.

Why do the brethren not salute each other with the Holy Kiss in towns? ELIAS HARNISH.

Will some brother or sister please explain Acts 15: 27. The passage reads thus: "And as many as were ordained to eternal life, believed." Did the ordination take place prior to the believing or subsequently? ISAAC H. MILLER.

Why is it, that in the parable of the unjust steward we are taught to take what is not our own? Can any one tell? L. A. PLATE.

A QUESTION ANSWERED.

I have been very much interested in your articles on the second coming and Millennial reign of Christ, and would like if you would answer a question for me. In No. 29 of B. at W. you state that the union of the Church and State did much to bring the Millennial reign into disrepute. Previous to that event the Church and World stood far apart, and no real Christian vote, &c. Have you this from history, if so, please state what history? J. W. S.

RESPONSE,

WE take great pleasure in answering any question that leads us back to the primitive age of the church. We believe that there has been a falling away from the spirit and practice of the ancient church of Jesus Christ, and the effort of all good men since then, has been to restore the ancient manners. We need not here enumerate the names of those who have labored to preserve the life of the church, and to bring her back to where the Author and Finisher of the faith left her.

All who have preached holiness of heart and life, self-denial, separation from the world, and the faithful doing the whole will of God, are among this number. Our inquirer asks what history, or on what page of history, do we find that real Christians abstained from voting in the first ages. We do not undertake now with our limited time and resources to furnish the page, &c. Those who insist that they took part in political affairs, must furnish the evidence. When it is claimed that the first Christians practiced infant baptism, we demand the proof. The writings of the first three centuries, are silent on the baptism of infants, and we are satisfied that it did not exist in those ages. No historian who believes that Christians can vote, bear arms and otherwise mingle with human governments, would record such a testimony as our brother asks for, but the absence of all testimony that they mingled with political affairs, is to our mind sufficient.

To arrive at a satisfactory solution of this question, let us investigate, in the light of God's word, the relations of the church and the world. The two terms in the Scriptures for church and world, are ecclesia and Kosmos. The first term is translated church, and means called out. It comes from ek out of, and kles- sis, called. A church then, is a company of called-out ones, and as the word indicates, must be a separate people. But what are they to be separated from? We answer, from the world; and this leads us to inquire into the meaning of Kosmos, the second term. It means order, arrangement and condition. The world is then not a savage state of existence, but an organized condition of mankind in which the will of man rules, not absolutely, for God controls the whole to that extent that His purposes can be carried on and completed. He rules in the kingdoms of men.

This Kosmos is said to lie in the evil one (eo, tuo potero, Revised Version) or Satan who is the god of this age or atom. 1 John 5: 19; 2 Cor. 4: 4. It is essentially the same through all its history from the beginning to the end.

The whole period of human rule is set forth in the prophets by wild ferocious beasts, such as lions, leopards, bears and monsters. Dan. 7th. John saw the same kosmos under the symbol of a great red dragon with seven diademed heads. Rev. 12: 4. He saw the same prodigy afterward in the form of a beast with ten diademed horns, 13: 1. The fallen harlot church sat on the same beast crimed with the blood of the saints, Rev. 17. The dragon or satan spirit of war has pervaded them all. It is one kingdom presenting a variety of phases, and has existed in seven essential forms, called diademed heads, viz: Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, Media Persia, Greece, Rome and the Greco Roman empire under Constantine and his successors. After the sixth or Roman head was wounded to death by the fall of Paganism, the beast arose with ten diademed horns. This represents christendom or the nations of Europe. But, although professedly Christian, the heart of this ten-horned beast is as war-like as his pagan predecessors.

Thus we have described the Kosmos or present evil world as an organization in which war is an honorable employment and deeds of blood and carnage glorious. When the gospel was first preached, it was not to convert the heart of the Roman beast, whose heads were such monsters of wickedness, as Tiberias, Caligula or Nero, but to take out of the nations a people for the name of the Lord. Acts 15: 14. These called-out ones were not of this Kosmos even as Jesus was not of it. They had thrown up their so-called rights for the sake of imperishable honors in God's kingdom in the world to come.

They were to keep themselves unspotted from the world, friendship was enmity against God. To have taken any part in the political affairs of the Kosmos would have been disloyalty to the Kingdom of Christ and an attempt to serve two masters. Jesus said, my Kingdom is not of this Kosmos, else would my servants fight; John 18: 36. The servants of the Kosmos fight when called upon, and it is called patriotism, love of country, &c. All who are of the world must in some form or other support or defend their country if need be. But real Christians have an heavenly country and have no carnal weapons to defend any form of human government. We maintain then with these facts before us, that the called-out ones or separated church, are not of this world, and did not in primitive times unite with any party or faction, either to overthrow, or sustain any form of human government whatever. Their only armor and weapon was the Spirit's outfit and sword,—the Word of God.

How could they assist in the election of a new emperor, when they refused to draw the sword to defend him? How could the followers of the Lamb mingle with the popular clamor, strife and civil wars of rival factions? Jesus and the apostles have taught us to render Caesar his dues, that is, tribute or taxes when demanded. But if Caesar demands that we should swear by any divinity or by any other oath, or call us out to serve in his armies, it is our duty to suffer death rather than disobey our King. We are to pray for the rulers of the land and by our good example and teaching, promote peace as much as we are able, but Jesus nowhere teaches us that we may participate in public affairs, thereby making ourselves one with the world. We must have no fellowship with darkness; no concord with Belial; no grasping after earthly honors; but we must be satisfied with our title to the riches of the world to come, and seek a heavenly country, a home in the Redeemer's kingdom.

2. We have abundant evidence from the early history of the church that the Millennial reign of Christ was "the reigning sentiment of all true believers for three centuries." See Gibbon 45th chap. of his great work. This great historian who was not partial to any form of religion, tells us that after the third century the doctrine was treated as a profound allegory, then as a doubtful opinion, and lastly as a pernicious heresy, and that the Book of Revelation which favored it, narrowly escaped proscription. When Constantine ascended the throne of the Caesars he united Church and State, called councils and presided in them, exalted and enriched the ministers of religion, and then it was thought the millennial reign commenced.

The council of Laodicia which abolished the ancient feasts or agape of the primitive church, tacitly excluded the Apocalypse from the sacred canon. Mr. Bonar remarks "In the first three centuries, great stress was laid on Rev. 20. It was considered the strong-hold of chiliism or the one thousand years reign of Christ." Baronius, a catholic historian writing of the fifth century says, "Moreover the figments of the millenniumarians being now rejected everywhere, and being derided by the learned with hisses and laughter, and being put under the ban, were entirely extirpated." Dr. Burnet remarks, "I never yet met with a popish doctor who held the Millennium." It never pleased but always gave offense to the church of Rome, because it did not suit that scheme of Christianity which they have drawn. "Plan of Redemption," by Welcome and Gould, page 38-92.

When the church began to commit fornication with the kings of the earth, then the coming and kingdom of Jesus fell into disrepute. The fallen church in alliance with the world no longer loved the return of the Bridegroom. She had a superstitious dread of him as the "judge severe," but his return was to the blessed hope so fraught with blessings to the groaning creation. At last the doctrine of the "day must reign of Jesus was forgotten.

The farther we are from the world, the more we feel the appearing of the Savior. We give it a place in our hearts, in our teaching and in our writings and in the whole tenor of our lives. And how can we please Him who will come again, unless we do, seeing it is revealed to directly and indirectly in the New Testament 400 times?

Correspondence.

Report of Southern Mission Field of Ind.

NUMBER III.

We arrived here at 8 o'clock in Martin county, on the 12th of Nov. late in the evening, and an appointment having been made, we met the people at a school-house at 10:30 o'clock, brother Branson leading out. Had another meeting at night at the same point.... On Monday evening we began meeting at another school-house, about three miles from the above point. We are now in the neighborhood of brother D. A. Norcross, whose labors we regard as those of a truly devoted Christian brother and minister.... We continued our meetings here until Sunday at 10:30 o'clock, having meeting each night during the week. This was a point at which the doctrine of the Brethren was never held forth before we tried to do so. The people generally took great interest in ascertaining the reasons for our peculiarities, which we tried to give.... The weather for the most of the time was unfavorable; in consequence the congregations were sometimes very small. We thank some got offended and varied at home on that account.... On Sunday night we had a communion in brother D. A. Norcross's house. On account of sickness and distance, we again had a very small communion, there being only two sisters and seven brethren. Now, brethren, this makes two communions held, at both of which there were only two sisters present. We hope no one will find fault with us for practicing the "single mode" of feet-washing. The occasion passed off pleasantly. This was our last meeting in Martin county.... We had intended to take the train at Shoals, running at about 9:30 A. M. on the O. & M. road, but a change of time took place on Sunday, of which we were not aware, consequently failed to connect with the 2 P. M. on the J. M. and I. at Seymour, running to Crothersville, where an appointment was made for us; and knowing that we could not reach that point in time to make another appointment, we would have lost two meetings, and having concluded to return home on the 10 o'clock Saturday, we could not have had more than one or two meetings at Crothersville and the same in Jennings county, we concluded that if the Southern District would pay our expenses, we would return some time during the Winter to those points and stay a week or ten days at each place. Please excuse us Brethren for not remaining five or six weeks at once, for we think the whole Southern District of Indiana can better afford to pay the additional expenses of returning, than a few men in moderate circumstances can afford to be away from home so long. We do not want to be understood as complaining, but a plain statement of the matter is, that the missionaries have almost the whole burden to bear, and we insist on more equality. Now suppose a man's time is worth $1.50 per day, a minister goes out into the mission-field for three weeks, which equals eighteen working days, at $1.50 per day amounts to $27. Allowing that there are 500 Brethren in the Southern district of Indiana that are able to donate the value of three weeks, as some of the missionaries are, we would have an aggregate equal to $13,500. Take thirteen thousand and five hundred dollars, and it will give to each of the 270 ministers of the whole State of Indiana (the number of ministers in Brethren's Almanac of 1886 in Indiana) $50, which would take them from one end of the State to the other, as far as cash expenses are concerned, and more than half of them would have more than $25 left. If this were carried into execution, there would be a lively time in the Southern District of Indiana.... In conclusion, I have this to say: Let every brother in the district that can spare five or ten dollars, better than three weeks, send it to brother B. F. Knobs (Treas.). Then our mission-board will have something to do, and from six to ten brethren could be in the field all the time. This would be evangelism, and bear some appearance of equality.

LEWIS W. TERPFF.

Peaceable People.

[A friend in government employ kindly sends us the following list of peace sects.]

Orthodox Friends, Hicksite Friends, Vilbur Division of Friends, Primitive Friends, Progressive Friends, Old Mennonites, Reformed Mennonites, Evangelical United Mennonites, Old Amish Mennonites, New Amish Mennonites, Henry Egly's Branch, Jacob Wasler's Branch, Church of God in Christ, Oberholtzer Party, Staniferite Mennonites, Bowmanite Mennonites, United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Advent, Brethren, Congregational Brethren, River Brethren, United Zion's Children, York Brethren, German Seventh Day Baptists, Harmony Society, Society of the True Inspiration, Society of Separatists at Zoar, Christadelphians, Christian Baptists, Brethren of Abraham's Faith.

Notes of Travel.

By request of several of the Brethren, I will try to give a sketch of my trip East.... Left Mt. Morris at 7 o'clock A. M. the 30th ult., in company with brethren J. Line and J. Holsinger, for Hagerstown. Saw much to interest us on the way; among others the great Horse-shoe Bend on the Pennsylvania Central R. R. Arrived at Hagerstown the 2nd inst., at 11:30 A. M. In the afternoon met with Bro. David Long, Joseph Long and others. Remained over night with my sister, Susan Martin. Came to this place on Friday 3rd—the place where I spent the early part of my life; however I found many changes since I left twenty-eight years ago. The once secluded and quiet village of Waynesboro has now the advantage of two railroads. The Geyer and Frick machine shops are located here. These shops employ about seven hundred hands. All this makes it quite a lively place.... Was out to the Antislavery meeting-house yesterday. Attended the funeral of brother Peter Fahrney's daughter Ida, of Frederick City, Md., aged about nine years. Not long since, brother F. followed his companion to the city of the dead, but we trust he need not sorrow as those who have no hope. We tried to address the large congregation assembled, from 1 Cor. 15: 22.... Attended meeting in the Brethren church in town last night. Expect to continue the meeting here until Friday, 9th.... I have recalled to memory many scenes of my childhood since I am here, and among the most pleasing and yet sad, were the times when I used to attend meeting in the old meeting-house; then old elder Jacob Holsinger, Jacob Fahrney, Joseph Bruber, Jacob Price, David Bock, Andrew Friedly, and my father, Jacob Price, were seated around the table; most all of which are gone to rest, awaiting their reward, while others to our sorrow are no more with us, but have gone out from us. I pray God to remove the cloud which is now hanging over our beloved fraternity, that it may be delivered from everything that is evil, and again shine "light as the sun, fair as the moon, and as terrible as an army with banners."

D. E. PARCE.

Waynesboro, Pa., Dec. 5th.

From Eliza A. Meck.—We are very anxious to have Brethren to come here. There is a good opening to build a large church here if we can get a start. What we need is some of the ministering brethren to come and preach, and organize us in a body and put us in a working condition. There are several very zealous brethren and sisters here.... Brethren looking for homes would do well to come and live here. There are some good cheap farms for sale—small farms that will suit some that have limited means, and large farms which will come higher. Good bottom land; but it is not as healthy as the upland. The upland, as well as the bottom land, are supplied with good water and plenty of timber. Good health and nothing to prevent any person from making a good living here. So brethren, come; there is room for you all. "The harvest is great and the laborers are few." Our prayer is that some of the ministering brethren will come and preach for us. There are souls to save here as well as elsewhere.—Wagner's Store, Washington Co., Ark.

From J. B. Lair.—To-day being the appointed time for the meeting of the Solicitors for the Orphan's Home in the Middle District of Indiana, several met, but not all, consequently there was not a full report, and not as much reported as was expected; still the committee thought the outlook was favorable enough to proceed farther, and a committee of three was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for the government of the prospective

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR THE

Brethren at Work,
AND
TRACT SOCIETY

S. T. Bowerman, Dunkirk, Ohio. John Hursey, Ashland, Kan.
Ezekiel Roy, Leona, Ill. John Swanson, Vandalia, Ill.
G. A. Schreiber, Columbus, Mo. J. C. Rogers, Leighton, Colo.
W. O. Toaster, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Metzger, Cairo, Georgia.
J. S. Mohler, Corvallis, Mo. J. W. Whitlow, Mount Zion, Ind.
John Wade, Malbury Grove, Ill. D. B. Moore, Salem, Georgia.

OUR PAPER.

THE BRETHREN AT WORK is a non-promoting advocate of Fraternal Christianity in all its broad purity. It recognizes the New Testament as the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

And maintains that the evangelist, unconverted, unworked-of-genes of God is the only source of justice, and that the virtuous references and moral lessons of Christ are the only price of redemption.

That Faith, Repentance and Baptism are conditions of peace, and hence for the remission of sin.

That Trine Immersion, or dipping three times face-forward, is Christian Baptism.

That Feet-Washing, as taught in John 13, is a divine command to be observed in the church.

That the Lord's Supper is a full meal, to be eaten with the Community, should be taken in the presence of the church of the day.

That the Salvation of the Holy Ghost, the Kiss of Charity, is binding upon the followers of Christ.

That War and Retribution are contrary to the spirit and self-denying principles of the religion of Jesus Christ.

That a Non-Conformity to the world in dress, and daily walk and conversation is essential to true holiness and Christian piety.

It maintains that in public worship, or religious exercises, Christians should appear as directed in 1 Cor. 14, 26, 34, 35.

It also advocates the scriptural duty of exhorting the sick with all the name of the Lord.

In short it is a vindicator of all that Christ and the Apostles have enjoined upon us, and aims, and the confuting theories and discords of modern Christians, to point out ground that all must concede to be infallibly safe.

Single subscriptions $1.00 in advance. Three reading clubs amount and $2.00, will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount will be placed on file and sent to the balance. Money sent by Post Office Order, Registered Letters, and Drafts, properly addressed, will be at our risk. Do not send checks, as they cannot be collected without charge. Address, BRETHREN AT WORK, Mt. Morris, Ill.

YOUR PAPER.

The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan. '82," shows that the paper has been paid up for that time. "4 1 Jan. '82" shows that the time will then expire.

If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Minutes of Annual Meeting from 1877 to 1881 inclusive, put up in pamphlet form, and can be passed in back part of Book of Minutes. Only 25 cents.

Please Read - We have some calls for "Stein and Ry debate," in connection with B. at W. We will send B. at W. one year and the book, cloth, for $3.00.

Do You intend to begin something to the Gospel Tract Society? Millions of pages of good Gospel reading matter ought to be profitably used if there are funds with which to print them.

Brethren's Envelopes - These are neat, white envelopes with the great principles of the Brethren church printed on the back. By using them, the doctrine of the church may be spread far and wide. Price 15 cents for 25; or 40 cents per hundred. For sale at this office.

Key to Scripture - By J. L. Stone. This work comes to us in the form of a pamphlet bearing the advance of a work prepared by the author.

To work, which pamphlet will contain an explanation of all the important passages in the Bible; a ready to the right of the author in his "Age of Reason," - by Bishop Colenso, in his "Attack Upon the First teach," and to the reviewer of these questions by Ingersoll and others.

This part of the work will enable the reader to form an opinion whether a work of that kind will be of some utility to the friends of the Bible and lovers of truth, and if the author is equal to his undertaking. We most respectfully ask the reader, whatever his opinion may be, to make it known to us. And we ask those, whose opinion may be in favor of such a work, and of the author to aid us in subscribing for the work. The work, when finished, will contain from three to four hundred pages, and will cost from $1.00 to $1.50 a copy. All communications should be addressed to

J. L. STONE,
Chicago, Ill.

The November number of that justly popular monthly, The Housekeeper is by far the best yet issued. It has been enlarged by the addition of a neat cover, is printed from new types, on a superior toned paper, and the present number is finely illustrated. In its columns are found many articles worth many times the subscription price. Especially valuable to all young and inexperienced housekeepers are Prof. C. H. King's series of articles on Bread Making. Prof. King is a well known peasy cook, and what he has to tell about bread making can be relied upon. R. Rennie McGill's moral correspondence is always reliable, while Miss Nattings' department "Our girls at Home" is just brimful of valuable suggestions to young girls. Rules and Recipes from old and experienced housekeepers are to be found in each issue. A very unique feature is the department "Facts about Women," giving the latest news about eminent women in all parts of the world. The Housekeeper employs none but the best authors as all its departments are rich in appropriate matter. Subscription price 75 cts. per year. Published by Haywood & Krackeborg, Minneapolis, Minn.

Mt Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - - December 2.

Number Enrolled.....	191
Average Daily Attendance.....	171
Per Cent. of Attendance.....	86
Number Tardinesses.....	6
Neither Absent nor Tardy.....	128

E. A. BEARY, Principal.

All About Kansas. THE WEEKLY CAPITAL. is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county. $1.00 per year. - - - SAMPLE COPY FREE. - - -

Terms to Agents.

- For $1 75 BRETHREN AT WORK and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year.
- For $4 50 Paper to three persons each one year and a copy of Close Communion by Landon West to sender.
- For $6 00 Paper to four persons, each one year and YOUTH'S ADVANCE one year to sender.
- For $9 00 Paper to six persons, each 1 year, and a copy of Family Instructor, - an excellent work worth 75cts.
- For $12 00 Paper to eight persons each one year and one copy free to the sender.
- For $15 00 Paper to ten persons and a copy of Biblical Antiquities, by Nevin, to sender. Price of work alone, $1.50.
- For $18 00 Paper to 12 persons and a copy of Stein and Ry Debate in cloth to sender. Price of book alone, $3.00.
- For $24 00 Paper to 16 persons, 1 year and any $2.50 book found on Western Book Exchange Catalogue to sender.
- For $30 00 Paper to 20 persons, each 1 year and a Dictionary of the Bible by Smith. Price of book alone $3.00
- For $37 50 Paper to twenty-five persons, each one year, and ten per cent. off to agent, or $14.00 worth of books from catalogue.
- For 45 00 Paper to thirty persons, each one year, and $5.00 to sender; or we shall put $5.00 into missionary fund for every thirty subscribers and $45.00.
- For $60 00 Paper to forty persons, each one year, and a copy of Worcester's Standard Quarto Dictionary worth $10.00.

M. W. INFURGENT EQUIPMENTS! SURE CONNECTIONS! UNION DEPOSITS!

Remember! Fare Always as Low as the Lowest!

Stands pre-eminent among the great Truck Lines of the West for being the most direct, quickest, and safest line connecting the great metropolis, CHICAGO, with the EASTERN STATES, ROCKFORD and SOUTHERN EASTERN STATES, which terminate there, with KANSAS CITY, LEAVENWORTH, ATTOLENS, CHICAGO, HAVEN and other of the commercial centers from which radiate

EVERY LINE OF ROAD

that penetrates the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific slope. The

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago cutting track into Kansas, or which, by its very route, crosses the whole of our domain. NO TRANSFER OF PASSENGERS. NO HAZARDOUS CONNECTIONS. NO STOPPING IN UNDESIRABLE OR UNCLE SAM'S CARS, as every passenger is carried in roomy, clean and comfortable coaches, upon First Class Trains.

Every Car of unusual magnitude, PEELMAN PALACE INTERIOR CAR, and our own world-famous BUFFALO CAR, upon which every car is furnished with unsurpassed excellence, and the low rate of FIFTY-ONE CENTS PER MILE, makes this the most economical route through a line between Chicago, Peoria, Milwaukee and Muskegon, or beyond that point, to every city of importance in Kansas, Nebraska, Black Hills, Wyoming, Idaho, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, Washington Territory, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

As special arrangements regarding rates can be made by the Brethren for all parties, we are glad to receive applications from all parties, and will be glad to furnish the principal ticket offices in the United States and Canada.

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN,
Vice President and Manager, Geo. T. and Harry Agh,
Chicago, Ill., 1882.

Gidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department.
Reports of baptisms especially desired.

OHIO Church, Ill., Dec. 2, 1881.

Our church meeting of Dec. 1st, passed by very pleasantly and satisfactorily. The Church here is yet in union so far as is manifested. . . . The 18th chapter of Matt. was read, and some good instructions delivered by the brethren. Methods of this chapter was more closely observed, there would be more union and less confusion among the members. May God's blessings abide with his children is the prayer of the writer.

FRANKLIN P. HOFFERT.

Huntington, Ind., Dec. 3rd.

We are progressing as well as could be expected. Winter warm and pleasant. We expect Bro. J. J. Rosenberger in our midst about the 15th. There are many brethren in the Lord in this vicinity.

DOSEY HODDGEN.

DeGraff, Ohio, Dec. 5, 1881.

Brother J. J. Rosenberger, of Gilboa, Ohio, is here conducting a series of meetings, armed with divine inspiration. He is laying the strong-holds of Satan in Babylonian ruins. It is not frequent that we hear Bible truths produced with so much eloquence and force. We trust that his labors may be crowned with success, as quite an interest is manifested at this stage of the meeting.

A. M. S.

Laurel, Ill., Dec. 5, 1881.

Bro. Henry Martin preached for us at 10 A. M. yesterday, and Bro. George D. Zollers in the evening. Both sermons were good and practicable. Our congregations, of late, are growing large. Things begin to look like olden times. The mud and bad weather do not seem to diminish the attendance at our regular appointments.

M.

Mulberry Grove, Ill.

Our series of meetings closed last night. And they have been profitable to us. Our beloved Bro. preached the Word with power. We hope the seed sown will soon produce abundant fruit. I rejoice to know that we have such brethren as Martin McClure, who can wield the Sword of the Spirit with power. Bro. John Wise is expected to be at home soon. He is now preaching in West Virginia.

J. P. LILLICH.

Canton, Ill., Dec. 2.

We are still trying to practice what we preach, and preach what Paul taught Timothy. During the past Summer we had two sisters added, and so are counting the cost. I think by next week I will send a few subscribers for the B. AT W.

JACOB NEELY.

Antioch, Ind., Dec. 1.

We expect Bro. D. B. Gibson of Illinois, on the 10th, to commence a series of meetings. May the Lord be with all and ordain all for good.

J. B. LAIS.

Loraine, Ill., Dec. 1.

I met the brethren and sisters of Spring Run, at their new meeting-house in council, the 25th. Found all well and in working order. On Sunday at 11 A. M., met brother D. B. Gibson, L. Tenues, W. C. Lucas and the home ministers. John P. of and Eld. Gibson preached the dedicatory sermon to a large and attentive congregation. I remained until Wed. morning, and there was a good interest manifested on the part of the hearers, and good prospects of an ingathering. Bro. Gibson preached the Word with power. Sinners were made to rejoice and sinners to feel their guilt. Arriving home I found my wife and oldest son, under the care of the doctor, suffering of fever and sore throat. Will hold three meetings at home 3rd and 4th; will then meet Bro. D. Vaniman at Mill Creek, Adams Co., the 7th, to attend a council and other work. Brethren pray for the laborers, that they may bind well the sheaves with the cord of love, that none may be lost, but all may be gained.

H. V. STRICKLER.

Prairie City, Ill., Dec. 2.

Dear Brethren, we are now in the midst of a glorious meeting. D. B. Gibson is here and preached a dedicatory sermon on the 27th. The meetings were continued and several made the good confession, and others are very near.

JOHN POOL.

Virden, Ill., Dec. 5.

The Communion at Pleasant Hill, Nov. 2nd, was a feast to the soul of the saints. Eleven ministers were present. B. B. Whitmer, A. S. Lear were among the chief speakers on the occasion.

DANIEL VANIMAN.

Greendale, Pa., Dec. 5.

I attended four Love-feasts; Cewahshamoc, Plum Creek, John meeting-house and Johnstown. One protracted effort at Cherry Run, Plum Creek district. All these meetings were well attended. Good interest manifested, and the best order in the congregation I ever witnessed. Five persons were added, by making the good confession and being buried with Christ in baptism. May God bless his own cause in the saving of souls.

J. B. WAMPLER.

Altoona, Iowa, Dec. 5.

Bro. John Knise's wife and wife were here last week from Ind. He gave us two meetings; on account of bad roads the meetings were discontinued. They will be in northern Ill., perhaps in three weeks.

J. W. MOATS.

Garrison, Iowa, Dec. 7.

Not much to report in the way of church work, at present. Some are earnestly laboring for the cause of truth; others not so actively engaged.

It sometimes seems to me, that if we were as earnest in promoting the work of redemption as Christ was in establishing it, there would not be so much dissension and contention; but a deeper feeling of love, and a more earnest desire among us in the work. Last Sabbath brother Johnson preached a very acceptable sermon, on "Moral Progression." He said many good things that would benefit us much, if only heeded. May you still go on in your noble work.

J. M. RIDENOUR.

Business.

Can subscribers to B. AT W. get back numbers of the Literary Messenger—from the beginning of its issue? Give price of B. AT W. and Microcosm, with back numbers, up to Jan. 1881.

J. H. JELLISSON.

ANSWER. B. AT W. and Microcosm one year $1.75. This offer makes Microcosm begin with its first number, which was Aug. last, and will close July, '82. B. AT W. from now to Jan., '83, and Microcosm to same time with back numbers, $2.00. We hope all our readers will conclude to take the Microcosm also. They will find it a valuable instructor.

Matrimonial.

LINGENFELTER-SHAW—At the residence of Mr. Alexander Shaw, on the 26th of Oct. 1881, by the undersigned, John P. Lingenfelter to sister Mary E. Shaw; all of Fulton Co., Ill.

JACOB NEELY.

MILLER-LEVENGOOD.—By the undersigned, at my residence Nov. 20th 1881, Bro. Wilson Miller and sister Anne Levengood, both of Mill-edgeville church, Carroll Co., Ill.

JACOB C. HAUBER.

GARBER-YANG.—Dec. 4th, at the bride's residence, near Altoona, Polk Co., Ia., Bro. Aaron S. Garber to sister Amanda Yang. Ceremony by the undersigned.

J. W. MOATS.

Fallen Isleely.

Kindred are the dead which die in the Lord.—Rev. 14: 13.

SLIFER.—At Laanek, Ill., Sept. 6th, 1881. Ira E., son of Estlin and Mary Slifer, aged 6 years, 3 months and 1 day.

HODGE.—At Laanek, Ill., Sept. 17th, Mary Etie Hodge, daughter of Mark M. and Susie R. Hodge, aged 5 years, 6 months and 24 days.

Funeral services by D. Price and E. Eby.

WHITE.—Nov. 27th, Bro. Sol. A. White, aged 53 years 10 months and 29 days. Funeral services in the Brethren's meeting-house in Timberville, by Bro. Daniel Hays.

DAVIS.—Dec. 1st, sister Lizzie, wife of Bro. Henry Davis, aged 62 years, and 9 days. Funeral services in the Brethren's church, at Linville Creek, by Bro. John P. Zigler, and Abraham Shank of the Mennonite church.

JOHN EIGLER.

MARKLEY.—Bro. George Markley, in the Tippecanoe church, Kosciusco Co., Ind., Aug. 8th 1881, aged 81 years, 8 months and 25 days. Died very suddenly. Leaves seven children to mourn their loss. Funeral discourse by Bro. Daniel Shively and Bro. Sam'l Pheiss, from Rev. 21: 3, 4.

G. G. GRADY.

Our Working Band.

The following have sent subscriptions for B. AT W. If mistakes occur, please notify us, stating the number of the paper in which it occurs. Send for prospectus and sample copies. Canvass thoroughly, and do a cash business.

G. W. Shrock, 2,	John Metzler, 18,
J. R. Keller, 12,	Jas. Hamilton, 2,
Lucy E. Bacon, 9,	S. S. Urey, 15,
John Lehman, 3,	Peter Knodie, 2,
Henry Jones, 1,	John H. Hatlie, 1,
Jam. M. Neff, 1,	J. S. Shaefer, 1,
Henry Landis, 9,	Estor Brower, 12,
John Zigler, 5,	Jola Miller, 3,
David Brower, 16,	Nash Early, 1,
J. S. Hanger, 2,	Henry Fowort, 2,
Daniel Vaniman, 2,	Moses Keffer, 2,
S. M. Smith, 8,	M. C. Norman, 4,

Announcements.

LOVE-FEAST NOTICES.

Dec. 25, Cerro Gordo church, Platt Co., Ill.

Polo, Ill., Dec. 11.

A special meeting for consultation has been appointed at West Branch, on Tuesday the 26th of this month, at 10 A. M., and we want all the Elders of Northern Illinois, and as many of the officers and members as can possibly attend, to be prepared to dispose of the Miami element which is beginning to spring up in some of the churches among us. By Order of the Church.

E. FORNEY.

BRETHREN AT WORK.

$1.50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 6.

Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Dec. 20, 1881.

No. 49.

Editorial Items.

The address of Eli. Rule is Morrill, Brown Co., Kans.

Small gifts are good, but great ones are mostly silent.

Bno. Sharp will leave the 22nd for Ashland to bring his family to this place.

Do not waste your time threshing old straw, but turn to the Word of the Lord and be wise.

CHOLERA is epidemic at Alexandria, Egypt, and measures have been taken to prevent its spreading.

The evening meetings in the chapel the last week were very edifying. It was profitable to be there.

Bno. J. W. Gehbart of Arkadelphia, Ark., says, "Weather warm; health generally good; crops poor."

STOVILLE, Gilman's lawyer and brother-in-law, has taken to lecturing in Washington in behalf of his client.

At a council meeting in Lanark the 14th inst., $13.38 was contributed for Missionary work in Northern Illinois.

At an election held in the Lanark Church the 14th brother Aaron Warble and Daniel Kingery were chosen deacons.

Bno. Peter Wolf of Sonora, Ill., died the 9th after an illness of six weeks. One of his sons is attending school at this place.

Bno. Moore's "Reflector" did not arrive in time for the paper. Hope it will come regularly and in good time hereafter.

THIS week we send out the B. AT W. Almanac. If you are a subscriber and fail to receive the Almanac, please notify us.

THE friends of the Paper Missionary work, are availing themselves of the opportunity to make known the ways of the Lord.

THANKS are due the band of workers for the many new subscribers sent in. The prospects are for increased lots from many points.

If any one knows the address of my brother or sister in Dakota or Montana, please make it known to David Herricks, Kingston, Mo.

THE Halton, Ill., church has made arrangements to do some missionary work. Let the word of the Lord be sounded out in all places.

WE were recently shown full-grown peach leaves which were sent here by our old neighbor, Mr. Maddox, who is now journeying in Texas.

ON the 9th inst. a theatre in Vienna, Austria, was burned and 1650 persons perished in the flames. And still people will attend theaters.

ONE hundred and ninety-two names enrolled at Mt. Morris College. Students seem to be hard at work. Vacation from Dec. 22nd to Jan. 2nd.

Bno. John Ziegler of Broadway, Va., writes under date of 12th inst., "Very cold now; moving down to 16 degrees to-day. Water very scarce yet."

The church at Sunfield, Mich., numbers ninety members. Thirteen were received during the year. Six years ago there were but two members there.

THINE have been tremendous gales on the Atlantic Ocean. Thirty Steamships are overdue, and it is feared that one, "The City of Bath" has gone down with all on board.

IT would aid to the interest and welfare of the church, if ministers would visit their neighboring congregations and hold meetings. Let there be no time wasted.

THE Illinois State Board of Health "has enacted that no child or teacher shall be admitted to the public schools after Jan. 1st, who has not been successfully vaccinated."

Bno. John Peck and daughter have left Indianapolis and gone to their home at Emporia, Kans. He says his daughter is in a fair way of recovery, and that he likes his new home.

Bno. John Barnhart of Mansfield, Ill., arrived the morning of the 14th and preached in the chapel the evening of the same day. His case also case, and is now attending College.

Bno. S. J. Peck is our agent at Falls City, Neb. Those wanting the B. AT W. in that vicinity, should call on him. He will supply all with Almanacs. It will pay to give him a call.

"To indulge anger is to admit Satan as a guest; but to indulge malice is to close the door upon him as an inmate; in the one he finds a transient lodging; in the other a permanent home."

FROM an exchange we learn that the minister of the M. E. Church in Pueblo has the choir trying from the front steps of the house of worship in order to attract a congregation? What next?

Bno. Flowers and wife are stopping at Mrs. Mattison's boarding house in Gothen, Ind., where they will remain until Jan. 5, 1882, to relieve the afflicted and tell them how to take care of good health.

GIDDON was a thrasher and attended to his business. Amos was a herdman and took care of his cattle without murmuring. David was a shepherd, and did not keep his sheep together by whipping them.

ON the 14th we were called to Naperville, Ill., to the feast in the union of Mr. Uriah J. Nately and Miss Hatie C. Early, daughter of brother Noah Early. The couple left the same day for a visit among friends in Michigan.

Bno. J. J. Cart of Morrisville, Ill., writes: "Our prayer meetings are giving very good satisfaction so far."

That is right, brethren and sisters, remain in union and often meet and talk to one another concerning your hope of eternal life.

OWING to the labor of sending out the Almanac, we issue a half-sheet this week. Next week we shall send you the regular size, and as it will be the last of the year 1881, we hope all will receive in time to get first numbers of 1882.

A VERY interesting letter received from Minnesota. Brothers, that field must be cultivated. The Lord has a people there, and by using wisdom in preaching the Word, many will come over and practice more perfectly the commands of the Lord.

In another place in this paper we give the views of the Brotherhood concerning writing for the press. It is hoped we may all profit by reading what Annual Meeting says about this. It is only recently that the question was examined by us.

BRETHREN, we are thankful to you for the very efficient manner in which you have filled the correspondence department. May all be pleased by having you continue to do the same next year? Give only such things as will edify all the saints.

OWING to snow and chilly weather on Sunday the 12 inst., we did not reach the funeral obsequies of brother Daniel Fry. We hope some one will give our readers a sketch of his life. He was a worthy member—a model Christian and a faithful brother.

WE learn that brother Allen Boyer had a very narrow escape from death on his way home from the West. In crossing a river in Iowa, his horse took ill in the middle of the stream and died, leaving brother Boyer to be rescued from what seemed a watery grave. He was taken out in a boat.

ELIJAH F. BROWNE, who is engaged in showing the people what Free-masonry and Odd-fellowship are, gave us a pleasant visit the 14th. He had several narrow escapes in making exposures of secretions. Once in New Hampshire a mob endeavored to tear him in pieces but friends rescued him. The mob destroyed about $50 worth of books for him.

"May the good Lord bless you in your arduous work. What a glorious thought it is that if we fight hard in the battles of the Lord, the rest will be so much sweeter. May the Lord give you a strong mind and strengthen you in body, and may you ever walk humbly before Him for such shall be exalted in due time." Thus writes Bro. J. R. Spacht of Dunkirk, Ohio.

ISAAC ERETT of the Christian Standard has replied to our article in No. 38 on Campbell's standing on true immersion. We shall give it further attention early next year as we are now crowded with work. The Standard reads: "It is certain we put it on, and we shall see what effect additional light will have on its single blackish immersion which is not yet five hundred years old."

A BELOVED sister who is actively engaged in the work of instructing others how to be saved, writes: "My treasure is in heaven from whence I look for the Lord. I will suffer in this life in order to enjoy the riches of Christ. I not only want to save myself and family, but I desire to do it for others who are precious. If I could save and awaken the human family to righteousness by giving my life, I believe I could do it for Jesus has promised to go with us through the dark valley and shadow of death. O may we do more for the Lord in 1882! It certainly is possible to mould ourselves according to the divine pattern."

THE season of the year is here when dealers in children's toys, by means of pictures, are deceiving the children. The Hospital Flag of Nov. 30 contains a hideous picture of that imaginary being, "Santa Claus" laden with gifts. Shame on religious papers to thus deceive the young. No wonder children are prone to be untruthful. Those professing "good men" tell them the untruth; and as they grow up, the innocent little creatures reason thus: "Well mother and father and such an editor and such a preacher said Santa Claus brought gifts and it was not true; they could lie, why not I?" Children, be assured there is no such thing as Santa Claus. The Yankee's Advocate tells us all about this deception.

MY LIFE ON THE OCEAN WAVE;
MY HOME ON THE ROLLING DEEP.

BY GEO. D. ZOLLERS.

NUMBER III.

On the swift wings of thought again I go
To the distant sunny clime,
Where the fragrant breezes softly blow
And the warmest sunbeams shine.
One day I was roaming the isle to explore
And espied a rude wooden god.
I scattered some orange rinds o'er the shore,
Near by where the idol stood.
Sudden came a stern devotee hurriedly near,
With signals exclaiming, taboo!
A interdiction, meaning that I should beware
Before that wooden God of Whilteho.
The fruits are delicious and sweet to the taste,
Which grow on that tropical isle.
But my heart was sad to see man debased
And rendered by sacrifices vile.
In their plain rude hovels I have been entertained,
And addressed as their missionary guest.
How strangely I felt while a place I retained
In the circle to share the repast.
On a time we were swimming some wood from the shore,
Beyond where the surges break,
In the midst of the surf now higher, now lower,
Till the boatmen our burden would take.
The natives assisted our water-proof crew,
And we skipped o'er wave after wave.
The king and the queen were confederates, too;
Both deckt with ornaments and brave.
I have noticed how ye scalling the mats so steep,
And skillfully walk the yard arm,
Then on-br one they would pounce in the drip,
Quite as quick and free from storm,
A well-form'd, light-battened bright-eyed hoy
Appears on my memory bright,
Whose sunny smile filled my heart with joy;
To meet him was ever delight,
So nimbly he climbed up the cocoa tree,
Ascending it hand over hand,
And to nibble its products down to me,
Which I ate in his native land.
The hour of parting came; we left our heathen friends,
To sail where the tempests sweep,
And met the perils that the mariner attends
In his home on the rolling deep;
Exchange the genial fruitful isle
For the gloomy nights of toil,
To cope in battle and dispatch the whale,
And extract the rivers of oil.
The signal was given from aloft, there she blows!
And away in the boats we would glide
Till the mighty wave quivered in his dying throes
And the sea with his blood was dyed;
Then we towed him along to the vessel's side,
And secured him with ropes and chains,
And then we sailors on the windlass played,
Till the blood flowed fast in our veins.

A RELIGION whose origin is below the skies can never lead its possessor above them.

DIVISIONS.

BY JOS. C. YODER.

"THE wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth;
as is every one born of the spirit."—John 3: 8.

SPINDERS of grass, tree-tops, or weather-vanes may indicate the direction of a gale. The thermometer, the barometer or the compass may all indicate a certain condition of the elements, each for which it is intended to indicate;
but under unfavorable circumstances they may all fail to fill their office creditably, owing to some surrounding influences, agitations or commotions. This confused condition of these indicators, does not prove however, that they are not loyal to the principle that governs them under favorable circumstances, for no sooner are these pressures removed, than they all revert to their proper sphere. As numerous as the sand upon the seashore or the leaves in the forest, are the causes which may set at naught our equilibriums; but when the principle which governs us, viz., the spirit of Christ without which we cannot be his, is tested under fair means and favorable circumstances and surroundings then will all who are 'born of the Spirit' revert to their proper sphere. The Bible contains two leading points viz the letter and the spirit of the law. The letter is the vehicle upon which the spirit of the law rides; and means, the source or avenue by which we communicate the spirit to others or through which we receive it. The spirit of the law is the kernel; the letter the hull.
It is the vital part of God's Word; the nucleus out of which emanates a legiti-mate spiritual birth and which germinates the divine grace. It is this spirit, if once hid in the heart that will leaven and equalize the disturbed equilibrium which is confusing and agitating the entire brotherhood. When those who waste time upon the letter and sacrifice the spirit, refuse the kernel and accept the hull—have bickering and back-bitings —love popularity—love the applause of men and use all means of stratagems to be elevated by the small system of pulling down—love the flock for the sake of the fleece—when this class abandons its haughty promptings, then the spiritual leaven may leaven the whole church and through the "unity of the spirit" will unite the entire fraternity into one loving brotherhood. Divisions can only be endorsed in case that a known evil will only be remedied by a separation. Those now claiming to be reformers, and by a radical progressive move are causing divisions, had better investigate the spirit of the law, viz.,

"Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them." Rom. 16:
17.

"If my kingdom were of this world then would my servants fight," John 18.
This implies that the Lord did not approve of coercive measures to maintain a good cause. When those who subvert the doctrines of the church, the order, and refuse to work as they have been taught the traditions, boldly will attribute all to superstition and ignorance; mark! after having covenanted with God before men, to live faithful to the church until death; it is them that crucify the Lord anew and put him to an open shame. It is then that they become traitors in the church and pull down instead of build up by railing, &c.
When the wars within and fightings without are wrested so as to assume a spiritual phase in order to decoy others by snaring them into a clique, organized for the glory of men, it is then that these fightings assume a carnal enmity with God, whom it claims to adore.
"Ye are yet carnal; for whereas there is among you envying, and strife and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? I Cor. 3: 50. This implies that they are carnal and walk as men.
"That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the spirit is spirit." "To be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace, because the carnal mind is enmity against God, (Rom. 8:)
6: 7, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." In the warfare to be waged at the coming Annual Meeting let all earnestly prepare for the contest and having on "the whole armor of God," so contend for the truth as it is in Christ Jesus that all may know and feel the wish to be of the Lord. Those expecting to have part in this work of reconciliation should place themselves under especial drill which would enable them to drink deep of the living fountain that flows from the throne of God. Having thus imbibed the genuine essence of true piety they may adjust differences that originated through that ambition which drove the devil out of Heaven and is to day principally, the cause of "hated, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditious, heresies, envyings, murders, often drunkenness, revelings and such like: of the which I tell you that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Gal. 5.

Dear reader, pause, reflect, consider for one moment, do you belong to those "which do such things," without striving to cleanse yourself? On the contrary, "The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, (just what the church has done until forbearance almost ceases to be a virtue) gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law. Aye! observe the contrast. Those who do the works of the flesh "shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Those who enjoy the fruits of the spirit "against such there is no law." Those who have for some time past denounced the proceedings of Annual Meeting, disregarding decisions of committees, and with a spirit of "rally round the flag boys" have breathed a spirit of secession (Secession.—Act of seceding; separation) into the hearts of many; being fully aware, however that they are to be subject to the powers that be; they are walking "after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despite government. Pre-emptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities 2 Pet. 2.

Does the writer judge? Nay. "By their fruits ye shall know them." The fruit of the flesh and the spirit are both clearly defined and it remains for all to judge themselves that be not judged. I judge no man, sayeth the Lord, but the word which I have spoken shall judge you at that great day. The progressives may not have violated every part of the quoted passages of scripture, but they did not fail "to speak evil of the dignities," (Annual Meeting and committees) are "self-willed;" are at "variance" with the general order of the church; through the Progressive Christian have caused seditious through heresies and, judging from their origin have also considerable "hated;" hence the conclusion viz, "whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offends in one point, he is guilty of all." James 2. Upon the subject of "free speech,"

"free rostrum" and also in regard to chronicling every unpleasant transaction and bringing all the reproach upon the church possible, we need only refer the intelligent reader to James 1: 26. "If any man among you seems to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain." Knowing, however, that "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," might modify the harrowed feelings were it not that this division has been caused by it. Now, instead of bringing about a reconciliation, they (Progressives) are only marshalling their forces for a heavy contact; just what the Southern Confederacy did when it had only sixty days to lay down arms and come into the union, and all the champion wants is just to be let alone. Just what Jefferson Davis prayed for and what all obstreperous and disloyal people ask for. Concerning the challenge to other editors, to measure swords in an editorial duel, we have to say to the Progressive; 'hat the day of duels, horse racing, &c., are past in the estimation of the highly cultured; and for the refined to refuse such a menial offer is just what the conservative element expect of its editors. (For the challenge see the remarks of the editor to Ebelman and Balsbaugh in the Progressive Christian No. 44.) While the conflicting sentiment exists and we may have some idea "whence it cometh," yet we cannot tell "whither it goeth;" but may hope, and very many are "born of the spirit" and will unite in the bonds of peace. This review may seem rather severe, but the medicine must be in proportion to the disease; and the Proressive editor says, (in No 44), "we are willing to be judged by our fruits." Our apology for intruding upon this paper and readers is we have been a member for nineteen years; and find, through an extensive observation and by studying closely the character of the Christian citizens in many of the States, that the members composing the church are about as well informed, in general, upon scriptural subjects, as any of the American people; therefore, feel it a duty, to the church whose integrity we are under obligations to maintain, to assist in measures against those undermining the peace of the whole fraternity by manu gross misrepresentations in order to sustain a concocted "schism" and causing divisions.

Huntington, Pa.

of the Brethren of Work.

THE SPOILED PATTERN.

BY DANIEL HAYS.

A CERTAIN sceptic in order to show the discrepancy between the Gospel as a rule, and the practice of its adherents, used the following illustration.

A master workman employed a number of journeyman to make furniture, and wishing to go abroad, he made a pattern, and calling his workmen together, told them to make furniture by the pattern which he gave them, and when he returned they should be rewarded.

Well, after the master workman had taken his departure, his journeymen came together to examine the pattern, and they concluded that there was too much of it. So they went to work and sawed off about one third of it at one end. By and by, other journeymen more experienced than the first, came along and upon examining the pattern, they came to the conclusion that there was still too much of it, and sawed off about one third of it at the other end. Then these workmen went to work and made furniture after this mutilated pattern. When the master workman returns, will he reward these workmen? No, sir. He will say, "Get out of my shop! You have spoiled my pattern, and wasted my material, and I have no further use for you."

Now, said the skeptic "there are plenty of journeymen in the country where I live; and they are working for so much by the year, or so much by the sermon. And the great trouble with them is, they are all the time sawing down the pattern. They have sawed off feet, washing at one end and the Lord's Supper at the other, and they have nothing left but the Communion."

Brother John Harbarger, now of Illinois, formerly employed the foregoing with telling effect on Communion occasions in the Valley of Virginia. It is a pointed expose of modern degeneracy from the original Model. Jesus says: I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life: no man cometh to the Father but by me. John 14: 6. Well would it be for all to square their lives by the Model in faith, in practice, and in life.

TRUE liberty does not allow any one to do that which might injure his neighbors.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

DECEMBER 20, 1881.

M. M. ESHELMAN, Editor.

J. H. MOORE, }
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Enoch Key, A. W. Reese, D. F. Brubaker,
James Evans, S. S. Mohler, J. J. Baerthelmer, David Newman, C. H. Hollingsh, J. W. Southern.

The Editor will be responsible only for the correct form of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that he endorses every sentiment of the writer.

Contributions, in order to secure insertion of their articles, will have not holding in personalties and respectful language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending eight names and $10.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send us the balance.

Money sent by Post-Office Orders, Registered Letters and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk. Make them payable to M. M. ESHELMAN. Address all communications for the paper,

BRETHERN AT WORK,
M. Morris, Ogle Co., Ill.

FEAR NOT.

WHEN a Savior was to come, an angel appeared to Mary and said "fear not." Jesus as a teacher said to his followers, "fear not." After his resurrection an angel appeared unto the women entreating them to "fear not." And now beloved brethren, permit me to entreat you to "fear not," yet "watch and pray." Fear not though your names be cast out as evil—though cruel and hard heart-trample upon you, defame you, curse you and say all manner of evil against you. It is not a question how you stand in the sight of men seducers who wax worse and worse, and cometh in "sheep's clothing," but how you stand before God and good men.

Some of our friends have recently written us to be calm—to look to God for wisdom, because desperate attempts are being made to blacken our character. By some whose hands are preparing foul and slimy matters against us, we have been notified that they would show us to be the "wickedest man" in the church. We hope it is not for revenge. We "fear not" what men can do. All the mud that can be heaped upon us, will be washed away in the blood of the Lamb. What does it signify if we be covered over with filth, can we not cry to the Lord and defend the church in its holy work? Can chains and dungeons prevent the praise of God? Can bitterness and ambition and rebellion and curses stay the hand of God? We fear not what man can do, nor what he will do. Wherever we have done wrong we shall make haste to confess to God for forgiveness, and to men to build up the truth. We have never been stubborn nor refused to acknowledge our errors when pointed out by men who love the Lord and desire to do right.

It is known that the BRETHERN AT WORK is indeed in the way of certain men who are among God's children for base purposes—to get gain and fame. They will try to tear down your paper if possible; but as well try to float away the rock of Gibraltar, or pull the heavens down with their maledictions. The BRETHERN AT WORK will go on, fearing not men, whether the editor lives or dies. Know ye not, O vain man, that vengeance belongs to God? "Fear not," brethren, but "watch and pray." We shall continue to stand by the church, come what will. I pray for us!

BROTHER STEIN.

La Due, Mo.;
Dec. 8th, 1881.

Brethren Editors:

The circumstances attending Bro. Stein's trip to the East are of such a character as to create a good deal of inquiry and anxiety on the part of his friends in S. W. Missouri:

1. Did you know that Bro. Stein's mind was seriously affected before he left?
2. If so, why was he permitted to go alone on such a great and dangerous trip.
3. Ought not some brethren to look after him and try, if possible, to ascertain his whereabouts?

An explanation in B. at W., of the above queries would doubtless be satisfactory to many minds.

Fraternally

J. S. MORRIS.

ANSWER: "How readest thou?" Know ye not that Bro. Moore said, "After brother Stein left here we learned from his family that his mind was at times very seriously affected for some months before he left, so much so that his condition seemed alarming. This, however, was not known outside of the family, and never would have been told if it did not now seem necessary."

This is all we know about the matter.

2. Had the Brethren discovered anything seriously wrong, they would have endeavored to prevail upon him not to go, as they did try to persuade him not to go at that time.

3. Bro. Hylton suggests that somebody be sent after him. We doubt whether any one can do more than the Uni of States officers who have been requested to hunt him. However it might be well to furnish Bro. Hope with means to look after him; but we doubt the propriety of sending any one from this country. We still hope that all things will come out right in the end. All we know we have given to the public. We might give you our suppositions and opinions, but what would they avail?

CONDUCTING PAPERS.

THE Brethren Church speaks annually through its council-meeting upon such topics as are brought to it, and as each member has a right to be heard upon a question of general importance, it is in order to see what the Brotherhood has said concerning the manner of conducting periodicals. We quote a few of its decisions:

"Is it consistent with the example and doctrine of Christ and the apostles, when brethren write and publish books, and afterward revise and republish them, etc.? Considered that brethren should be careful in their publications, and especially of other men's books." 1854, Art. 14.

"How is it viewed for a brother or for brethren to write against the ancient order and customs of the church, and have their manuscripts or writings printed, and thus distributed in and out of the church? Answer: We think it is not right to do so." 1865, Art. 8.

"As many Brethren seem to so far disregard the advice of the Annual Council as to send to the 'Gospel Visitor' and 'Christian Companion' articles exposing, through their editors, the councils of the old brethren, will this meeting adopt means to put a stop to these things? Answer: We consider it wrong to do so, and think we should not disregard the counsel and decisions of the Annual Meeting; and such articles as oppose the order of the brethren should not be published, and if the brethren still persist in doing so, they should be dealt with as offenders." 1865, Art. 51.

"Inasmuch as the Annual Meeting has frequently decided against the brethren voting, is it not consistent and even injurious to the brotherhood, for brethren to write, and editors to publish, anything in opposition to these decisions? Answer: We think that our brethren, who write and print articles, should be very careful not to promote strife and division in the church, but peace, love, union, and holiness." 1868 Art. 2.

"WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?"

In conversation with a good Christian lady of another denomination a few days ago, she remarked that her prime objection to the Baptists was their close communion, and her objections to that lay in the fact that it separates dear friends.

The feeling of the good sister is, perhaps, a very general one. Close communion separates dear friends; therefore should be given up. We should adopt the loose practice, outrage the order of God's house, bid defiance to Christ's law, adopt our own determined, preconceived notions as guides,—all for the sake of keeping dear friends together—for the sake of having Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Unitarians, Universalists, Adventists, ceaselessly toggling like Roman athletes, with each other on the field of polemical theology, come and sit down together in sweet and fraternal accord and fellowship at the table of our Lord! It is entirely too bad that we Baptists are such sticklers for the Bible that we retard the consummation of such precious fellowship and union!

THE Western Recorder turns its theological guns upon open communionists. In principle it is right; for in the apostolic church members of the Pharisee church, and members of the Sadducee Society were not permitted to commune with the disciples of Jesus. Brother Recorder, they may call you illiberal and narrow-minded, but you are not too narrow on this question so long as you cling to the apostolic practice. But we quote you again:

The Baptists are the oldest religious denomination in existence. The statement we cannot now pause to prove. The doctrines, as we hold and teach them, are the doctrines of the angel, our enemies themselves being judges. The faith held and taught by other societies are simply corruptions of that faith. In the apostles' day the "mystery of iniquity" began the work that developed in Romanism. All the various P^el^eg^e Baptist denominations, in the light of history, are offshoots, reforms, directly or indirectly, from the Papal church. Then, the best that Christian civility will suffer us to say of their faith and polity is, that they are the faith and polity of the Papal church revised.

What evidence has the Recorder as proof that the "Baptists are the oldest religious denomination in existence?" As a denomination the Roman Catholics are perhaps the oldest, but that which is o. God, and the oldest, is the church of Jesus Christ—"the house of God."

The Recorder sends a whole broadside into "the various P^el^eg^e Baptists." It regards them as "offshoots from the Papal church." "This is a hard saying, who can bear it?"—John 6: 16. We can.

The church of the Brethren is a society—a family—"the pillar and ground of the truth." It is not a corruption of the Gospel; but teaches and practices the things which the gospel enjoins. Does the Baptist church practice "all things" enjoined by authority of Christ and his apostles?

Will the Recorder point out the whole religious practice of the disciples of Jesus?

What did the Apostolic church require of an alien to become a disciple?

What did the church require of its members as tests of fellowship and communion?

Let there be light.

BEGOTTEN OF GOD.

Of his own will begat him, with the word of truth.—James 1: 8.

TWO points are definitely settled by this Scripture: 1. "Of his own will" God "begat us." 2. That he begat us "with the word of truth." This is one begetting; not two. This "word of truth" is that word which God gave to Christ.—John 17: 8. "I have given them the words which thou gavest me." These "words God gave to Christ; and Christ gave them to the apostles; and the apostles went everywhere preaching them. Those who heard these words and received them gladly into their hearts, were begotten of God. They were begotten "with the words of truth." This word of truth now makes believers in the same way that it did then; and those thus made, "are begotten of God." The manner and means of begetting sons and daughters of God, have been changed by God.

In the following, the begetting is ascribed to the preacher and to the Gospel: "Though you have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have you not many fathers; for in Christ Jesus

I have begotten you through the gospel." 1 Cor. 4: 15. "In Christ Jesus" is the same as by Christ, and ascribes the begetting to him. "I have begotten you," ascribes it to the apostle. "Through the gospel," ascribes it to the gospel; and the gospel is the same as the word of truth." Thus God begets believers through Christ, by the gospel or word of truth. This way of begetting debars a man from obeying his feelings, sensations and impressions regardless of the law. The law cannot be set aside in defence to courtesy and liberality. Courtesy and liberality have nothing to do with being begotten of God. To be joint heir with Christ Jesus a man must be begotten law fully.

In John 3: 6 begetting is ascribed to the Spirit: "That which is born (begotten) of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." The King James' translators frequently translated genna, "born" and also "begotten." The literal meaning of genna is begotten. It should be so translated unless something in the context will not permit it. The King's translators found many places where it could not be rendered "born," though they seemed to have a partiality for this word. In the first sixteen verses of the first chapter of Matthew, they could not give the word born, hence gave the word begat. They could not say, "I have born you through the gospel," but "I have begotten you through the gospel." They could not read it, "This day have I born thee," but "This day have I begotten thee." They should have read, "That which is begotten of the flesh is flesh; and that which is begotten of the Spirit is spirit."

We now come to so important a query. When this figurative expression, begotten of God, Christ, the Spirit, through the gospel, is used, what is the literal meaning? "Whoever believes that Jesus is the Christ, is begotten of God"—1 John 5: 1. Mark, it does not read "Whoever only believes that Jesus is the Christ is begotten of God,"—that word "only" is not there. None is begotten of God, by faith alone. This is delusion—an invention of anti-Christ. A man is literally made a believer, by the word of truth, through Christ and then he is said to have been begotten of God. This passage is very explicit. It shows what is to be believed—"That Jesus is the Christ." It takes an individual who can know and understand, to be made a believer. If facts cannot be made believers. They cannot comprehend the gospel—the word of truth by which, or through which he believes are made.

God's way of making believers is through Christ, the Holy Spirit, the minister of the gospel, and the word of truth. A man is not made a believer in the water of baptism. He must believe in Christ, turn from his sins before he can take the third step—baptism. Neither of these items,—faith, repentance and baptism—can be laid hold of by an infant. The Bible does not make believers by baptism alone—nor by repentance alone—nor by faith alone. Baptism is nothing to an unbeliever. What is repentance to an unbeliever? Nothing! What is faith to an unbeliever? Nothing! These are nothing to him till his heart is changed, and then they become conditions of pardon.

Being "begotten of God," whether ascribed to Christ, or the Holy Spirit, or the Gospel is the same thing. It is not one thing to be begotten of the Word, another to be begotten of Christ, another to be begotten of the Spirit, and another to be begotten of God. The whole thing is ascribed to God, because all proceed from him "of his own will." We are begotten of Christ in view of his being our M^entor; of the Holy Spirit in view of his agency as a leader into truth; of the word of truth in view of entering the heart, being the power of God unto believers. The whole is from God, through the agencies selected by him "of his own free will." The "begetting" is always by Christ—never without him; always by the Spirit—never without it; always by the word of truth, never without it.—COMPILED.

BROTHER SAMUEL J. PECK of Falls City, Neb., has been ill for several weeks. A severe cold has affected his lungs. We hope he may soon regain health and be able to help along the work of the Lord.

SEVERAL good brethren who watch over us with a desire to do good, inform us that it was unwise to publish "Literary Theft" in No. 43. It is not our desire to injure any one; and we frankly confess that the publication of such cases is a mischief. And in our remarks on "Secrets out" in using the word "Kukluxism" we had particular reference to "Secret meetings." We so define it in our article, and had no other idea in view. There is no doubt many others would have expressed the idea with a more pleasing term, and we regret that we did not. Some take it in a different sense, from what we meant.—James 5: 16. God will heal.

WHETHER the Lord will accept the making of plans for evangelization and the collection of money simply to lie idle in the Treasury, is not so clear. The tendency of this kind of work is demoralizing and will do more towards drying up the veins of generosity than anything else. It produces not only drying individuals, but drying churches. It dries up spiritual giving. No Board of Missions should be loaded down with rules and regulations. Do not make paths of freedom, then fill them with brush. Keep the way clear. Is it right so to hedge in the contributors as to shut out those who go into new fields and labor faithfully, yet were not sent by the Board? Discretion should be allowed the Board, and whenever efficient labor has been performed and the minister, has need, let it be supplied. And is it right to measure the good done by the number of souls brought into fellowship? Often one soul made new in Christ Jesus is a greater work, than ten hundred brought in to be disowned after the excitement subsides. Show your faith by your works!

Correspondence.

Explanation.

I was informed that I meant to misquote Scripture in my article, concerning musical instruments, and have the reader believe it was verbatim. I thought every Bible reader could at once see my idea in making use of Paul's language the way I did. His spirit was stirred within him, when he saw the Athenians believed that God dwelt in temples made with hands. My spirit was stirred within me, when I see that H. P. Moyer, and thousands more believe, God could be worshipped by an instrument made by hands. I truly rejoice to see J. O. Culler's article in the last B. AT W.

ELLEN SPICKLER.

Paper Missionaries.

Report of the number of papers received for Missionary purposes during the months of October and November: Of the B. AT W. twenty-eight; of the Primitive Christian, twenty-five; Gospel Preacher one; total, fifty-four.

My husband intended to send in a report each month, but was sick at the time with malarial fever and could not write, and is not able even at the present time. The attending physician called counsel the second time. At present they speak very encouragingly of his recovery, but think it will be very slow. Let no one hesitate to send in their papers on that account, for although he is confined to his bed, he hands them to those who visit him. He gave the superintendent of the Sunday School a bundle to distribute in the school. The people appear to be very glad to read them. An individual came from another town to visit relatives near here, and while there, read the Primitive Christian and became very much interested. Since that time he has visited us and we gave him some more papers.

Any one desiring to engage in this missionary work can address R. R. Moon, Dallas, North Carolina.

MARIA MOON.

From Mary C. Norman.

Bro. M. E. Eshelman arrived in the village of Ottawa, Minnesota, on Saturday, November 26th. Preached in the evening of the same day, in the M. E. church, to an attentive audience. On Sunday was conveyed to Scotch Lake, by our companion, a distance of about twelve miles. Here an appointment had been made for preaching at 11 A. M., in the Disciple church; our brother preached the Word to an intelligent people, who seemed to be lovers of the truth. Preaching again at 7 P. M. Bro. E. held forth the Word with power to that people, endeavoring to show them some of the commands given by our Savior, and that through obedience only we are justified, through faith in Christ. He spoke with perfect freedom, his speech being with grace, seasoned with salt. (Col. 4: 6)

Bro. E. announced that he would preach at that place in one week from that evening; thus closed. On the morning, the 28th, we, in company with Bro. E., took our leave for Sharon, where we reside. After arriving home, we ministered to the wants of our brother with pleasure. We were glad to have the opportunity once more to enjoy his company in our family, who has so often, in times past, comforted our hearts, and encouraged us to go on in the way of life and salvation. The next morning our companion took him to Ottawa, where he preached in the evening to an attentive assembly. He had intended to preach there the remaining part of the week, but on account of physical weakness, was compelled to give up laboring for the time being. This was a sad disappointment to many. Dear brethren and sisters, may our prayers ascend to heaven, as the prayers of one man, in behalf of our dear brother who is much afflicted in body; our hearts are much in sympathy for him. He expressed a willingness to sacrifice the enjoyments of home, where peace and happiness dwell, and with humble boldness meet opposition, endure misrepresentations, and severe persecution in every form. What for? Money? Nay, but for the sake of precious souls for whom Christ died.

His pleasant face and graceful manners, his example of meekness and humbleness, is certainly the fruits of one born of the Spirit.

Bro. E. is a power in the hands of God for good. Long may he live for the enjoyment and comfort of his companion and children, and as a bright example to the world, exhibiting the Christian life, which is wrought by the Holy Spirit.—Sharon, Minn.

To Northern Indiana.

The third delegate meeting of Northern Indiana, for the purpose of making arrangements for next Annual Meeting, is past. The next business of importance is, for all the churches of Northern Indiana, to be prompt in raising their quota of advance money, $1,000, which is a very easy matter. If all are willing to do as directed in 1 Cor. 16: 2; pay in proportion as the Lord has prospered us. Let us endeavor to show our faith by our works.

The committee of arrangements is laboring hard to have the arrangements such, that our brethren and sisters who may meet with us, can be accommodated and comfortably entertained.

We believe this A. M. will be one of vast importance. Let us all labor, and pray, that it may be a success; that God's name may be honored and glorified, and his children confirmed in the faith, our wisdom and judgment increased, that we may be able to discern between right and wrong at all times.

J. R. MILLER.

Brother Stein.

No doubt many hearts are mourning over the stillness of Bro. Stein. We anxiously wait for the arrival of the B. AT W., each week, thinking perhaps we may get some tidings from him; but alas, how often we have been disappointed. How happy we would be, if we only knew that he would ere long be restored to his sorrowing friends. We deeply sympathize with sister Stein and her family.

Though we never enjoyed the privilege of seeing Bro. Stein, yet his name is dear to us, for the grand work he has accomplished in the Brotherhood.

Now what are we going to do for a man, who has done so much for the church? Will they do nothing more than write to the U. S. Consul? I hope they will. We cannot afford to give him up, if he can be rescued; now is the time to work. I suggest that the Brethren select two men who will feel interest enough, and send them in search of our dear brother.

Let the church pay their way; I am sure there is sympathy enough in the Brotherhood, to raise the money and that speedily. Surely there could be some traces found in Vienna, that would lead to his whereabouts. Brethren, what do you say? Shall we try?

Fraternally,

C. D. HYLTON.

A Correction.

In the obituaries of Daniel Bainter and Joseph Pippinger, in No. 46 B. AT W. They were members of the Union Center congregation, instead of Yellow Creek. And the age of D. Bainter is 74 years, instead of 84.

From Samuel Shawyer.—Bro. I. J. Roebenberger commenced a series of meetings with the Brethren in the Lygan church Ohio, Dec. 9th. He has warned the people day and night and his labors, up to this time, have been rewarded by seeing four precious souls made willing to forsake sin, and come on the Lord's side. Others are almost persuaded to yield; we hope to see a great ingathering of souls. The roads are in excellent condition; while we are having sunshine without, we are made to rejoice and thank God in seeing the light that is again shining in this arm of the church.—Bellfontaine, Ohio

From John Kinsley.—We are well and thankful to God our Heavenly Father, for his love conferred on us. As we are traveling among the brethren and sisters, we find them generally well in body, and we do think, in Spirit, as there is no trouble as far as we know. Dear brethren let us labor and strive to be more united and never divided. United we stand, divided we fall. We are at present at brother N. hemish Murray's, Marshall County, Iowa; found all well. We think to stay here one week; from here to Cedar Rapids, Iowa one week, then to Whiteside County, Illinois. Thence north in Illinois to visit most of the churches. Our love to all. From your well-wishing brother.—Plymouth, Ind.

From Lyman M. Eby.—The more I read of your pleasant surroundings, the more I desire to be with you. Perhaps I may come among you unexpectedly. God spring me, I hope to once again engage in devotional exercises with you, sometime in the future. My heart burns within me when I think of those who do not enjoy what you enjoy. God help them that they may have an inward feasting. May they ever continue faithful, so that we may all, at last be gathered home, where joy and bliss eternally reign.

We have been made to rejoice over the return of two young souls to the fold of Jesus. Bro. John Kiseley came among us on Nov. 19th, and held a series of meetings; the result of which was, the accession of the two named above. The saints here were strengthened and encouraged to fight on a little while longer. The brethren have decided to hold another such series in the near future, when we hope more will join the ranks of Jesus; for we are made to believe that others are being drawn by the gentle workings of the Spirit. God help them to come.—Harlan, Iowa, Dec 10th.

From Thomas D. Lyon.—On Saturday, Dec 8th, our council meeting passed off very pleasantly. Considerable business was done, and it was disposed of to the satisfaction of all present. In pursuance of article 7, of District Meeting, the church of Hudson, has appointed A. Cromer, J. W. Forney and William E. Snavely, to constitute a Board of evangelism, to receive applications for appointments to preach in isolated places, and provide for their fulfillment, according to said article.

Those applying for preaching, will address A. Cromer, Kaopa, Wacford Co., Ill. and J. W. Forney, and William E. Snavely, at Hudson, McLean Co., Ill. There are no divisions among us, but we find that our non-resistant principles are being tested within our own body.

O, for more of that brotherly love that thinketh no evil. Let us try to maintain our place in the great train of struggling pilgrims for the better land.—Hudson, Ill.

From Eleazar Bosserman.—Please announce that the Brethren at Eagle Creek, Hancock Co., Ohio, expect to commence a series of meetings on the evening of the 24th, at the old church, no preaching provided for. Brother S. T. Bosserman may be able to preach for some weeks, and a knowledge of no foreign help that we solicit help from the ministers of adjoining churches. Brethren, come and help us; we will appreciate your labors. The church is in peace, and very little is said concerning the different factions; but we are trying to do the Master's bidding. May the Lord bless every effort that is being put forth for the advancement of His cause.—Daukirk, O., Dec 12th.

From D. S. T. Hutterbaugh.—My acquaintance about our new meeting-house in North Manchester. Will say that it is fast being completed. Will let the readers of the B. A. T. W. know when done. Our lamps are still burning. Had preaching on the 4th inst. House crowded; good attention; the Word was preached with power, and as a consequence, two baptiz'd. God bless the labor of the brethren. More anon.—North Manchester, Ind., Dec 12th.

From John Forney.—I left home September 29th, for Washington County, Kansas, where we met a colony of brethren and sisters on the 1st of October. Here brother David Lake was with us. The evening before, at the house of Bro. Willis Whitely, we fell in company with elder Samuel Hunsbarger of Mo. So we numbered four brethren and one sister, when we met with the Brethren at the house of Bro. Samuel Markey's. Here we also met Bro. A. Len Boyer, from Leona, Illinois. We made a partial organization of the members of this county; fifteen or sixteen in number. Two were chosen to the office of deacon; the lot fell on Jacob Markey and John Gauty. Here we also had a Love-feast; our preaching was mostly German, as most of the members have but little satisfaction in the English.

Some minister should move here that can preach in both languages. I have confidence a large church could be built here, if the proper steps be taken; and I want the ministers west in R. public and Jewell counties, also those east and north of them, to visit them and preach; do not stay away if you cannot reach German. I will give them my services as much as possible, though nearly sixty miles away.

From here, in company with S. Hunsbarger, went to Diller, Nebraska, where we had a few meetings. Brother Isaac Fry and other members of the Beatrice church are living here. They have two ministers with them; brother Bratt and John Fritz; brother Fritz was very sick with typhoid fever, but was much improved on our return one week later. October 6th went to the Beatrice church, where we found the brethren busy finishing their new meeting-house, 40x60 feet, with basement. Here they expect to hold a Love-feast the 8th. In the evening had a very interesting sermon by elder Samuel Hunsbarger. On the 7th he went to Full City church to serve them at their Feast, the 8th and 9th.

We preached to a large audience the evening of the 7th. Started at 2 P. M., services opened in the new church; at the close of the meeting two young souls made the good confession. During the evening exercises the house was crowded; order excellent. Eighty sisters accompanied, and many more brethren.

Next day it was agreed to divide this large district into two parts; then a vote was taken for the ordination of two brethren. The south church chose Bro. Ulrich Shick as an assistant to Bro. Brubaker, and the north church chose Bro. A. C. V. Drake. These brethren were installed, by a laying on of hands. Ministers from five different States attended this Feast. J. B. Hunsbarger and wife from Pennsylvania, Allen Boyer, from Leona, Illinois, some from Kansas and Iowa; we also had two meetings in the north district. These two churches are well supplied with mini-bros, and might be used in other districts to advantage as house-keepers.

May the blessings of God rest on the churches at Beatrice, is my prayer.—Abilene, Kan., Oct. 17th.

[The foregoing was mislaid. It should have appeared two months ago. Bro. John is still about his Master's business. Ed.]

From John Forney.—I left Abilene, the 12th of November to hold a few days' meeting in the North Solomon church. On account of the delay of trains, I missed my Saturday evening meeting, near David O. Brumbaugh's. Sunday morning I walked nine miles by 9:30 A. M. On arriving at Bro. Brumbaugh's I found that he had just left to fill an appointment two miles away. This was another disappointment for us both. But I reached the 3 P. M. meeting at the Hick's School-house, where I met Bro. Brumbaugh with his usual smile on his face. We met again at 7 P. M. in the town of Portis. Here we had a large and attentive audience; also at the same place on Monday and Tuesday evenings, when, it was said, the whole town was out. At 11 A. M. of the same days, had meeting at the house of Lewis Lorenz, a minister in the first degree. He took me to the Burr Oak church, where we met in the M. E. church, in Burr Oak, at 7 P. M. Had a good congregation; here I met Bro. Michael Lichty and wife, from Maple Grove Colony, Norton County. He came to spend the winter and assist in the ministry of the Word. Thursday, the 17th, Bro. Allen Ives took me to White Rock church, where we met with our dear brethren Henry Brubaker from Beatrice church, Nebraska, and Lemuel Hillery from Kansas. November 18th met in council with the White Rock church, as a committee, chosen by District Meeting, to investigate the work of a former committee.

J. J. Hoover, of Carlton, Nebraska, not being present, it was unanimously agreed that L. Hillery should fill his place. We worked in the fear of God, part of two days; we are glad to say that the labors of this committee were appreciated, and accepted by all except one. We continued meetings until Thursday evening. On the 25th, Bro. Henry Wileland took me to the B. Hillery church; had meeting here at 7 P. M. The 26th met in council; at this meeting Bro. Lemuel Hillery was ordained to the eldership, and Bro. Daniel Smith was chosen to be the ministry; here we continued meeting over Sunday. This morning, the 28th we were called upon to ordain a young man; we found him very low, but the good Lord is able to raise him up.—Yuma, Kan., Nov. 28th.

From H. Engel.—Our dear Bro. John Forney, of Virginia, came to us on the 2d of November and commenced a series of meetings at the Stone Creek meeting-house. He preached on sermons with power and grace. We received ordination provided. We were made to rejoice over our dear souls come out on the Lord's side, to walk in as vessels of life.

On the 14th he came to the Pine Creek church, and preached five sermons, and visitors were made to feel the great sacrifice and joy to with the people of God. We trust that their walk through life may be such, that many may see their good works and thereby glorify our Father in Heaven. Many are counting the cost and we hope they will soon be numbered with us. We are thankful that our dear brother was permitted to be with us and labor for the good of souls. He shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God.

May God abundantly reward him for his labor of love while among us; we feel encouraged and refreshed on our way Zionward.

During the last year thirty-seven have made the good choice and were added to the church by baptism. May many more feel the need of a Savior's love, and join in with the people of God before it will be forever too late.—New Windsor, Md.

tidings from the field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Peabody, Kan., Dec. 9.

I have just closed an interesting series of meetings in the Cottonwood church, Kansas. One soul added by baptism; others made good promises. God help them to remember. The brethren were much built up, as they always are on such occasions. The weather continues very mild. Plows are running constantly. Stock doing well.

G. W. THOMAS.

Carleton, Neb. Dec. 11.

The Bethel church had no additions, save by letter, for two years or over. Have passed through some dark clouds since then. Our prayer is, that the church may be blessed with the power of converting in the near future. We number fifty members, all of which, to the best of our knowledge, are staunch for the Brotherhood.

LEVI ROYFERT.

Lowell, Mich., Dec. 10.

On the 29th of November, we returned from Emmet Co., Northern Mich; had nice meetings while there. The last meeting preached the funeral of Bro. Welmer's three children. Was to counsel meeting in Sunfield church, Eaton County the 3rd. David West was elected to the ministry, and Christian France, as deacon. All peace in Michigan.

GEORGE LONG.

Dunkirk, Ohio.

The season of the year is here best adapted for holding series of meetings. Hence, those who have made calls, will please renew them; and if there are other calls to be made, they should be sent in as soon as possible. There is about $100.00 in the treasury. But few churches have reported yet. Solicitors who have gathered money, will please send it soon to Joseph Rothrock, Dunkirk, Indiana Co., O., by registered letter, or Money Order. Send the amount to me, on a postal card; address as above.

J. R. SCHACHT.

Lansark, Ill., Dec. 11.

At our council meeting to-day, brethren Daniel Kingery and Aaron Warble were elected deacons. The council passed off very pleasantly. Elders Zollars and Heck presided. Our church had smooth sailing for some time. The year closed has very little influence upon it.

S. J. HARRISON.

Fallen Asleep.

Inserted are the Great BROTHERS to the Lord.—Nov. 18, 11.

HUBER.—In the Springfield church, Noble Co., Ind., Sister Mary, wife of Frederick Huber. Born in Seneca Co., O., July 23rd, '38. Died Nov. 22nd, '81. Aged 43 years, 5 mo., and 29 days. She was anointed a short time before she died. She leaves a husband and eight children to mourn their loss; five of whom belong to the fold of Christ. Funeral discourse by Christian Weaver and David Baro.

G. G. GRADY.

KISTNER.—In Morrill, Kansas, Dec. 13rd, Minnie, daughter of Alfred and Ellen Kistner, aged near 7 years. Funeral services by the writer, from 1st Peter last chapter, verses 21 and 25.

W. J. H. BAUMAN.

COBER.—In Sabetha, Kansas, Dillie E. daughter of Geo. Ephraim and sister —Cober, aged 116 years, 8 months and 9 days. Deceased was born at Berlin Pa. Funeral services by the writer from Job 12:1, 2. Dillie was the tenth child that died in this family.

Will Progressive and Primitive please copy.

W. J. H. BAUMAN.

Our Working Band.

The following have sent subscriptions for B. AT W. If mistakes occur, please notify us, stating the number of the paper in which it occurs. Send for prospectus and sample copies. Conveys thoroughly, and do a cash business.

J J Cart, 2; D P Shively, 11; Lucy Ayres, 1; David Bowman, 9; Daa' Weybright, 10; J C Tinkel, 2; S Harshman, 2; Wm. Ikenbury, 4; A A Wise, 8; John Metzler, 1; J D Mast, 1; Geo. Reitz, 2; Geo. Stramps, 2; J A Weaver, 6; G C Stump, 5; G A Shamberger, 2; Levi Longnecker, 3; J M Barnhart, 5; A B Snyder, 2; John Hillyear, 2; J Y Snavely, 6; Elisha Henricks, 2; A F Deester, 4; Amos Faw, 4; Isaac Crickenbaker, 8; D S T Butlerburgh, 8; John A Studsinger, 4; Abraham Miller, 3; A E Gates, 4; A Miller, 3; Geo. Burden, 1; Peter Messner, 1; Victor Long, 12; A J Spore, 5; M C No man, 11; H Landis, 8; Esther Horner, 1; Jacob Miller, 1; T A Robinson, 2; W K Simons, 1; Abram Wolf, 6; G W Gibson, 5; Lizels B Myers, 12; Daniel Buchtheimer, 1; Michael Keller, 1; W S Forney, 3; S J Harrison, 1; Martin Buehly, 2; Henry Stecky, 4; Katie Holliger, 1; Conrad Fitz, 4; Hettie Engel, 15; A B H 41, 1; Jan, J Cover, 5; John Shook, 12; Geo. Henricks, 1; George Brubaker, 1; Fred Cline, 6; D Forney, 9; Adam Ely, 6; Peter Plant, 3; Silas Gilbert, 9; Lizzie Howe, 8; N B Murry, 4; D Leckman, 2; A M Snyder, 1; L Williams, 2; John Zook, 1; Cyrus Bucher, 4; Jacob Grison, 4; J C Whitmore, 4.

Free Papers.

Any one sending 50 cents for six months, or $1.00 for one year, can have the paper sent to an outsider. It must be a donation for that purpose. Papers have been sent to the following:

- M. S. Miller, Christian Co., Mo.
G. M. Knode, Marshall Co., Ia.
D. Nicola Knode, " "
A. A. Miller, Howard Co., Ind.
Gabriel Shoemaker, Legraft, Ohio.
Mary H-ewe, Orange Co., Kana.
Maggie Mast, " " Co., Ia.
J. A. Trent, Seward Co., Ia.
Cyrus Shaver, " "
Moses Brumbaugh, Marshall Co., Ia.
Lewis Kueh, Allen Co., Kans.
Jas. M. Rood, Myrick, Mich.
Mrs. M. Elmer, Jackson Co., "

A New BOOK.

There is in contemplation a book entitled, "F - itorial Life," and it is desired to publish it only if sufficient pledges shall be received to warrant its publication. It will contain an account of the blessings, as well as the curses bestowed gratuitously upon editor. It will open up to the vision of the public, some of the tria's of faithful public servants, and enable everybody to be more equitable to a very worthy class of mortals. Several writers will take part to the work; and in point of terseness and faithful portraiture, it will be entitled to a place among books.

Many letters received by the claes of which the book will treat, will be given, but the names of the writers will be withheld; hence no one will be hurt, yet the picture will be complete. This will enable the public to obtain a glimpse into the sanctum, and behold some of the wonders, if not all,

The book will be gotten up (if sufficient pledges are secured.) in a neat and substantial manner, and will retail for one dollar. If you want a copy, send us your name and address, and when the book is published, you shall be notified by card, upon receipt of which you can forward a dollar, and receive the book. Each pledge will be regarded as a subscription.

You can send your pledge to B. AT W. office. No money will be required until the book is published.

Business.

B AT W and Microcosm, $1.75
B AT W and Youth's Advance, $1.75
B AT W and Family Companion, $1.00
B AT W and Primitive Christian, $2.75
All to one address, $4.00

—Thanks to our agents for the large number of new subscribers sent in.

—On page fifteen of the m'anic in the advertisement of A. M. Snider, I should read, "Early Jersey Wakefield and Early Summer Caboose Seed, instead of "Early Wakefield and Early Caboose Seed."

Mt Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - December 9.

Table with 2 columns: Metric and Value. Number Enrolled: 196. Daily Attendance: 176. Per Cent of Attendance: 87. Number tardinesses: 7. Number Absent on Tardiness: 142. E. A. Bzany, Principal.

All About Kansas. THE WEEKLY CAPITAL

is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county. $1.00 per year. —

— SAMPLE COPY FREE. —

Advertisement for 'LA MAN' featuring a map of the United States and text: 'THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE'.

Stands pre-eminent among the great Truck Lines of the West for being the most direct, quickest, and safest line connecting the great METROPOLIS, CHICAGO, and the EASTERN, NORTH-EASTERN, SOUTHERN and SOUTH-EASTERN SEAS, which terminate there, with KANSAS CITY, LAWRENCE, ST. JOHNSBURG, COALBURN, HERRIN and OMAHA, the COMMERCIAL CENTERS from which which radiates

EVERY LINE OF ROAD that penetrates the Continental from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway is the only line from Chicago on line track into Kansas or MOBILE, by its own power, through the most direct route. No transfers by cartage. No switching of freight. No delay in unloading or re-loading. No claim for, or any passenger is carried in progress, and complete service, upon Fast Express Trains. Details of material regulations, Pullman Palace Carriage and all our own world-class equipment, and rates in which make our service of unsurpassed excellence, at the low rate of seven cents per mile, with our own fast and comfortable Pullman Palace Carriage, Chicago, Pacific, Milwaukee and all our other routes, and our connections at all points of interest with other roads. Important!—We will deliver to every local agent, in Chicago, Kansas, Nebraska, California, Oregon, Washington Territory, Colorado, Idaho and New Mexico, all arrangements regarding baggage at our office, and rates of fare through in full compliance with the regulations of the principal ticket offices in the United States and Canada.

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN, The First & Chestnut Streets, Chicago, Ill., and 215 N. Dearborn St., Chicago.

Remember! Have Always as Low as the Lowest!

BRETHREN AT WORK.

50
Per Annum.

Set for the defense of the Gospel.--Philipp. 1: 17.

Single Copies,
Five Cents.

Vol. 3.

Mt. Morris, Ill., Tuesday, Dec. 27, 1881.

No. 50.

Editorial Items.

FOUR were received into the church at the meeting in Logan church, Ohio.

It is not written, "The wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God?"

Bro. Sharp left for Ashland, Ohio, the 23rd to bring his family to this place.

The government is preparing to take a census of the Sunday-schools in the United States.

Bro. I. J. Ryabarger commenced a meeting with the brethren at Huntingdon, Ind., Jan. 5th.

Bro. Leonard Hillery will begin work with the Brethren of Beatrice church, Neb., the 28th inst.

The meetings in the Chapel will be held hereafter at 7 P. M. Sunday evenings instead of 6:30.

The army of workers who do the right work in the right way, is the most useful army in the world.

Bro. P. R. Wrightman recently made a short visit to Limestone, Tenn. He lives at Enterprise, Kan.

A LARGE number of students left for home the 23rd to enjoy the holidays with their parents and friends.

If you fail to get a B. at W. Almanac, please notify us. It is desired that each of our readers have one.

Bro. Martin Meyers did not go to Wisconsin, hence brother D. M. Miller is there alone in the Master's work.

Bro. Allen Boyer of Lena, Ill., gave us a pleasant call the 21st. Come often, as we love to have a friendly talk.

SISTER A. B. Seider, of Cerro Gordo, Ill., is still quite unwell. The Lord bless her affliction to the good of her soul.

Bro. J. H. Miller, of Midford, Ind., reports two received by baptism and one near the kingdom of the Lord Christ.

Do not forget to send editing news with your business letters. In this way you may help to get out a very good paper.

THE B. at W. manuscript box is filling up with excellent matter for 1882. We have "kept the good wine until now."

Our meetings in the College building the past three weeks have been very edifying. Bro. Sharp did most of the preaching.

Bro. George Long is at Grand Rapids, Mich., preaching the Word of God. He is no killer; has no time to waste over trifles.

SISTER R.becca Snavely, of Hudson, Ill., will accept our thanks for a box of provisions. You were indeed thoughtful of us, dear sister.

If you want news from the Brotherhood, subscribe for the B. at W. It has an excellent corps of news-gatherers who are at all times awake to the best interests of the church and supply our columns with the news of the upbuilding of Zion.

BRETHREN S. S. Mohler and Andrew Hutchison were to commence a series of meetings the 24th inst., in the Bethel church, Holt Co., Mo.

Do not fail to read "The Three Gold Dollars" on page seven hundred and seventy-eight. The writer of the article lives in Frederick Co., Md.

THE Sunday-school in the Chapel is adjourned until Jan. 8th on account of the absence of a very large number of students over the holidays.

BRETHREN J. S. Florey and G. W. Fessler are about opening a Hygienic Home near Longmont, Colorado. Full particulars will be given next week.

WHAT are you doing for the Bemerkende--our German paper? Send one dollar to J. M. Saylor, Grandy Centre, Iowa for it, and have it sent to some German friend.

THERE is an opening at Wheatland, Hickory Co., Mo., to preach the Word. Who will go and sow the seed of life? Call on James E. Gibbs at above named place.

SAMUEL Garber, a prominent leader in the Miami Valley move is in the last stages of consumption. He forbids anything being said to him about the church troubles.

ON page 725 of B. at W. is an article entitled "Shun Worldly Influences," by M. M. Eshelman. It was written by the editor but by sister M. M. Eshelman, of Polo, Ill.

THE women shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man in neither shall a man put on a woman's garment. For all that do so are an abomination unto the Lord thy God. Deut. 22: 5.

THE B. at W. will "cry aloud and spare not," and it will aim to do this in love and with malice toward none. Principles will be discussed, and errors pointed out, while the readers will be the judges.

Bro. John Calvin Bright has been chosen to the ministry by the Bear Creek church, Ohio. May he make full proof of his ministry by a holy life, and diligently study to be approved of God.

Bro. E. F. Miller, of Clarence, Iowa, arrived here the 20th. He preached in the chapel on the evening of the 21st, and we were glad to hear his voice once more in defense of the common salvation.

THERE were 387,800 copies of the B. at W. and World's Advance printed during this year. Will the friends of the papers make it 500,000 next year? It can be done by diligence and perseverance.

Bro. John Barnhart preached in the Silver Creek meeting-house Sunday and Monday evenings of the 18th and 19th inst. He left for home the 21st. Brother John is a devoted and faithful laborer. We enjoyed his visit.

Bro. J. S. Florey, of Longmont, Colorado, desired a good workman to labor on the farm and to do carpentering. Wages $25 to $30 per month. Also a girl to do housework; wages ten to twelve dollars per month.

FEAR and spathy almost lost the kingdom to David when Absalom rebelled. But the Lord aroused David, led him to the battle, helped him fight, and brought him through safely. Let us trust the God of David, and defend the Brotherhood with humble boldness.

Newton, the great philosopher after spending a lifetime in study and research says, "I feel like one who has been amusing himself in gathering pebbles on the shore while the great ocean of truth lies undiscovered before him.

THE Gospel Preacher of Dec. 15th says: "Brother R. H. Miller tendered his resignation as President of the College, which was accepted by the Trustees, and the relation existing between the President and the Trustees were thus dissolved by mutual consent with the very best of feelings."

Bro. E. H. Miller arrived in Mt. Morris Saturday the 17th, and preached in Silver Creek meeting-house on Sunday forenoon. In the evening he addressed a large audience in the Chapel, and on Monday evening the 19th also spoke in the Chapel to an appreciative congregation. He left for home the morning of the 21st.

Bro. Wan. B. Sell is in the North Mo. mission field having good, interesting and hopeful meetings. As he travels from one place to another he distributes tracts and papers with his name and mission written on the margin. As he returns, those tracts have been read, and then the people want preaching. He has traveled over three hundred miles.

SISTER Mary Kiedler, who was a compositor in our office during the past year, left for her home in Covington, Ohio the 22nd. She was a faithful sister in work both in the office and in Sunday-school. Her leave-taking of the large class of little boys and girls whom she had so long taught, was truly affecting, showing that she had won their affections.

THE meeting at West Branch, Ill., notwithstanding the wet weather and muddy roads, was pretty well represented from the various congregations in Northern Ill. As the West Branch church had called the meeting to obtain some counsel, it was given apparently to the satisfaction of the church. Some time was spent in talking about schools, papers and conduct of ministers. In all these things, as well as in all others, a free mixture of charity and godliness will tend to the honor of God and the glory of the church.

OUR prospects for next year, we think, very good. A large number of new subscribers have been added to the list. We had to print 300 extra copies last week. So far as we know nearly all the old ones are returning. We have reasons to feel encouraged, believing that the readers generally are pretty well satisfied, and have been on the whole edified by reading their Work. Agents have done their work faithfully, and not a few are still hard at work. Surely God has blessed his people; and there is much to cause us to be devoutly thankful.

Bro. T. D. Heiston, of Holden, Mo., writes: "The time has come for me to renew my subscription to B. at W. for 1882, and indeed I can do it heartily, too. I have promised long since to be a reader of the paper as long as its mission was to preach Christ and him crucified. And it seems the older the paper gets the sharper the ring and the sweeter the sound. Have not much church news to send from this little arm of the church. Brethren A. Hutchison and Jacob Witmore of the Centreville congregation came to us the 9th inst., and delivered several discourses, preaching Friday night, Saturday night, and Sunday at 11 A. M., and closed the meeting on Sunday evening following. They both held forth the Truth as it is in Jesus. Bro. Hutchison closed the meetings with the words: "For we shall be like him as he is," plainly showing us that to be like him we must live like him. These brethren do not forget us; they expect to visit us soon again."

Religious Essays.

For the Brethren at Work

THY WILL BE DONE.

BY J. M. NEWLAND.

May I with patience learn to bear
These echoing hours of pain,
And never murmur nor despair,
But lose my will in Thine

With cheerfulness help me to fill
The place assigned to me;
And if it's humble, I would still Thine humble servant be.

Oft have I craved some higher call
My destiny to fill;
But how I'll give it up, and all
Which seemeth not thy will.

Yet could I aid some wayward soul
To seek Thy grace divine,
It would my longing heart console,
Though helplessness be mine.

Help us to feel thy saving pow'r,
And bear each trial here,
And sense Thy presence ev'ry hour,
Since Thou art ever near.

Lairdsville, N. Y.

For the Brethren at Work.

THE THREE GOLD DOLLARS.

A TRUE STORY.

IN the year 1860 I was living with my sister in Maryland. I had agreed to work with her for my board and clothing, but whenever I could get a day's work in the neighborhood I was to have what I earned thus for spending money. But as wages were low and work scarce, I had not much money.

One Sunday morning I walked five miles to a school-house in York county, Pennsylvania, to attend a meeting, the object of which was to organize a Sunday school there. A Mr. K. addressed the meeting, and then went around to see how much he could raise towards defraying the expenses of starting the school. He asked me what I would give. I could not say, as I had no money on hand; but he told me I could have some time to make it up. So, hoping to earn it, I said he might put down one dollar for me. He did so and went to the next one, who agreed to give fifty cents. Another subscribed twenty five cents. The object was gained, the school organized, and we were all told to bring the promised money at the time appointed.

As I walked home in company with several young ladies, one said to me,

"Why did you put down one dollar? Now I promised fifty cents, and I know my parents will be displeased, and it is your fault." "It is the same way with me," said another; "I subscribed twenty five cents, and I would not have done so if it had not been for you. I know my parents will not like it." I did not blame them for dreading the displeasure of their parents, as I was at that time an exile from my father's house, because I had gone to church against his will. But their words pained me, as I was sorry to think that my giving had caused them trouble.

We soon came to a cross road, and while they took the left hand road that led to their respective homes, I alone took the right hand road which led for about three miles along a forest, where as it was noonday the trees made a refreshing shade. As I walked along this lonesome road I felt very sorry for my young friends, and as the tears began to roll down my cheeks I thought, What if I cannot earn the money and will have to ask my sister for it? She may not like it either, and cannot well afford to give it to me. My distress now became greater, but just then there came a gentle whisper, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." Yes, I said, thinking that sweet text has come to my relief: "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." There is nothing impossible with God. I can well ask him for the money. So I went into the forest behind a rock and knelt down and poured out my heart in prayer to God. I told him that the earth was his and the fullness thereof, and he could provide me with the dollar I so much needed. I arose fully assured I would get the money in some way. So I went on my way rejoicing; nor did I doubt but that my prayer would be answered. As I walked on, I thought perhaps I would find the money, as Mr. L., a minister, did when a boy; he prayed for money to get school books, and found just the amount he needed in the road. But when I arrived at my sister's house without finding it, I changed my mind and thought some one would employ me to work, and I could earn it thus. So every day I looked for some one to come and employ me to work for them, and every evening as I retired to rest, the tempter would say, "Now another day is gone and you have not got that money yet." But as often I would say, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof;" there is nothing impossible with God; he can enable me to get the money yet.

Saturday evening came at last; the next day the money was to be paid. How well I remember the calmness of that sweet Spring evening. As I walked from the stable to the dairy with the milk, I admired the beautiful scenery around me. I was fairly startled by the thought or rather a voice, "There it is Saturday evening; to-morrow you must take that money to school and where is it to come from?" For a moment my faith staggered, and I was about to doubt the goodness of my God, then casting my eyes on the clear blue sky I said, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." There is nothing impossible with God. Just at that moment I saw a gentleman whom I knew, ride up to the house. Thinking he would be a guest for the night, I hastened to the dairy and went about my duties. But he did not go into the house, but came to the dairy, and after speaking a few words to me he said, "Here Susie, I will give you a present." And at the same time handed me a small bit of paper—so small that I feared there was nothing in it, but that he was going to play a joke on me; yet I thanked him for it, and after he had mounted his horse and rode away, I entered the house, and going to the candle I said to my sister, "Mr. L. gave me a present; I must see what it is." But judge my surprise when I saw enclosed three little gold dollars.

With a glad and thankful heart I carried one of the gold dollars to the Sunday-school on the morrow; and I taught four little girls in the Testament class all that Summer. They are grown women now. Some of them have homes of their own, and I hope to meet them in a better home by and by.

The man that gave me the three dollars was a stranger in the place. He lived many miles away; and whatever led him to come there just at that time and give me the gift, I never could understand, but I never doubted but that God sent him. To God be all the glory.

S. A. K.

ALL proud flesh, wherever it grows is subject to irritation.

It was here the Annual Meeting was held in 1876; and a pleasant meeting it was. We morally called up that meeting with a peculiar lonely joy.
I. J. ROSENBERGER.

Notes of Travel Continued.

The meetings were continued here from Sunday evening to Friday evening. Very good attendance and quite attentive hearers. Hope the labor will not be in vain.

On Saturday morning the Brethren took me to the Falling Spring congregation to attend a council meeting at the Hade meeting-house. Met with elders D. Long, Adam Thiel, and Daniel Eckerman. Held an election for church officers. Brother William Kuntz was advanced to the second degree of the ministry; Adam Baker was elected to the ministry; Isaac Haddesparger and John Swigart were elected to the office of deacon. The council passed off pleasantly, there being very little to do besides the election. Attended meeting in the evening at Shady Grove. Quite a good attendance. Returned the next morning (Sunday) to the Hade meeting house, where we had the pleasure of hearing Brother D. Long preach to a large and attentive congregation. Met with the Brethren again in the evening at Shady Grove, probably for the last time.

To-day visited Bro. D. Baker's family. Found his mother quite feeble. She is eighty-seven years old, and is anxiously waiting and wishing for her change to come when she can lay her armor by and dwell with Christ at home.

I expect, if the Lord will, to commence meeting at Funkstown, Maryland, on Wednesday evening, 14th. Will remain in the Beaver Creek church until Sunday 18th, when I anticipate meeting with the Brethren in the Manor church. D. E. PRICE.

Waynesboro, Pa., Dec. 12th.

From Minnesota,

Dear "Brethren at Work":—

We are truly thankful to thee for the rich and wholesome food thou hast provided for us during the year 1881. Many hearts have been enriched and comforted by thee. Thou art a welcome guest, and one to be desired among the saints. Why? Because thou hast been set for the defense of the Gospel, and being filled with the fruits of righteousness thou hast spoken the Word without fear, and in nothing terrified by thy adversaries. Hence we commend you to all, and greatly desire that many form your acquaintances who know thee not. "For we are confident of this very thing that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." (Phil. 2: 13). I know there are some who take part against thee; but what are they but those who are proud, knowing nothing, but dotting about questions and strifes of words, whereof cometh envy, strife, railings, evil surmises, men of corrupt minds, and destitute of the truth. 1 Tim 6: 4, 5. Is not the great and eternal God with those who do his will? He certainly is; for we have the promise that if we teach and observe all things whatsoever he has commanded, he will be with us even unto the end of the world.

Jesus was despised and rejected of men on account of his piety; hence he knows how to pity and defend his persecuted people. We can say with one who trusted in God that "on our side we boast the innumerable tribes of angels whose business and delight it is to minister to the heirs of salvation." Shall we be ashamed to do the will of God on earth as angels do in heaven? This is our prayer. Shall it not be our practice, too? If we do this, we certainly have a conscience void of offence, being delivered from the guilt by the atoning blood of Christ. Therefore brethren, stand fast in the Lord, "knowing your election of God." "Rejoice evermore," and the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus. Col. 3: 15.

We are well pleased with the B. AT W. as an able defender of Gospel truth. Long may it live as a light to the world. Would to God that it was in every household in our land, presenting the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. John 1: 9

Dear brethren and sisters, a good offer has been made to us by our brother editor, giving us a chance to introduce the B. AT W. to many. We may in this way sow the good seed of the kingdom, and thus help along the missionary cause. How many are willing to give as the Lord has prospered them?

M. C. NORMAN.

Sanctified Church.

This branch is a young church about six years old. We number 9; brother Fryfogel started this church; there were but two here when he came; thirteen joined this summer, most of them were young in years. I pray God that they will hold out faithful to the end, for the crown is at the end of the race. Our quarterly council is numbered with the things of the past; elders G. Long from Thornapple and Miller from Woodland, brethren Rarich and Price were here to assist in the meetings and they held five meetings with us, which we are thankful for. All went off well with few exceptions. But without crosses there are no crowns.

We held a choice, and elected one speaker and one deacon. Have four speakers and five deacons; we have no church house yet but we need one very much.

Have very good land here, and we think the land is cheap. If there are any who wish to come North to live we would like to have them come here. O. I. W.

Sunfield, Eaton Co, Mich.

From D. Leedy—Bro. Bishop was with us last week; had meeting almost every night had good meetings; Saturday night had Communion meeting; there was one part of the work not quite clear to me; why do we pass the salute after supper before the members, when we have just passed it at feet-washing?

Please give us the verses and chapter, and why did not Christ use it at that time?—Lebanon, Oregon, Dec. 5.

[The injunction is, "Greet one another with a holy kiss." There is no chapter or verse stating when the members shall salute each other. Where the Lord is silent as to time it would seem reasonable that the church has a right to say when the work should be done. Certainly the Lord did not think his people would have no wisdom—no judgment; but since he requires his people to be of sound mind and exercise judgment, the time of saluting each other was left to them. Why the church regards the salutation of the holy kiss in order after supper, we cannot say. We believe the church has never given any reason for it. Are there any good reasons why the members should not salute each other at that stage of exercise? Whether Christ used it at that time is unknown. We can not say he did, nor yet that he did not. John 91: 25.

If it makes his children worse, or if it makes them no better even, to salute each other after all have engaged in feet-washing, then it would be well to discontinue it at that stage of the meeting. But who can decide that it is harmful or even untruthful? There are some things that need be considered with prayer and meditation. E.]

From J. R. Miller.—On account of muddy roads and smallpox excitement we had no night meetings, but had our regular appointments all along. But as the excitement is abating, we are longing for better roads and more earnest, and continued efforts, to awaken our friends outside of the kingdom to a sense of their duty.... Let us all remember Eccl. 9: 10. " whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no reward, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the end whither thou goest."—Locke, Ind., Dec. 19.

From Emeline Krisher.—I sincerely wish you could persuade some of the ministers to come out here and preach, for it is needed very bad here. Christianity is very cold here, although some profess, their religion is poor; it is a sorrow to me to live here. No good church to go to. Sometimes a Baptist or a Methodist preaches, but not often. I wish someone would come here Christmas or New Year, and hold meeting here for us. It would be so reviving to have good preaching. It would be quite a treat to me and a new thing to the community. Now brethren, I think that some of you could manage to come. I would like to have brethren and sisters come and live in the neighborhood. We have a pretty good settlement here.—Oppello, Ark.

From Lottie Ketting.—We had a council meeting on the 10th in the Woodbury church, and yesterday we had services in the Holsinger church. Brother D. M. Holsinger, of Clover Creek, Pa., preached from the 5th and 6th verse of 11th epistle of Peter. The sermon was very interesting and much appreciated. We expect brother O. G. Lat, of Myrtle, to be of the 20th of this month, to labor for us a few weeks. Will give a full report of meetings after they close.—Maria, Va.

Let no man call God his Father, who calls not man his brother.

Brethren at Work.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

DECEMBER 27, 1881.

R. H. MILLER,
M. M. ESHELMAN, } Editors.J. H. MOORE,
S. J. HARRISON, } Corresponding Editors.

SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS.

Enoch Eves,	A. W. Brees,	D. E. Drobaker,
James Erwin,	S. S. Mohler,	J. J. Koenigsberg,
Daniel Vanhook,	G. H. Hartsough,	J. W. Southwood.

The Author will be responsible only for the general sense of the paper, and the insertion of an article does not imply that he endorses every sentiment of the writer.

Contributors, in order to secure insertion in their articles, will please not indulge in personalities and unbecoming language, but present their views "with grace seasoned with salt."

Subscription price, $1.50 per annum. Those sending eight names each $10.00 will receive an extra copy free. For each additional name the agent will be allowed ten per cent, which amount he will please retain and send to the balance.

Orders sent by Post-office Order, Registered Letter and Drafts properly addressed, will be at our risk. Make them payable to M. M. ESHELMAN. Address all communications for the paper,

BRETHREN AT WORK,
Mt. Morris, Orle Co., Ill.

OUR INAUGURAL.

TO the readers of the BRETHREN AT WORK, I and to the Brotherhood, we wish to give the reasons and causes which have brought us before you as one of the editors of this paper. The work of our life for a quarter of a century, has been with the general Brotherhood, and in harmony with its counsels and principles, believing them to be founded on the gospel. In this day of our church's trials there have been parties formed in opposition to the counsels and authority of Annual Meeting and the established usages of the church. We have opposed the work of these parties since their beginning; because we believe they are wrong, and their work will be injurious to the church and the world. We have ever felt it to be the duty of our editors to defend the church against these parties which have been continually making attacks upon the Annual Conference and the established usages of the church.

If our editors who are loyal to the Brotherhood keep quiet on these subjects, and just let those parties alone it is all they want; it is all they need to give them time to form their own organization, and carry on their work against the interest of the church, till they have sown the seeds of discord and division which will ruin the peace of the church. Some of our Brethren think those parties should be let alone, and nothing said against them. That course will only help them by indirectly giving them support and holding fellowship with their errors. We believe the church is worth defending. Christ defended it in the strongest terms against the proud boasting Pharisee. Paul defended it against the self-righteous Jew and the worldly-minded Greek. And it is as much our duty to day to defend it against the attacks of these parties as it is against the errors of any other church; indeed, it is more important and needful that the church be defended against parties formed within her own body than against those without. Our work in opposing these parties has not been, and shall not be, of personal character. It is no more a personal matter to show the evil tendency and the errors of these parties in the church than it is a personal matter to show the errors of infant baptism. When these parties have been formed in the church, claiming to be parties, giving their platform as a party, it is no more loyal to the church to keep silent and do nothing to defend it, than it would have been for the North to have kept silent and done nothing when the South formed a party and set up a government of its own.

These parties in the church if let alone will as certainly be the ruin of the church, as the Rebellion would have been ruinous to the government, had it been let alone by the United States.

Our Brotherhood must rise up against these parties, and work in defense of the church or these parties will bring division, weakness and ruin upon the church.

Our connection with the Gospel Preacher was severed because those who owned it wanted it to be run in the interest of the Progressive party. We wanted it run in the interest of the general Brotherhood, and we could not for position or money, leave the A. M. and the Brethren with whom we have worked for so many years. We could not leave the established usages and counsels of the church, to work in the interests of a faction and party which has nothing in it only to make the church more worldly, to make the road broader by giving liberty to each individual and to such church, with a free rostrum, to oppose any established usage of the Brotherhood they might choose to dislike, and desire to nullify. When the work and influence of the Preacher was turned to work in the interest of this party, instead of the general Brotherhood, we did not hesitate a moment to sever our connection with it.

Our relation in the College was similar to that in the Preacher. We went to Ashland to help our Brethren in the management of the school and the paper in the interest of the Brotherhood. It was our full understanding at the time that both were to be run in harmony with the established usages of the church. So fully was this understood that it was inserted in the platform or principles of the Preacher and indorsed in Trustee Meeting. When enough of the Trustees decided to change the working of the ruling power of the College into the interest of the Progressive party to make a majority, we, without hesitation, offered our resignation, giving the change in the policy of the Trustees as the reason for severing our connection with them. They accepted our resignation. Thus ended our relation to the College without any personal difference or ill-feeling. We were determined to stand by the convictions of our own consciences and follow the path of duty, making no difficulty and putting nothing in the way of the Trustees with whom we had been related, telling them however that we should continue to work as we had ever done in the interest of the general Brotherhood. We desire to say here that several of the Trustees are in harmony with our views of this matter, being faithful and true to A. M. and the church. We are sorry for the necessity which makes it our duty to withdraw from the College and the Preacher.

While we are engaged in helping to edit the BRETHREN AT WORK, you need not expect any change in its principles or in ours. We have always been in harmony with its views, because they have been in harmony with the principles and practices of our Brotherhood. We will not say we have made no mistakes, nor that the editors of the BRETHREN AT WORK have made none; but loyalty to the Brotherhood and its principles as being the true faith and practice of the Gospel, has led us in all our work. And now in our church's greatest trial, we believe it to be our highest duty to defend her against all attacks made upon the principles she has always maintained. We shall not engage in personalities or fault-finding. There is a wide difference between these and the work of defending our principles. The latter is a duty we shall try to perform; the former we shall try to avoid.

We shall labor to put down the work of all factions and parties, and to restore the peace and union of our church which was her heritage from the beginning in America, down to a recent period. This can only be done by stopping the warfare which is made against the Brotherhood by those who are in its borders. Our principles must be advocated and defended or they will go down and be lost. By degrees the church will be carried over to the world, if it is not defended against that party whose progression tends in that way more than to the good of the church.

In doing this, we bring much responsibility upon us. We ask the prayers and the counsels of our Brethren to help us in directing our labors for the good of the church; and we ask your help in extending our circulation that God's principles may be made stronger in the church by giving to the Brotherhood a paper, defending our principles and working for harmony and union in our fraternity. R. H. MILLER.

1881.

AGAIN in the course of human events, we are called to witness the close of another year. With its going out, many sorrows and afflictions will cease, and the hearts that bore them will be hushed in death. The sympathizing hearts, the trickling tear, the sobbing voice tell the story of parted friends, and the dead are gently laid away to rest in peace. So we part with 1881. With many it has been a year of joy and gladness. There has not been ought to mar their delights nor crowd out their happiness; sunshine and pleasure have ship and is called the good ship of Zion. Christ is in the church as she glides over the sea of time. Her enemy is the same that sought to overwhelm the ship on the waters of Galilee. Storms of persecutions arose to drive the Christians into all lands, but they never were so great that they could not be controlled by him who slept within the ship, though sometimes he did sleep for a long time. This ship is regarded as bearing its passengers "over life's dark and stormy sea" into a house of eternal rest, and it is the only ship of which we have any evidence that will conduct souls to the other home safely. Special emphasis is to be placed upon the fact that the Savior is in the ship. One time he came walking upon the sea, but when he came to where the ship was, he entered it, and there is where he is to be found. If any one desires to find his Savior, (and who does not?) he must seek him in the church. The church is God's recognized agent on earth to save sinners and convey them to eternal rest. When church members fear for the Ship of Zion they need only turn to the Savior who is with them in the ship, and if they ask in faith he will arise and say, "Peace be still." When individuals are tossed by the storms of adversity and are in danger of sinking, they need only say with the same spirit and faith of the apostles, "Lord save us or we perish," and He will speak peace to their souls. Then when life's voyage is over, and the true disciples reach the other shore, it is a blessed, a most comforting thought that they have their Savior with them in the last fearful storm. When mortal pains rock the fevered frame, "When the woes of life assail," and the soul is tossed by storms of fear and doubt, raised by the arch-enemy, how comfortable, how inexpressibly joyous to turn to the Savior and in the calm that eternally surrounds them to hear the echo of the sweet voice, "Peace be still."

For the Brethren at Work.

LOVE AND SYMPATHY.

BY JAMES M. NEFF.

"And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good work."—Heb. 10: 24.

BRETHREN and sisters, the time is at hand in which our sympathies should be extended to one another. We are now in a condition where we find it necessary and important that we should be ever awake, and trying to do all we can for the welfare of Zion and the saving of souls.

We should love one another more, and sympathize more with one another as brethren and sisters, ever remembering each other's trials and temptations. "And let us consider one another;" feel concerned in each other's welfare, and encourage and excite each other to an increase in love to God and man. Oh, how important it is, brethren, when we see that the devil is making inroads on all sides, that we be awake to our own interests, and doing all we can for the good of the cause of Christ!

But how many of us, dear brethren, in seeing the faults and weaknesses of our brethren, (for they are generally seen before our own) at once become offended, and begin to surmise evils against them of which they are not in the least guilty? And not only this, but it is too often the case that such ones are severely reproved and even abused and looked upon with disdain for their lukewarmness. Instead of being encouraged and admonished, they are cast away, and left again to grope in the cold darkness of a sinful world.

Why, brethren, we should "consider one another." We should remember that we are all fallible creatures; and that we should not be expected to be perfect in all things. We should "consider" the trials and temptations of our brethren and sisters, and that it is impossible for flesh and blood to avoid making an occasional misstep.

Instead of avoiding and abusing the weak, we should encourage them, and let them know that we are concerned about their salvation. We should show them wherein they have come short of their duty to God, and admonish them "to love good works."

"Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Gal. 6: 2 And not only this, brethren and sisters, but we should be willing to be aided by others in bearing our own burdens. We must not only be ready to help in carrying the burdens of others, but we should also feel willing to receive counsel from others. We should not become offended if our brother should see wherein we have varied a little from the path of right, and should approach us in the spirit of meekness, and show us our imperfections; but we should love him the more for his good counsels, and try, by the help of God, thereafter to improve by them.

We should never become discouraged, nor should we think we are doing too much toward preserving peace and union in the church, or aiding too much in the prosperity of Zion. The apostle Paul says: "Let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." Gal. 6: 9, 10. May the God of all grace help us to increase in sympathy and fraternal love to one another and to the Brotherhood, is the prayer of every true child of God.

Roan, Ind.

HINTS TO TATTLERS.

THE heights and recesses of Mount Taurus are said to be much infested with eagles, who are never better pleased than when they pick the bones of a crane. Cranes are prone to cackle and make a noise (Isa. 28: 14) and particularly so while they are flying. The sound of their voices arouse the eagles, who spring up at the signal, and often make the noisy travelers pay dearly for their impudent chatting. The older and more experienced cranes, sensible of their besetting foible and the peril to which it exposes them, take care before venturing on the wing, to arm themselves each with a large stone, large enough to fill the cavity of their mouths, and consequently to impose unavoidable silence on their tongues, and thus they escape the danger. Reader, hast thou an unruly tongue? Learn a lesson from the elder cranes, and bridle thy tongue by watchfulness and prayer, that thou mayst say with the Psalmist, "I will take heed to my way, that I sin not with my tongue." —Sel.

The great want of our times for the growth of Zion, is piety with a tap root that goes down into hardpan. It is no small matter to stand firmly in the ground, with winds of doctrine and storms of zeal for isms beating upon the soul; and real growth will come only as one is rooted and grounded in the truth.

It is that wasteth his father, and chaseth away his mother, is a son that causeth shame, and bringeth reproach.

Correspondence.

Home Sweet Home.

Dear brethren and sisters, it is again my happy privilege to unite with my little family around the family altar at home. And this is our pleasant privilege only because the Lord has been good, and his mercies were ours to enjoy all the time. And we are glad to know that he heareth the prayers of his servants in behalf of each other. And while we allude again to the sweetness of home over all other places on earth, we do so not because we do not find a home everywhere among the members of our beloved Brotherhood; for we find a home wherever we go. Many times while on our late trip we felt at a loss where to go—so many were around with their pressing invitations. All this indicated to me that they have a sweet home and they were desirous to share its enjoyment with their humble brother. And right here I wish to say to those brethren who requested me to visit the U. in Ohio and other places that my reason for not responding to their calls was because my long-continued labors were wearing me down; so that I felt that I must go home and rest a while. The work of the minister in the hill country of Virginia is very laborious. It is not like boarding the train and being comfortably seated on a well-cushioned seat and there sit at ease until the destined spot is reached; but they often travel for a long distance on horseback. Then when their labor of preaching is over they begin the slow and tedious journey across mountains and deep gorges to reach that place they call their earthly home—tired and weary they at last reach that sacred spot, and can then thank the Lord for his abundant mercies.

We had the pleasure of conversing with several of our faithful standard bearers upon the great importance of a more thorough and united effort on the part of the church for a wider spread of the peculiar doctrine as indicated by our Divine Head. And we were much pleased to find our Brethren of Virginia standing firm for the peculiarities of our beloved Zion. And not only our aged brethren, but their wives, their sons and daughters, all say we want to have a share of the blessing that God will bestow upon those who bear the message of peace to perishing sinners, and while they cannot all go and preach the Word, they seem to know how to put themselves in the way of blessing. They do not wish to step out of the way and let the blessing fall upon another, but they want to have some stock in the bank. This is just as it should be. And how can it be otherwise when we think of the value of a soul? O what a glorious crown many will miss in the great day of accounts—because they did not put themselves in the way of blessings.

In our former correspondence we stated that our object in visiting our native land was to be company for a dear mother to her earthly home. This we were permitted to do by the blessing of God. And this was a great pleasure, yet the heart was made to swell with sorrow and sadness, because there was a vacant seat there. Our aged father had been removed to the spirit land since our last visit to that place, and all we could do was to look at the arm chair in which he was wont to sit, and view the familiar cane that hung up by the wall and feel the swelling of a sorrowful heart, and say, the Lord doeth all things well, and blessed be his holy name. And we were made to feel that the reason home is so sweet, is because of the presence of all that belong to that family circle. But in the midst of all our sadness we could look forward to the great family re-union, when all the faithful children of God will be called home to feast at their Father's table; all our griefs and sorrows will then be swallowed up in victory. We also had to view the vacant seat of my own dear brother Joseph, who was also one of the watchmen on Zion's walls. So we could only visit the church-yard and view the wounded sod, and silently say far-well and repair to the church where a large collection of people were assembled to hear about Jesus. This is the first congregation that we visited, which is situated in Fayette Co., W. Va. Took our leave of them on the 3rd day of Nov. Went from here to Monroe Co., W. Va. My two brothers and brother John Sanger accompanied me. When we reached the point far which we had boarded the train, we met Brother George, another brother in the flesh, (Isaac and James being with me already) so all the living brothers I have met with me at this point. So we spent a week together in Monroe Co., preaching and visiting. O! how soon the week was gone. Here is where the writer was born and reared, and also the place where he was received into the church, and here it was that we were called to the ministry, and you may easily know why the week was short. (We would gladly give names of many of the faithful, but space forbids.) We here mention the name of one of the standard bearers: James M. Hutchison, a cousin to the writer. He was much afflicted at the time of our visit. Had a pleasant little meeting at his house, which seemed to be a comfort to him. Let us not forget to pray for such.

But the time came to leave this county and go to Montgomery Co., Va., so my brother George and I set out for the county last named, where we met the church there in a Love-feast meeting. (This is known as the Johnsville church.) The Brethren informed us that they expected to have a Love-feast that evening (Nov. 13), and we certainly felt that it was called by the right name. About 115 communicants participated in this feast. There is a very lovely and loving little church here. The Love-feast did not end with the eating of a meal together, but continued several days. We had a glorious season of refreshing from the Lord.

From this point we went to the Brethren in Roanoke county. Spent several days with the Father's children here; had several meetings with them. Thence in Hotspur county, where we had several meetings. Was with the members here in their regular council meeting. Was very much pleased with the spirit of the church at this place. Everything indicated peace and prosperity and a willingness to work for a greater extension of the Lord's work. Now, dear members and friends, accept many thanks for your kindness to me. I hope to see you again by and by.

A. HUTCHISON.

Centreville, Mo., Dec. 6.

Among the Churches.

On the 30th of November we again took our leave of home and its interests, for the Feast in the Wolf Creek congregation, in the well known Miami Valley. The A. M. Committee having previously met there, and in a very satisfactory manner "set in order the things that were wanting" the church at once made arrangements for their Feast Dec. 1st. The congregation was large, attentive, and interesting. The evening services passed off, to us, seemingly with unusual calm serenity. Much of the divine presence seemed to pervade the meeting.

The withdrawng element here took a number of prominent officials, including Samuel Garber, their elder. His brother Jacob was co-care for the church. Brother Jacob has love and charity thoroughly mixed in all his measures of ruling. It was in this house that the old order brethren held their Feast for the benefit of all the withdrawing element in the Valley. That element made a very persistent effort here to retain their right of church property, and there were reports of them continuing their efforts.

The law—Minutes of A. M.—and the usages of all religious bodies are so clear and united on this point that it is strange that there should be the effort made; that the old order brethren are making to hold their former interests. This church with some others in the Valley are thrown unfortunately between the wide extremes of the orderites on one hand and the progressives on the other. How can plain brethren and sisters endorse a theory that is no longer valid, no longer in the bud, but now in full bloom clear to all since the organization, and the budding of the progressive house in Meersdale? To be seen there is a high steeple enclosing a bell, colored window glass, fashionable chandeliers, an organ and a salaried ministry. The remainder of the picture can be safely inferred. How plain and seeming earnest members can endorse a theory that subverts and overthrows the well-established and world-wide known plain principle of the church, we cannot explain. The meeting was encouraged with a number of additions by baptism.

On the morning of the second we took leave of the meeting to meet our engagements with the brethren at Dagnuff, where we commenced labor on the evening of the second, closing the evening of the 12th. The weather was favorable and the attendance and interest of the meeting to us was encouraging. The meeting was encouraged by receiving four returning wanderers; but we thought we never closed a meeting leaving so many seekers out of the church under deep conviction, fully intending to make their future home in the church, and they mostly parents. About twenty-five here went with the Valley move, which left the church much united.

The meeting seemed to afford the members much encouragement; many expressed themselves that the cause there now is in better condition than for years past.

For the Brothers at Work.

THE ELECT OF GOD.

BY C. H. BALSBRIDGE.

TO LEMUEL AND MARY HILLERY, OF KANSAS.

Dearly Beloved in the Crucified:—

YOUR love palpitating, Heaven-breathing, soul exhilarating letter is here. It is the essence of an upper-world millennium condensed into a single sheet. God is love, and this must needs come into expression, which often means darkness and discipline and suffering and sorrow. How to love is the great problem of humanity. "God commendeth his love to us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Rom. 5: 8. The Holy Ghost is a reality, and not an imaginary shadow, and He imports into our personality the very personality of God. He becomes to us a veritable, living conscious Other Self of us and yet deeper than what is deepest in us, making us more roundly and grandly individual as we become more grandly and manifestly divine. To find either ourselves or God we must lose ourselves. To live we must die. To soar we must sink. To be crowned we must be crucified. This absolute necessity is the great stumbling-block of Christianity. It made Christ a derision and an offence. He is still "this same Jesus," and the world is still the same world. The Greeks still pronounce the Gospel foolishness even while standing in the pulpit claiming to preach it, the Jews still about "Crucify, crucify," and the Romans still drive the nails and thrust the spear. And all these constitute the single self of human nature. The tragedy of Golgotha is enacted daily by every soul that prefers the flesh to the Spirit, self to Jesus. O this great and marvellous verity of being born of and into God, how few realize it. Man fights to the last inch and the last iota against God for the supremacy of the flesh. To be "a spectacle to men and angels," "the filth and off-scouring of all things," the butt of the world's mockery, and the target of the would-be saint's hate and scorn—millions will sooner scout and trample Jesus and go to hell than to submit to such humiliation.

I am well aware that my flesh-crushing, spirit exalting utterances are not appreciated by the many, but they are precious to those who have made the personal acquaintance of Jesus, and who have that knowledge of God which comes only by identification of life. My horizon is widening, and the light is growing stronger, and the spiritual atmosphere purer and more bracing, so that I get a clearer, higher, more self-endeavouring conception of God's ideas of life, and a profounder apprehension of the reason why so few find the straight gate. For me to write the deep, intricate radical convictions of my inmost soul which the Divine schooling of suffering and sorrow and intuition beget and confirm and develop, is to narrow the circle of appreciative readers, and be more and more "despised and rejected of men." It is a sore trial to give up such men as Bashor, Holsinger, Howard Miller, and others of their royal stamp; but I am eternally and irrevocably committed to the great, all-comprehending Truth, the thrilling, forever unfathomable fact, "the Word was made flesh." God is man and still God. This is the key to all truth, unlocking the heart of Deity, and the soul of man, and "the exceeding sinfulness of sin," and the heights and depths and raptures of redemption. The pivot-truth is in general poorly apprehended, and the so-called Progressives seem to have lost sight of it altogether. In Bro. Bashor's Seven Thunders, and in all his private letters and public replies to me which grew out of his tract, it is sad to note how utterly alien is the real meaning, of the Incarnation to his arguments and aims as a Christian polemic. The mental attitude of the misnamed Progressives renders it simply impossible to apprehend Emmanuel as the Divine and human blending into one life, using the lower solely as the vehicle of the higher. The intellect of Gabriel cannot take hold of God in a way to make Him the life. There is a deeper infolding and appropriation of the Divine than by thought or volition. No soul can think itself into God, or God into itself, or will across the affections. Every one knows this in the sphere of the human relations. Reason and will must stand back as servitors till faith open the sluices of Golgotha, and flood the whole being with the very life and love of Jehovah as garnered up in the Divine Man. This makes the reason luminescent, and the will vital, and the affections instinct with the life of the Eternal. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away: behold, all things are become new." "We are dead, and our life is hid with CHRIST IN GOD." Head, heart, hands, feet are "instruments of righteousness unto holiness." The tongue that shares this renovation, and is the organ of the indwelling, all-directing Christ, will no more plead for sister's bats, or any other carnal, cross-abusing license, than it will curse and swear and blaspheme. The Incarnation is an awful sin-damning, flesh-bruising, body-and-soul liberating fact, and it is appalling to think how it is trifled with in these days of religious infidelity, even in our own Brotherhood. Regeneration is but a sham and a name in many instances. The incoming of God is a mighty work, and leaves not a spark of the carnal life in reguancy. We do well to examine ourselves whether we be in its faith," or "reprobates." Where God is manifest in the flesh, Christ is relieved. Every member of our bodies and every faculty of our minds is in the employ of the Holy Ghost. The world in the sin sense and flesh-sense, is a carcass to the Christed man and woman. To hunger for it is to be like it—dead, corrupt, doomed to the wrath of God. Nothing is sweet to the God-loved, God-loving soul that savors not of the cross. The meat and drink and dress of the elect is Jesus; and their life, in its essence and exhibition, is neither more nor less than God incarnate. Emmanuel is the totality of the Christian. Whatever else alides in it of the flesh, and must be crucified, or it will "crucify Christ afresh and put him to an open shame." Life and death never compromise one. One must win. Flesh, death, damnation are cognate. Crucifixion, life, salvation, are the trinity of the Incarnation. The doors of Heaven and Hell have their hinges in the Cross.

EXPLANATION.

In the Preacher of Dec. 15 Bro. Bashor published some reasons why he used Benjamin Franklin's ideas in making up his "Gospel Hammer," and says that he sent it to us for publication; but up to this time, Dec. 21st the letter has not reached us, and as we desire to get his reasons in this paper we clip the following from his letter in the Preacher omitting that which scolds us, as it is not relevant to the issue between him and Franklin. That relating to the publication of it was mentioned in the last issues. He says:

"Some extracts from the Gospel Hammer were arranged by the side of similar extracts from Benjamin Franklin's Gospel Preacher, and over the whole appeared the title, "Literary Theft." Those who have the article, will have noticed that, while the ideas are similar, the language and sentences are not the same. I had read Franklin's sermons and was impressed with the force and acuteness of the arguments used. And as the arguments suited me exactly, I considered it no theft to use them as I deemed it necessary; as long as I used my own language in presenting them. Franklin says in the "Preface" of his work, that it was written to be an aid to young ministers, and, as such, I had the privilege of using them. In the preface to my book, I distinctly stated that I did not claim originality for the ideas it contained. When I wrote it I was in search of forcible arguments, and that I might not be misconceived, I took the precaution to state in the preface that I had gleaned ideas wherever I could. My work is not a literary theft, from the fact that I did not steal another man's writings, bodily—verbatim—and palm them off as my own—original in language, plan and thought.

Until I take another man's writings, as he indited them, and without change, sign my name to them, send them out as original with me, I cannot lie convicted of literary theft."

ADDITIONAL REMARKS.

Whether the language and sentences in the extracts are the same or not, all men who read them can judge, and our saying they are or are not, can not settle the question whether Bro. B. did right or wrong.

Would it not have been well for those who "kindle their own fire, compass themselves with sparks, and walk in the light of their own fire, and of the sparks which they have kindled; and in consequence, lie down in sorrow," if they had pointed out the language in which we charged our brother with theft? But it is not profitable to pursue this subject further. It is principle we are after, not men. And as we offered Bro. B. space to explain himself, and he has done so, we hope this ends the matter, and that love may hold the hearts of all to the glory of God and the honor of our blessed Christianity.—Ed.

For the Brethren at Work:

PEACE BE STILL.

[Extract of Sermon by S. Z. Sharp, delivered in the College Chapel, Sunday evening, Dec. 4th '81.]

ON the western shore of the Sea of Galilee lay the ancient city of Capernaum. It was on the highway between Damascus and the cities of Tyre and Sidon. The long lines of caravans from the most ancient city in the world passed this place and all the various people of Assyria were here met on their journey to the Mediterranean sea. Here was the home of Peter with his mother-in-law, and also the place where Christ frequently resorted after his ejection from Nazareth. Luke 4: 29. This place was wisely chosen by the Son of God, as a kind of headquarters, as it brought him before so many people who passed through on their journey from Damascus or from the Mediterranean sea. Here he had expounded to the people the doctrine that was to be accepted by all the inhabitants of the earth. He had unfolded to them the great truths by the simple story of the sower and the seed. Luke 8: 5-15, and other parables as they were able to hear. He had just healed the mother-in-law of Peter, and relieved her of a fever. Matt. 8: 14. He had cast out many devils and had healed all manner of sickness among the people. Matt. 8: 16, 17.

The pressure upon him was so great that his own mother and brethren could not get near him. All day he had suffered them to draw virtue from him and had taken upon himself the sicknesses and infirmities of the people. Isa. 53: 4. "When evening was come they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils, and cast them out. And now the shades of night were falling fast. His human nature was at last borne down by the tremendous strain upon his flesh. Here was no chance to recuperate or obtain a few hours' refreshing sleep. To a scribe he said, "The Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." Then he gave command to his disciples to depart to the other side of the sea where he could be free from the great pressure of the people and secure a few hours' necessary repose. When at sea he laid his weary body into the stern of the boat, and slept as only those can sleep whose conscience is pure and whose body is overtaxed with labor. Now his great enemy and ours found the Son of Man asleep. Shortly before, many devils had been driven out of their abode in man, and it is supposed, by many, that on account of their loss of those human beings of whom the Savior had deprived them and in view of the fact that he was going to the Land of the Gadarenes where he would drive out others, they embraced this opportunity to bring on a storm and if possible destroy him in his sleep.

The nature and violence of the storm may be inferred from the fact that even the disciples who were fishermen and accustomed to swimming, had despaired of their lives, hence they are grounded for presuming that supernatural agencies were at work. Another fact worthy of our observation is, that the disciples feared even when they had the Son of God with them in the ship. For this the Savior rebuked them. They had often seen the power of their Master displayed and they had no right to question his ability to save now. What is especially remarkable is the fact, that he first rebuked the apostles and then rebuked the storm. What could have been more majestic than the words of the Savior as he rose, conscious of his power, and in no haste to quell the storm, but first administers a mild rebuke to his disciples, then with the dignity of a God—with the same dignity that rested upon him when he called light into being, or called world after world out of chaos and placed each into its appropriate orbit—he said to the winds and the sea, "Peace, be still!" When this was said, we are told there was a great calm, not only of the winds, but of the waves also. This proves the miracle. When the winds have entirely ceased, the waves continue for hours afterwards, but here the sea was immediately calm. No wonder the men in the boat cried out, "Even the winds and the waves obey him."

Such is the literal part of this story, but there is a spiritual and practical part, that now demands our notice. The church of God is often compared to a

Miseries of the old Kitcher, S. A.	167	Our God is Patient, M C N	359	Baptism, James Evans	358
Michael and the Devil disputing, J S M	251, 171	O'er the Hill to the Poor-house, H. W.	498	Beches, M Attie A Lear	366
Michael and the Devil disputing, D Bright	267	Oae's Mother, N.	327	Beche, M C N	455
Milk and S'rial, E. R.	129	Our Mother, N.	311	Be-ssou together, Emma Watson	565
Managing little Folks, Ex.	135	Our Home, B.	478	Be-sspibility somewhere,	566
Masing, Sel.	162	On the Death of Sharon Besserman, Mrs.		Robinson and medro Baptism, where do
Men made of Oatmeal,	46	Z M Wood	452	they differ, James Evans	502, 505
Mr. Gladstone's one sleepless Night,	46	Only a modest Dress, John Harshbarger	564	Running a Paper on Trust,	505
Moody and Grab bags,	202	One Thing needful, M C N	567	R. Joice not in Iniquity, Vermont Canon.	502
Mrs. H. W. Beecher on Dress, C. U.	231	Orphan's Home, Samuel Murray	556	S'arch the Scriptures, Albert Meyers	155
Money received for general missionary purposes, J Quinter Trea.	573, 337	Only one G. d, N.	457	Spiders, J J Sloman	162
Marriage maxims,	7	Paid in Oae's own Coin, N.	679	Snowed In,	109
Mother and Children, N.	439	Persecution,	695	Series of protracted meetings, D B S	115
Mr. Gaugh in a tight Place,	398	Passengers on the Stream of Time, S. A.	722	Songs in the Valley of Anchor, C H B	196
Mythers, N.	327	Planning Work, N.	727	Singing, J R M	291
Mixing his Manners,	423	Practice what you Preach, N	5 743	Save me next, N.	231
Misspent Evenings, Lottie Netring	359	Popular Fallacies, Ex.	382	Signs shall follow them, J S M	187
Notes of For's Travel, by a Lady 593, 618	630	Principles, C H Balsbaugh	373	Smallest Things, S. A.	261
Non-Conformity to the World, M C N	615	Passing Away, Joseph B Moots	357	Spirit, J S M'lder	261
N'ties by the way, John Deihl	637	Pure vs. Spotted Religion, James M Neff	330	S'rim and its Causes, Enoch Eby	262
N-n-Conformity and Uniformity, J S F	614	Pastor,	460	S'ri D'ial,	263
N'ible work, D A No-n'ross	659	Peace read again, C H B Balsbaugh	460	Stein and Ray D'bate, J W S'vin	393, 95, 26
Notes of foreign Travel,		Power of a Husband, Sue L Thompson	566	Suffering for Christ's Sake, D P Saylor	246
646, 662, 678, 694, 710 726, 743	709	Pleasures of Knowledge, Angie Yarger	420	S'kirualism,	249
No Cross no Crown, D E Brubaker	742	Peace, G A Shamberger	502	Spiritual prosperity and decay, D E B	229
Novel Idea,	670	Prayer and Tobacco Raising, S. A.	510	Spiritual Bread, Flora E T-ague	231
Need of higher Culture in home Life, N.	747	Preach the Word, Granville N'ring	522	Spirits in Prison,	275
No S'crets from Mother, M C N	103	Power and necessity of Love, C H Brown	533	Sunshine and Shadow, Wealthy A Clark	195
New Year,	36	Pencemakers, Addison Harper	244	Stein and Ray D'bate, C P Long	79
No more a Sapper, John Y Snavely	58	Personal Atonement, B.	590	Some important Questions, J S Mohler	90
Notice,	109, 125, 53, 60, 13, 29	Perseverance, I F Kelso	613	Sto Brother, A Sister	37
Not fit to be Kissed, Anna Linden	126	Pistole,	646	Secret Societies, John Harshbarger	123
Neither ill nor thirsty, B'esserman	142	Progression, J W Southwood	655	Secular Aid, in the Free M'ethodist	146
Non Conformity and Uniformity in Christ's Dress or Apparel, J Wampler	326	Prepara Thyself, Sue L Taomason	661	Stick to the Faim B'ys,	295
Nineveh, P A Rose	322, 308	Perseverance, Charlotte T Bond	246	Stand up—Stand up, A Miller	10
Notice to the Housekeepers of the different Cong. of N. Dist. of Ind. J Arnold	412	Personal Effort, D E B'abster	214	Sid and fatal Accident, E R S'esser	348
Notes by the way, John Wise	412	Provoking Children, M C N	215	Simplicity in Living, means Health and Long Life,	331
No Cross, no Crown, Livi Longanecker	566	Prayer over It, S. A.	215	S'wing and reaping, George D Zollers	434
Notes and Jottings, I J Rosenberger	508	Politeness at Home, S. A.	87	S'nd for Mother, S'lected	439
Non-Conformity to the world, D K Miller	548	Parables, and	91	Stand Fast, Charlotte T Bond	326
No Smoker need apply, N.	551	Plainness of Dress in our Colleges, S Z Sharp	103	Sanctification, I J Rosenberger	430
Noontide, C H Balsbaugh	53	Parents encouraging Children, M J Stees	403	S'lect Societies, Signs of the Times	422
No Discrimination,	486	Practice what you Preach, Mattie Danlap	119	Shaving the Beard, B.	462
Nothing left for By and By, N.	503	Prayer addressed to Christ, J R M	125	S'wing M'other,	455
Notice, J S Mohler,	587	Perpetuity of Moral Being, C H B	138	Sunday, Albert W Vanman	442
O'er the Hill from the Poor-house, S. A.	498	Protracted Meetings, M C Weaver	146	Still about the Father's B'siness, C H B	444
Our Country, B F Mooney	492	Prospective Death,	161	Sickness a D'sgrace, D. F L Oswald	573
Order in the Family, F C Meyers	533	Pueblo, Colorado, Mrs. Emily V Keever	150	Sabbatism,	533
Our Salutatory, S T B'esserman	14	Pictures, W A Clark	71	Steep, Hall's Journal of Health	478
O S'appers Arise, George D Zollers	290	Preacher's Children,	263	Sunday Evening Meditations, D E B	486
Old Tunes, S. A.	130	Plain Dat, J F Eberole	254	She means N's,	486
Only one Dot, C H Balsbaugh	581	Power in Fasting,	10	Sunshine, Hall's Medical Adviser	494
Our Journey, Michael F Snavely	588	Parlor's Joke, Maria A Piper	391	Summer Drinks,	494
Our Feelings, Flora A Teague	598	Query Answered, J S M	603	S'wing good S'ed,	506
Only one Day at a Time,	618	Questions, S. A.	503	Some encouragement from your dear Sisters to Brethren, S. A. M T	538
Our darling Boys, Lucy Hinchman	642	Real Homes, Golden Rule	529	Sunny Rooms make sunny Lives, B.	510
Orphan Home,	653	Riches of the Bible, S. A.	683	Speaking in an unknown tongue, S O L	523
Our Dead, D E Cripe	666	Rest or Rust,	709	Stein and Ray D'bate,	585
One form of Rudeness, N.	711	Relating to Bro. Stein,	745	S'id Foundation, C H Balsbaugh	629
Our Return unto God, Martha Fiko	677	Re-called	23	S'as,	631
Our missionary Plan,	745	Remedy for Diphtheria,	166	S'ard into R'pentance,	682
Our Periodicals, J R M	746	Revelation vs Evolution, J F Eberole	171	Sin and its I-ssue, C H B'alsbaugh	690
Our missionary Plan,	111, 127, 218	Red Hot Shot, Rev C H S'argson	228	S'ring G. d, J S Mohler	731
Our Difference, H P Brinkworth	228	Rightly placing H, Daniel Bright	303	St John and the Isle of Patmos,	731
Old Orderites, D P Saylor	163	Re-ekoning Time,	94	Shun worldly Influence, M M Edelman	725
Our Covenant, John W Brooks	66	Rules for Health, B.	30	Sleepers,	666
Origin, George H Heeke	262	R-formatory, B.	141	Sabbath School Convention, I J R	707
Our Ministers,	75	Report of District Meeting, A Smith	160	S'id News, J F Nebr	700
Our Old Sister zone, D N Workman	176	Re-solution of Respect,	235	Southern mission of Ind	701
Our Faults, J B Lair	850	Reading the Bible, The Congregationalist	186	To Bro. B F Mooney, Jas Evans	340
On the Use of Lemons,	229	Rights of Eccl. Tribunals, Rob't's rules &c.	187	The living Fountain, 342 Tyranny of flesh's	343
		Re-ur-rection of the Saints, J F Eberole	397	To our Brethren at Annual Meeting, J W S	328
		Re-freshing, James Evans

That B dream, B.	366	The best time, Presbyterian	215	The wonderful success,	522
Tea Law, M. C. N.	583	The Question, Lemuel Hillery	82	Tea Barbra S Shirk, C. H. B.	563
The Minnesota field,	585	The river of Jordan,	91	The martyr song, Sel.	432
The needs of the hour, S. Z Sharp	584	The importance of pure air, J. F. Ebarsole	94	The real reason,	486
To T. W. Drennen, A. Root	586	Thanks, C. H. B.	98	Teink of the boys, N.	487
The infidel silenced,	587	The lodge, D. B. Tarney	95	Trip to S Ind, Daniel Rock	492
The avalanche of rum,	14	The New Bible,	104, 32	The Prin. of our fathers, Silas Gilbert	498
The Problem of Human Life,	15	Tea weather,	36	Tools,	505
The Hammon and Bashor Debate,	16	Table Hymn, Sel.	32	The Famous B ble,	283
The two church builders,	18	The last call, N. A.	37	That drug store,	286
The Sabbath, I. J. Rosenberger,	67, 54, 114,	The tired, Sel.	39	The subject of baptism, C. L. P.	286
	98, 23	Training children, M. C. N.	39	The New Revision,	394
The design and form of Christian baptism, J. W. S. 85, 22, 70, 6, 73, 102, 118, 134, 53,	23	The poetry of Life, M. C. N.	119	Tea for birth, J. S. M.	305
		The Holy Kiss, Jno. Harshbarger	125	They do not know any better, B.	382
Tea cure for pride, Jno. Stephens,	27	The skin, Sel.	126	The new man, M. H. Henderson	390
The M-nomites, John Forney San.	245	To Sue Lung,	127	The Mastodon in recent times,	350
The dying girl's song of victory, C. H. B	245	Trifles, Jennie Harmon	128	The oldest city in the world, Sel.	379
The Ready Reckoner, N.	247	The Mormon book, Jno. Murphey	133	The irrepressible conflict, J. S. Flory	374
The Christian's repcs,	169	The Minute Gun, Addison Harper	134	To the law and the testimony,	379
The Lamb's wife, J. S. M.	171	Thy way to health, M. C. N.	135	The doctrine of baptism, J. Y. Heckler 443,	363
The B-ckwoodsman's want,	171	The Little woman, Sel.	135	The new covenant, Mary A. Evans	374
The absurdity of drinking, etc.	174	Training as essential as teaching, M. J. Stees 135		The cause of light, M. Mersers 571, 331,	347
The Nicolaitans,	235, 219	Tea building of God, J. S. M.	139	The Nicolaitans, S. Jone Stoner	347
To prevent sneezing,	222	Tea rezn-ship,	142	The blissful land, Sel.	354
To a dying wif's appeal,	225	Tea devil's workman, Jno. W. Brooks	142	The Hunger and Bashor Debate,	354
The teacher's work, etc., Emma E Bowman	230	To young men, J. F. H.	148	The realities of war, Herald of Peace	335
The vexed question, etc., D. A. Lichly,	230	To-day and tomorrow, M. C. N.	151	The broken graft,	356
To our workers,	175	The young wife's sorrow, Our Union	151	Tea chastening of the Lord, Mattie A. Lear 361	361
The blood of Christ, D. C. Moomaw	178	Two temperance speeches, Ex.	168	The beautiful land, Sel.	306
Trusting God, C. H. B.	179	The Cassel Library,	168	Take warning, Cyrus Bacher	506
The wrong book, Ex.	187	The shoe that fits, S. I.	164	To the ladies, N.	631
The little family, Sel.	258	The church census, H. M.	60, 116	The certainty of the Gospel,	628
Tea Union must not be dissolved, Moomaw	275, 260	Thirty years old,	43	The management of sick children	638
		The B.ble its own witness, I. J. Rosenberger	43	Tea way to health,	638
The Southern call, C. D. H.	262	To keep a room pure,	46	The fatal heel,	634
The Old and the New Year, W. A. C.	4	The Master's field,	48	The turning point,	663
The H. and B. Debate, J. W. Southwood	4	These hearts of ours,	50	They love to have it so, N.	647
Take care of number one, C. H. B.	6	The drunkard's brain,	518	The beauty of cleanliness, A. Mills	702
The monkey and the dog,	7	Tobacco a foe to marriage, B.	302	The Lord hath given' Wm. M Lyon	710
The Bible, J. S. M.	11, 339	To a suffering friend,	306	The longevity of the ancients	656
The unjust steward, J. S. M.	199	To a death-mitten household, C. H. B.	306	The first appearance of the Nazarene, N. C. B.	667
The fig tree, J. S. M.	199	The four baptisms of the gospel, I. J. Rosenberger	310	The Israelites in Egypt,	667
The student's letter to their mother, Sel.	274	To the desponding,	407	The mystery of mysteries, C. H. B.	674
The present state of Mormon Polygamy, Mrs. Padlock	278,	To our readers,	408	Tea world versus the church, W. M Lyon	674
	290	The Holy Ghost baptism, J. S. M.	411	"Tanou God seest me," N.	679
The disciples, Gray	290	Tea Lord's prayer, J. S. M.	411	The devil on the sly, J. W. Southwood	690
The uplifted sword, C. H. B	292	The righteou's, James Y. Heckler	418	Tea Morgan murder,	691
Tortures of fashion,	295	Tea course of civilization, Alphonso New-comer	423	Tea before you spend, N.	695
The hour of prayer, J. S. M.	283	To the absent members of the family, etc.	423	Take your hands out of your pockets, N.	695
The sick Sister,	58	Tobacco cancer, Sel.	429	The Christian Standard analyzed,	630
Temperance, C Hope,	66	Toy kingdom come, Melissa Forney	425	Three circumcious, C.	731
The river of death, M. C. N.	71	Tea gift of the Holy Ghost, J. R. Miller	425	Tea Seven Spirits, D. B. Stargis.	715
To a disciple of Rogersoll, C. H. B.	74	Tea first Microcosm,	426	Tea heaven spirit, M. Myers	699
Tea spirit may be saved, J. S. M.	75	The comet, Jas. Y. Heckler	466	Tea grand circle,	715
Their wives, J. D. H.	75	To the young, Sister Wampler	467	Tea oldest city,	715
Tea snow fall, B.	78	Toings money can't do, N.	471	To traveling ministers and Brethren,	716
Training the tongue, I. H. Miller,	194	To the contented Herd boy, N.	471	Things that destroy preachers, Sel.	718
Tea decision on feet-washing in Lud. W.	194	The danger of wine, B.	462	Tea drunkard's will, Sel.	725
		Tea inquiry 'G. A. S.	452	Take it off,	727
To an inquirer, B. F. Moomaw	204	Tea design of baptism, John Harshbarger	452	The real issue, I. J. Rosenberger	733
Tea harvest,	202	The two goats,	455	The child's morning hymn, I. E.	738
Tea cup, J. S. M.	202	Too poor to take a paper,	455	The best husbands, S-L	742
Tea mother of Pres. Garfield	231	Tea Jewish tabernacle,	443	Tea artificial place, P. E. Whitmer	149
Tea deserving children, Ira Witmore	233	The seven Bibles of the world, Sel.	443	The world 'Ought,' Lud-n West	509
Tea three days and three nights, J. S. M.	235	Tea two glasses, Sel.	450	The blind B ble reader,	307
Tea gospel train, S-L	242	The seven Spirits, J. S. M.	571	Tracts and papers,	526
Tea wonderful fountain, etc., C. H. B.	242	These lea t-estomed, Daniel Bright,	571	Training children, G. Nevinger	526
To the wood, Sel.	244	The goodness of God, S. O. Lukins	563	The Good Shepherd, John Harshbarger	533
The human race,	175	The mercies, etc., Lewis A. Edwards	566	The Spirit of song, M. P. Lichly	538
Tea poor remembered,	175			The high gate, M. C. N.	551
The Jewish Tabernacle, Isaac Hill	205			The orphan found a home, Sel.	551
The pulpit and press, Pitts. Christian Adv.	208			The seventh day, etc. C.	539
The sin of Ahab, etc., I. J. Rosenberger	214			The mark of the Beast,	539

An Evil to be Corrected, S. L.	437	By a Lady, Sel. By Kate Harley	391	District Meeting, J. H. Eshelman	160
Among the Rockies,	—	Boils and Ulcers, Daniel Bright	500	Debate on Feet washing, D. M. Puterbaugh	109
A few Tho'ts on different Sub. L. Hillary	450	Burning the Bible, Sel.	106	Death of Eld. J. Hendricks, A. J. Saylor	112
A Gleam across the wave, Christian H'd	433	Budding of Character, M. J. Stees	119	Drugs Mothers and lady Daughters, N.	231
A good Farmer, M. C. Norman	454	Bread upon the waters, Sel.	146	Difference carried too far, R. H. Miller	245
All in Vain, M. C. Norman	471	Badly Cheated, Sel.	151	Don't be Saloon Keep ^{ers} ,	174
A Lecture for our Grand-parents, M. C. N.	471	Breaking Bread, J. S. Mohler	155	Death of the Czar of Russia,	176
Afflictions, Enoch Eby	483	Baptism in the first Century, W. M. Lyon	182	Dakota's Distress, Inter Ocean Corre. &c.	256
A few kind words, M. C. Norman	348	Boil it down, Sel.	204	Did St. phen say It. A. A. P.	27
An old Maid, M. C. Norman	359	Blood of Christ, John Kinsley	581	District Meeting, J. A.	59
A rare Old Bible,	363	Borrowing Trouble,	591	Disobedience, P. Brower	645
A Preacher's Artifice,	363	Converted to what, J. S. Flory	595	Danger of canned Fruit,	654
A Slice of Ham, S. T. Bosserman	366	Conscience, S. J.	597	Do It Yourself, Sel.	663
A touching Incident,	375	Cain's Wife, J. S. Mohler	603	Disappointment, Jacob R. Keller	632
A good Mother's Plan, M. C. Norman	375	Consolatory, Daniel Bright	626	District Meeting of Tenn, J. Sberfy	716
Ambitious Prof. of Relig., C. at Work	378	Chips from the work-house, D. Vaniman	634	Don't Talk Loudly, N.	727
Admonitory, Enoch Eby	381	Consolidation,	634	Don't Delay, S. L.	582
Am I my Brother's Keeper, B. F. Moomsaw	387	Christian Pantheism, C. H. Balsbaugh	645	Dear Brethren at Work, T. Miller	612
Annual Meeting Committees,	393	Chin ^{ese} M ^{ix} ims,	662	Drennen again, John Kinsley	613
A few thoughts about Home, M. C. Norman	407	Crossing the Line,	666	Dark Shadows of Life, B.	494
Author of the Book of Mormon,	411	Chips from the work-house, D. Vaniman	634	Dividing the Sheep from the Goats,	475
A Caution, J. D. Haughtelin	421		632, 608, 730, 746	Dead and Buried,	451
A Petrified Body, L. M. Koh,	522	Church Order and special Con. &c., D. Hays	635	D. B. Ray's Muteness,	568
A Grand Funeral Display, M.	540	Children receive In-struction,	679	Don't let Mother do It, Sel.	311
A noble Gift, S. L.	549	Church Papers, J. H. Peck	730	Deacons who "Ran the Church."	590
A timely warning, E. R. Stifler,	550	Cause for Lamentation, Mary C. Norman	730	Dress, Sel.	375
A good Lesson, T. G. Snyder,	551	Consolation in Bible Study, S. Baeghly	741	Do your own Fishing,	378
Answer to Querries, J. Evans,	555	Consumption, J. S. Flory	750	Eternal Life, S. C. Miller	597
A Friend who would not wait, N.	567	Count the Cost, J. S. Flory	750	Errett's Defense of Alex. Campbell,	630
A Bar room for Ladies,	574	Cleanliness next to Godliness,	539	Extracts from a private Letter, I. H. Miller	604
A Prospective Life &c., B. F. Kittinger,	675	Committee work, John Wise	540	Entertain Strangers,	634
A Valuable Secret,	711	Christ in the Grave three D's, Thos. D. Lyon	283	Etil Spunking, J. M. N. ff	19
A few Remarks to our Contributors, Com.,	714	Come to Jesus, J. M. N. Engle	466	Easter Eggs,	251
A few Thoughts, E. Spickler,	731	Clothing, Herald of Health	327	Example, S. L.	219
A few Questions, E. Eby,	738	Carist washing his disciples feet,	82	Evolution and worldly Wisdom, G. D. Z. Jllars	520
A visit to Miami Valley, I. J. Rosenberger,	690	Cure for Hydrophobia, 149 Come West,	146	Ecce Homo, C. H. Balsbaugh	38
A knotty Problem,	724	Contentment, 240 Carreting Children, N. 199		Early Rising, Sel.	119
A Plea for young wives, N.	743	Conser,—Explanatory, H. Miller 348, 237, 612		Eight Mile Church, Daniel Barnhart	141
A special Conference, E. Eby,	691	Care of Small Fox, 233 Crippled Christians, 262		Exaggeration,	107
A Hymn suited to a Love-feast, J. Evans,	578	Cure for a heavy Heart, 562. Correspondence,	155	Excelsior, C. H. Balsbaugh	258
A few Reasons why we should belong to the		Can Presbyterians read Greek?	105	Extravagance,	292
Body of Christ, J. Shaeffer,	581	Christ the First Fruits, D. P. Saylor	172	Epistolary, C. Hays	396
About Myself, C. H. Balsbaugh,	594	Cost the N. 4 on the right Side, J. S. Mohler	107	Explanatory, T. W. Drennen	381
Alex. Campbell and Trine Immigration,	602	Christians, S. L. 27. C. uses of war,	247	Ezra Bible,	330
A Criticism, Sam'l Sala	603	Courtesy, B. 378. Christian B ^e n ^e ficence,	390	Education,	325
A new Sect,	612	Concerning Bedrooms, Sophy Withrop	350	Editorial, S. Z. Sharp	568
A Question not Settled Yet, Sel.	615	Cost earnestly the best Gifts, C. Harader	340	Errors in Marriages, N.	535
A beautiful Scene, Dan'l Miller	621	Childhood and Manhood, J. Madson	290	Explanation, Enoch Eby	666
A Hymn for the first day &c., J. Erson	626	Croup, Mrs. J. A. Gray	286,	Ernestness, C. Barnhart	694
A Sketch of my Experience, S. L. Layton	627	Culture Pantheism, C. H. Balsbaugh	436	Eating and Dressing, J. S. Flory	755
A joyful Service, N.	631	Christia, 325. Character, Mary C. Norman	407	Fuel for the Final Flames, Review &c.	557
A Prayer, G. O. Work	642	Conspicuousness in Dress, 407. Corsets, N.	422	Fruit as a Medicine, Sel.	590
A Sketch of my Experience, S. L. Layton	643	Circus Show,	472	Fundamental, C. H. Balsbaugh	610
A friendly Admonition, C. D. Hylton	644	Clean and Unclean in the Ark, C. H. B.	407	Found in Africa, D. E. Brubaker	614
Among the Churches, J. Evans	685, 690	Clothes do not make a Christian, I. J. R.	454	Feet-washing, J. S. Mohler	658, 642
A Resunion Plan for holding A. M.	707	Committee Work	441	Fool and Morals, J. S. Flory	654
A History of Schiem in Mt' Val'y, C. Bright	708	Census Report of Southern Illinois,	536	From China, S. E. Stein	660
A Comparison, J. S. Sanders	653	Creed by excessive Smoking,	683	For Ministers only,	662
At Home once more, A. Hutchinson	669	Christianity as seen by an Outsider,	485	Firmness of Purpose, C. T. Bond	693
Bring in the Sheaves, J. H. Fillmore	519	Census Distribution, Howard Miller	524	Field work, George W. Thomas	698
Baptism Again,	523	Cheerfulness necessary as a Health & B.	526	Fine clothes in School,	249
Believing and Receiving,	558	Christ the P ^{er} and Wisdom of God, N. C. B.	531	Fasting, J. S. M.	171
Beer, A Temperance Drink, N. Dow	702	Condon in Families, N.	551	From Faith Home, Rosie E. Risser	74, 173
Bar-Room Influence G. Nevinger	686	Daniel's Vision, D. E. Brubaker	371	Fire Baptism, Henry W. Linds	212
Birth Songs, C. H. Balsbaugh	723	Danger of Canned Fruit, Amer. Rural &c.	350	Formal and True Religion, C. T. Bond	214
Be Pleasant to your Wife,	727	Drink and Crime, N.	247	From Jesse Calvert,	80
Brethren at Work Almanac,	745	Divorces, New York Evangelist	208	From Ark, George Barnhart	32
Bright Blessings, M. M. E.	10	Did Jesus eat the Legal Passover the night		Fading away, I. F. Kelo	164
Bible Work in Russia,	11	of His Betrayal? No. D. Vaniman	213	From C. H. Balsbaugh,	166
Both sides of the Question, D. P. Saylor	18	Don't Overwork the Brain, Bosserman	30	Follow Me, Lottie Katrieg	53
Blood, Christian Hope	21	Danish Mission Report,	32	Feed my Lambs, Mary Kindell	69
Bad Meat, S. T. Bosserman	46	D ^e servng Boys, Sel.	119	From Huntingdon Pa., L. O. Larkins	78
Bishop Simpson on Stimulants	78	Don't wait until he is dead, D. Vaniman	139	False Christ,	235
Bible Reading and Study, M. C. Norman	247	Daughter and wife	151	Farewell Husband, Sel.	178

From Drs, Ind., J W Southwood	13	Happiness, Rebecca Snively	142	Interesting Discovery,	11
First night at Sea, Addison Harper	402	How to get Rich,	165	Items, James Evans	277
From Hall and Co.,	313	How much owest thou unto &c., C H B	114	Is Sunday School of Divine Appointment
Foundation Principles,—Let the Church Decide,	313	Home again, Enoch Eby	59	or Bible Authority, A B Hochstetler	293
First Floor Bed-rooms,	318	How to avoid bad Husbands, Standard	199	In Memoriam, T C G	400
Fashionable Dress an Evil, M C N	311	Hints to Callers on the Sick,	174	[It was not for the Drink, A L Wastcombe	430
Fasting, London West	100	How to live long,	183	Infant Baptism, A C Review	467
Following Jesus, N.	407	Hygienic Living, Mrs. F L C	190	I ain't doing Not'ing,	469
From the Rockies to the Alleghanies, J S Flory	428, 460, 332, 412, 317, 348, 380, 364	How we may interest in Heav'n, J L B-own	3	I told you so, J S M	459
Fretting and working,	323	How a Suit was settled,	302	Intemperance, H R Taylor	558
From Denmark, C Hope	572, 464, 428	Habitual Homes, B.	7	Insurance,	605
Faueal Preaching,	569	How 'o th all things well, Mattie A Lear	276	Isotinct of Imitation, N.	519
From Longmont Colorado, J S Flory	480	Hidden Treasurer,	295	In Union there is strength, F E Teague	515
Freedom, D Rowland	483	History of Danish Mission,	394	Influence, Jennie Myers	517
Family Worship, M C N	487	How I got sick, B.	398	Infidelity, George Harshbarger	517
From C H Balsbaugh,	493	How to conquer the Quid, A T	389	It don't pay, S T Bosserman	46
Faithful in Life or in Death,	502	How long did Isaiah prophesy?	363	John the Baptist,	283
Fresh Crumbs, C H Balsbaugh	502	How the Sins may be healed by removing the Corruption, J J S	372	Japanese Christians,	425
From Minneapolis, Minn., Cyrus Wallick	512	His second choice, Advocate & Guardian	359	James Evans' Items,	570
Feast, D E Crisp	539	Holiness unto the Lord, S. I.	342	Judgment of Others,	567
Following Peace, M C N	553	How she peeled the Onions, Wash. Com.	407	Jays to the Caribian, E R Saffler	534
From J W Stein,	387	How I got awl, B.	414	Judgment, Enoch Eby	724
Feed my Sheep, F C Myers	538	Home again, J S Flory	476	Let every one sweep before his own door, S. I.	370
Faithful until Death, Ret.	23	His only Son, J Madison	470	Look out for the old Serpent, C H B	370
Fleeing from God, S. I.	469	How I keep well, B.	402	Life in the Polar Regions	352
Future in Anticipation, Samuel Leedy	714	Home Happiness, N.	455	Love of Dress, N.	171
Girls at Home, (N.)	711	How long should we sleep? Dr. S Oswald	446	Learn a Trade,	454
Good Rules, (N.)	731	Happiness at Home, M C N	486	Life a Mighty River, S. I.	565
Giving to the Lord, S. Click,	700	Honious Crime in Tiffin, B F Suidler	503	Little Samuel, James Y Heckler	530
Good Morning,	979	Her Sun is set, J J Parcell,	749	Live and love Life's Labors, W M Lyon	549
God bless our Compositors, C H B	749	How to be Nobody, N.	319	Life Mortality, A Wilford Hall	550
Good Morning, B	478	How he lost his Situation, N.	551	Let us have Light, W P M	459
God my Savior, Harriet Back	514	How and Why, George A Shambarger	634	Lying a Man down, D P Saylor	522
Glass Cloth, N.	551	How to manage him, Christian Advocate	297	Learn of Me, C H Balsbaugh,	470
Gratification, B.	542	How to make a comfortable &c. C G Blyso	382	Libraries, M P Lichty	470
Gambling, I D Harris	554	Home on the Farm, S J Deppen	584	Love does it all, C H Balsbaugh	678
God, and Mammon,	538	Hearken unto the Word of God, M C N	582	Love, Mary C Norman	509
God's Tenderness,	470	He is dead, S Z S	585	Leaving Home, Lizzie H Delp	613
Give us the Reason,	569	How the Bible goes out,	587	Live Soberly, M C Norman	631
Good and Righteous, J S M	555	How milk should be taken,	569	Little Sermons, S. I.	714
Good Health, B.	334	Hell,	601	Let your Light Shine, Uncle John	698
God's blessing on the Dance,	214	Hearing God, M Myers	611	Light and Darkness, O L Cover	741
Going to Church, O L Cover	181	How you take them, F.	615	Knocking that Bump off,	91
Go Somewhere,	568	Has man an immortal Soul, D Bright	633	Kissing the Bible,	187
Guides,	299	Home Religion, M C N	633	Keep A bend, B.	478, 366
God is Love, C Hope	580	Hold on boys, N.	647	Keeping the Head clean,	318
Gone to prepare, M C N	583	How is it? Julia A Gilbert	651	Keeping the Peace by Fire,	599
Gospel vs. Minutes, D P Saylor	595	Household Hints, N.	679	Kindness, Mary C Norman	711
George Moore of London, N.	663	How to be charming, N.	695	Life,	14
Going down, M C N	678	Happiness, Rebecca Snively	693	Let the lower Lights be burning, M C N	167
Gentle Mothers,	23	Home Mission, N. W. Ohio,	16	Literary Societies, J S M	219
George Muller and his work,	170	Having Food and Raiment, let us &c.,	170	Lively Stories,	149
Gathering Lillies, C H Balsbaugh	299	Health, Carolus L Parker	232	Let Br.-Jones, be &c., Coembers Journal	190
Governing Power, Mary J Steas	39	How a boy was poisoned, Christian Adv.	292	Lesson from Bees, S. I.	199
Good News, D P Saylor	140	Husbands and Wives, S. I.	215	Love at Home, Wealthy A Clarke	238
Good news to the Homeless, Thos D Lyon	154	Housekeeping, M C N	87	Lift up the Ensign, C H Balsbaugh	188
German Peasant Women, M C N	151	Happy Home, Sol.	343, 87, 327	Love, M C N	263
Gleam across the wave, S. I.	103	Interior Census, Eli Stoner	69	Learning to Cook,	273
Gospel vs A. M. Minutes, D P Saylor	68	Items of Interest,	71	Men of Gift, B.	478
Good women, Mary C Norman	7	In Memoriam,	706, 562	Mrs. Garfield on Woman's work, N.	487
Good Morning, J S Mohler	2	In the Church, or out of the Church,		Missionary Board Meeting, M J McCure	493
Good Works, M C N	279	Which? J Wise	528	Moderate Drinking, B.	526
Giving Account, Jas Y Heckler	293	Isolated, L M Eby	686	Mortality and Christianity, C G Lint	134
Gospel Principles, John Harshbarger	432	Importance of Bathing, C L P	628	Mercy and Justice, George D Zellers	149
Going Home, M D Hendricks	408	Instances of extraordinary Memory, Sol.	618	Meekness, Enoch Eby	579
Give while you have it, N.	423	In the Field again, C C Root	669	Menroom Conversion, S Z Sharp	628
Gambling, Jas Sawyer	389	Inconsistency, Enoch Eby	681	Most tell it, N.	631
Greek churches' View of Single Immersion,		It is past, Mary C Turner	733	Mountain Normal, C D Hylton	653
Jas Chrystal	365	Intemp'ce, B. 99, 306, 78, 190, 254, 222, 174, 110	87	My Life on the Ocean Wave, G D Z	658, 675
God's Thunders, C H Balsbaugh	451	Influence,	11	My Influence, N.	727
God is Love C Hope	562	I wish some one would look for &c., M C N	39	Musical Instruments, J O Culler	747
Home Mission of N. W. District of Ohio,	716	Inspiration and Rev., Christian Union	251	Miscellaneous,	678, 749
				Missionary Work,	538, 573, 16
				My Brother Addison Harper, G D Zellers	21

brightened their pathway, and goodness has been theirs.

But others have seen afflictions in abundance. At times the dark, fierce clouds came circling over their heads with force, threatening to sweep away their all in a moment of time. The thunder of base men and the lightning of the wicked flashed out against the souls of the righteous; yet God upholds his children. Surely the goodness of God has followed his people. You who have been bruised and afflicted and bore it patiently have shown, like the "noble tree that is wounded itself" and "gives the balm," and while you have been swift to forgive offenders you demonstrate that your "mind is planted above injuries." In the world the year 1881 has witnessed many terrible things. The Czar of Russia fell by the weapon of an assassin, and in our own beloved land of liberty, a cruel hand struck down the chief magistrate. For a time the nation sat in "sackcloth and ashes"—the emblems of sorrow. Men's hearts failed them—sorrow "the noblest of all discipline" sat as a monitor in every heart; and "the internal grief of every man could be read," written on his countenance.

The thousands who lost their homes by fire in the cities and in the country, know what it is to taste of loss. The poor and unfortunate in Michigan whose homes were swept away by fire, have felt what it is to lose loved ones and lovely homes. Ah, have our sympathies gone out to them as directed by James 2:16? Here is a field in which true love may be exhibited to the good of unfortunate mortals.

Coming to "the house of God"—the "congregation of saints," we may behold a scene over which we most gladly draw the mantle of charity. That hearts have been severed—that tender ties have been broken—minds alienated—love-fires extinguished—congregations upheaved, is not matter of wonderment, yet it brings grief and sadness to every righteous soul. Out of all the chaos, our Lord will bring "the little flock" into the beautiful green pastures of the river of life. It is to be hoped that amid the sore trials out of which some have emerged, and in which some are now immersed, they will remember, "Love warms more than a thousand fires." Hold fast your "first love."

On the other hand, the church has witnessed the ingathering of many souls. In the great majority of the congregations, the ministers and members have lived in peace, looking to God as their Preserver and Leader. They have made the Gospel their study, loved the Brotherhood, sought to create no troubles with other churches, hence have witnessed the maintenance of good principles and enjoyed that peace which Christ left with his people. We estimate that 2000 have been added to the church during the year. This may seem slow growth; yet if it be healthy it is a tower of strength.

It is not our purpose to enter into details. To do this would harrow the feelings of just persons, and create wrath and indignation and fury among the unstable and wavering. That which is now most needed is charity out of a pure heart. If all will build with love, and join together with meekness, faults and every evil work will vanish as the dew before a summer sun.

Dare we speak of ourselves? Will you hear us a little concerning your paper? May we have your ears for a moment? With a profound reverence to God for his grace we come confessing that in looking over our pathway during 1881, there are many spots that we could wish were wholly obliterated. That some things appeared in the paper, which did not lift, is most frankly admitted. Still they must be attributed to error in the head rather than in the heart. The responsibilities are great, and the power to do the exact thing at all times and under all circumstances, is indeed bedged in with infirmities. The great majority of our readers know this and sympathize. In no case has aught been sent out with a view to injure character. In all cases so far as we can recall, where anything has been published reflecting upon the good name of any one, we have offered to give space for correction. If the offer has not been accepted, it is not the fault of the publisher. Upon this ground we feel that the responsibilities for injury is lifted from us and been assumed by those who refused to occupy space in our paper to give a friendly explanation.

Now white the closing year is upon us, and we must all give an account to God for what we have done, let us resolve that with the ushering in of another year, we, as people, will be "strong in faith, in purity, in prayer, in unity, in hope, in effort, in trial, in weakness, in culture, in numbers, but above all, strong in God."

NOT UNDER COVER.

It is the purpose of the B. at W. to defend the church and preach the Gospel. We are not ignorant that in defending the church, some who want the church defended, will regard it as savoring of strife, but how a man can "fight the good fight of faith," and "contend earnestly for the faith" by doing nothing, is not clear. While we shall exercise becoming respect and charity towards friend and foe, yet we can not keep silent when the usages of the church and its counsels are injured and being overthrown. It is a doubtful charity that will not defend the church; but keep quiet and make no effort to maintain the church. The enemies of the Annual Meeting desire to be let alone. "Just keep quiet," say they, "it is all we want." Brethren, silence means helping to pull down the government of the church, and we have resolved to stand by the church, bearing no ill-will against any, but speaking in unmistakable tones. If the church is not worth defending, then better dish and go to our tents. Now while we purpose to know no faction, nor to surrender the safe ground occupied by the church since its establishment in America, we shall endeavor to do the work with becoming dignity and avoid attacks on personal character. We shall aim to do everything in harmony with the gospel as understood by the church, and in this we shall look for the support of all who love the church and have not allied themselves with any party. M. M. E.

WHY?

As will be seen elsewhere in this issue, I have given our esteemed brother R. W. Miller the first place as editor of the B. at W. My reasons are,

1. He is older than I am. 1 Pet. 5:5.
2. I expect him to write the principal editorials; I desire to give more attention to other parts of the paper.

3. Modesty requires that where we have the choice, we choose others before ourselves. Phil. 2:3. If I know myself at all, I know that I have more pleasure in putting others forward than myself. I remember what Bro. Hope advised me before taking his last farewell in Lanark for his great mission of love among the Danes. He said: "Get others to work; put faithful men forward; for thereby you will have more pleasure and do more good than by seeking honor of men." This made a deep impression on my mind. God helping me I shall help every good man to have the praise of all the churches. 2 Cor. 8:18.

I bespeak—yea entreat for our brother—your sympathies, your prayers and hearty cooperation in preaching the whole gospel and in defending the faith and practice of the Brethren church. M. M. E.

It would be well to study the Bible daily, and resort often to the secret chamber to engage in prayer. Where this is done, there will not likely be division nor loss of brotherly affection. Heart education is needed accompanied by the grace of God.

BRO. MILLER is known to our readers, hence needs no special introduction from us. He stands firm for the Brotherhood,—its doctrine, order and principles. In these days of trial, the church needs men who combine firmness with kindness. Charity with instability, cannot work to the best interests of the church. The mantle of charity includes stability, firmness, goodness and everything that will maintain order and good government. We are glad to receive brother Miller as a helper in defense of the church through the B. at W. If the church is not worth defending, then we do not understand its high mission and holy purpose. We believe it should be defended, and by God's grace we shall do our part, whether men will hear or forbear. M. M. E.

INDEX TO VOLUME VI.

EDITORIAL.

Address to Our Readers,	664	Our Change,	72	Way Notes,	495
A Pleasant Visit,	680	Our District Meeting,	312	Who Killed Garfield?	632
A Peep into the Bee-hive,	692	Off for Rest,	408	What a Paper Should Publish for the } Good of the Church,	634
About Brother Stein,	729	Our Convictions,	216	Youth's Advance	18, 218
A False Theory,	650	Our Trip to Missouri,	337
A. Campbell's Admission Again,	296, 480, 457	Our Sharon Sleepeth,	361	OTHER ARTICLES.
Among the Rockies,	480, 457	On Pike's Peak,	472	A Lesson to Fathers	294
A Common Error,	505	Our Reflector, 649, 665, 680, 697, 713, 729,	633	A Child's Funeral	295
Annual Meeting,	410	Praise the Lord,	26	Apologies, Baptist Flag	297
Among the Brethren,	345	Preachers and Meetings,	152	A Remarkable Calculation	298
Appointing the Sick,	218	Purging the Heart,	74	Always at the Gate	309
A Day in Washington,	233	Peace desirable,	377	Ancient Babylon, Dr. Talmage	311
About the Bible,	155	Papers and Schools,	632	A Funeral Hymn, Jas Y Heckler	329
Aged and Feeble Elders,	185	Practice vs. Theory,	713	A Review, Stephen Johnson	32
A Safe Cure for Rattle Snake Bite,	5	Religious Freedom,	233	A Correction, J S. Mohler	331
Being Defiled,	53	Removal to Mt. Morris,	100	A Rum Seller,	334
Burning the Bible,	137	Remarks About Love-feasts,	216	About Bismark Grove, Kan., M Neber	339
Big Guns,	169	Sejourning,	42, 55	A Child's Definition, etc., M C Norman	343
Books That D'e and That Live,	185	Shaking Hands,	90	A dying Confession	343
Bible School Echoes,	186	Some Cure for Whooping Cough,	318	A few words in behalf, &c., H W Strickler	188
Baptizo and the Greek Church,	233	Success and Failure,	184	A Public Defeat, D H Weaver	188
Badly Mixed,	225	Some Questions Answered,	265	An Expression, A W Flowers, M. D.	234
Baptism in the First Centuries,	170	Sunday-schools,	297	A Scare Crow, Jas Evans	243
Church Government,	41	Star of Bethlehem Coming,	81	A Boy's Last Hymn etc. London Christian	254
Corrective,	312	Secret's Out,	712	A Century of Dishonor	255
Children's Tracts,	410	Temperance in Kansas,	136	A New Field	259
Care of Children in Meeting,	248	The Fast Age,	153	A Southern Call, C D Hylton	262
Consolidation,	697, 536	Tie Weather,	153	A Question and Answer, Jas Evans	262
Computing Time,	208	Three Actions in Baptism.	138	A Turning Point	263
Cannot Please Him,	281	To Our Workers,	143	A Pure Ballot	279
Church Education,	153	To the B. AT W. Proof Readers,	102	A Baby Heroine	279
Council Meetings,	134	The Two Laws,	124	A Son 2 years older than his father, A J C	279
District Meetings,	129	The Graduating Exercises,	409	A visit to Orphan's Home, D Vaniman	663
Encouraging,	153	The Assassination,	409	A word of Thanks, U W Miller, etc;	77
Explanatory,	737	The Ship All Right,	90	An Effective Quotation	91
Epistolary,	738	The Commission,	156	A Parable, Selected	103
Fasting Again,	120	Two Days in New York,	284	Are you going to stay all night? S Gilbert	111
Future Annual Meeting,	282	The Church Our Mother,	248	An Ode to Sleep	114
Faith and Science,	504	The Conflict Has Begun,	249	A Sand Bag, Evening Post	126
Feeling Safe,	529	The Diff'rence,	264	A Cure for Night Sweats, Scientific Am.,	126
Festival To night,	554	The Kingdom of God,	267	A Petrified Woman, Jao E. Boatman	169
Factions,	616	The Doctrine of Baptism,	395	A Letter to a Sabotarian, C. Hope	164
For Everybody,	712	The Annual Meeting,	360, 376	A Model Lawyer	165
Form and Order,	712	The Preacher's Mistake,	355	A Strong Argument etc, Keyst. T. A.	174
Getting Back,	185	The Revised New Testament,	344	A Lesson for Mothers, Selected	183
Greek and Latin Churches,	282	Tras Worth,	528	A Higher Life, B.	4
God's Trinity,	440	The Result of Divisions,	528	A little Help, I J Rosenberger	7
Going to Meeting,	683	Trine Immersion,	581	An outside View, J B Norton	13
Holding the Fort,	25	The Three Elements,	424	A Difference, Rebecca Suavely	23
How not to Preach,	138	The Annual Meeting Report,	479	Answered,	27
Helping Preachers,	56	Tests of Fellowship,	456	A Success, T D Lyon	29
Helpful,	218	The Extra Annual Meeting Session,	456	A sad Accident, Mary Hopkins	29
Homeward Bound,	506	The Power of the A. M.	440	A true Incident,	32
Introductory,	8	The Governor,	441	A significant Dream, B F Moomaw	34
Information Wanted,	90	Trip Notes,	568	A few plain Hints, Sarah M Saunders	36
In Woodford County,	392	Tricks of Types,	301	A departed Friend, H W Strickler	36
In Justice,	474	The Unweeled Fountain,	280	Are High Schools Needful D P Saylor	50
Joyful Seasons,	648	The River Jordan,	265	An Interesting Letter, Rosa E Rasser	58
Kindness to Young Members,	201	Tract Work,	26	A Wife's Power, M C Norman	487
Last Week's Looking-glass,	617	The Love feast in Linn Co., Ia.,	636	Annual Meeting of 1883, F Anglen, Jers	490
Literary Theft,	681	To Our Agents,	648	Abstemious Men, Walter's Health Journal	494
Mt. Morris,	136	To Our Writers	648	A Sermon delivered in Norway, '76, C Hope	498
Milk and Lime Water,	206	The Real Issue,	696	A word Editor,	506
Masonry Exposed,	232	Turning Dunkard,	714	A City without Dram Shops, W C Sanders	510
More About the Annual Meeting,	293	Unbelief in Colleges,	88	A Worshiper from the Wilderness, C H	516
Mr. Winter on Trine Immersion,	280	Visit to Minnesota,	601	Balsbaugh	517
Misc. of the Brethren at Work,	744	Visit to Lanark,	161	About Post-washing, J F Neher	519
Miserville Church,	284	Vain Talkers,	168	All for Christ,	427
One Baptism,	26	Visit to Jefferson County,	297	A Chinese Library,	429
On What Terms,	104	What Will Bring Peace,	152	A terrible Hail Storm, D E Brubaker	430
		Whoever I have Commanded,	58	Am I Temperate, S T Bosserman	430
		Wiltord,	232	A Morning's Drive, S T Bosserman	430
		Will He Be Saved?	414	At my Father's Table, S T Bosserman	430
		What Is Doctrine?	361	A Plan to aid Missionary Work, J F Neher	437

The Rev of Life, J S Mohler 331
 The danger of wine, B. To cure a Cold 334
 The Bap. of the Holy Ghost needed, J L S 434
 The S. C. Coning and Millal Reign of Chr. J E 435 723, 706, 626, 647, 633, 450, 454,
 The Adversary, W B N 437
 The S go of Authority, S Z Sharp 438
 The Mule that was established, Sel. 436
 Two ways of Reading, 498
 The City of Babylon, 326
 The H rmit's Prayer, Selected 326
 Thank while you read, N. 327
 The Indel related, 311
 T D souster, M H 317
 Takes time to Rest, Selected 318
 The Way to Health, Scientific American 318
 The drunkard's dream, Sel. 542
 Tobacco, M. C. N. 167
 The first, Sel. 183
 T. S. Nazarene, 401
 United we stand, S. S. Mohler 402
 Unity of life, Alces M. Treble 416
 Using tobacco, Oliver Sires 518
 Useful information, B. 334
 Vain oblations, 269
 Ventilation, Sel. 269
 Ventilation, and light in churches, 546
 Vigilance, Jas. Y. Heckler, 546
 Verily say, J. S. Flery 546
 Valley of the Jordan, 651
 What is the end of man, B. 279
 What shall we do with our daughters? 274
 Who shall decide? C. H. B. 394
 What shall this man do? D. Bright 404
 What is Christianity? C. H. B. 404
 Who shall roll us away the Stones? C. D. H. 496
 Wheel-harrow religion, 406
 What is home? M. C. N. 327
 Women and wine, Agricultural World 412
 What is public worship? Sel. 302
 Who was the minister? J. S. M. 395
 Washing the saints feet, Mrs. Hartman 379
 What to do, 379
 Who is the Rock? O. D. G. 379
 Work in the field, S. S. Mohler 374
 Why I go to church on rainy Sundays, 374
 We should go to A. M. with faith, J. S. Flery 346
 Who were they? J. Maesen, 358
 Want of wisdom, Vina Eller 103
 Worth knowing, 113
 Was it noticed? C. H. B. 136
 What over taxation does, N. Y. B. 391
 Wrong doing, Beswamy, 72
 Western Book Concern, 84
 What excuse will you have? S. M. W. 94
 Who is my friend? W. A. C. 197
 What shall he done? J. P. Ebersole. 197
 What is Faith? C. nie Long. 198
 Worship, J. J. Emmert. 306
 What saved him, 210
 Who wrote the Bible? Alex. W. Reese. 312
 Wayside Ministry, Sel. 180
 What I have never heard, D. P. Saylor. 186
 What a penny will do. 247
 Why young men remain Single, M. C. N. 250
 Who does the work? 251
 What kind of fire, J. S. M. 11
 Winecave made me, made that book. 16
 What they have done. 603
 Wanted—a Minister, Sel. 616
 Work and pray, Sel. 618
 Was he ripe?..... 618
 Wheel harrow religion..... 619

Waiting for the grist, N..... 647
 Woman, N..... 743
 Why complain, Enoch Eoy..... 714
 Why is it? Enoch Eoy..... 683
 Warning for the young, E. Ebelman..... 615
 Words and deeds, J. S. M. Neff..... 342
 What are we going to do?..... 343
 Will we have another council? M. Miller..... 486
 Waldenses and schools..... 490
 Will you assist?..... 492
 Where the drunkard's money goes..... 404
 What spirit are we off? Charlotte T. Bond..... 519
 Who cares for me?..... 519
 What papers are doing..... 511
 Worship, D. Rowland..... 328
 Woman speaking, J. S. M..... 475
 Wilford and his work, E. A. Orr..... 476
 William Morgan..... 458
 Watkin's Glen, Flora E. Teague..... 454
 Why you should have the S. and R. debate..... 454
 What is a Christian?..... 478
 We must Love, Sae L. Thomasson..... 583
 Worldly love, P. A. Garber..... 506
 Without shading of cloud is no remission, J. H. Miller..... 506
 Yet there is Room, Lizzie H. Dap..... 166
 Ye ought to wash one anothers Feet, J. H. 113
 Your Boy, N..... 535
 Ye are all children of God, Mary Kindell. 491
 You'll be a Duke but I shall be a King,..... 349

Minutes of Annual Meeting from 1877 to 1881 inclusive, put up in pamphlet form, and can be pasted in back part of Book of Minutes. Only 25 cents.

Job Work—If you have a book or pamphlet, circulars, letter-heads, bill-heads, envelopes or any kind of Job Work, you want done, we will do it neatly and cheaply.

Mt. Morris Public School.

Report for the week ending - - December 26.

Number Enrolled.....203
 Average Daily Attendance.....180
 Per Cent of Attendance.....93
 Number Tardiness.....6
 Neither Absent nor Tardy..... 124

E. A. BERRY, Principal.

DO YOU WANT TO FEEL GOOD ?

There is quite a rush for the address only by Dr. Estlin's through this paper—but to some their money has been returned for the reason that by not telling only any subscribers to locate the REALIZER, which it is already well known, therefore the REALIZER is more than one in the same locality. We are anxious to see you REALIZED to make you feel good in body and spirit. The REALIZER will do the work of the REALIZER for you to be good. If you feel no reputation or acquaintance to send agents to send those things with the privilege of examining them, but the publications are that will get all the orders for us willing to supply it. They introduce the REALIZER and will do the best yet known to us.

These orders from Canada must come on paying the duty. If before you order make for what you don't know—it is impossible to say everything in an advertisement—and send your name in full and the address for what you want to be surprised or not.

DR. P. FAIRBANKS, Chicago, Ill.

GENERAL AGENTS -
 FOR THE
Brethren at Work,
 AND
TRACT SOCIETY.

- J. T. Boserman, Dunkirk, Ohio. John Forney, Amherst, Kan.
 Joseph Yastman, Vinton, Ill.
 Joseph Roy, Levee, Ill. J. S. Flery, Leagmore, Colo.
 C. A. Shandager, Graham, Mo. John Metzger, Cerro Gordo, Ill.
 W. G. Taylor, Mt. Morris, Ill. John Metzger, Cerro Gordo, Ill.
 J. S. Mohler, Corralville, Mo. J. W. Southwood, Newmarket, Ind.
 John Van, Mulberry Grove, Ill. D. Brewer, Salem, Oregon.

YOUR PAPER.

* The date after your name on your paper shows to what time you have paid. It serves both as a receipt and a request for payment. Thus "1 Jan, '81," shows that the paper has been paid for up to that time. "1 Jan, '82," shows that the time will then expire.

☞ If proper credit has not been given within two or three weeks from time of payment, notify us at once.

Business.

B. AT W. and Microcosm,	$1, 75
B. AT W. and Youth's Advance	$1, 75
B. AT W. and Family Companion,	$, 90
B. AT W. and Primitive Christian,	$, 75
All to one address,	$1, 00

Brethren's Envelopes.—These are neat, white envelopes with the general principles of the Brethren church printed on the back. By using them, the doctrine of the church may be spread far and wide. Price, 15 cents for 25; or 40 cents per hundred. For sale at this office.

Tablets! Tablets!

Six tablets for 50 cents, — one for ink or pencil, the other five for pencil only.

Address: BRETHREN AT WORK,
 Mt. Morris, Ill.

All About Kansas. THE WEEKLY CAPITAL is an eight-page, 48 column paper, published at Topeka, Kansas, giving full and reliable State News, Crop and Weather Reports from every county, $1.00 per year. —

IA MAN

Remember! Few Always as Low as the Lowest!

"Great Rock Island Route!"

Steady pre-eminence among the great Truck Lines of the West for being the most direct, quickest, and safest line connecting the great METROPOLIS, CHICAGO, and the EASTERN, NORTH-EASTERN, SOUTHWEST and SOUTH-EASTERN LINES, which terminate here, with KANSAS CITY, LEAVERWORTH, ATCHISON, CENTRAL RAILWAY and OKLAHOMA, HO COMMERCIAL CENTERS from which routes that traverses the Continent from the Missouri River to the Pacific Slope. THE

EVERY LINE OF ROAD

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway

is the only line from Chicago without break into Kansas, for KANSAS, by its own track, reaches the Pacific without break. NO TRANSFERS BY CARROLLING. NO HOPPING ON CONTRACTING. NO SHEDDING OR SHEDDING. 2 or 3 cars run, or every passenger is carried in a roomy, clean and furnished coaches, upon fast, 2 or 3 cars.

DAY CARS of unexcelled equipment, PULLMAN PALACE SLEEPING CARS, and our own magnificent Pullman Dining Cars, upon which, under the supervision of experienced conductors, all the delicacies of the Pacific Coast are served in the most palatial style for breakfast, luncheon, and dinner.

Through Chicago, Rock Island, Pacific, and other lines, we have direct connections to all parts of the continent, and also direct to every place in the West, and to every part of the Pacific Coast, including Vancouver, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, Alaska, and the Yukon.

Our all night arrangements regarding baggage, express, and other extra bills, and rates of fare, are given in our complete and up-to-date Guide Book, which is sent free to every agent and to every passenger. For a copy of this Guide Book, apply to the principal offices in the United States and Canada.

R. R. CABLE, E. ST. JOHN,
 The First and Great Chicago, Chicago, Ill. Geo. T. Co. and Chicago, Ill.

Tidings from the Field.

Postal card communications solicited for this department. Reports of baptisms especially desired.

Truman, Kan., Dec. 16.

Bro. Bueghly is laboring here, but I understand he is going to leave us in the Spring. Now who will come in his place? There is a large field open here, and I think much good may be done. Bro. Bueghly has sown the seed, and I think some of it will grow by and by. The weather is very fine and plows are going in nearly every field.

W. MEEKEY

Brownsville, Mo.

Bro. William Carrier, from Knobnoster, Johnson County, was with us the 3rd Sunday of December, and preached three very interesting discourses to attentive congregations. We have reason to believe that those meetings have done much good, for the interest increased much. We felt sorry that brother William could not stay longer and preach for us, as we believe we soon would have seen the result of it. Come brethren whenever you can and stay longer. Our meetings always close too soon.

DAVID L. WILLIAMS.

Prairie City, Ia., Dec. 11

Our meetings closed the evening of the 6th, with five applicants for baptism. We had large congregations and good interest to the close. Brother Gibson did most of the preaching. We say to the brethren, come over to Macedonia and help us. We have a splendid country for agriculture and stock raising. We would be glad to have true-breeding brethren locate with us. We number some thirty-five members; we have finished our meeting house 32x42.

JOHN POOL.

Yellow Creek, Ill., Dec. 16.

Brethren Absalom Malthe and Caleb Correll, from Fulton County, Pennsylvania, paid us a visit on the 8th, and preached till the evening of the 11th; they preached the Word with power and zeal. They are zealous brethren for the cause. No immediate accessions, but we hope the seed sown will bring forth fruit ere long.

MICHAEL KELLER.

Mulberry Grove, Ill., Dec. 19.

We held our quarterly council meeting last Saturday. Everything passed off very pleasantly. Missionary board elected were, Daniel Wessburn, Granville Nevinger and J. P. Lillig; they have organized and are now ready to receive calls for preaching. These calls must be made to one of the board. Elder John Wise has returned home again the 17th. He will preach for us here a few days, commencing next Saturday. He will soon go to Missouri and Arkansas to preach. May God bless him in his work.

J. P. L.

Fallen Asleep.

Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord.—Rev. 14: 13.

HUFFERD.—In the Middle Park church, Clinton Co., Ind., Dec. 6th, 1881, Andrew Hufferd, aged 54 years, 7 months and 2 days. He went into a well at one o'clock; when he was down about fifteen feet, he was suffocated by damps and fell to the bottom of the well, some twenty-five feet, where he remained until near dark. The feelings of his family cannot be described. He leaves a wife and twelve children to mourn their loss, which we believe is his gain. Funeral services on the 8th by D. N. Workman of Ohio, and G. W. Cripe, from Job 14: 13, 14, 15, to a large and sympathizing congregation.

How true the words of our Savior, "in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh."

JOHN E. METZGER.

PEFFLY.—In the Union Center church, Dec. 6th, 1881, David Peffly, aged 73 years, 8 months and 14 days. The deceased was born in Lebanon Co., Pa. The text for the occasion was Phil. 1: 21

LICHTY.—In the Milledgeville congregation Carroll Co., Ill., David Lichty, aged 77 years, 3 months and 29 days. Funeral discourse from Rev. 14: 13, to a large congregation, by Eld. Jacob S. Hauger and Elder Martin Meyers.

FORNEY.—Dec. 16th, 1881, near Shannon, Ill., Ira Price, son of brother John B. and sister May Bell Forney, aged 1 month and 5 days.

S. H. SPROGLE.

ROOT.—In the Ludlow congregation, Darke Co., O., Sep. 6th, 1881, brother Samuel Root, aged 74 years, 4 months and 23 days. The deceased was strong in the faith, and was an exemplary member for many years. Some days before his death, he called the brethren and was anointed in the name of the Lord. Funeral services by brethren Tobias Krider and Jesse Stutsman.

FOREMAN.—Same congregation, Sep. 25th, 1881, Viola, infant daughter of brother Noah and sister Malinda Foreman, aged 10 months and 1 day. Disease, Cholera Infantum. Funeral services by the brethren. J. A. B. NORTH.

STAHL.—The 6th of Dec. 1881, in Indian Creek congregation, Fayette Co., Pa., sister Mary, wife of Bro. Jacob Stahl, who preceded her some three years ago, aged 81 years, 2 months, and 22 days. Sister Stahl was highly respected, and a consistent member for nearly fifty years. Funeral discourse on the 10th, in the County Line church, by the writer, assisted by Rev. White. Text Matt. 24: 44. D. D. HONNER.

BARKLEY.—Near Falls City, Neb., Dec. 6th, Sister Susan, wife of Bro. Norman Barkley, aged 25 years and 8 months. Funeral services by the writer, from Job 10: 23, 21. Brethren Waino and Meester also assisted in the services.

W. J. L. BAUMAN.

FRY.—In the Yellow Creek congregation, Stephenson Co., Ill., Dec. 6th, 1881, our beloved brother and elder Daniel Fry, aged 75 years, 9 months and 29 days. No disease in particular. He suffered considerably the last few days, while his strong constitution, and death were struggling for the mastery; but in all he was exceedingly patient and fully resigned to his fate, and anxious to go to his reward.

As a Christian and husband, as well as counsellor and housekeeper in the church, Bro. Daniel had few superiors in the Brotherhood. He leaves a kind companion and seven children, who are all members of the church, to mourn their loss, but not as those who have no hope. Funeral services by the brethren, to a large assembly, from 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7, 8, in connection with Job 7th chapter, ENOCH EBY.

MARTIN.—In Naperville, Ill., Nov. 16th, 1881, Fanny Martin, aged 69 years and 14 days. Her husband preceded her to the grave four years, whose age was 90 years and 29 days. The subject of this notice was born in Lancaster Co., Pa. She was the mother of seven children, fifty grandchildren and seventy great grandchildren. Funeral services by Jac. Sulzenberger and S. E. Youdrt, from John 6: 28, 29. N. EARLY.

Prin. C., please copy.

ADVERTISING is the trial of principle! Without it, a man hardly knows whether he is honest or not.

Index to Nos. 48, 49 and 50.

EDITORIAL.

Begotten of God,	773
Chronicles,	702
Conducting Papers,	712
Fear Not,	709
Love One Another,	772
Our Inaugural,	784
Unity,	780
Who Is Responsible,	781
1881,	772
OTHER ARTICLES.
Annual Meeting, Jas. R. Gish	733
A Question Answered,	703
Advice in Brief to Dyspeptics,	705
Brother Stein,	774, 774
Christ, the true Light, Lizzie M. Brower	731
Concerning the Law, J. J. Rosenberger	743
Coming into Jesus, Geo. W. Grady	725
Explanation, S. H. Bester	770
Divisions, Jos. C. Youder	770
How I Once Lived and Its results, C. B. Teeter	705
Int. Memorial, W. M. Lyon	757
Love and Sympathy, Jas. M. Neff	751
My Life on the Ocean Wave & G. D. Z	717
Notes of Travel, D. E. Price	704
Our Beloved Rosie, Thos. D. Lyon	734
Objections, M. C. Norman	726
Out of the Mouth of Babies,	738
Prayer, Belle Butler	759
Praise your Wife, N.	759
Personal Criticisms, N.	759
Peaceable People,	764
Peace be Still,	760
Paper Missionaries, Maria Moon	771
Report of S. Mission Field of Ind., J. W. Teeter	704
The Service of God, I. H. Miller	756
Take Warning, Sarah Buechly	758
The spoiled Pattern, Dora I. Hayes	771
To Northern Indiana, J. R. Miller	774
The Elect of God, Balsbaugh	770
The three Gold Dollars, S. A. K	778
Why Will be Done, J. M. Newland	773
Why do we thus? George A. Shanaberger	776
Why not stitch it?	761

Our Working Band.

The following have sent subscriptions for B. A. T. W. If mistakes occur, please notify us, stating the number of the paper in which it occurs. Send for prospectus and sample copies. Canvass thoroughly, and do a cash business.

Isaac Miller, 8; J. T. Fidler, 5; J. A. Yost, 2; Hiel Hamilton, 8; C. Krabill, 7; Eli Stoner, 6; D. Brumbaugh, 5; Christian Roerch, 3; D. Foney, 2; J. W. Hollinger, 10; M. J. Geed, 4; Abram Tcms, 1; John Mohler, 15; Christian Holdeman, 2; Ella Swartz, 4; Hiram B. rman, 5; E. H. Rosenberger, 10; D. S. T. Butterbaugh, 2; Josiah Beeghly, 2; Isabel Irvin, 3; W. K. Simmons, 8; J. D. Haugstine, 3; Anna E. Light, 5; L. Clapper, 4; John Royer, 2; G. W. Gibson, 16; A. B. Wallik, 3; H. E. Reed, 3; Susan Stoner, 1; E. P. Peilly, 7; J. L. Myers, 4; Henry Hoke, 1; F. C. Myers, 4; Geo. Long, 6; N. W. Workman, 6; J. R. Marquis, 2; Jas. M. Neff, 2; J. R. Miller, 1; J. B. Neff, 5; Samuel Neher, 3; J. W. Moats, 2; John H. Moore, 3; J. C. Gooding, 2; H. W. Coekin, 3; D. D. Horner, 2; Daniel Flora, 4; J. E. Mohler, 6; J. P. Lillig, 3; S. A. Overholzer, 2; Viola Miller, 5; T. D. Heiston, 3; I. H. Shaw, 2; C. Bucher, 1; S. M. Chook, 2; Lizzie B. Myere, 2; Frank M. Cook, 2; David Brower 16; Jas. Murry, 5; S. W. Lindover, 11; S. K. Ottinger, 5; Jac. R. Keller, 3; M. A. Eisenhour, 9; G. C. Stump, 1; J. Hawver, 11; D. W. Strickler, 3; J. H. M. ore, 2; W. H. Eisenbe, 3; J. H. Miller, 7; D. S. T. Butterbaugh, 6; E. W. Young, 1; David Clem, 11; Sam'l. White, 1; Wm. P. Young, 2; Neph Arner, 16; Wm. Moore, 12.

Certificate and Order Slip.

188

PUBLISHER OF THE BROTHERS AT WORK,
MOUNT MORRIS, ILLINOIS.

Please send me the Bro. at W. to the following address, for One Year, from 188 to 188, for which I herewith send $2.50.

Name,

P. O.

County,

State.

Perhaps by an effort you can secure a hard new subscribers in your neighborhood. Each subscriber, whether old or new, will receive an Advance Free. Send for Prospectus and Sample Copies.

